CROPS ARE GOOD AROUND HAULTAIN

Oats Most Satisfactory of Grain Crops—Vegetable Yield High.

(Examiner Correspondence)

HAULTAIN, Sept. 19. — Enquiry among many farmers brings a general expression of satisfaction with regard to the yield of things agricultural this season. Much of the harvest has been completed, although occasionally one comes across a field of oats not yet cut, but on the whole the harvest is in and many of the farmers have already threshed, and they seem pleased.

With regard to the grain, the oats are most satisfactory. The buckwheat yield has been good, and the fall wheat, when consideration is taken of the great amount of rain which fell while it was in stocks in the fields, has been a matter of a pleasant surprise. Some little time ago it was feared that the fall wheat crop was ruined, owing to the sprouting while it was stocked, but the fears then expressed have not turned out to be as true as then conceived.

The garden vegetables are likewise yielding well, especially the potatoes, for which those of us who depend upon others for our supplies along these lines are grateful.

As for the poultry we are glad to say that reports are favorable. This year's hatch of chickens are growing very well, and will soon be ready for marketing as fairly large birds. There have been some complaints with regard to the turkeys, but from observations and enquiries, one is led to the conclusion that the "Christmas" bird will not be conspicuous by his absence when that festive season comes around.

Owing to the fact that there has been so much rain this season, there has been ample pasture for the cattle, which has resulted in the fact that the farmers have been able to send in a good amount of cream and milk to the cheese factories and creameries, respectively. The cheesemakers report that they have never known the milk to keep up as it has done this year.

Taking everything into consideration, it is a good sign for the coming winter that farm produce has reached such a stage of perfection as it has done this season, and if this state of affairs is general in the whole Dominion, then from the economic point of view we should all be very gratified.

CATHOLIC WOMEN HOLD CONVENTION

Delegates From Every Division Attend Annual Convention of League.

(Examiner Correspondence)

DOWNEYVILLE, Sept. 19. — The eighth annual convention of the Peterborough Diocesan Branch of the Catholic Women's League was held in St. Luke's Parish Hall on Tuesday, September 11, and was a great success.

Thirteen sub-divisions were represented by their respective delegates, and members were present from Peterborough, Cobourg, Lindsay, Trout Creek, Kinmount, Ennismore, Powassan, Kearney, Norwood Lakefield and Campbellford. The delegates were welcomed at the door by Mrs. Thomas F. Harrington, acting in the absence of Miss Anna Murray, the president. She was assisted by Mrs. Angus Twomey.

Following the registration and the presentation of delegate badges, a hearty welcome was given by Miss Delphina Piggott, the diocesan president. The convention in general was opened at 2.30, with Miss Piggott presiding, by His Lordship Bishop O'Brien of Peterborough, reciting the prayer. This was followed by the chorus, "O Canada," by the juniors. The Rev. Father Galvin, pastor of St. Luke's Church and chaplain of Downeyville league, extended greetings and a welcome to the clergy, delegates and visitors who in great numbers braved the inclement weather to make the convention a success. In the absence of the local president, Miss Anna Murray, Mrs. Harrington extended cordial greetings of hospitality from Downeyville league. She sketched the growth of the local sub-division in the past eight years. The diocesan president in her annual report dwelt on the value of holding conventions by getting together, hearing and discussing reports the delegates are stimulated to renewed energy, a social atmosphere of good fellowship is established, and a new interest in the work is taken, and by congenial cooperation the links in national choir are more strongly forged, as in union there is strength.

After the reading and adoption of the minutes, correspondence and treasurer's financial reports, the report of Miss Piggett, delegate to the national convention held in Calgary from June 25 to 30, was heard. This report proved to be a splendid account of the activities carried on by

PETER SHAPTER.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 9.—Peter Shafter, aged 84 years and six months, died at 9.30 last night at his residence, Centre street, after a short illness. He was a life-long member of the Methodist church, and a native of England. His wife, formerly Elizabeth Palliser, one daughter, Miss Ada, at home, and one son, the Rev. Percy Shapter, of Millington, Mich., survive.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

MRS. FRANK BREWER.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TRENT RIVER, Sept. 19. — The sudden death of Mrs. Frank Brewer occurred early this morning. She retired last night in her usual health. Her husband, on hearing a noise, went to her room, before midnight and found her lying unconscious on the floor. Medical aid was summoned, but Mrs. Brewer passed away at six o'clock this morning.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

REV. J. H. EDMISON.

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 19.—One of the most prominent members of the Kawartha Park summer colony passed away at his home in Toronto on Saturday, in the person of Rev. J. H. Edmison, D.D. Dr. Edmison's efforts made the building of the little church at the Park possible, and before it was built he arranged services in a large tent on his property, arranged for speakers, and in every way helped the cause of Sabbath observance. His efforts were in no way in opposition to the church services already in effect, but more in the nature of an auxiliary. He was interested in the activities of the young people in sport and was a valued member of the Kawartha Park Regatta Committee for years. His sincerity in friendship and his love of fair play won many friends, who will mourn his loss.

The funeral of the Rev. John H. Edmison, D.D., will be held on Thursday, September 20, from the C.P.R. station at 11.50 a.m. Rev. Dr. Watt and the Rev. William McDonald will officiate. Interment will be Little Lake Cemetery.

JOHN G. REID.

STIRLING, Sept. 19.—At an early hour on Sunday morning, John G. Reid, of the 4th Concession of Rawdon near Hubble Hill, passed on to his reward. Mr. Reid suffered from a serious illness several years ago, from which he never fully recovered. He had spent all his life of 57 years and 4 months on the adjoining farm.

The deceased was a faithful member of Mount Pleasant United Church, Rawdon Circuit. He leaves to mourn his loss his widow who was formerly Miss Totton, three sons, one brother, Edgar and two sisters, Mrs. J. L. Bailey, and Mrs. Gilbert Smith, all living near.

Mr. Reid was a staunch Liberal, and was quiet and unassuming in his manner. The funeral was held on Tuesday afternoon, service being held in the church at Mount Pleasant at 2 o'clock.

MRS. C. E. THOMSON.

There passed peacefully away on September the tenth, at Brighton, Margaret Geddes Gilkison, widow of the late Reverend C. E. Thomson, M.A., of St. Mark's church, West Toronto.

Mrs. Thomson, who was born in Hamilton, was the daughter of the late David Gilkison, Esquire, whose father was the founder of the town of Elora. He arrived in Canada from Scotland in 1832 and upon the advice of his cousin, Mr. John Galt, purchased fourteen thousand acres at the Grand River Falls.

Galt, who was a novelist, informs us that "Gilkison's manuscripts proved him to be a man of literary talent and there is no doubt the scenery influenced him in his choice of the locality of Elora, almost as much as the mill privileges and the fertility of the soil. The name of the Irvine River and that of the village itself were given by M. Gilkison. The name Elora was borrowed from Hindostan, being an early English transcription of Elura. Mr. Gilkison was entertaining some friends in the river-cave over against the scene of the Ojebway tragedy, when the inspiration of the name Elora was breathed on him by the Manitou of the River."

Mrs. Thomson's great-grandfather was the Honourable Commodore Alexander Grant, at one time administrator or lieutenant governor of the province of Ontario.

The edceased was married to the Reverend C. E. Thomson, M.A., one of the first graduates of Trinity College, Toronto. At the time of his marriage he was rector of St. John's Church, Elora, and it was he who built the present church which was one of the first in Toronto diocese to have free pews. After twenty years' residence in Elora, Mr. Thomson accepted the charge of All Saints' Church, Hamilton. When the diocese was divided he moved to Weston where he ministered to the congregation of St. John's and St. Philip's churches. For the last twenty-five years of his life he was rector of St. Mark's church, West Toronto. Throughout her husband's long ministry, Mrs. Thomson was always active in the work of the church and was a devoted member of the Women's Auxiliary, of which she was a life member.

Mrs. Thomson was a musician of no mean ability and until her death enjoyed many an hour playing—especially the old Scotch airs with which she was so familiar.

The last seven years of her life were spent in Brighton at the homes of her son, Mr. Charles Thomson and of her daughter, Mrs. Edgar W. Pickford.

She leaves to mourn her loss, two daughters, Mrs. Edgar Pickford of Brighton and Mrs. A. Percy Brown of Peterporough, and four sons, Charles of Brighton, Henry of Belleville, William of Peterborough and Kenneth of Norwood.

The funeral was conducted at St. Paul's church, Brighton, by Rev. E. A. Slemin, on Wednesday forenoon, the pall bearers being her four sons and Messrs. Austin and LeBoutillier. Burial took place in Toronto at St. James cemetery, where the officiating clergy were the Rev. Canon Tremayne, Rev. N. H. Noble, Rev. Canon Baynes Reid and Rev. R. C. Seaborne.

Many parishioners from former parishes showed their love and respect for the deceased lady by attending the services at the grave. Included among many beautiful floral designs were tributes from the Women's Auxiliaries of St. Mark's Toronto, and of St. Paul's, Brighton.

VICTORIA DEANERY

Mitchell, secretary of Fenelon Falls W. A., acted as secretary.

The report of the deanery expense fund for last year was read by Mrs. Powell, the adoption of the report was moved by Miss Currier of Omemee and Mrs. Howard of Millbrook; carried.

The roll-call and report from parochial W. A. secretaries was responded to by representatives of ten branches of the W. A. out of seventeen branches in the Victoria Deanery.

The ten branches represented were Bobcaygeon, Blackstock, Cannington, Cameron, St. John's, Cavan; Fenelon Falls, Lindsay, Millbrook, Omemee, Sunderland.

The seven W. A. branches who had no representatives present at the Deanery were Bailieboro, Beaverton, Bethany, Trinity, Cavan; Dunsford; St. Johns', Emily, and Reaboro.

Reports Read.

The reports of the various branches were most encouraging and from the good work done the Woman's Auxiliary is certainly living up to its motto.

Bobcaygeon had six representatives present, with 31 members on the roll, and an average attendance of 18 at their meetings held the second Tuesday of every month.

Blackstock had 14 representatives present, with 33 members on the roll and an average attendance at the eleven meetings held during the year on the third Thursday of every month.

Cannington had 14 representatives present, with 25 members on the roll and nine meetings were held with 3 special meetings throughout the year.

St. John's, Cavan, had 15 representatives present, with 25 members on the roll. Twelve meetings were held on the second Wednesday of every month, with an average attendance of 12.

Fenelon Falls had 10 representatives present, with 18 members on the roll and an average attendance of 9.

Lindsay had 13 representatives present, with 46 members on the roll. 8 regular meetings were held, with an average attendance of 22.

Millbrook had 6 representatives present with 33 members on the roll and an average attendance of 18. 18 junior members on the roll with an average attendance of 12 and 18 Little Helpers.

Omemee had 9 representatives present, with 30 members on the roll with an average attendance of 16.

Sunderland had eight representatives with 17 members on the roll.

Cameron (yet a very young branch) had six representatives present, with 8 members on the roll.

The activities in these very encouraging reports show that the branches are very much alive and many of the branches report: The clothing of boys and girls at the Indian schools; bazaars; the giving of plays; the packing of bales, etc.

Officers Elected

Mrs. Gallagher and Mrs. Howard were asked by the president to act as scrutineers for the election of officers for which Mrs. A. H. Cuttle, diocesan treasurer, of Toronto, took the chair. Mrs. P. G. Powell, who was nominated by Mrs. Howard, and Mrs. Sandy, for Deanery president, was electedby acclamation, there being no other nominations, showing the good will of all the representatives.

Mr. Powell in a neat speech thanked the branches for the honor of being appointed their deanery president for another year, and hoped that the branches woud all help her with their prayers, which meant a great deal to her and that she would do her very best to fulfil this office as it should be.

Appeals Heard.

There were three appeals sent in. First was from the Diocesan of Athabaska, telling of the conditions of the roads in that far-off country, that of Fort Vermillion for a buggy for the clergyman who finds it difficult travelling in a huge wagon during the year.

Second, that of Kootenay Diocesan, an agricultural district, where the people are very poor and trying to build themselves a church.

Third, from the Arctic Fellowship, for supplies that had to be purchased and charged.

Mrs. Powell expressed her feelings, as being sorry that Miss Cartwright, Diocesan president at Toronto, was unavoidably detained because of her over-supply of work just at this certain time. However, Mrs. A. H. Cuttle, treasurer of the Diocesan, Toronto, delivered a splendid address along the lines of W. A. work, she said, in taking a glance over the field, she would advise the members to take their study books and study during the coming year. Missionaries are so hard to get, to go to foreign fields; she said the work in the Indian school is tremendously worth while, the development of the Indian has been like a boy learning to swim, tremendously slow at first, but later learns very quickly. She said any money was well spent in this work, and asked that any, in making out their annual report, mentioning sending bales, to please not say that the bale was valued at so and so, but just mention the mere cost of the material used. She said the word value did not exist in the W.A. and she referred to the shortage of missionaries, and said that she was so glad that Miss Greta Clark's health was sufficiently restored that she might return to her mission field. Miss Clarke's home is in Emily. As members of the W. A. go out and try to do something more, have individual responsibility to do more work. In conclusion she read the message, Ezekiel 37:22-23.

The Rev. Mr. Minchen, Principal of St. George's College, Prince Albert, then gave a very interesting missionary address. He said missionaries who go to a far field are filled with missionary spirit, working day and night quite often, with but very little salary, often hardly sufficient to clothe and feed their family, the strenuous work on their part in doing their best for their fellow-man.

He illustrated places where they had Sunday school by post, when the missionary was only able to come every two months, trying to bring the parents back to God, that they might teach their families.

He told of people who have never seen a clergyman for twenty years, the hardships of people who are deprived of such services; these people need your help, need your prayers. Think of men, away in the north in these shacks, living in loneliness through the long winter months, do not know anything of God, who are seeking after God; those in the sparsely settled districts, lumber camps, etc.

The collections which were taken at both sessions were for Deanery expenses and the balance to be voted on.

Miss Vivian Lough of St. John's, Cavan, moved that the balance be sent to the "Arctic Fellowship." This motion was seconded by Mrs. Marsh of Lindsay.

An amendment, moved by Mrs. Smith and seconded by Mrs. Lamb, "That the balance be equally divided among the three appeals." When put to a vote, the amendment was found to carry.

A kind invitation was extended for the annual conference of the Victoria Deanery Women's Auxiliary to be held in Lindsay next years, the date to be the second week in September. The changing of this date was discussed, but finally settled to be as is usual, the second week in September.

Thank Hostesses.

A vote of thanks to the ladies of Fenelon Falls for their kind hospitality in entertaining the W.A. delegates was extended by Mrs. Westmacott of Millbrook and Mrs. Whyte, also of Millbrook, after which the members showed their appreciation by the hearty applause which followed.

Rev. A. T. Weir of Omemee, Rural Dean, also made mention of the splendid way in which the ladies of Fenelon Falls had entertained in providing both dinner and supper to the visitors.

Mrs. Mitchell of Fenelon Falls replied, stating it was a pleasure for the ladies of Fenelon Falls to be able to entertain the delegates.

The hymn, 291, "O Master, let me walk with Thee," was heartily sung, after which the Rev. A. T. Weir pronounced the benediction.

The clergy was represented by the Rev. Canon Marsh and Mrs. Marsh of Lindsay, Rev. Canon Allen and Mrs. Allen of Millbrook, Rev. P. C. Howell and Mrs. Howell, Deanery president of Blackstock, Rev. A. T. Weir, Rural Dean, and Mrs. Weir of Omemee, Rev. Mr. Gallagher and Mrs. Gallagher of Lindsay, Rev. Mr. Howard and Mrs. Howard of Millbrook, Rev. Mr. Davis and Mrs. Davis of Fenelon Falls.

The representatives attending from St. John's, Cavan, W.A., were: Mrs. R. McCamus, Mrs. B. Fee, Mrs. C. Winslow, Mrs. H. Seeney, Mrs. R. Tippett, Misses Jean and Vivian Lough, Mrs. Thos. Braithwaite, Mrs. Martin, Mrs. Thacker, Mrs. Thos. Sisson, Mrs. T. Harkness, Mrs. J. Sisson, Mrs. R. M. Howden, and Miss A. Sisson.

REMAINS A CANADIAN.

The hero of the Olympic Games, so far as Canada was concerned, Percy Williams, the Vancouver school boy who astonished the world by romping home a double sprints winner, has not allowed the lionizing his record has brought him to turn his head.

While lesser lights in the Canadian athletic world have yielded to the persuasion of educational institutions across the line, Williams, who has received flattering offers from a number of American colleges, has announced that he has no intention of leaving Canada.

He will enter university in British Columbia instead of yielding to the lavish offers of United States schools.

The fastest sprinter in the world is not only a great runner but a good Canadian, who proposes to remain in this land of promise, and his fellow Canadians will honor him for his decision.

WHY NOT INVERLEA PARK?

The local Board of Health is right in adopting a firm policy in regard to the installation of sanitary conveniences wherever these are possible.

While good progress has been made along this line in recent years, there is no reason why in every district where water and sewer service is available every building fit to be used as a residence should not have such conveniences.

And while the board is considering this question, The Examiner would once more like to call its attention to the fact that the lack of sanitary conveniences in one of the city's most frequently visited parks, Inverlea, has been the subject of much unfavorable comment from visitors during the past summer.

When owners of private property are being threatened with court action for failing to provide modern conveniences, it is hardly the thing to allow a nuisance to be maintained in a public park.

Perhaps at its next meeting the Board of Health may find time to discuss this matter and to take steps to see that Inverlea Park is brought into line with other sections of the city.

THE BRITISH MINERS.

The Deputy Minister of Agriculture is being attacked because of his statement that British miners brought here for the harvest will not be allowed to remain in Canada for the winter unless they secure work on the farms.

But is there much wrong with such a policy?

Much as The Examiner would rejoice to see a larger stream of British immigration into Canada, the folly of allowing these new-comers who have not been absorbed by agriculture to flock into the manufacturing cities of this country for the winter seems obvious.

The season is near at hand when thousands of Canadian citizens who have been engaged in outdoor work will find themselves facing the annual problem of endeavoring to secure employment for the winter.

Canadian industry has never yet—except in war time—succeeded in completely absorbing all such workers.

Why then add to the numbers of winter unemployed by allowing the British miners to remain in Canadian cities for the long period when outdoor work is an impossibility and when those without employment are likely to become a charge upon the community?

SHOULD BE SUPPORTED.

One criticism of the complaint system adopted by the Ontario Highways Department in the hope that it will assist in the campaign for safer driving is based on the danger that the Bureau of Complaints may be called upon to investigate charges that may develop through spite.

The system undoubtedly offers an opportunity for people who have a grievance, fancied or otherwise, against somebody to make trouble.

That, however, should not interfere with the effectiveness of the plan if careful drivers avail themselves of the complaint system as a means of curbing dangerous driving.

Should half a dozen or more motorists complain of recklessness on the part of the same driver, the department would have every reason to believe that he belongs to the class that deserve official attention, and he would be given an opportunity to justify his conduct.

Only irresponsible and reckless motorists will have any cause to fear the complaint system.

Those who are careful, courteous and considerate need not worry about report cards in so far as their own driving is concerned.

The toll of lives that is being taken by automobiles makes it necessary to adopt unusual methods, and any plan that gives promise of even partial success should be supported.

"FOREIGNERS."

A remark by Dr. Hugh Dalton, M.P., is worth noting. "Many find it hard," Mr. Dalton said, "to live without the stimulus of enmity against some foreigner or other."

How true this is. It is one of the underlying causes of war, for war is the inevitable result of hate and prejudice. And hate and prejudice, in many cases, are based on nothing more than misconception, misunderstanding or plain every-day ignorance.

There are Canadians who speak contemptuously of "foreigners." The word, inoffensive enough in itself, has a slur attached when used by a certain type of man. And investigation often reveals this man as perhaps only one generation removed from the status of being a foreigner himself.

There is another type of citizen that simply hates to see a newcomer to the country getting ahead. This type, invariably, is not making much progress on its own account and is consequently jealous when it sees someone with only half or a quarter of the opportunity, making hay while the sun shines.

Another critic of the foreigner is the man who objects to newcomers speaking in the language of the country they have recently left. Only last week a communication in the Star's Letter Box referred at some length to new citizens speaking in their own tongue and continuing their familiar religious practices. "Even their own clergy have come here," the writer put down, and one had no difficulty in catching the spirit of indignation that lay behind these words.

Perhaps the best way to answer this criticism would be to turn the thing around. If the average native-born, English-speaking Canadian were suddenly transported to Belgium or Italy or Poland or Russia or Holland or some other European country, would this Canadian, immediately on arrival, commence using the tongue of his adopted land or would he keep on speaking English to any other English-speaking persons who happened to be in the vicinity? And if he were an Anglican or a Unionist or a Presbyterian or a Baptist would he cease to be either of these because he happened to have moved to another country, assuming that it was still possible for him to exercise his familiar religion in the new country? No one would expect him to make these changes, of course. In due time he would come to speak the language of the new land and eventually, even, he might accept the chief prevailing religion of the country. These would be only ordinary processes and one sees them taking place in Canada every day and every year. It is unwise, unfair and even cruel to suggest, however, that because a man is unable to speak our language or because he does not see eye to eye with us in a religious way, that we should regard him as an undesirable and endeavor to keep him and others like him out of the country. How would we feel were the circumstances reversed? People who speak slurringly of foreigners and find fault with them for being here, should ask themselves this question.

Perhaps of all the criticisms offered of the newcomer that having to do with his ability to work hard and his propensity for thrift is the most absurd of all. If there is anything that this country needs it is workers. We require, we earnestly require, men and women who are prepared to work long and work hard, men and women who are ambitious, men and women who are prepared to make sacrifices in order to achieve their goal of success, men and women who are thrifty, men and women who see in Canada an opportunity to secure wealth and position and the comforts that are, by very force of circumstances, denied them in their home countries. Canada cannot have too many new citizens of this kind. They need the opportunities that Canada offers and Canada needs them to assist in her development.

No Canadian can afford to sneer at the newcomer. This country is still young. Even those of us who were born within her boundaries are only a generation or so removed from the soil of another continent. Our fathers or our grandfathers or our greatgrandfathers were newcomers once upon a time. And we are glad they came here, because their coming made us Canadians and no man need be ashamed to call himself that. The newcomers arriving in Canada are now entitled to the same opportunity that our forefathers received. This country is long enough and wide enough and contains opportunity enough for all who care to come. Let us welcome the new arrivals. Let us make them feel that they have a definite place here. Let us tell them that Canada is for them as well as for us. In no other way can we more facilitate the process of Canadianizing these people and bringing them around to what we call the Canadian view of things. Who but ourselves can be blamed if foreigners remain foreigners even after years spent in this country?—Border Cities Star.

BURYING A GUNMAN.

There are people to-day who tremble for the future of civilization on the American Continent. Their fears are not without justification. The terrible crime conditions rampant in widely diverse sections and cities of the United States, the subverting of justice and the revelations that from time to time are made of police relations with criminals, are sufficient to cause many an anxious tremor as to the ultimate outcome of this state of things. Worst of all perhaps in their effect upon the rising generation are the hero-worship that is accorded criminals and the extravagant laudation of gunmen that is practiced when one of them meets his end. A case in point is that of Antonio Lombardo, leader of one of Chicago's notorious gangs, who was shot a few days ago, with two of his lieutenants, in one of the downtown districts of the city. Commenting upon the "strange and wonderful civilization" possessed by Chicago, the London Free Jress gives the following particulars of the gunman's funeral:

"The floral tributes were as wonderful as if it was the funeral of a President of the United States. Across two trees in front of his home was a huge floral piece fourteen feet long, bearing the letters T. Lombardo. The "T" was in pink flowers, the rest in white carnations. So many flowers came that they filled not only the house but the backyard, the front lawn, the passageways between houses and a neighboring lawn. It took seventeen automobiles to carry the flowers. Apparently to add to the impressiveness of the occasion, the pallbearers, twelve of them, were dressed in tuxedos. Over the casket was furled a silk American flag, topped with a brass eagle, and a silk Italian flag with a brass symbol, crown and cross. The procession was two miles long, and before it started police and detectives searched the cars for machine guns and sawed-off shotguns, but none were found. The funeral went off without a hitch.

"The funeral was without benefit of clergy, but, according to the Chicago Tribune, 'a young Italian read some sort of funeral ritual in the Italian language and a male quartet sang, in Italian, 'Nearer My God to Thee.' The Tribune adds: 'Then the mourners dispersed to go about their business of avenging the loss of their chief."

There is no city or State on the face of the earth that can long survive where conditions like this are tolerated. Either Chicago must master its gunmen and thugs or they will completely master Chicago.—The Globe.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

At least the directors of the Canadian National Exhibition cannot say that they have not received plenty of advice.

Messrs. Hoover and Smith cannot reasonably expect to get their full share of publicity until the world's series is over.

The statement that Peterborough is to go "on the air" has no reference, it should be understood, to the sewage disposal plant.

The crowd that saw the final game between Hunter and Cochet for the United States tennis championship is described as "howling and shrieking." Fortunately, however, no pop bottles were thrown at the French victor or at the officials.

Voice of the People

Letters to be printed in the Voice of the People column must be received at The Examiner Office on the day before it is desired to have them published.

Editor Examiner:
Dear sir:

Noting in your paper last week that a lady had picked both fruit and flowers from an apple tree recently, would like to offer an explanation.

The food of a tree, which flows in liquid form through little tubes, is carried nearest the bark. When a tree is about to die this layer of tissue dries up slowly and hardens and the tubes gradually get smaller, thus a smaller amount of food can reach the leaves and the tree will finally die. This small flow causes a slow development and indeed the buds would not develop at all unless we had rains and warm weather. This slow development may be only on a limb or on the whole tree but whatever part of the tree is late in developing will be found to be dead next year.

Hoping that this may prove of interest to your readers.

Yours truly,
LIONEL E. NELSON.

GOD'S MINUTE.

Blessed is that man that maketh the Lord his trust.—Ps. 40: 4.

Our gracious Lord, we beseech Thee to so guide and bless us this day, that we may become more like Thy Blessed Son, in all the gracious and wonderful perfections of His being. We earnestly pray that we may possess the mind of Christ—the mind of perfect humility; that His cross of self-denial and sacrifice may be willingly assumed and carried as one of the coveted privileges of the Christian life; that we may enjoy the Spirit of Christ, for we have learned that human wisdom is not sufficient to equip us to meet the demands of life and service; that we may possess the purity of Christ, in Whom there was found no fault; that the confidence of Christ may be ours, the confidence which perfect faith ensures; that the joy of Christ may fill our souls, the joy of perfect peace—peace enjoyed because there exists between Thy heart and ours nothing to create division or friction.

Grant, we beseech Thee, O Lord, that we may so live as to be fit to represent Thy dear Son as ambassadors; that we may be epistles known and read of all men, as telling the story of a wonderful redemption; that the influence of our lives may be such that men may constantly take knowledge of us that we have been with Christ Jesus and have learned of Him. Amen.

BUTTER AND EGGS

TORONTO, Sept. 19.—Demand for fresh butter from spot buyers yesterday was again of a limited character, with some jobbing sections reporting sales of No. 1 pasteurized solids at 39¾ cents per pound, for broken lots required for immediate needs. Wholesalers stated that, in a market devoid of any particular significance, trading was being very quietly conducted at a price range of from 39¾ to 40 cents per pound for finest grades. The jobbing price of highest quality prints, without cartons, at the close of last week averaged 43.11 cents per pound, the same as at the close of the previous week. From reports received it is hardly likely that New Zealand finest creamery will make an appearance before December next, and according to local information, prices for Anchor Brand laid down at Toronto will approximate 39¾ cents per pound.

The cheese market continues quiet, with no response reported from the United Kingdom to week-end cables. The spot market is listless and nominal quotations for No. 1 new, large, colored paraffined and Government graded, rule at around 23½ cents per pound, delivered basis. Activity between houses of late has been exceedingly small. Cheese offered for grading in the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec, exclusive of Quebec City, for the week ended September 15, 1928, amounted to 60,339 boxes, as compared with 56,591 boxes for the corresponding week last year.

There has been no further change reported in egg prices from local sources, and this section of the produce market is steady, with demand for strictly fresh supplies well maintained. Supplies of fresh gathered from all points continue small, due to seasonal changes, and shortage has developed a freer movement of storage eggs into retail consumption channels during the last few days. Locally, the movage of storage eggs has not been sufficiently heavy enough yet to affect the general market.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

TORONTO, September 19. — The morning run of cattle was 800 and the late arrivals made 1,000 cattle yesterday. Holdovers from Monday were 4,500. This leaves a heavy supply to dispose of. The quality of the cattle is only fair.

Choice quality steers and heifers are barely steady at $11.00 to $12.00, an odd fancy type brings a higher price. The medium and common butchers are draggy, most of yesterday's cattle for sale are of this class. A full 50c lower from last week is shown on the bids.

Fat cows are selling at $8.50 to $9.00, a few fancy higher. Canners and cutters hold steady. The cut is directed against medium and common cows.

Choice butcher bulls and heavy bulls remain unchanged. Bologna bulls are quarter lower $6.75 tops.

Good demand is shown for stocker and feeder cattle. Low tendency of market is not affecting this class.

Slow trading on springers. Backward cows are hard to sell. Milkers very slow, with practically no demand.

Baby beeves sell well at steady prices, on a $15.00 top

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Sept. 19—(Canadian Press).—The export trade in Canadian grain here yesterday was again of a limited character owing to fact that foreign bids were out of line with local exporters' views.

There was a slight improvement in the remand from local buyers for cash grain in the domestic market and sales of odd round lots of Manitoba number 6 wheat, and number one feed oats were made at cif prices, and American No. 3 yellow corn sold at 16¾ cents to 17 cents per bushel of the Chicago December option for December shipment.

Prices for Canadian western oats were steady under a fair demand.

A moderate amount of business was done in spring and winter wheat grades of flour and values were unchanged.

Prices for all lines of mill-feed were firmly maintained under a good inquiry from all sources. The demand for standard grades of rolled oats was fair and prices were firm.

The trade in all grades of fresh and storage eggs was active and the undertone to the market continued firm. The receipts 3,289.

The scarcity of imported beans in the local maret was more pronounced than ever and in consequence the undertone to the market was strong, but there was no change in prices. Sales of broken lots of choice white hand picked were made at $4.20 to $4.40 per bushel, ex-store, and car lots to arrive were quoted at $4 per bushel ex-track.

Only a small trade was done in butter but the undertone to the market was steady. The receipts were 951 packages.

Extreme dullness marked the export trade in cheese but the demand from spot buyers was fair and prices were well maintained. The receipts were 7,948 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Sept. 19—(Can. Press) —Record breaking big marketings of wheat by Canadian farmers, together with paucity of demand from Europe, resulted in lower prices yesterday for wheat. Estimates were current that the world now has enough wheat in sight to dispense with any shipments at all this crop year from south of the Equator.

Closing quotations on wheat were easy at ¼c to ⅝c net decline. Corn finished ¾c to 1⅜c down; oats, ¼c to ⅜c to ½c off, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 30c.

With Canadian farmers reported as delivering as much as 8,351,000 bushels in a single day, it was predicted that heavy selling develops quickly in wheat from orth America. No such broadening out of export business was in evidence yesterday, purchases for shipment to Europe being estimated at only 400,000 to 500,000 bushels.

Meanwhile, harvest weather in Canada continued excellent, and advices were at hand saying that domestic wheat receipts northwest promised to become heavy toward the end of the week as a consequence of better weather.

Assertions that wheat shipments from the southern hemisphere have been rendered superfluous were based on a statment from a leading Chicago crop expert pointing to an existing crop and carry-over of 1,636,000,000 bushels in Canada and the United States.

Against this showing he balanced world import requirements of but 800,000,000 bushels. Nevertheless, wheat values here although declining failed to suffer any severe break, and speculative sellers made little headway in depressing the market. A popular explanation was that prices were low enough, and that every one of the bearish elements in the situation had practically been allowed for.

Corn and oats receded with wheat. Besides, fine weather for maturing the new corn crop was prevailing and appeared likely to continue.

Provisions tended downward, following the course of hog values and grain.

MARMORA OLD BOY MOTORS TO COAST

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Narrie Travel 8,000 Miles in One Month.

Marmora, Sept. 19 (Examiner Correspondence).—Deciding on a sightseeing trip across the continent, an old Marmora boy and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest N. Narrie, of Newport News, Va., left Marmora on August 13 in their roadster, carrying full camping equipment, and when they arrived at Lacona, N.Y., a calendar month later, they had traversed a distance of more than 8,000 miles without mishap or adventure. On the forward journey, some of the cities passed through en route to Vancouver, B.C., were Toronto, Detroit, Chicago, Cedar Rapids, Council Bluffs, Omaha, Cheyenne, Butte, Spokane, and Seattle. Yellowstone Park was also visited, where the climate proved the coolest on the whole trip. The visitors were struck with the grandeur of this vast park. Its geysers and mud volcanoes proved most interesting to them. Mention was made by them of Old Faithful, the greatest of the geysers, which every 63 minutes, with greatest regularity, bursts forth for a period of six minutes. Nature's coloring in this park, Mr. Narrie mentioned in interview, was the grandest he had ever seen, and the mountains with their wonderful rock formations are the most awe inspiring.

Mention was further made of the black and grizzly bears and moose which abound there. Black bears prowl around tourists' camps, and upset garbage cans. The black bear, as he showed by a snapshot which he had taken of three surrounding him, is of a very tame species, and when near the highway, habitually holds up cars, begging for food. Coaxed in with a little bit of sugar, they will crawl into the back seat of the car to permit a picture being taken of them, but one needs a reserve portion of sugar to coax them out again.

At Cedar Rapids, the main factory of the Quaker Oats Company was inspected and admired. Passing through the State of Wyoming, Cody, home town of Buffalo Bill, was visited, and his monument and the museum inspected. "This is the most typical of the western towns I know," said Mr. Narrie. "It immediately brings to your mind the town of the western movie picture, with its long narrow streets, no pavements and low buildings." Halted at another place in Wyoming because of a flock of sheep, and enquiring the number, he was told it was 2,300.

"Crops, wherever to be seen, were bountiful," said Mr. Narrie, "notably the corn crop in Iowa."

Cyclone cellars in Wyoming were new to him. They are judged a necessity on every prairie farm and are equipped with canned provisions for time of need. Dry weather was experienced in Vancouver, though it was foggy at times.

Return Trip.

On the return journey a different route was followed. Seattle, Tacoma, Olympia, Portland, Oregon, Pocatello, and Idaho were passed through en route to Chicago and Rochester. There is an interesting roadhouse on the highway between Portland and Olympia which did not escape the notice of the travelers. It is made of two blocks of a red wood tree, which was shipped from Fieldbrook, Cal. It took nine flat cars to convey the whole tree, which measured twenty feet at its base. The first limb was eight feet in diameter and 12 feet up the trunk.

Mountains seen during the whole trip were the Cascade, Rockies, and Shoshone. Three hundred miles of desert were traversed in Wyoming on the return trip. With amany interesting snapshots taken, and a diary we kept, Mr. Narrie is hoping to compile such a record of his trip as will be naturally accounted by him as a priceless possession.

What Do You Expect of Your Heater This Winter

NATURALLY, you expect heat—heat that is steady in ordinary weather, and adequate through the cold snaps.

You expect heat without giving an excessive amount of care to your heater, and with reasonable coal bills.

All these things you have a right to look for from your heater, provided that the heater is clean and that you choose good coal.

You should have soot deposits removed from heater and flues before starting your fire. Soot acts as an insulator and cuts down the efficiency of any heater.

Then, have your bins filled with Old Company's Lehigh Anthracite. This is the coal that wise householders have been specifying for over a hundred years.

It gives the steady, even heat that you desire most of the time—and it has ample reserve to give you all the extra heat you need in emergencies. That is just a matter of draft regulation.

With this coal you won't wear out the cellar stairs in coaxing a stubborn fire, nor will you have more than a minimum amount of ashes to handle.

Old Company's Lehigh is an unusually pure anthracite. And it is prepared for your use with extraordinary care.

Your local Old Company's dealer, handling good coal, is a good dealer—dependable, and competent to advise you. If you are not sure that you know the best size of coal for your heater, let him tell you. If you would like to learn how firing methods have lately been improved, ask him.

You will find that he is interested, not merely in selling you coal, but in giving you heating service.

A Thought

ADVICE.

The honest and just bounds of observation by one person upon another, extend no further but to understand him sufficiently, whereby not to give him offence, or whereby to be able to give him faithful counsel, or whereby to stand upon reasonable guard and caution in respect of a man's self; but to be speculative into another man to the end to know how to work him, or to wind him, or govern him, proceedeth from a heart that is double and cloven, and not entire and ingenuous.—Bacon.

Pease BUNGALOW BOILER

The efficiency and economy of a Pease Bungalow boiler brought us this enthusiastic testimony from Mr. W. W. Coates, 135 Dynevor Road, Toronto, Ontario:

"Regarding my Pease Bungalow Boiler. I have never at any time had any trouble no matter how cold it is, and I get just as much heat and burn less coal, and the cheapest of coal at that. It costs me about $60.00 a year for fuel. Any time you want to bring anyone to see this heater for proof call any day. The colder the day the better. I hope this will help you with your business."

The fact that this amazingly efficient unit does not have to be located in the cellar makes it very economical to install. Our experts will tell you if this or some other system is best suited to your needs. Their advice is yours without cost or obligation. Write or phone.

LYRICS OF LIFE

NEGLECTED GARDENS

It would have been no task at all
To keep the weeds from out this patch,
To train this ivy on this wall
And give this grape a place to catch.
But weeds have choked the blossoms out;
The hands that might have given it care
Found other things to be about
Than making their own garden fair.

It would have been no task at all
To make this home a lovely thing,
Where never angry words would fall,
Where many a happy heart would sing.
But no one trained the vine of youth,
It lies disordered on the ground.
The minds that might have taught it truth
Some poorer pleasure sought and found.

It would have been no task at all
To make one's life a garden, too,
Where only kindness men recall,
And peace, and gentle deeds we do.
But every weed we left to grow,
Each selfish wish, each jealous hate.
Now by our tangled patch they go,
But not a stranger clicks our gate.

THE MIRROR OF THE MODE

By Mary Marshall.

Here is one of the new evening hats with a bewitching lace veil attached. It is not the style for every face, but it is interesting and original.

To wear a face veil in the evening was looked upon fifteen or twenty years ago as a rather shocking blunder. Because, you know, "nice" women didn't wear veils after dark. Perhaps eyes seen through veils under artificial light were too disturbing—anyway it wasn't done by women who cared for their reputations. At least so I was told.

Just to show how completely old prejudices pass out of existence—here's an evening headdress actually made with a veil and as the original from which the sketch was made has just been brought from Paris in the wardrobe of a woman as noted for her high social position as for her taste in matters of dress I am sure it is quite correct. Still on the strength of this little French evening bonnet I am not going to suggest attaching face veils to your own—because someone who doesn't keep the run of French fashions might see and think not that you had lost your respectability but that you had suddenly taken leave of your senses.

With the present vogue for fabrics of the purple tones amethysts are coming into prominent position among the semi-precious stones. In fact, they are deemed worthy to consort with stones of far higher price, and in England the Duchess of Marlborough has set the fashion for exalting the amethyst by wearing a long chain of amethysts set in platinum between diamonds. Amethysts are sometimes set with jade and are sometimes worn as ornaments with gowns of green.

Dealers in precious stones once feared that the present tolerance of all sorts of inexpensive jewelry—imitation pearls and crystal and all the ornaments that to them seemed mere junk—would reduce the demand for really high-priced necklaces, brooches, bracelets and earrings. But just the opposite has been the result. The more fake jewelry women buy, the greater the demand for diamonds, emeralds, rubies and sapphires becomes.

THE WHATNOT

A Place for Little Bits of Everything of Local Interest

By MARION

JUST now we are having much discussion about why men prefer to eat up town. Many who write mention the subject of delicatessen housewives. Correspondents write in criticising the young housewife for neglecting her home and household duties for bridge, jazz and motor driving.

Perhaps a hundred years from now, when our great grandchildren look back and read books on the twentieth century, they will paint a sorry picture of the housewives of to-day. This picture will not only be sorry, but false.

No matter on which street you travel in Peterborough, you will find young wives who are very, very deeply interested in their own particular problems of housekeeping and domestic economy, and their children.

You will find their homes just as neat and attractive, and in many cases, more so, than those of our grandmothers who lived in the eighteenth and nineteenth century.

Young housewives in Peterborough who shirk their household duties and their children are probably no more numerous than the young husbands who are bored with their work and shirk family responsibilities.

When meeting young married women away from home, there is a chance of misjudging them. I nearly did this myself one evening recently when at a jolly party in a west end home.

I chanced to meet a young married woman (you couldn't tell by looking at her that she had entered the sea of matrimony) whose carefree manner seemed to indicate lack of housewifely care or responsibility in the world.

She danced and played bridge with the grace of a young school girl, and at midnight slipped away with her young husband with the air of a flapper out for an all-night joy ride.

Next day I casually mentioned her to my hostess and was told that she had gone home to look after her children, because her "mother's helper" had to leave at twelve o'clock.

I thought this to be somewhat of a jest until on my way home I happened to meet her. She scarcely looked older in her flat-heeled shoes and simple frock and pushing a carriage with a two-year old toddling at her side, than the pretty dancing creature of the night before.

So the next time you are given the opportunity to meet a young carefree housewife at a party, do not misjudge her, but wait until you are given the chance to know more about her.

How many men, women and children in Peterborough try to settle scores by gift giving?

I am told of many husbands, prominent business men, who feel that a box of candy brought home as a gift after a holiday spent playing golf, erases any sense of neglect their wives might have.

Women, too, have just such a fault. You know of the wash woman, who, if she chooses to come an hour late, brings her mistress vegetables from her garden as a gift, expecting at the same time to receive a full day's pay for the vegetables which would be of very little value to her because of her large supply.

No person, man or woman, likes gifts bestowed in this manner, and in this spirit.

Near examination time, you will see small lassies wending their way along the streets to our schools, their hands filled with flowers, intention taking them to teacher. They would rather spend their time picking posies than studying lessons.

Whenever you desire to give a person some little gift, care should be taken that the gift will not seem a payment for hospitality received or to settle a score by putting the other person under a sort of obligation to you.

• • •

By all means, do not send a woman a box of candy if she is on a diet for reducing, or flowers and vegetables to one who has a garden full of her own.

One of the best ways to utilize detached grapes that are often found loose in the bottom of a grape basket is to serve them alone like olives, and other relishes. They may be set in a bed of chopped ice in a small glass dish or occupy one of the divisions of an assorted relish dish.

If these loose grapes are large and of different colors, this way of using them is sure to attract attention and admiration from one's guests who see it for the first time.

• • •

The colored glass dishes so much in vogue now are especially lovely for serving grapes in this way, or in small clippings from a large cluster. Rich purple grapes in a dish of light green make a delightful combination of color.

Why Do Men Eat Downtown?

This is one of a series of letters submitted in a competition. Others will be published daily, and the winner will be announced on Saturday. Marion will be glad to learn the men's opinions.

"Man is, by nature, a gregarious animal. The herding instinct is ours, therefore we all love society. There are times, of course, when we prefer solitude but then comes the reaction when we revel in congenial companionship.

Congenial companionship may be found at home, but all too often it is the place where too few platitudes are spoken.

'The love of praise, however concealed by art, Reigns more or less, and glows in every heart.' In the home, although the motive may be the best, man hears nothing but destructive criticism and advice. Rather than everlastingly hearing his shortcomings, he sees the world where he is taken at face value and where pretty speeches and appreciation are expressed verbally.

Many wives may be excellent cooks but that isn't all that counts with the male sex. True they say the way to a man's heart is by way of his stomach, but this is only partly true. Men like good, plain, well-cooked food and plenty of it. Too many women spend too much time in their cuisines and too little in their toilettes. Men to-day are accustomed to seeing well-groomed, intelligent, alert business women and they will not excuse a bedraggled, uninteresting wife even though the food she prepares be excellent. Let her spend more time on her personal appearance and above all on her mental tone so as she may be more companionable to her husband.

At times, silence is golden. In some homes there is nothing but confusion around the family board—ill-disciplined children and servants; discussion of family affairs, etc. Then there is always the necessity of keeping up a flow of conversation; therefore, is it any wonder man, sometimes, seeks a place where he dines in peace or, at least, somewhere where he is free to be silent without giving offence?

We all love variety. It adds spice to life. This is one of the prime reasons why man prefers to dine away from home. Besides variety of place and faces he has also a change of food and service.

Returning to instincts. The tribal instinct is still with man—the gathering together to discuss the affairs of the community for the common good. This explains the success of our men's clubs such as Kiwanis, Rotary, etc. The addition of food and drink at these gatherings is stimulating to good-will and conversation. It is a well-known fact that women's clubs are never the success of men's organizations because they lack this tribal instinct.

The dining-room table of many a public eating place is often the medium of business transactions. Why not use the home? Here there are too many distractions. Besides, many women object to men bringing their male friends to dine. They are too meticulous. They forget that man is less observant and more forgiving of small details, than woman, and that men appreciate a royal welcome far more than the morsels of good they are to consume.

The play instinct is more developed in man than in woman. Also the spirit of adventure is more marked. These two traits may explain, in a measure, why man prefers dining out.

Address correspondence to Marion, at The Examiner Office.

"Dear Marion:

Among the ready-made dresses for children shown in the stores, for autumn wear, have you seen a design, suitable for a tall slim child seven years old. If so please describe it in your very helpful column. My seven year daughter has outgrown the straight dresses worn by smaller children.

Are bloomers of the same material as the dress, worn with the fall dresses for that age?

A BUSY MOTHER.

Because of the large number of letters reaching me last week, "Busy Mother," I had no chance to print yours, but I did answer your inquiry in the Whatnot column. I hope it was what you wanted.

CONWAY'S KIDDIE.

My Dorothy Douglas.

Madge had been wondering for some time just what she could do to make herself go out into the fresh air regularly every day. Her mirror, truest of friends, had been telling her of late that her cheeks were not so rosy as they used to be. She had been sitting inside too much, mending and sewing for the people from whom she earned a somewhat meager income as a seamstress.

It was while thinking of those harassed mothers of six and seven kiddies who had not the time in one human day to do all the mending for their broods, that Madge had a brain wave.

She knew that many mothers were compelled to take their tiny children to school each morning and call for them again in the afternoon and thereby rob their crowded days of perhaps an hour and a half of time that could be spent to much better advantage.

Madge realized that she herself would do the same if she were blessed with some tiny tots of her own. In these days of foolhardy drivers the streets were not safe for the little ones who were wont to romp on sidewalk and street alike.

"I shall start a Kiddie Round instead of a milk or paper round and call for and deliver all the little tots I can manage."

Madge smiled at her idea—it was really a good one.

"It will help busy mothers and relieve their minds of worry and will force me out in all weathers and regular hours."

And so it was that Madge started her somewhat unique business of gathering little school children and herding them safely through the streets of the village.

It was Mrs. Thorpe, mother of six, who suggested to Madge that Mr. Conway, of Rose Cottage would perhaps welcome someone to take his little daughter to and from school.

"I think he has a somewhat hard time," Mrs. Thorpe informed Madge. "His wife passed away when little Kathy was born and he has tried to do his best for the wee girlie—but you know how hard it must be for a man."

And next morning Madge called for six-year-old little Kathy and at the door met one of the very nicest men she had ever talked with.

"You are an angel," he told her as she took Kathy's trusting little hand in her own. "I am struggling rather desperately to make a living for my little girl by writing, and the break in the day at morning, noon and afternoon sometimes cuts into my best inspirations."

Madge saw the trouble in Conway's splendid eyes and knew he had been having a pretty rough time of it.

Couldn't I take little Kathy home for her lunch with me? I should love to have company and someone to prepare a meal for besides myself. It will give you a fine opportunity to do good work."

The joy in Conway's eyes made Madge want to cry.

"Oh," he said swiftly, "I believe I could get on my feet in a few months' time—if I could just feel that my precious little girl was well cared for. My sister and her husband have let me come out here to live with them, but they both go to business all day and I—well, I've been trying to give Kathy a lunch in the middle of the day—but —I'm not much of a hand at cooking."

Conway watched his small daughter and Madge go down the path and out of sight.

"She certainly inspires confidence," he found himself thinking, "and somehow I fancy she will prove the friend in need." And that day Conway did some of the best literary work he had ever done and found himself waiting with keen interest for the return of Kathy and her guide.

Life and work began to take on new interest: new bloom and a wonderful sense of well being for both Madge and Conway. Stories too began to take a firm grip on editorial checks. And it was all due to the fact that Madge in the beginning had felt that she must have more fresh air.

She often pondered over this small fact which had worked itself out in so happy a manner. Her cheeks were now rosy, as her mirror informed her, and her eyes had taken on a new sparkle. It might have been the effect of regular exercise—one never knows.

The day came when she felt well enough acquainted with Kathy's father to scold him for not getting out enough.

"You sit far too long over that typewriter. So—don't you think you could come along at noon time and have lunch with Kathy and me? There is always just enough for three—I should love to have you." Madge felt somewhat choked at the expression that leapt into Conway's eyes.

"You'll never know—how many times I have pictured you and the kiddie at lunch and wondered just what you were chatting about and wishing—wishing I could be invited to join you. It's been beastly lonely without her. She's a regular little ball of sunshine when she wants to be."

"Don't I know it," said Madge a trifle wistfully. "I don't know what I shall do—when summer holidays come and Kathy won't need me any more."

"That time is never going to come," Conway told her, "for Kathy and Kathy's dad are always going to need you—hadn't you suspected that—Madge—dear?"

THE PROBLEM OF GOOD VENTILATION

Almost every person has at some time in his life experienced the desire to fall asleep while attending a lecture or meeting. This is most frequently caused by defective ventilation.

Scientists have made some remarkable investigations into the problems of ventilation, and they have discovered that one of the chief difficulties of crowded rooms is overheating. It has been experimentally proven that a crowded lecture hall filled with drowsy people can be made more comfortable and the audience more wide awake if one or two electric fans are installed. Electric fans do not increase the amount of oxygen in the air, or decrease the amount of carbon dioxide, but they do stir up the atmosphere so that there is a greater evaporation from the skin.

In the dry heat of the desert, people can retain their vigor and work under a temperature that would cause heat prostration to those in humid climates. In the Coachella Valley farmers will sometimes work in a temperature of 125° to 130° F. and be less inconvenienced than those people in New York City would be at a temperature of 98° F.

The body's heat regulating mechanism is not as effective as many people suppose, since the temperature of the body may rise to one or more degrees above normal in a heated room that is saturated with moisture. This is because the body is unable to cool itself by evaporation of moisture from the skin when the atmosphere is saturated.

When the electric fan works properly, it cools the body by creating an air current. Air currents are now recognized as being of great importance for churches, theatres, and lecture halls. Of course, it is important not only to have a moving current of air within a room, but also to have a fresh supply of air so that the oxygen may be constantly replenished.

Manufacturers have found that in a well ventilated factory the health of workers is preserved and their productive powers are greatly increased.

After careful experimentation it has been determined that the best temperature for comfort in a room is from 68° to 78° F. When you enter a poorly ventilated room, you probably have noticed an oppressive, bad odor and high temperature. The bad odor is due to several causes, principally perspiration, improperly burned gas, foods and bad breaths. The oppressive feeling is due to a large amount of moisture in the room which comes from perspiration and respiration.

During the warm weather when the humidity is high, it is necessary to keep the air constantly stirred up, but in the cold weather, when the air from the outside is brought into the house and warmed, it absorbs moisture very rapidly—so rapidly that the moisture of the linings of the nose, throat and bronchial tubes, which must at all times be kept moist, is sometimes evaporated so readily as to produce irritation and inflammation of these membranes. For this reason, a heating system in the winter should provide moisture, and pans of water should be placed on stoves or radiators.

Windows should never be entirely closed, even in the coldest weather. Strong drafts may be prevented by deflecting the current of air by a window board or other contrivance that will throw the incoming air upwardly, or allow the incoming air to be heated by allowing it to pass through or near the heating device.

The importance of fresh air at the proper temperature and humidity cannot be overestimated as a hygienic measure for maintaining and preserving our best health.

Questions and Answers.

Question: Mrs. D. R. asks: "Can you tell me whether children born of older parents are more intelligent than those born of young parents?"

Answer: The influence of the age of the parent upon the child has never been accurately scientifically determined. Parents with active brains, regardless of their ages, usually have intelligent children. It is supposed that younger parents have children that are stronger physically, and older parents have children that are stronger mentally, although this belief is not recognized by science.

Question: Alice J. asks: "Do the food colorings, sold in paste and liquid form for household use, contain anything that would be harmful to one's health?"

Answer: The various color extracts now on the market are made mostly from harmless vegetable and other color extracts, supplemented by a number of coal tar, or aniline, dyes, approved by the Government after painstaking investigation and analysis. As long as their use is solely to enhance the enjoyment of foods and not to conceal their inferiority, I do not consider these colorings particularly harmful, especially since they are used in such limited quantities.

Question: W. K. asks: "What causes pellagra?"

Answer: Pellagra is a disorder caused partly by the absence of organic minerals in your food, and partly because of the acidosis produced from using an excess of over-refined starch—taking for example, such devitalized food as cornmeal from which the hull has been entirely removed. My article "Healthful Menus" gives a well-balanced diet for those suffering from disorders from dietary errors. If you will send me a request for this article, addressing me in care of this newspaper and enclose a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope, I will be glad to send it.

XXX—THE FRUIT FALLS

Nairn laughed a little self-consciously. "I felt as if I'd met you before, too. There was something in the way you looked at me——" he tried awkwardly to explain. "It was almost as if I'd been looking for you for years, and suddenly found you. I believe I expected you to say "Here I am!" as if you knew I'd been hunting for you."

Sally squeezed his hand.

"I suppose this is really almost being in love, isn't it?" she asked in a tiny voice. "Do you think it is?"

He nodded, and then:

"Sanderson's in love with you," he challenged her.

"Yes." Sally had no intention of denying it; she was proud of the fact, proud, too, that Nairn should know he was not the only man who liked her.

"He's always been in love with me," she said.

"He's rich, I suppose?"

"ally considered the point.

"I suppose he is," she agreed at last. "He always seems to have plenty of money, but I've never asked him about it."

"I haven't any money, Sally."

"It doesn't matter."

"Oh, but it does," he said earnestly. "Especially if you——" He did not go on, and presently Sally asked:

"Supposing I don't get well, after all?"

"You will."

"But if I don't?"

"We won't talk about it."

She glanced towards the window.

"It's stopped raining, Sally. Would you like to go out?"

"Oh, yes!"

Everything gave her such great happiness. To be carried in his arms; to see the reproof in Mrs. Kiff's eyes; to be tucked up by his brown, clumsy hands; to be asked, "Sure you're warm enough?" in his deep voice.

Philip had done all these things for her scores of times, but with him she had never experienced a thrill, never felt so happy that she even wanted to sing with Mrs. Kiff: "I shall love you the sa-ame for ev-er!"

They went slowly down the wet, narrow lane to the main road. A watery sun was shining, and the raindrops were falling from the trees with a little melodious tinkle. They splashed on to the rug which covered Sally, and on to her face.

"You're getting wet," Garry said, and he stopped and came round and wiped the little drops away with his handkerchief.

"Happy?" he asked, meeting her smiling eyes.

Sally nodded.

"Never been so happy in all my life."

"But lots of men must have been in love with you," he said presently.

"Oh, yes!" She was glad to be able to admit it.

"But you've never been in love with anyone?" he asked a little uncertainly.

Sally frowned and her color rose. "I was once," she admitted reluctantly. "Or I thought I was."

The memory of Josh Akers seemed so faint and far away; it made her cheeks burn to remember how she had cried to him, and pleaded and implored.

"But I was only very young then," she added hurriedly.

"Are you so old now?" he asked.

"I feel hundreds of years old," she sighed. She looked up and saw the shadow on his face. "I'll tell you about him if you like," she said quickly.

"No, oh, no—I don't want to hear. I might want to go and kill him if you said that he treated you badly."

"I'm glad now that he did treat me badly," Sally answered.

When they were in the heart of the wet, sweet-smelling woods, Nairn stopped and sat down beside her on a fallen tree.

"Are you going to tell Sanderson?" he asked.

"Tell him—tell what?"

She knew well enough what he meant, but she wanted to hear him say it.

"Tell him what we have been talking about."

She turned her face away.

"What have we been talking about?" she questioned teasingly.

He leaned over and took her hand. "Just things that you and I understand," he answered.

She liked the way he put that, and her eyes glowed.

"Do you want me to tell him?" she asked.

He hesitated.

"Perhaps not yet. Let's keep it to ourselves for a little while, shall we?"

"But you won't stay away from me? You will come every day?"

"I'll come as often as I can, but you know Sanderson doesn't like me."

"Poor Philip!"

Garry's eyes were bent on the white moss at his feet.

"Yes—poor devil!" he said.

On the way home Sally said suddenly: "Garry, you know I'm not what you would call a lady."

He laughed.

"Aren't you?"

"No. I swear horribly when I'm angry."

"So do I."

"That's different. Philip says a man can swear, but a woman ought not to."

He would not take her seriously.

"Well, as long as you don't drink—"

"No, I don't do that. It makes my head ache."

She wanted him to be serious; she wanted to tell him everything about herself; her newly-awakened love for him made her feel that she must strip her poor little soul bare before him, showing him all its weaknesses and frailty from the beginning; she felt that she could not endure it if, some day when she could no longer do without him, he grew disillusioned and disappointed. She tried again from another angle.

"I don't even know who my father was."

"I can't say I'm particularly anxious to know."

"And my mother—you wouldn't have liked her."

Nairn drew the long chair to a standstill.

"Look here, Sally, why are you worrying yourself like this?"

Sally burst into tears.

"Because I know I'm not nice enough for you—not good enough. Your father is a clergyman, and I'm nobody at all. Perhaps some day you'll be sorry you ever liked me; I know men are often sorry." She thought bitterly of Josh Akers.

"When I am sorry I'll tell you," Garry promised. "I'm not afraid to tell anyone I've changed my mind." He took out his handkerchief and pressed it into her hand. "Don't cry, Sally. It hurts to see you cry."

Sally mopped her eyes obediently.

"I wish I was n-nicer, for your sake," she said. "I wish I was well and strong, and able to race you downhill. I wish I was clever and well-educated, and—oh, everything some girls are."

She had never been more sincere in her life, and yet Garry Nairn had done nothing for her but speak kindly, and look at her with his honest brown eyes, and hold her in his firm young grasp; whereas for Philip Sanderson, who had given her everything, and would have given her all he had, there was nothing in return!

And it hurt Sally unspeakably when, after she was in bed that night, all freshly washed and powdered, lying with closed eyes and happily smiling lips, her heart and thoughts away with Garry Nairn. Sometimes, whom Sanderson had left with her at the cottage, limped into her room, dragging something with him which he laid down beside the bed.

Sally tried to see what it was, but she could not raise herself sufficiently from the pillows, so she called to Mrs. Kiff.

"Sometimes has brought something into the room. I do hope it's not a rat. I hate rats."

Mrs. Kiff hated rats herself, so she hurriedly gathered her skirts around her and fetched a second candle, before with laborious breathing she stooped and discovered what it was.

"Rat, indeed! It's just Mr. Sanderson's old dressing-gown what he left behind. Did you ever now!" She gathered it up with reverent hands; Mrs. Kiff secretly adored Philip Sanderson and everything that belonged to him. "There's a dog for you!" she exclaimed with pride. She looked at Sally and then at Sometimes.

"You wasn't goin' to 'ave your master forgotten now, was yer?" she admonished the dog meaningly. "And I don't blame yer, neither. Dogs is more faithful than 'umans are, and that's a fact!"

She went away with the gown clutched to her bosom.

Sally lay very still, tears smarting in her eyes.

Forgotten! That's what had already happened to Philip, to dear Philip Sanderson, who had done so much for her.

Truly the fruit does not always fall to the planter of the tree.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY WE LAUGH WHEN WE SHOULD CRY.

(By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph. D.)

We often laugh when we feel more like crying. The outward laugh not infrequently stifles an inward groan.

We do this to keep up our courage. Quite unconsciously we feel that we cannot afford to give in to our emotions. By pretending that we do not feel badly we put ourselves in a better frame of mind to withstand shock and disappointment.

Laughing when the joke is on ourselves is a form of sour-grapes psychology in which we try to convince ourselves that we are not so badly off after all. It is an effort to make the best of a bad situation.

We put up a bold front not merely for ourselves but also for our friends. We don't want others to feel badly on our account and hence we pretend that we are not hurt and smile to prove that all is well when all the while our heart is breaking.

To smile when we should cry is a brave thing to do. We all admire grit and courage in ourselves as well as in others.

Another motive for laughing at our misfortunes is to hide our feeling from our enemy. We hate to give him the satisfaction of knowing that he is hurting us. It is hard to take a licking, but it is much harder to admit being licked.

The slang phrase "laugh that one off" shows it is the expected thing to do when one is up against it. It also intimates that there are some blows that are mighty hard to laugh at.

We laugh when we should cry because we want to be strong, to hide our fear and injury from friend and foe, and to bolster up our morale.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

Thursday, September 20, 1928.

(Copyright, McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Adverse planetary aspects are strong to-day, according to astrology, which reads in the stars certain sinister signs.

The early morning is most threatening to workers, whether they be on farms or in factories. Disconetnt is indicated.

The sway is unfavorable to old persons or their standards of life. They may be inclined to dwell sadly on the good old days, which probably were not at all wonderful in fact.

While the stars favor the mental side of man and are supposed to impart keenness of mind, they may cause stress on the unfavorable features of existence. Positively cheerful thoughts should be cultivated.

Intrigue and deceit are supposed to flourish under this direction of the stars. Spite work is believed to be encouraged and the sway is threatening to all who seek public favor.

Dissensions within big organizations may be numerous and there may be among women great difficulty in preserving allegiance to political parties, while this rule continues.

The seers explain that mental vagaries will be many while the planetary government of the early autumn has power to affect logic and feeling, but that later habits of thought and long-nourished traditions control action.

Craving for new conditions may be strong at this time when there may be discontent in many minds, especially where women are concerned.

Uranus has power which increases the craving for liberty and freedom and for this reason there will be many extreme manifestations of the spirit which easily degenerates into license.

Organized crime will continue to spread out its tentacles and reform movements will multiply through the autumn. Politics will have little effect in curbing lawlessness, if the stars are rightly read.

The planets encourage increase in the number of dictators and presage many international problems.

Women have the cheering assurance that the year will bring to them novel modes and new possibilities of achieving beauty.

Persons whose birthdate it is may meet old friends and renew pleasant associations. The young probably will benefit from the favor of relatives. The augury is most promising for these

DAMAGE RUNS INTO MILLIONS

Loss of 149 Lives Reported From Storm Swept Section of Florida.

MANY INJURED.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., September 19 (Canadian Press).—Loss of 149 lives, injury of over 150 more persons and property damage running into the millions, was reported yesterday from the section in lower Florida which was struck by the tropical disturbance on Sunday. Of the dead eleven are identified and 138 unidentified. Seventy-six of the unidentified dead are negroes.

Tahokee, a town of 1,500 persons on the eastern side of Lake Okeechobee, reported the largest death list. Belleglade is on the south-eastern side of Lake Okeechobee, as in South Bay, from which place casualty reports were also received.

In addition to these reports, which came through the Miami News, a man named Beardsley, at Lake Park, eight miles east of Clewiston, which is on the western side of Lake Okeechobee, telegraphed that three bodies had been recovered from Miami Canal at Lake Harbor and that thirty-five persons were missing.

Request Military Aid.

Governor John W. Martin, at Tallahassee, announced receipt of a message from a member of the National Guard staff saying that 24 persons had been killed at Okeechobee, and that several authorities had requested military aid. At the same time, he announced that he had granted a request of State Adjutant-General W. B. Collins to send National Guardsmen to the storm-stricken city of West Palm Beach to render "whatever assistance is necessary."

The Government said that 100 National Guardsmen had been requested by the Mayor of West Palm Beach.

He said that he had been informed that two batteries of Guardsmen had been sent to Okeechobee City in response to a request for military aid.

General Collins ordered investigators to the stricken area on the lower east coast around Lake Okeechobee and Moorehaven to ascertain the situation.

A message received by the Governor through Asheville, N.C., and signed by the Palm Beach Town Council advised that the situation was serious and that "nearly all houses had been damaged and are open." The police force, the message said, was insufficient to cope with the situation.

250 KNOWN DEAD.

JACKSONVILLE, Florida, Sept. 19 (Canadian Press).—While the remnant of last week's West Indian hurricane was veering toward the Virginia Capes, Florida to-day checked its reported known death list of 250 casualties in the thousands, and an emergency requiring military aid and immediate relief. Howard Selby, chairman of the Palm Beach County Red Cross committee, said the death toll in that county alone, one of the worst hit areas of the State, would range around 400 and that the damage would be $25,000,000.

Out of the border towns of Lake Okeechobee came word of the greatest loss of life, the missing reported by various relief committees ranging around 300.

few well chosen words. His Lordship urged that the women make serious effort to try to fathom the problem of keeping the boys and girls on the farm; also the women on the amount of work accomplished, referring to the numerous branches of activity, especially the official organ of communication, the League Magazine. He encouraged the members to subscribe and thus keep in touch with other branches of the Catholic Women's League.

The Rev. Father McAuley made a few remarks of pleasure at seeing so many of his Ennismore people present; also Father Gillogly, who is chaplain of one of the smallest subdivisions, but one of the best; and the Rev. Monsignor McColl, who expressed his pleasure in being present and wished the league all blessings and success.

Rev. Father Ferguson.

The Rev. Father Ferguson, the speaker of the day, gave an interesting lecture on "The Home." The speaker endeavored to bring out the spiritual attitude that should exist in every home. He told the parents when giving council to their children in selection of a life mate not to be carried away by the glamour of money or go up in the clouds over so-called worldly social standing, but to consider the character, the spirituality of the young man or woman, not so much how they stand with the social world as how they stand with God. The young man or woman of good physical and religious character should be the choice. He also told the people to make the home surroundings so as to keep the boys and girls at home by having everything in the home that was found elsewhere by the boys and girls of to-day.

TAKE FINAL FROM BROWNS

New Yorkers Given Close Call to Win 14-11 Victory.

STAGE BATTING SPREE

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—(Canadian Press)—The champion Yankees staggered through to a 14 to 11 victory over the Browns at St. Louis yesterday after their panic-stricken manager had called upon his entire supply of available first-line pitchers. The Yankees gained a full game over the defeated Athletics, and now lead by two games.

The Yankees assaulted Strelecki for three runs in the eighth on five singles by Durocher, Gehrig, Lazzeri, Collins and Robertson, the Browns came back with a rally for four runs in their own half, and Huggins promptly called on Hoyt. Each side added one in the ninth.

Miller Huggins now will have an off day to rest Heimach, Johnson, Pipgras and Hoyt for the next battle in Chicago. The champions got eighteen hits against fourteen for the Browns. The victory gave the Yankees three out of four in the series and twelve out of twenty-two against the Browns for the season.

Hopes Dimmed.

The pennant hopes of the Athletics were dimmed considerably, if not altogether extinguished, at Cleveland yesterday when the Indians shaded the Macks by 3 to 2 in the final game of the series.

This reverse enabled the Yankees to increase their lead over the Athletics to two full games as the champions crushed the St. Louis Browns for the third time in four days.

Although he was extremely wild, Phil Page, Tiger recruit pitcher from Springfield, Mass., of the Eastern League, won his first start in the major league, downing Washington 8 to 5 yesterday at Detroit. Page issued seven bases on balls but the lacing the Tigers gave Hadley more than made up for the passes. Hadley was driven from the box during a Tiger rally in the sixth and was replaced by Brown. West, Senator outfielder, drove out three doubles and a single, while Goslin hit safely in his twenty-fourt consecutive game

PITCHER SUCCUMBS

Urban Shocker, classed by Harry Heilman of Detroit as one of the greatest pitchers that ever stepped on the diamond, and who made some history when he was with the Toronto club a decade ago, has passed away. Shocker, who was taken ill at Denver, died recently of pneumonia and heart trouble. He was only thirty-eight and was with the Yankees until this summer. He pitched for Ottawa in the old Canadian League.

GIANTS WIN FROM PIRATES

Keep Up Pace With Rivals by Taking 3-2 Victory.

REDS WIN 5-2

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—(Canadian Press).—The Giants held pace with the Cardinals and the Cubs, their western rivals by defeating Pittsburgh in a hard fought ten inning game here yesterday by a score of 3 to 2. A home run by Bill Terry with one out in the tenth brought the game to a dramatic conclusion. Terry drove well up into the right field stands. The victory gave New York an even break in its twenty-two games against Pittsburgh this season.

The game was a pitching duel between Fred Fitzsimmons for New York and Burleigh Grimes and Joe Dawson of the Pirates.

The Reds easily won their last game of the season with the Robins at Brooklyn yesterday by a score of 5 to 2. Rixey weakened in the late innings but Kolp relieved him and held Brooklyn at bay for the rest of the game.

Brooklyn used four pitchers, McWeeny, the starter, lasted less than two innings. The victory gave Cincinnati an edge in the season's series against the Robins by twelve games to ten.

Chicago went on a batting spree in its last game this season with the Braves yesterday at Boston and pounded two pitchers for 17 hits in an 8 to 3 victory.

Freddie Maguire, second baseman for the visitors, led the attack with four singles in as many itmes at bat. As in previous games of their series here, the Cubs' infield played a brilliant fielding game, contributing four fast double plays.

The Cardinals cleaned up their series of five games against the Phillies at Philadelphia by polishing off the home forces by a score of 4 to 2 with less difficulty than the score indicates. This gave the Red Wings a record of twenty victories and only two defeats in competition against the Baker boys this season.

The Cardinals merely protected their lead of two games over the Giants as the Clan McGraw nosed out the Pirates in the rubber game of a three game series in New York.

MYSTERY SWIM PUZZLES GUARDS

Unable to Say Whether Goggled Figure Man or Woman.

CAPE GRIZ, Nez, France, Sept. 19.—A mystery swimmer started across the English channel at 7.30 a.m. yesterday accompanied by several persons in an English life boat.

None of the French officials here, including the customs guards, was able to tell whether the goggled figure was that of a man or a woman. No one knows the name of the life boat, which carried no identifying marks.

Weather conditions were advantageous. The swimmer, using a strong overarm stroke, soon disappeared in the haze, for the visibility was poor.

this season. There were some superb dahlias and zinnias and a number of very pretty, feathery asters, with plenty of the lesser-known blooms, like the trailing "star flower," the orange globes of the Japanese lantern, and the oddity of the orchid-like blossom of the little "monkeyface." A number of potted specimens included geraniums and bright-hued foliages or coleus.

Among the major winners in this floral section, represented by many "first prize" cards, were Mrs. H. Lord, Mrs. W. Hilton and Mrs. George Harrington.

Prize Winners

Some of the prizes in the Ladies' Section were the first awards in bread and fruit, to Mrs. J. Rowland, the firsts in butter to Mrs. W. H. Armstrong of Millbrook and Mrs. N. Allen of Newcastle, and the first awards in fruit cake, lemon and apple pie which also went to Mrs. Armstrong. First prize for chocolate cake was awarded to Mrs. L. W. Smith of Millbrook, first prize for angel cake and tarts to Mrs. E. Lord, first prize for tea biscuits to Mrs. R. Lowry and first prizes for berry pie, pumpkin pie and cookies, to Mrs. J. Carl of Fraserville. Miss E. M. Fisher of Millbrook took first prize for light layer cake.

The first prize for the best collection of apples went to A. Wilson, of Port Hope.

The prize given as a special award by the R. Neill Company of Peterborough for the best ten pounds of butter was won by Mrs. M. H. Johnson, who also won the Jeffery special prize for the same section.

In Art work, Mrs. C. S. Hetherington of Peterorough carried off first prizes in painting, in several sections.

In fruits, several first prizes went to Mrs. Lowry and Mrs. Fred McMahon of Millbrook and H. Seymour of Cavan.

Live Stock Exhibits.

Exhibits in poultry and stock are about average. Horses are better than last year, cattle are better too. Sheep are about an average, showing while hogs are not up to the mark," was the summing up of a portion of the Exhibition made by the energetic and efficient secretary-treasurer, J. N. McGill.

Over in the ring, where judging of horses went on all afternoon before an interested audience, heavy draught animals had the major place. Lloyd Kennedy of Bethany won several firsts with his Percherons. Among the large exhibitors were R. J. McKnight, of Millbrook, with heavy Clydesdales, and H. Smith of Bethany and Moncrief Brothers of Cavan, with Percherons, W. H. Armstrong and D. L. Armstrong of Millbrook, W. S. Bragg of Bowmanville, J. O. Rutledge of Port Credit, M. Skelding of Orono, L. Sutton of Cavan and George Ward and Son of Peterborough.

In the three year old carriage class, J. S. Chandler of Peterborough, won first place, also getting firsts in teams and in the class for lady drivers, driven by Mrs. Chandler. Redmond Brothers of Peterborough, were first in road pairs. Mr. Jamieson of Mount Pleasant got first for gentleman's turnout and G. Cochrane of Bowmanville first in drivers.

Wesley Brown and Ira Nattrass of Millbrook showed cattle, also S. S. Staples of Cavan and Leonard W. Henderson of Millbrook and H. Seymour of Cavan. First prizes in shorthorns went to R. Matchett and Son of Cavan and W. S. Bragg of Bowmanville for Jerseys to Ira Nattrass, S. S. Staples and Fred Bent of Omemee, and for Holsteins to Messrs. L. W. Henderson, Blackburn and Seymour.

First prize in several of the sheep classes went to Elmhirst Brothers of Keene, W. R. Robins of Hampton also getting a number of firsts.

Poultry Building.

In the newly-enlarged poultry building there was a fine showing of fowl of every type, with Rhode Island Reds and White Wyandottes among the biggest and best exhibits, and an excellent exhibit of other breeds, in Leghorns, Langshens and Rocks, with a fancy line in Anconas, Hamburgs and Houdans. The showing of water fowl included some extra large Toulouse and Chinese geese and ducks of the Rouen and Aylesbury varieties Among the largest exhibitors were H. Lush and Morden Brown of Peterborough, Arthur Wilson of Port Hope and Fred Andrews of Norwood.

First prizes in many of the classes went to the above-named exhibitors, with Arthur Wilson of Port Hope winning the silver cup and a cash prize of $7 offered by the T. Eaton Company of Toronto for the best pen of 1 cockerel and 3 pullets exhibited by anyone living in the district. This was on Single Comb Rhode Island Reds, Mr. Wilson also getting the special prize for the best cockerel in the show.

Judges in the various sections were Fred Crosby of Markham (poultry), A. Mossop of Queensville (heavy horses), John A. Walker of Rossmore (light horses), George E. Foster of Hoenywood (beef cattle and sheep), J. A. Bull of Brampton (dairy cattle and swine), James Hickson of Lindsay (roots and garden vegetables), and Mrs. W. A. Crow of Toronto (ladies work), D. Jordan, of Peterborough (flowers).

A very efficient officer on the grounds yesterday, representing Millbrook's one-man police force, did excellent service in the way of directing traffic and seeing that the crowds proceeded in an orderly manner.

Small outdoor exhibits were made by the Millbrook Coal Company, showing an R. A. Lister Company's gasoline engine for a lighting plant and a Lets feed grinder; by Wilbert Fallis of Millbrook, showing an air-pressure tank, a hot water boiler, a windmill and a cement mixer; and by Messrs. Needham and Fallis, showing a stove, separator and scales, O. E. Rutledge of Toronto had some lovely Japanese china, featuring a dainty set of the "Thousand Faces" design.

A blind man stood at the entrance of the Main Building, soliciting alms by an extended tin cup.

On the grounds was a booth maintained by the Presbyterian church, where hot dinner was served.

The "medicine man," with his swift patter and cowboy hat, had an interested crowd. "All numbers come from 9," he maintained, "and 9 is just a circle with a tail. The number 4 has two tails, 10 is a loop and a tail and 14 has three tails and one is bent."

Among the new cars which were lined up in gleaming array were those driven down by the Hood and Cummings firm, showing Fords, in charge of J. Kelly; Hudson and Essex cars from the Brewer Motor Sales, in charge of E. J. Collins; Dodge models frohm V. Eastwood's establishment, and Chryslers from the Gillespie Garage; Chevrolets shown by A. Tinney of Cavan, and Falcon-Knights by H. Tinney, also Whippets and Willys-Knights by T. Harkness of Millbrook, and M. J. Duffus of Peterborough.

Race Events.

The two races were events which attracted the attention of the majority of the spectators. They were in two classes, 2.18 and 2.28, with purses of $150 for each event. The results were as follows:

MARMORA FAIR

McQuaig driving, was third, in the three consecutive heats.

Fred Johnston again officiated from the high platform at the end of the wire yesterday. For three years past, Johnston has been the official starter at the Marmora Fair, and this year he handled the fiery steeds with all the skill of a trained official. Rarely did he fail to bring them down together, and all in a line. It was only when the final heats arrived and the horses as well as the drivers were getting slightly nerved up that there was even the slightest sign of trouble. Even then it was not necessary to send them back more than twice.

On the stand with Mr. Johnston were seen Fred Rutherford, Charles Lummis, George Ault, Mrs. Kempney, and Mrs. Eastwood.

The races were featured by even starts and driving finishes. In one case the judges were on the point of declaring a dead heat, but after a careful consideration of the pros and cons, decided that it was not.

The 2.30 class horses offered somewhat more of an attraction for the harness variety of the sport of kings. Three heats did not serve to pick out the winner, and three horses ran four heats, while the first and second were obliged to go another to decide the winner, Red Peter, a Havelock horse, driven by McQuaig, landed the first money with a sensational winning streak breaking out of a poor beginning. In the first round, McQuaig managed to land his horse in third place. The next time up he did better and got a second to his credit. From then on there was no stopping him. In the third and fourth heats he was first under the wire, and in the last round, when he was matched against Marguerite Mac, a Frankford horse, he came home first. Lovers of the sport were well satisfied with the race.

Ross Turley, driving Marguerite Mac, won second money. This combination looked good for first place for the first two heats, but once the McQuaig horse hit its stride, the Frankford horse played second fiddle. Her score shows two firsts and three seconds. Flossy Pointer, another Frankford horse, owned by Garrison, managed to crowd into second place in the first heat, but failed to get past third honors after that. The time for the mile was 2.14.

More Flowers.

In a few of the classes of the prize lists the number of entries was a little smaller than last year. But there were others that showed a decided increase. There were many more flowers this year. The display was considered the best in the history of the fair. The fact that the school fair exhibits were open to the public added greatly to the list of attractions. While the judges for these were entirely separate from those for the main fair, the exhibits were not otherwise distinguished from any of the others. The judges were: For horses, George Ault; for cattle, A. A. Colwill; sheep and swine, A. A. Colwill; poultry, W. C. Wallace; vegetables, C. Mallory; dairy products, N. Bailey and C. Linn; flowers, Mrs. Wilcox; domestic science, Mrs. Wilcox; ladies' work and fine arts, Mrs. W. Nind; children's work, J. Collins and Rev. A. B. Caldwell.

S. S. McComb, Bonarlaw, this year's president of the society, was not showing any of his stock this year. This is the first time he has missed placing exhibitions for the past thirteen years.

SPLIT BILL WITH ROYALS

Rochester Lose to Toronto — Now Half a Game Behind Leaders.

TIGHT STRUGGLE

MONTREAL, September 19 (Canadian Press). — The Montreal Royals moved to within three games of the Buffalo Bisons, who jumped into the lead in the International League race when they divided a double-header with the Royals here yesterday. Rochester lost to Toronto, and are now half a game behind the Bisons.

The Bisons fell on three Royal hurlers for 12 hits to win the first game 9 to 4, but the Royals came back and took the second game when Bill Urbanski singled with the score tied in the tenth to break a one-all tie and drive in the winning run.

IN SECOND PLACE.

ROCHESTER, N.Y., September 19 (Canadian Press). — Rochester fell into second place in the International League pennant chase here yesterday as the Red Wings lost to Toronto and Buffalo broke even with Montreal. Rochester lost by a 9 to 3 count before the left-handed wizardry of Walter Leverenz, who allowed but seven hits and struck out five. Leverenz walked eight men, but bore down with men on the sacks.

Billy Southworth used nineteen men in a vain effort to take the verdict, having seven pitchers in action over the nine innings.

Toronto bunched fourteen hits off the seven, although Clough and Irvin, along with Toner stopped the Leafs in the late innings.

All three are southpaws.

Tony Kaufman topped the hitting for the home club with three safe hits, while Easterling, Burke, Alexander, Bedore, Phillips, and Leverenz had two apiece for the visitors. The clubs are now even in their series, the third and final game of which will be played to-day.

LOSE WILD GAME.

JERSEY CITY, N.J., September 19 (Canadian Press). — Jersey City lost a wild game to Baltimore here yesterday in the series opener by 15 to 7. The Orioles collected a total of 21 hits, 12 of them registered in the first four innings at the expense of Jackson, the starting pitcher.

WIN DOUBLE-HEADER.

READING, Pa., Septemebr 19 (Canadian Press). — Reading made it two straight over Newark yesterday. Rallying in the ninth inning to nose out the Bears, 8 to 7, Conroy singled to send Whitman home with the winning run in the ninth.

Harrison and Brennan were hit hard in the early stages of the game and both were removed. Brennan went only three innings, while Harrison pitched six.

GORDON McLEOD IN "MISS ELIZABETH'S PRISONER"

"Miss Elizabeth's Prisoner", the romantic costume drama which the London star, Gordon McLeod, has picked for his Canadian tour this fall, is, in one respect, among the most unique plays ever written by English authors.

It deals with American Revolutionary days and a young American captain is the hero of the piece. The play, nevertheless, was written by English authors for British audiences and uses an entire London cast. The unusual set of circumstances surrounding the creation and production of this English hit only adds to the color of a drama which is already a dashing piece of playwriting.

Against the background of the somewhat erratic guerilla warfare which marked the uproar in the Colonies, the authors have woven an unusual romance, punctuated with sword play. A love scene is apt to be interrupted by the arrival of a troop of hostile horsemen. It is impossible for the audience to decide until nearly the end of the action, whether it is witnessing a romance or merely an intrigue to accrue the freedom of a courageous young warrior for whom capture means death. In any case, the play is swiftly moving and exciting.

Gordon McLeod has the role of Capt. Harry Payton, a part first made famous by the greatest of all English actors, Lewis Waller. In his support, as Miss Elizabeth, is an outstanding London favorite, Miss Lillian Christine.

One of the most unusual features of the production was the arrival in Canada for the first performances of the play, of one of England's most famous directors, A. E. Anson. On several occasions he has been brought to New York to supervise by leading American producers to supervise the presentation of English offerings but this is the first time he has ever been induced to come to Canada for that purpose. He has personally directed the entire production from the date it first went to rehearsal in London.

Mr. McLeod's local engagement is for one performance only at the Grand Theatre, Thursday evening. Seats now selling.

AT THE REGENT.

A pleasant surprise is in store for all patrons of the Regent Theatre, next week. Not only is "The Patent Leather Kid" chucked full of action from start to finish, but the man, woman or child who can sit through this wonderful spectacle without showing their emotions does not exist.

The prize fight sequence is marvelous in detail.

The love story is unequalled in tense interest and in addition to this is the happy experience of witnessing a real drama where the hero does not win the war all by himself. Truly this is a picture that is made for any country or any audience in the world.

Action, romance, tragedy, drama, wonderful comedy are combined in this great attraction.

"One of the greatest dramas and best acted pictures of the year."—Toronto Mail and Empire.

"Barthelmess excels himself in this picture, the greatest drama of the year."—Toronto Daily Star.

"Great story—cinema knockout—in a class with "Wings" and "The Big Parade."—Detroit Times.

Don't fail to see it.

Rin-Tin-Tin to be Seen in Race Track Film .

"A Race for Life," a Warner Bros. production starring Rin-Tin-Tin, comes to the Regent Theatre Thursday for a run of three days. This is the Wonder Dog's fourteenth screen triumph and it is acclaimed as the most thrilling of the lot, which is saying a great deal.

"A Race for Life" recounts that adventures of Danny O'Shea, who goes with his dog to the Southland via box car route, there to become a jockey for a turfman who has enemies who try to poison the horse and succeeds in imprisoning Rinty.

The uncanny intelligence with the dog shows in extricating himself from all his troubles and in spurring his pal to victory provides a story which will make the house rock with cheers. The human cast consists of Virginia Browne Faire, Carrol Nye, Bobby Gordon, James Mason and Pat Hartigan. Charles R. Condon wrote the story and scenario and the production was directed by Ross Lederman, who was so successful in his direction of Rin-Tin-Tin in "A Dog of the Regiment."

Blake of Scotland Yard .

In one of the cavernous vaults under Blanton Towers, the ancestral home of a great English family, Lord Blanton, a scientist, has worked secretly in his laboratory for many years. His labors have resulted in the discovery of a method of transmuting base metal into gold. He dreams of making his country the richest nation in the world.

But human avarice and cunning thwart his plans, for "The Spider," king of the underworld learns of the secret and gets into Blanton Towers in spite of thick stone walls, strong locks and iron bars. He leaves his telltale web and terrorizes the peer and his family.

Lady Diana, niece of the nobleman, implores the great Blake noted criminologist, late of Scotland Yard to leave his retirement and trail the undaunted "Spider," the one notorious criminal who has managed to outwit Blake during his careers as sleuth.

His love for the girl and his sporting blood decide the matter for Blake. His science and wit are pitted against the cunning and ruthless crook, but in the first tilt the priceless formula disappears, in spite of the detective's vigilance.

'Blake of Scotland Yard," Universal Junior Jewel Serial, which will be shown at this theatre beginning Thursday at the Regent is the gripping and exciting screen story of the great detective's efforts at checkmating one of the world's most remarkable criminals.

Hayden Stevenson, of "The Leather Pushers" and "The Collegians," is the star. Beautiful Gloria Grey heads the supporting cast which includes Herbert Prior, Monte Montague, Grace Cunard and others.

The picture was directed by Robert F. Hill from the story by Arthur H. Gooden.

AT THE CAPITOL.

SYD CHAPLIN'S NEW PICTURE "SKIRTS" WHICH IS THE FEATURE ATTRACTION AT THE CAPITOL THE LAST HALF OF THE WEEK, HAS SPEED, THRILLS AND LAUGHS—THEY SAY THAT IT IS EVEN FUNNIER THAN "CHARLEY'S AUNT"

Syd Chaplin is back in another mirth provoking comedy with all of his old brand of humor and a whole set of new comedy 'gags." The picture we refer to is "Skirts", which opens at the Capitol to-morrow.

The picture, an adaptation of the London stage success "A Little Bit of Fluff," has all that goes to make up a good comedy. Chaplin's characterization of a young husband who becomes entangled in all sorts of worldly snares is excellent.

The tempo and continuity of the film have been handled in a masterly fashion by the two directors, Jess Robbins and Wheeler Dryden, of whom the latter also wrote the scenario for this photoplay. The supporting cast is good, backing up the star in every gag with remarkable ease and fine comedy sense. All in all "Skirts" is one of the finest pictures of the year, as well as being Syd Chaplin's latest and best comedy.

There is hardly a sober moment in "Skirts"—it is so crammed with laughs that there is hardly room for anything else. But, it does tell a story, which so many comedies fail to do. The wise cracks and the "gags" in this film are all built around the old theme, the husband enjoying a vacation from marital cares while his wife is away from home. The wife and his mother-in-law leave with Chaplin's frantic and funny help and return to find one of the most furious complications ever devised in full swing in the very parlor of their home. Between the departure and return of the wife there is a perfect stream of mirthful situations, ranging from the antics of a trick dog through Chaplin's famous stunt of female impersonation, a thrilling fight with a burglar, and the inadvertent entrance of the hero into a strange woman's bath room while she is in her bath.

"Skirts" is laugh medicine of the strongest brewing. It has everything which makes a comedy amusing and worthy of consideration. Our advice is—don't miss it, it's the greatest laugh treat since "Charley's Aunt."

HOSPITAL NOTES

departments—it is intended to ask the ratepayers for $300,000 and to endeavor to equip and finish the various departments by and as a system of memorial gifts with sufficient funds set aside to keep up these in perpetuity—this has been done in other centres. At St. Thomas, for instance, every room and department has been donated and bears a tablet stating that fact, and the name of the donor. It is evident that no more lasting monument can be raised by the relatives of those who have passed on than some such unit pledged to the alleviation of suffering and care of the sick.

The Board has already been greatly encouraged by the appreciation with which this plan has been received. Covering a period of say 20 years the number treated in the hospital has increased 300% and is increasing every year—during the past two years the Hospital capacity has been taxed to its limit and it has been necessary at times to refuse admissions.

Enquiry has been made, through the press—for information, "Which will guide the citizens to determine whether or no they will accept the conditions governing the Hospital Trust."

In reply it may be pointed out that the deed of gift of the Hospital and its endowment were accepted by the Council, for the people, over 40 years ago.

In part the act sets forth:

(1) How the Board is elected—that is—by representation from each of the Protestant Churches with the Mayor, ex-officio, a member of the Board.

(2) The Board is empowered to ask the Council to levy on the Protestant ratepayers for any shortage on maintenance account.

(3) For any capital expenditure, the matter must go to a vote of the ratepayers.

(4) The Endowment fund cannot be diminshed for any purpose whatever—the income from this source is available as maintenance revenue.

(5) The books of the Trust are open to inspection by members of the City Council and the Clerk and Treasurer thereof. The Auditor for the City is the Auditor for the Trust.

The hospital management is limited to that of the Protestant denominations.

Above are the main sections of the Act governing the Nicholls Hospital.

The Hospital accommodation of Peterborough is reported in the Government return as 175 beds, Nicholls 90 and St. Joseph's 85, but it can be said that Nicholls has not sufficient accommodation for its needs and the Board ask the co-operation of the ratepayers in the vote which will be taken on Wednesday, September 26. Nicholls Hospital is your Hospital and merits your support.

C. P. R. OFFERS TO BUY LINES

the purchase of the government's Northern Railway property is to be made under the direction of the provincial auditor before the government reaches a decision for public announcement. Premier Brownlee made this statement Tuesday morning, following a meeting of the cabinet at which the matter was considered. The actual transfer of the properties will not take place until probably some time next spring.

A special meeting of the Alberta Legislature to deal with the matter will not be necessary, says the Premier, power having been given the government at the last session to proceed with a sale at any time an offer or offers might be received.

"We are having an analysis of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company's offer for the Edmonton, Dunvegan and British Columbia, Central Canada, and Alberta and great waterways railways made by the provincial auditor to see just exactly what it means and until the results of this work are laid before us we are not in a position to state whether we will accept or reject," declared the Premier on Tuesday morning when announcing the result of his meeting with the C.P.R. president.

The exact terms of the offer, which is not a cash transaction, were kept a guarded secret by the Premier, who contented himself with stating that it was the largest offer yet made for the government owned roads and that it was not far off the price of $20,000,000 which the government on June 13 last intimated to both trans-continentals would be acceptable.

The new offer will not prevent the C.N.R. making another bid.

RIVER TALK NAMES BOVEN

moved the pawns and was more than an intellectual equal of baffled opponents of the police force. Professor Moriarty is perhaps not exactly the imaginative dream of a writer of fiction.

Two months ago in Detroit, police experts admitted to the writer that if there is no Moriarty there is at least a band of super-criminals whom accident and the will of the gods, more than police detection, will doom. An ever-increasing list of unsolved major crimes on the Windsor-Detroit border eloquently speaks of the terrorizing something that sends Windsor men to the Attorney-General for protection.

Narcotic rings, hi-jackers, cattle rustlers and rum runners pale into insignificance before the master killers and abductors of the Detroit-Chicago underworld, whose shadow and sphere of power now widen out to the Canadian side of the border. For the threatened Windsor men and the Canadian police forces the death of James H. Kennedy, former accountant of a Windsor liquor exporting company, is a disquieting example. In the edge of a bush along a lonely road near Toledo, a few days after he had been subpoenaed by Sergeant Fish of the Royal Canadian Police to appear before the customs commission at Toronto to give evidence in the Government's $500,000 suit for gallonage taxes against a local liquor export house, Kennedy's battered corpse was found where, as they say, he had been "taken for a ride." First his body had been beaten badly and, later a shot had been put through his head.

A month afterwards, at the end of this May, at Ottawa, the Attorney-General of Ontario gave orders for the exhumation and examination of his body in the presence of Royal Canadian Mounted and Provincial Police. And so far the rest has been silence.

HURRICANE MOVES NORTH ALONG COAST

far north as Boston and probably will be extended later to-day.

200 Interred.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Sept. 19.—(Canadian Press.)—Howard Selby, chairman of the Palm Beach Red Cross committee, told a conference of relief workers to-day that to date the bodies of two hundred victims of the hurricane had been buried in local cemetries. The bodies, half of them white persons, came from the region about Lake Okeechbee, Selby said.

"Conditions in the stricken area are growing worse every minute," Selby said.

"About 8,000 persons in the Lake region are in desperate need of clothing, food and medical aid. They have been standing in the water for hours and there are a number of cases of double pneumonia."

700,000 HOMELESS.

NEW YORK, September 19 (Canadian Press). — A cablegram reporting that 700,000 persons had been made homeless in Porto Rico by last week's hurricane was received here to-day from Governor Horace Towner.

COMPLAINT CARDS AT POLICE STATION

Chief Newhall Speaks Favorably of New System To Control Traffic.

The first lot of complaint cards issued by the Department of Highways have reached the city and are to be had by calling at the Police Station. Every complaint must be signed by the complainant or the Department will pay no attention to the information. The informations have to be mailed direct to the office of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles, Parliament Buildings, Toronto.

Chief of Police Newhall spoke very favorably of the new plan when asked by The Examiner this morning, and thought that it ought to be a great help in checking reckless driving throughout the province. He gave as an example a big truck that hogs the road and keeps motorists back. If complaint cards are filled out and sent in to the Department, the truck owner will soon be advised that he must abide by the rules of the road or his license will be cancelled. The Department promises not to give out the name of any complainant.

AGED PRIMATE FINISHES DUTY

Will Preside Over Bishops Next Week For Last Time.

MEMORABLE SESSION.

LONDON, Sept. 19 (Canadian Press Cable). — The Most Rev. Randall Davidson, retiring Archbishop of Canterbury, will preside over his last meeting of the Bishops of the Established Church next week. On this account alone the meeting would be memorable. But it will be still more noteworthy because the aged Primate and his brothers of the mitre will have to decide how to proceed after the second rejection of the revised Prayer Book by the House of Commons.

One theory of the origin of the Eskimo is that he is descended from the Indian of North America.

SOLVE THIS PUZZLE

The problem is to add together all of the numbers in the puzzle shown here. Each figure is clearly indicated and they run from 2 to 9; the sixes having curved stem and the nines a straight stem. All are single figures, none are combinations. Add them together as if each figure stood one above the other in a single column.

No one knows the correct answer. To make certain that no one knows the correct answer to the puzzle, parties not connected with the contest erased several different figures from the original drawing before the puzzle was printed. A note was made of these erased figures and placed in a sealed envelope, which is now in a safety deposit box. When the contest closes the numbers erased will be added together and subtracted from the original total, making the correct answer the sum total of the figures appearing in the puzzle.

There are positively no tricks to this contest, the figures simply being placed closely together instead of in easily counted groups. In this way the possibility of ties is greatly reduced.

Every number in the puzzle can be plainly seen—there are positively no hidden or trick figures. If as a result of the printing any number is not absolutely clear to you do not send in your answer without first writing us, as no answer can be changed after we receive it.

This is purely a contest of skill, and the degree of skill and care you use will determine the prize you will win. The only requirements for entry are those in the rules below. Please read them carefully now and avoid confusion later.

NOTE: Extra Cash Prizes for Early Answers

READ THESE RULES CAREFULLY

1. Any one may enter this contest except employees (or members of the employees' families) of the Canadian Radio Service Co., the publishers of "Radio News of Canada," and the Wentworth Radio & Auto Supply Co., Ltd.

2. Each answer submitted must be accompanied by $2.00 for one new or renewal subscription to "Radio News of Canada," Canada's oldest and most widely read radio magazine, and must be mailed direct to Canadian Radio Service Co., 81 Victoria Street, Toronto.

3. Make cheques and money orders payable to Canadian Radio Service Co. Out-of-town cheques must include 15 cents for exchange. We will not be responsible for cash remittances unless registered. All remittances will be acknowledged immediately by us, as well as by the publishers of "Radio News of Canada."

4. Should no one submit the correct answer, first prize will be awarded to the contestant submitting the nearest correct answer; 2nd prize for the next nearest correct answer, and so on. In the event of a tie, contestants tieing will be required to answer a simple tie-breaker. No cash will be accepted in connection with the tie-breaker.

5. Contest will close November 15th, 1928, and no answers mailed after that date will be accepted. Prizes will be awarded by the Canadian Radio Service Co., as soon after November 15th, 1928, as possible.

6. The judges will be three men well known in the radio industry, and contestants in entering the contest agree to accept the decision of the judges as final, and to abide by the rules of the contest as herein set forth.

EXPORT MANAGER GUARDED AT HOME

Samuel Low Was Victim of Kidnappers—Police Ruse Fails.

WINDSOR, September 18. — Following a sensational attempt made by Detroit gangsters to shake down the immense Carling Brewing Company and allied export interests, Samuel J. Low, sales manager of the Erie Transport Company, who only escaped from a kidnapping by promising to hand over $35,000, is in the home of a friend, closely guarded by several armed friends and two Provincial policemen. The address of the house is being kept a close secret by all concerned.

Ruse Fails.

A ruse planned to apprehend the kidnappers failed yesterday when the taxi driver who had accepted a dummy package, given as the $35,000 ransom demanded by the kidnappers, was lost in Detroit traffic by two detectives assigned to the case.

Low was kidnapped on September 8 and held until Sunday night, when he was released in Windsor after promising his captors to obtain and turn over to them $35,000. According to Detroit police, Low was held in a lonely cottage somewhere in the vicinity of Thamesville. He was kept blindfolded, and shackled to a bed.

Dummy Money Packet.

Low was instructed to register yesterday at a Detroit hotel and to await instructions as to how to dispose of the money. He conferred with his attorney, Major J. H. Clark, and it was agreed that the money would not be paid, but that an attempt to capture the kidnappers would be made.

Another man was secured to register at the hotel designated under Low's name, and the telephone wire to the room tapped. The man was told to hand the money to a taxi driver, who would receive it in the lobby. The dummy package was prepared and handed to the driver, but the detectives lost him while attempting to follow him to the members of the kidnapping gang.

Threats Against Others.

The kidnapping was vouched for by Major James H. Clark, of the legal firm of McTague, Clark & Racine, counsel for the Carling Brewing interest, who gave it as his opinion that, following the refusal of his clients to pay the money promised by Low, all were marked men and in danger of their lives. In fact, Major Clark said, threats to "take them for a ride," in turn, had been made against himself. Harry Low, Vice-President of Carlings; Charles Burns and Marco Leon, the others who control the big brewing and exporting company.

The kidnapping of Low occurred a week ago Sunday night, and he only won his freedom by pledging that Major Clark would deliver the money in Detroit. But, as this was not done, because it was feared that if it were, it would only be the first of similar large sums to be demanded, Major Clark was in receipt of several threats as to what would happen if the money was not forthcoming. The last one came Saturday, he said, and was to the effect that the gang was now about to strike.

Just how, or when, or where, nobody knows. But that these men seem bold enough to invade Canadian territory and defy Canadian law is shown by the kidnapping, as made public by Major Clark last night.

Sam Low although maintaining his home in bachelor quarters with Major Clark on Oulette avenue, has been staying in London lately, looking after the sales department of Carlings. On the Sunday night he was on his way back to Windsor, driving a roadster. Near Thamesville, on Provincial Highway No. 2, he was forced to the side of the road by a large car in which there were four men. One of them flashed a pistol, while others of the gang then proceeded to blindfold Low with goggles made opaque with adhesive tape on the outer side. They handcuffed him, and two of them took him in his own car. Then, the large car following, they drove for a considerable time to a cottage, where they took Low inside.

Kept Blindfolded.

He was made to undress, and shackled to a bed, the blindfold being reinforced by a towel. The ransom was discussed. Half a million dollars was mentioned. Then Low was ordered to write his brother Harry for the money. He convinced them that Harry was out of town, on on his way to the Coast on business. Then they suggested Major Clark.

Low was made to write two letters on stationery of a Benton Harbor, Mich., hotel and the other on the paper of the Hotel Statler, Detroit. But at no time did he catch a glimpse of his captors. But neither letter was satisfactory, although it had been decided at first that they were to be taken to Windsor in Low's roadster and shoved under the door of the Low-Clark apartment. Then keeping Low captive or even sending him to Detroit until his associates paid the money was mentioned.

Low Gains Freedom

It was Low himself who suggested the plan that won him his freedom. He agreed to pay $35,000 if his captors would free him, convincing them that he knew enough about gang methods to be well aware of death penalty for double-crossing. He said that if they would take hime to Windsor and set him free he would see to it that Major Clark delivered them the money in the morning. The gang agreed.

Still blindfolded, but his clothing restored, Low was driven to Windsor and left in his roadster on Erie Street, being cautioned not to stir for 15 minutes. He followed directions and made his way safely home about 6 o'clock Sunday morning, just seven hours after he was captured.

Major Clark kept his own counsel and the case was not reported to police, although some investigations were made privately. These disclosed the fact that the large car which contained the kidnappers was a sedan bearing an Ontario license which was issued here in Windsor.

It was also learned that the cottage to which Low was taken lies on the shore of Lake Erie somewhere between Kingsville and Leamington. Yesterday Major Clark made a formal report of the happenings to Inspector Arthur Moss of the Provincial Police, and the latter left for Toronto, where he is to lay the facts before the Attorney-General.

GOITRE

Goitre Remover Removes Goitre Where Other Remedies Fail.

Mr. S. W. Hughson:

Dear Sir,—Several years ago I had an operation for goitre, but it came back within a year. A friend of mine told me of your "Goitre Remover," so I tried it, and can honestly say, I give all praise to your treatment. Had tried electricity and several so-called "goitre cures" before my operation, all of which were failures, and even my operation was a failure. I was very much discouraged until I tried your Goitre Remover. Now my neck is as small as anyone's. If more people would only try your Remover and be faithful to it, there would be less goitre in the world.

You are perfectly welcome to use this testimonial in any way you wish in the hope it may help others.

Rise In Call Money Retards Upward Move

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—(Canadian Press).—Waves of buying and selling alternately swept through stock market today with price fluctuations running as high as five and six points. The nervous activity of the market apparently reflected renewed apprehension over the money situation heightened by the rise in call rates from the renewal of seven percent first to seven and a half and then to eight percent. The banks had called upwards of $30,000,000 in loans by noon and in the early afternoon prices generally began [illegible] toward [illegible] levels.

Some consideration appeared to have been given commission house advices respecting lightening of speculative commitments, but selling did not deter extensive pool operations. These were most effective in a wide assortment of stocks selling between $20 and $50 a share and many of these, previously neglected, rose two to six points to new high prices for the year. Among them were Kelsey, Hayes Wheel, which moved up six and a quarter points to 43¾ and Woolworth Company, up four points to 23¾, also a new peak.

Gains of two to three points recorded by St. Joseph lead, American zinc, United States Smelting, American Metal, Philadelphia Reading Coal and Iron, American Woollen and Trico Products.

Trading Weak At Toronto With Most Stocks Losing

TORONTO, Sept. 19 (Canadian Press).—With the bulk of buying confined to a number of better known issues, trading was comparatively weak on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning, while prices on the whole were stationary. City Dairy was in strong demand, and was one of the exceptions to make a substantial advance. The milk issue was up as high as 69, easing off toward noon to sell at 68½ for a net increase of 1½. International Nickel, in light trading, was up 2.00 at 127. Canadian Oil at 86¼, Cockshutt Plow at 31, and Massey-Harris at 46 were ¼ higher. Page Hersey continued on its downward run to-day, losing 1¼ points at 103¾, and Canadian Industrial Alcohol lost a half at 43. Farmers Dairy was also up.

Wheat Prices Move Up As Rain Halts Harvest

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—(Canadian Press).—Rainy weather in Canada unfavorable for the crop movement tended to lift wheat values to-day in the early dealings. Liverpool wheat quotations were firmer starting ⅜ cent up. Chicago wheat later scored advances all around. Corn opened down but subsequently showed a general advance. Provisions were easier.

Opening prices were: Wheat, September, 108¾; December, 113⅝. Corn, September, 100⅝; December, 75⅝. Oats, September 41½; December, 41⅝.

Noranda Recovers Loss In Active Trading To-day

TORONTO, September 19 (Canadian Press). — Noranda, Sudbury Basin, Graham Bousquet, and Barry Hollinger drew a good deal of attention during the morning on the Standard Mining Exchange to-day. Noranda made a spectacular recovery from its heavy loss of yesterday, and at noon was up 2.35 at 53.00. Sudbury Basin in light trading also regained its loss of the previous session, jumping up 29 points to sell at 6.55. The other two issues were especially active, remaining firm at 44 and 50 respectively. Hollinger Consolidated in slow selling was up five cents at 8.50. Lake Shore was up the same amount at 22.25, while Newbec, with the heaviest turnover on the list, was up one at 51. Sherritt-Gordon was strong, selling up to 6.70 for a five-cent increase. Hudson Bay climbed over yesterday's high and went to 19.95, twenty cents over its former close. The general condition of the market was slow, while prices were inclined to turn upwards.

MINING BRIEFS

A Special Service to The Examiner

Douglas Mutch, M.E., wires, through F. G. Oke and Company:

Abana.—A visit here, primarily for the purpose of obtaining first-hand information re the mine being flooded, resulted in finding the situation in regard to water troubles to be highly exaggerated. The power plant which has been in continuous operation since development started, demands immediate repairs.

There was no stand-by equipment, and it was considered advisable to discontinue pumping from the lower level.

This naturally resulted in this level being temporarily filled with water. This condition is not interfering in any way with the progress at the property. All the air that is available from the present compressor plant is being used for the excavation for foundations of the new mill and hoist house. Air is also being used for the installation of a 400-foot pipe line from Calamity Lake for the purposte of water supply. The company are taking full advantage of the good weather to complete this necessary surface work, and with underground developments far ahead of surface equipment, the decision was made to suspend underground operations temporarily.

Construction of the new power house is proceeding rapidly. The steel work has been completed, and sheeting commenced. One of the two 500-h.p. Deisel engines is in the process of erection. This additional power will be ample to carry on mine development until the concentrator is ready for production. It is not the intention of the company to commence the installation of the second power until immediately on completion of the first. All mill equipment and supplies are on the property and production is expected to start at the end of the present year, or in the early months of next.

Under ground, before mining operations were temporarily suspended the new ore body east of the dyke continued to show excellent results. Recently it has been found that the precious metal content in this new ore is indicated to be considerably higher than formerly expected. Recent assays have shown approximately one ounce of silver to each per cent. of copper. Other ore possibilities were described in our last report.

We can see an assured ore reserve of around twelve million dollars and an indicated reserve of at least twice this amount.

The present shaft is two compartment. It will be necessary in the near future to sink a larger shaft to facilitate the handling of larger tonnage. A decision in regard to this is to be made shortly. It is likely that this shaft will be raised from the 300-foot level at a point near the mill. The present shaft is capable of handling ore to supply sufficient tonnage for the 250-ton concentrator now being constructed.

Several permanent buildings have been erected, including a large bunk house capable of accommodating 100 to 125 men. In addition to this, permanent cookery, office, staff house, etc., have been erected.

Recently there have been several rumors in regard to this property having to do with the possibility of a sale to other interests. This rumor has no foundation on fact. Another rumor to the effect that the C.N.R. had decided not to put in a branch line is unfounded. At the end of our visit the C.N.R. officials had not inspected the property, but were expected in shortly. We believe that

BILLY RANIERI RETURNS HOME

Boy Kidnapped Sept 5 Freed By Captors Near Joliet.

HAS BLACK EYE.

CHICAGO, Sept. 19 (Canadian Press).—Ten-year-old Billy Ranieri, son of an Italian sewer contractor, for whom Chicago police have searched since his kidnapping September 5, walked into a Joliet, Ill., gasoline station last night, shortly after he had been freed by his abductors. He was none the worse for his kidnapping except for a black eye caused, he stated, by a blow from one of the Italians who took him away. It was a very calm youngster who said to the station attendant, "I want to go home. I've been kidnapped." Calm, particularly in view of the fact that his disappearance, the demand of a $65,000 ransom for his return and a sequence of threatening letters to his parents. The lad said he had been kept on a farm and was not ill treated except for the occasion when he was struck.

NOTHING HEARD FROM GODFREY

Rumors of Forced Landing Near Fort Smith Proved False.

EDMONTON, September 19 (Canadian Press). — A brief wireless flash from Fort Smith yesterday announcing that Major A. E. Godfrey and his three air force companions had been forced down fifteen miles from there now turns out to be false.

Advices received from Fort Smith to-day state that another plane arrived there yesterday from Fort Simpson, but it was not Major Godfrey's. No word, therefore, has been heard of Godfrey's party since they left Peace River on Sunday for Fort Chippewyan and Fort Smith.

the declion will be to go ahead with the branch line.

Although Abana shares have depreciated in value somewhat recently the property itself has appreciated to a rather remarkable extent, and we consider that these shares will sell considerably higher.

Malrobic.

The shares of this company, capitalized at 3,000,000 shares of $1 par value, according to an announcement by the Standard Exchange on Monday, were to be called for trading at eleven o'clock to-day.

The company owns approximately 500 acres formerly known as the Robb Dean group, located in the Cadillac-Fourniere-Malartic district of Quebec. Although development work was only started here a short time ago, the shaft is already down to a depth of 200 feet, and a great deal of credit for this should go to the very energetic engineer in charge, B. Airth, B.Sc.

We understand the shaft will be continued to the 250 foot level before any lateral development work will be commenced. A station will be cut at this horizon and already one has been cut at the 125 foot level. The shaft is being sunk on a strongly defined sheared zone and the vein is reported to have continued in the shaft for a considerable distance, and carried encouraging mineralization, with values reported from $5 to $18 a ton. On surface the vein has been traced for over 2,000 feet and is said to be of typical gold bearing structure. In view of the very rapid progress being made at Malrobic, interesting results from lateral work may be expected in the near future.

Siscoe.

The directors of Siscoe, who recently visited the property, are reported as having been very well satisfied with conditions and the progress being made in mill construction. Practically all the mill machinery is either on the ground or in transit, while underground operations are said to have resulted in the opening up of new ore on the 400 foot level, were showings of free gold are in evidence. It is believed that this new orebody is probably the same as that encountered on the 500 foot level a short time ago where very high gold values were reported.

WEDDING BELLS

McWILLIAMS—COWIE

A quiet but pretty wedding took place at the home of the bride's parents, Lake Shore House, Hiawatha, Monday, September 17th, at noon, when Mildred, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Cowie, was married to Thomas Percy McWilliams of Chicago, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McWilliams of Peterborough.

The ceremony was conducted by Rev. Rufus Garratt, pastor of the United Church, Hiawatha, Ont. The bridesmaid was Miss Lena Cowie, sister of the bride, and Mr. Ross McCall of Peterborough was groomsman. Many useful and valuable presents were received from their numerous friends. In the evening a reception was held in the Community Hall, during which a purse of money was presented to them, showing the high esteem of their friends in the community. Amid a shower of confetti the happy couple motored to Peterborough, taking the early morning train, September 18, for Chicago, their future home, where the bridegroom has a good position.

WESTINGTON—MURRAY.

The marriage took place in George Street United Church at high noon on Tuesday, September 18, of Daisy Alice May, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alister Murray, of Springville, and Mars McClelland Westington, M.A., of the University of Toronto, elder son of Mr. T. P. Westington, of Cambourne, Ont.

The ceremony was conducted by Rev. A. H. McConnachie, of Springville United Church.

The bride was charmingly gowned in alice blue crepe romaine with grey kid shoes and hose, hat, gloves, and purse of a matching shade. Miss Helen Staples, of Springville, and Mr. Douglas Westington, of the University of Toronto, brother of the groom, witnessed the signing of the register.

After the ceremony a wedding luncheon was served at the home of the bride's parents. The table was beautiful with its floral decorations of blue and white.

The groom's gifts to the witnesses were a necklace to Miss Staples and cuff links to Mr. Westington.

The happy couple left on the 3.40 train for Toronto and points west. The bride wore a dress of grey flat crepe coat of grey poiret twill trimmed with moleskin fur, and black hat. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Westington will reside in Toronto.

Guests were present from Cambourne and Lindsay.

Teck-Hughes.

TORONTO, Sept. 19.—Reliable reports from Kirkland Lake on Monday were to the effect that production from Teck Hughes for the month of August amounted to approximately $445,000. This was an increase of more than $35,000 over the output for July. The importance of the present situation is shown by the fact that present production is at the rate of over $5,300,000 yearly, as compared with $2,700,000 for 1927. It would also appear that present production more than justifies the present dividend of 60 cents a share yearly, which at present selling prices of Teck Hughes returns the investor more than 7 per cent.

Graham Bousquet.

Our field man reported from Amos on Monday that station cutting was under way at the 250 foot horizon on this property. The shaft is to be deepened to 500 feet with a station at that horizon as well as at the 375. The shaft was sunk to intercept a body of schisted porpyry, which gave consistent values of $10 over good widths on surface. The gold is associated with fine crystals of arsenopyrites. It is said that in crosscutting on the 125 foot level, three separate bands of schisted porphyry were intersected within a distance of 70 feet with resultant widths of 12, 12 and 8 feet. The intervening rock was said to contain small values. The possibilities of a large tonnage of medium grade ore at Graham Bousquet are regarded as excellent.

IMMIGRANT DEATHS TO BE INVESTIGATED

Australia Draws the British Settlers

ArmyHead Tells of Help

Government's Policy, More Broadminded, Says Col. Tudge.

FREE PASSAGE GIVEN.

Answers Criticism Aimed at Army Immigration Work By Canadian Organizations.

MONTREAL, Sept. 20 (Exclusive to The Examiner).—So far as inter-Imperial immigration as directed by the Salvation Army is concerned, Australia, through the broad-minded policy of its government has co-operated with the army authorities much more effectively than has the Canadian Government, was the declaration yesterday in an interview at Montreal with The Examiner of Colonel Thomas Tudge, the head of the Salvation Army immigration work in Canada and the International Inspector of Migration, who has recently returned to Canada after an extended visit to England, where he conferred with many authorities, religious and political, on questions relating to the movements of population from the British Isles to the Dominions.

In vivid contrast to the situation in Canada, he said, the Salvation Army schemes of migration to Australia can almost be made to meet expenses. So far as Canada is concerned the Salvation Army is as willing as ever to give a helping hand. "But how can we?" he asked. "We must reduce migration expenses to something like the level of our migration income and we cannot reduce expenses without reducing the number of Britishers we help to migrate to Canada. It is for the Canadian people to prevent the reduction if they see fit."

"We spent about $30,000 more than we received on our migration work in the year 1927-28," he declared, adding that practically the whole of the deficit was caused by the action of the Canadian Government in cutting off the grant formerly given to the Salvation Army immigration bureau. The deficit would have been about $50,000 if the Army had not received $20,000 in emergency gifts from Canadian friends who appreciated the work of the department. A grant of $5,000 during the present financial year had been promised from the Dominion Department of Immigration, but there was no indication as to whether this grant would be continued in succeeding years.

Steamer Chartered

As an instance of the progress of immigration under Salvation Army auspices to Australia, he related that the White Star liner Vedic had been specially chartered for the second time to accommodate immigrants to the land of the Southern Cross—immigrants some of whom under different circumstances might has been induced to try their luck in this Dominion. To the belief often expressed in Canada that the Briton has lost the desire to emigrate, sufficient answer was to be found in the fact that there were twice as many applications as the ship had room for. The list comprises 200 boys for farm work after preliminary training and testing on the Army's farm in Essex, England; 200 women for domestic service, and 300 people in families.

Free passage for women travelling to Australia for household work is not confined merely to those who have been paid servants in Old Country. Girls and women who have done only housework at home in Britain are given free passage if they are willing to engage in domestic service. Such can only secure reduced passage rates to Canada if they are nominated by householder who expresses willingness to employ inexperienced help.

According to the figures of the official report read out in the House of Commons in London, the Salvation Army immigration Department was responsible for the movement of 8,730 of the 23,601 who travelled under the auspices of ten societies.

Criticisms Answered.

Col. Tudge was very caustic in his comments on attacks on the work of the Army which have recently emanated from two quarters — the Trades and Labor Congress and the Communist party of Canada. He declared that the Reds both in Canada and in Britain desired to see the miner-harvester experiment end in a complete fiasco. He declared that Tom Moore, president of the Trades and Labor Congress was wide of the mark in bracketing the Salvation Army along with the government and the railways in a speech condemning the harvesters' excursion from Britain. The Salvation Army had nothing to do with the bringing of a single harvester to Canada. Asked his opinion of the movement Col.

Paris Not Wicked According To Aimee

PARIS, Sept. 20.— (Canadian Press.)— The so-called modern Babylon does not appear to be as wicked as represented, Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson, Los Angeles evangelist, informed those who inquired to-day about her impressions of the city. All Parisians, she said, seemed to be hard working.

CARS CRASH IN WEST END

Two Badly Smashed As Result of Collision At Intersection.

DRIVER INJURED.

Two light cars badly smashed and the driver of one in the hospital is the result of a crash at the corner of Park and Charlotte streets last night. The collision occurred right on the intersection with both cars being turned over. W. Craw had come south on Park street and was turning into the traffic going east on Charlotte street when he collided with a car driven by Curly Northey. Northey was travelling east at what eye witnesses declared was a very high rate of speed and when the cars collided the one driven by Craw immediately turned over but Northey's went 120 feet before it landed on its side also. Northey was the only one seriously injured and was taken to the St. Joseph's hospital, where he is under the car of Dr. J. M. O'Brien. One passenger also was hurt.

A light truck this morning turned over on George street north when the rear wheel struck a parked car. The driver was thrown out but not injured.

SIMLA, India, Sept. 20 (Canadian Press Cable, via Reuters).—Word of an attack on the Rt. Hon Srinivasa Sastri, Agent o fthe Government of India in South Africa, by a crowd of young men headed by Deputy Mayor Evans of Klerksdorp, Transvall, last Saturday, were disclosed to-day in a telegram received from the Acting Governor General of South Africa, expressing regret that the incident occurred.

Action will be taken against Evans, who objects to the South African Government's agreement with India regarding Indians resident in the Dominion.

HURRICANE GALES SWEEPING COAST

Edge of Great Storm Reaches New England— Wires Blown Down.

NEW YORK, Sept 20.—(Canadian Press) The fringe of the tripical hurricane which swept through the West Indies and Florida, leaving a trail of death and destruction, lashed the north Atlantic Coast today, but with diminishing violence. From Cape Hatteras to Boston high seas pounded the shore line and a wind which reached "whole gale" force blew down trees and telephone and telegraph poles and disrupted the lectric light and power system for several miles inland.

Two Northcotts Arrested In Canada

PRIMATE THINKS YOUNGER MAN IS NEEDED AT HEAD OF CHURCH

Temporal Power May Be Rome's Salvation

For Bishops To Decide, He Says—Is 76 Years Old To-day.

STILL WORKING HARD.

Refuses To Tell of Old Days—Says West Is Prosperous At Present.

HAMILTON, Ont., Sept. 20 (Special to The Examiner). — Archbishop Matheson gave to the writer to-day his reason for placing his resignation before the House of Bishops.

"I am 76 to-day," said he, "and I feel it is perhaps better that my position be held by a younger man. It is for the Bishops to decide."

The Primate, however, sets all a conspicuous example of indefatigable industry. To-day he was at his post of duty an hour before the session began, scrutinizing documents and consulting with the secretary. While Bishops strolled in by twos and threes and stood about in groups, their Primate was preparing their morning's work.

His gavel that calls them to order come down with a resounding crash. It is quite evident that despit his 76 years, he rules and ominates this assembly. His cheeks are ruddy and plump. His eyes are full of vitality. His hand-clasp is firm. His beard has still a tinge of black. He is wheat that knows no rust. He radiates health.

Never Felt Better

To inquiries on that point he replied, "I never felt better." It was no infirmity of body that prompted his request to be relieved of his ecclesiastical burden.

He had none of age's tendency to renew the past rather than probe the future. When asked to give some reminiscences of his long life in the West, he said: "That is an old story as everyone knows it," and he refused to be tedious as a twice-told tale. Yet he is himself the history of the West. This pioneer of pioneers was born in Winnipeg. He has seen buffalo graze on what is now Portage avenue. He travelled the plains long years before they heard the whistle of a locomotive. He has seen the sickle evolve into the reaper binder. No one better knows the sequence of events by which the Prairie became populated and a rivulet of grain grain swelled into a torrential flood that inundates box cars and elevators and cargo boats. No one is better qualified to measure Western progress. He said, "I have never known the West to be in a better condition than it is to-day; that does not mean that there are not areas in which the crops are below expectation; it is a very large country. But on the whole Manitioba at present is at its highest peak of prosperity."

Of its mines: "I am no authority on such affairs, but I believe there are wonderful possibilities."

All Is Well

His Diocese of Rupert's Land, which is Manitoba, is in the very centre of Canada. From it he can survey both east and west with impartial eye and he declared that "All is well from coast to coast."

The Anglican Church in Canada has as its present head no patriarch who is a prophet of disaster. When asked what was this ecclesiastical convention's most serious problem, he said: "We have no serious problem, we are making splendid progress."

It is not a conference to diagnose any critical situation but a meeting of experts to add a little more perfection to administrative machinery that is functioning smoothly. And the supreme director of it all is a man old as years go, but young in spirit, optimistic in outlook, with an imperturbable and sound mind in a sound body.

It is thought extremely unlikely that his spiritual confreres, with his present activity before their eyes will admit that he is too old at 76.

SENATE CALLS FOR ELECTION OF PRESIDENT

Would Have Provisional President Rule Mexico For 14 Months.

ELECTION IN 1929.

Members Discuss Opinions With President Calles at Meeting To-day.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 20 (Canadian Press).—The newspaper El Universal, quoting from reliable sources, says that President Calles was planning to hold a conference to-day with representatives of both Houses of Congress to exchange opinions concerning the question of the Presidential succession.

The paper says that the majority bloc in the Senate during a secret meeting yesterday reached the following decisions which will be taken up with President Calles:

1—The Provisional President is to remain in office for 14 months.

2—The Presidential electors shall be convoked in November of this year and elections shall be held on the second Sunday in November, 1929

3—The constitional President shall be inaugurated on January 1, 1930.

SEARCH FOR FARM VICTIMS SUSPENDED UNTIL EXTRADITION

Authorities Sure Man and Women Held Are Those Wanted.

HAD SEPARATED.

Boy Who Claimed To Be Walter Collins Admits Assumption Was Hoax.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Sept. 20.—(Canadian Press).—The search for human bones and other evidence to substantiate the sinister story of the Northcott murder farm was temporarily suspended to-day by Southern California officers pending the return here of the principals in the case, twenty one years old Gordon Northcott and his mother, Louisa Northcott.

The centre of activity in the case shifted to the Riverside county District Attorney's office which began extradition proceedings against the young man and his mother, who were arrested in Okanagon Landing B.C., and Calgary, Alta., respectively yesterday. Authorities here have no doubt that the persons arrested in the Canadian cities are those wanted.

Last night the authorities were informed that a boy brought here from Dekald, Illinois, under the identity of Walter Collins, kidnapped from here months ago, had admitted that he was not the abducted youth and that his assumption of young Collin's name was a hoax.

Collins is said to have been one of the boys murdered on the Northcott farm.

THRESHING IS NOW GENERAL

Rainy Weather of Past Week Held Up Work in West.

ALBERTA SUFFERS

WINNIPEG, Man., Sept. 20 (Canadian Press).—Rainy weather held up threshing operations at a number of points on the Prairie Provinces during the past week, but with the arrival of dry weather operations have been resumed and threshing is general all over the West, according to the weekly crop report issued by the Canadian Bank of Commerce. The report follows:

Manitoba — Threshing operations were held up last week at a number of points on account of showery weather. It is estimated that anywhere from 50 to 60 per cent. of the grain has been threshed and that a week or ten days of favorable weather should see all threshing pretty well completed. The crop in some areas is not grading quite as good as anticipated but taking the province as a whole, the yields are up to expectations.

Saskatchewan—Wet weather at the beginning of the week delayed harvesting and threshing operations at most points for one or two days and at several points for the great part of the week. By the end of the week, however, operations had been resumed all over the province. Wheat cutting is now practically completed and except for a few crops which are to be harvested with the combine, threshing is in full swing and it is expected that with a continuance of the present fine weather, it will be completed at most points within ten days or two weeks.

Alberta—Cutting is practically completed and threshing will be general in a few days. Weather continues favorable. Threshing returns indicate that damage from frost is greater than was expected, and the quality of wheat will vary considerably with a large proportion of low grade. The oat crop was severely damaged.

Heavy increases in the production of crude oil in California and the importation of large quantities of Mexican and Venezuelan crudes have given a great impetus to the production of petroleum asphalt.

JURY BEGIN INQUIRY INTO MEN'S DEATH

Jurors View Body of Dougald McLean and Adjourn Inquest.

SEARCH CONTINUES.

Men Will Patrol Shore While There Is Hope Of Finding Bodies.

OWEN SOUND, Ont., Sept. 20.—(Canadian Press.)—Coroner Dr. A. R Rutherford impanelled a jury here to-day to enquire into the cause of death of Dougald McLean, fireman of the lost steamer Manasoo, whose body was located yesterday at Cape Rich, about fifteen miles from the point where the ship foundered. Fourteen men are still missing.

The remains were viewed and adjournment taken until a later date when witnesses can be procured.

One tug, the Saymo, of Wiarton, is being kept at work searching the bay for bodies, while a patrol of the shores will be kept up to-day and as long as there is any possibility of finding any bodies.

Officials of the Owen Sound Transportation Company point out that on Sunday afternoon a telegram was received from Little Current giving the time of the departure of the Manasoo from West Bay as noon Saturday.

Company officials believed the ship had taken shelter from the weather and would arrive in safety. The boat was not on her regular run, but was "running wild" as many lake boats do in the fall and hence there was no set time for her arrival here. A delay of a day on account of weather was not considered out of the ordinary.

CAPTAIN DENIES RUMORS.

OWEN SOUND, Sept. 20 (Special to The Examiner).—A vigorous denial of vague rumors as to the probable cause of the grim disaster which plunged the ship Manasoo and her crew to the bottom of Georgian Bay, was made by Captain John McKay in an exclusive interview with The Examiner to-day, when for the first time he told of the days and nights spent on the raft in icy waters as the survivors fought with death.

"What men they were," he exclaimed. "Not a word of fear, and unselfishly offering their clothing, perhaps their only shirt, to another, who was breaking under the cold spray. No dismay was expressed as time and time again we had to struggle to keep our footing on the raft, which bobbed like a cork. Once and once only did our grief, too great for tears, overcome us, and that was when we were forced to let the body of Engineer McUtchen slip off. If we could have cried like little children it would have been much easier. I have met some fine men, but——" and for a few minutes Captain McKay lay silent.

"I can't figure out what happened," he declared. "The boat listed, trembled just like an earthquake, and seemed to go to pieces.

"We got two life-boats ready for the crew who had been awakened by the listing and were up by this time, but we could not swing them because the

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—(Canadian Press.) — Jewelry and clothing valued at from $2,000,000 to $2,500,000, belonging to Mme. Ganna Walska, wife of Harold McCormick, harvester millionaire, was held by customs authorities pending a decision as to whether it is dutiable.

Mme. Walska contends that she is not a resident of the United States and that her goods, purchased abroad, are not subject to import tax. The government's contention is that, as the wife of Mr. McCormick, she is a resident of the country.

INSANITY IS MURDER PLEA

Williams on Trial at Kingston for Slaying Wife With Hammer.

SAYS SHE NAGGED

KINGSTON, Ont., Sept. 20 (Canadian Press).—Evidence intended to show that Wilbert R. Williams was not mentally responsible for his actions was given yesterday afternoon by defence witnesses at his trial here for the murder of his wife on August 15 last, with a claw hammer.

The taking of defence testimony was not concluded when the court adjourned until to-day.

Former associates of Williams in the Picton Collegiate Institute, where Williams taught as a science teacher for more than four years, were placed on the stand. The Principal of the Collegiate said that Williams was "a very poor teacher, both from my own observation and from results." He testified that Williams had been 'queer" in his actions.

Mrs. J. McCallum, another witness, testified that Williams had continually talked of suicide and of his regret at being married.

The father of the dead woman, who had lived at the Williams home, said the accused had treated his wife "so cruelly that I could scarcely keep my hands off him."

Dr. G. C. Kidd, assistant superintendent of Rockwood Hospital for the Insane, said that Williams had made enquiries last February respecting treatment in that institution.

Earlier in the day evidence for the Crown had been concluded. Police officers told of receiving a telephone summons to the Williams home. Dr. M. J. Morrison, coroner, testified that when he asked Williams what had happened, the accused had replied: "This woman has been nagging me. It had to come to this sooner or later. I went and got a hammer and hit her on the head with it."

ATTEMPT ON LIFE OF TROTSKY DENIED

Story Current in London Not Credited in Moscow.

MOSCOW, Sept. 20. — (Canadian Press.)—The story published in London of an attempt against the life of Leon Trotzky at his place of exile in Turkestan is regarded in Moscow as thrillingly improbable.

Trotzky lives in the City of Almaata, which has a population of 84,000 and is not a wilderness where protracted sieges of private residences by snipers, as described in the despatch, are at all likely.

Province To Make Probe

Attorney General Says Boys Must Be Well Looked After Here.

UP TO GOVERNMENT.

Reasons For Suicides Among Young Farm Hands Must Be Exposed, He Says.

TORONTO, Ont., September 20 (Special to The Examiner). —A full investigation is to be made into the death of every young British immigrant that takes place in Ontario, Attorney-General W. H. Price stated to-day. "These young men are brought to Canada, and it is up to us to look after them," he stated. "If a boy shoots himself or kills himself in any way we should know all the particulars. It is all right to say that he committed suicide, but what we are going to find out is why he did so.

"They get homesick and lonesome, like anyone else, and it is up to us to see that they are well looked after. If there are suspicious circumstances then we are going to know what they are."

The Provincial Government's attitude on this matter is demonstrated by the fact that Col. Price had ordered that an inquest and full investigation be held into the death of John Wilson, aged 17, English immigrant, who was found shot in the head on a farm near Ottawa where he was employed.

The coroner disposed of the case without an inquest as one of suicide.

Nicholls Hospital Notes

Written by the Board of Nicholls Hospital to explain the necessity for an addition to building and equipment.

RESOLUTION OF THE MEDICAL STAFF OF THE NICHOLLS HOSPITAL, PETERBOROUGH

WHEREAS: Accommodation for patients in Nicholls Hospital has been wholly inadequate for many months past, particularly in:

(a) Obstetrical Department.—Maternity cases have to be taken care of wherever a bed can be secured, and oftentimes a patient who has arranged for a private ward has to accept temporary accommodation in the public ward.

(b) Infant Department.—At the present time no nursery is provided in the building. A private ward has been used for some years for nursery purposes, and it frequently happens that from 10 to 12 or more infants are crowded into this small space. This is undoubtedly harmful to the infants, and the noises from the nursery frequently disturb patients in this vicinity.

(c) Children's Department.—A two-bed ward is all the space assigned to children. We feel certain it is unnecessary to comment on the total inadequacy of this accommodation.

(d) Owing to the crowded conditions existing generally in the hospital, it is impossible to arrange patients in any formal manner. This makes for confusion and overlapping in the care of patients, and thus prevents the economical organization of the nursing staff.

BE IT RESOLVED, THEREFORE: That while the staff views with the utmost pleasure the efforts of the board to secure the necessary accommodation, it would respectfully urge the citizens, directly interested in the hospital, to make early and ample provision for those who, in increasing numbers, seek hospital care.

CHILDS GUILTY OF AIDING SUICIDE

Five Years Sentence Given

Insanity Evidence Fails to Release Party to Alleged Fact.

SWEETHEART DIED

Toronto University Professor Blames Action on Strain of Love.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Sept. 20 (Canadian Press). — Robert John Childs was found guilty by a jury late yesterday afternoon on a charge of aiding and abetting a suicide. Mr. Justice Fisher immediately sentenced him to five years in Portsmouth Penitentiary.

The case which had been in progress here for two days was completed late yesterday afternoon and the jury took but 45 minutes to reach a verdict.

The charge against Childs grew out of the death on August 20 of his sweetheart, Miss Gertrude Yelland of Ingersoll, Ont. The girl succumbed in the back seat of Childs' automobile while the car was parked on a lonely road in Oxford County. Death was caused by chloroform.

Childs returned to his home in Woodstock the following morning with the body of the girl and in a statement to police authorities told of a suicide pact.

Evidence adduced at the trial detailed the incidents surrounding the death of the girl. The defence produced testimony intended to prove that the accused was suffering from depressive insanity at the time.

Professor Dr. Goldwyn Howland, Toronto University, took the stand just before the case for the defence was concluded and blamed the actions of the accused on love.

"Being violently in love for a whole year, is a real strain," he told the jury.

BUSINESS POLICY TALK NO. 12
(By H.E.M.)

OUR CUSTOMERS, THEN OURSELVES

With Us the Customer Is Always Right and Our Constant Aim is to Please.

IN all our business dealings our customers always come first and are always right. We believe this is the most important cog in the wheel of our business policy, because our constant aim is to please.

Without our customers we would have no business, so it is up to us to protect them in every conceivable way—and we get much pleasure out of doing it.

We are constantly endeavoring to find ways and means of reducing the cost of our product to them. We are spending thousands of dollars to bring this condition about, and we would be glad to have our customers and prospective customers come in and look the plant over that they might better understand the number of operations each piece of printing goes through.

The publication of the newspaper is operated as a separate business from the job and commercial printing. Each stands on its own feet and the profits and losses are charged accordingly.

This arrangement is advantageous because we have a working arrangement one with the other that benefits our customers in many ways, and by leaving their whole account with us they save bookkeeping and considerable loss of time which occurs when one's accounts are scattered.

If Peterborough and district is prosperous, The Examiner will be prosperous. We are consistently and conscientiously doing our share, and we invite you to further assist us.

Are you on our mailing list for blotters and printed pieces we send out? If not, please telephone 1600 and we shall be glad to add your name.

We hope that you have enjoyed reading our "Business Policy Talks." If you have we would be pleased to have you tell us so, and always remember that we "give the same treatment to one and all." We thank you.

Omemee Church Society Will Serve Banquet for Masonic Lodge.

(Examiner Correspondence)

OMEMEE, Sept. 20.—The monthly meeting of the Women's Guild of Christ Church was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. R. J. Cornwall. The chief items of business were the setting of the date for the annual bazaar on December 6, and the planning of the menu for the Masonic banquet, which is being provided by the society, some time in October.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting by Mrs. R. J. Cornwall and Miss C. Cornwall, and a social time enjoyed.

Cattle Killed.

During the electric storm which visited Omemee on Monday, Sept. 10, Bruce Rehill had two head of cattle killed on the farm of Mr. A. Ford, which he is ranching.

Receives Injury.

Thomas Newman had a narrow escape from serious injury last week while crossing the road at his home. He was struck by a car which was proceeding westward at a good rate of speed. He was carried on the bumper for some distance and received slight injuries to his leg, which necessitates him to carry a cane. Had it not been for the application of good brakes on the car, his sufferings would have been much worse.

Receives Prizes.

Mr. Emery Windrim, who exhibited five head of horses at the Peterborough Exhibition, had the good fortune to receive 5 first prizes and 1 second prize. Mr. F. Bent showed four head of Jersey cattle and received 1 first, 1 second and 1 third prize. Mr. J. Bushnell received 1 first on his driver.

Deaths from Hurricane May Total Four Hundred

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., September 20 (Canadian Press). — With the deaths from last Sunday's hurricane still not definitely determined, but estimated by relief workers at between 325 and 400 persons, rescue squads toiled through the stricken Lake Okeechobee are yesterday.

Howard W. Selby, chairman of the Palm Beach County Red Cross, announced that 200 persons were known by his workers to be dead. He estimated the count will reach 400 when final figures are available.

Property losses to Palm Beach County alone, he said, will reach nearer $30,000,000 than his previous estimate of $20,000,000. Fifteen thousand persons are homeless in the county, he declared, and 8,000 persons in the Lake region are desperately in need of medical aid, food and clothing.

Sixty-two bodies had been brought here and buried up to noon yesterday, a check with officials and undertakers showed. Twenty-one of these were white persons, and have been identified. They were residents of Belle Glade, Pahokee and vicinity. The remainder of the bodies were those of negroes, many of whom have not been identified.

MUCH PROGRESS MADE BY FAIR

Campbellford Exhibition Promises To Be Bigger Than Ever.

HOME TOWN MIDWAY.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 20 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—Now that the new paved streets have been officially opened with all due ceremony, the new big event of the season in Campbellford is the annual fall fair, held on the Agricultural Grounds, under the direction of the Seymour Agricultural Society. The fair dates back further than the memory of most of the oldest citizens. In the early days, it was a very small affair, with few exhibits and fewer attractions to sightseers. That was seventy years ago and the "exhibition grounds" comprised the whole of two lots on the bank of the river, approximately in the centre of what is now locally termed the business section of Front street. The midway of the modern fair was then a matter of two or three sleight of hand artists and the stray ventriloquist. It was a big day when there was a merry-go-round, steam driven, for the merry-makers to ride upon. There are some stories afloat that horse driven merry-go-rounds have made their appearance in Campbellford in days gone by.

The present fair, as people will see it this fall, will be many times as attractive as these smaller functions of earlier days. Fast horses with their silk clad drivers will circle the track and swoop down under the wire to the cheers of the hundreds that will throng the grand stand. In the driving circle will be seen the cream of the road horses from a wide area and the most attractive turnouts that are to be procured at the present time. Women as well as men will compete in this phase of the exhibition. Fine cattle and the numerous animals that go to complete the farmers' stock will be in evidence in large numbers. The poultry house is expected to be filled again this fall as it was last. The red building, Exhibition Hall, will also have its full complement of exhibits.

The midway will be of especial interest to everyone this year since most of its attractions are the property of a local man. His shows carry a large banner advertising Campbellford as its home town into all the towns and cities when the tents are pitched. The usual line of booths and games will complete this line of attractions.

To date there has not been a great deal of actual preparation done to the grounds. Some work has been done at the north end of the track and from now on the preparation will proceed with all necessary despatch. Next week the buildings will be opened and put in readiness to receive their quota of exhibits. The cattle sheds will be whitewashed and the poultry house will be properly cleaned. Fences inside the grounds are being repaired and everything is receiving a general overhaul in preparation for the two big days which come but once a year.

Last year the attendance record soared above all previous marks. The fair generally was considered the greatest in the history of the society. The fair directors received many compliments for the high standard of their exhibition. This year has all the earmarks of being as successful as last season, and the indication is that it will be even better. It is with this end in view that the directors are working.

STORMS DAMAGE DUMMER ROADS

Fall Wheat Washed Out on Slopes—Sunday School Workers Meet.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, Sept. 20.— Last week's storms washed the gravel bare on many of the roads, especially on the hills. Where new road work is being done the roads are in a nasty condition, with deep ruts, and large stones. It will likely be three weeks yet before the roads around Warsaw are finished. Recently ploughed land suffered. John Condon had a field of fall wheat just coming up nicely on a southern slope. It is badly washed out. He had taken great pains in the preparation of the soil.

Fruit Plentiful.

Plums are very plentiful. Those who were able to go to the back country for thimble berries were well rewarded.

S. S. Workers Meet.

The postponed Dummer Sunday School Workers' meeting was held on Monday evening with a very good attendance. All Sunday schools in the township except Carmel were represented.

E. N. McDonald was in the chair. After the opening exercises the meeting separated into three groups. Those engaged in adult work under Dr. Munro's leadership; those in intermediate work, with Mrs. T. H. Crowe as leader, and those in children's work, leader, Mrs. David Miller.

Before separating, Rev. H. B. Herrington spoke of his particular work as superintendent of teacher training.

The plans are to hold two weeks of intensive study of the teacher training course, one at Bridgenorth, and one in Warsaw, with the same instructors, a local and an outside one at each. The number attending at Lakefield last year warranted this change. Warsaw will likely hold the class during the first week in October, Bridgenorth during the second. The subjects will be children's work and the Old Testament.

The groups held interesting discussions, and after re-assembling the leader of each gave a synopsis of the discussions. Dr. Munro had been called out, and Mr. Herrington reported that Bible classes did not often give much trouble. That group made some plans by which they hoped to secure a superintendent for the Ninth Line Sunday school, which has been without one since Mr. Patterson left.

The intermediate group had discussed ways and means of holding attention and attendance. One said much trouble was because of lack of interest in the home of late.

Mr. McDonald held the world is getting better and Mr. Herrington noted that the older people had taught the present fathers and mothers, and if they were so much better, how is it that the present parents do not take time and interest to teach the children? He does not think interest is any less now than then.

'MURDER FARM' MYSTERY MAY BE NEAR END

Northcott Reported Arrested in Vancouver Late Yesterday.

MOTHER MISSING

Four Boys Are Said to Have Been Tortured and Slain.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Sept. 20 (Canadian Press).—Gordon Stuart Northcott was arrested at Okanagan Landing, seven miles from Vernon, yesterday afternoon, according to word reaching Inspector Forbes Cruickshank, of the British Columbia Provincial Police. The information added that Northcott admitted his identity. His mother, Mrs. Louise Northcott, was not with him.

The hunt for young Gordon Stuart Northcott, and his mother, Mrs. Louise Northcott, of Los Angeles, Cal., was left to Canadian authorities yesterday, as officers broadened their investigation of the Northcott "murder farm case" in search of evidence that possibly more than four boys were tortured and slain in the vicinity of Los Angeles.

The search for Northcott and his mother was speeded when Riverside, California, authorities, armed with what they declared was conclusive proof of slayings on the farm, issued murder complaints.

Although the complaints were based on the finding of bones of one unidentified youth, the Riverside officers said they were confident that the number of boys made the victims of ill-treatment and slaying on the farm would exceed the four named by 15-year-old Sanford Clark, Northcott's nephew, who has accused his uncle of the crimes.

Find Boys' Shoes.

Young Clark led officers to a cabin in Mint Canyon, which he said his uncle rented and which the police believe may lead to discovery of additional evidence. The officers found in a pile of charred debris two pair of boys' shoes identified as having belonged to boys of 9 to 11 years.

Fire had left only the toes of another pair of shoes.

The first positive evidence of the "corpus delicti" in the investigation came in the identification of bones dug up on the farm as being human bones.

Los Angeles Paleontologists reported some of the bones uncovered on the farm were ankle, finger, leg and skull bones of juvenile human beings.

SPRINGVILLE GIRL GETS MANY GIFTS

Shower Tendered Miss Daisy Murray by People of Church.

SPRINGVILLE, Sept. 20. — On Monday evening, September 17, a social gathing was held in the basement of Springville United Church in honor of Miss Daisy Murray, whose marriage took place on Tuesday, September 18.

The principal feature of the evening was the presentation of a cabinet of community plate silver in the Adam pattern—a gift from the church, and a miscellaneous shower from the young people of the church and community.

A very pretty setting was formed for the presentation; behind drawn curtains, at the front of the room. A large umbrella decorated with white streamers sheltered two tables laden with miscellaneous gifts, in the centre of which was the church gift.

The curtains were drawn aside and to the strains of the Wedding March a beautiful little bride and bridegroom in the persons of Eleanor Staples and Manson Cathcart appeared and escorted Miss Murray to her gifts. An address was read by Mr. A. E. Sanderson, in which was expressed the church's appreciation of herself and her generosity to them with her gift of song.

Miss Murray replied in a suitable manner, telling of the warm spot always held in her heart for Springville—her home. She thanked the givers of the shower and invited all to come to the front and see her numerous gifts.

"For She's a Jolly Good Fellow," was sung, followed by a few words from Rev. A. H. McConnachie, telling of her personal worth and the pleasure that had been brought to many by her songs of cheer. He also expressed his cordial greetings for a very happy future to her in her new home.

Dainty refreshments were served, and the social time was brought to a close by the singing of "Auld Lang Syne."

Protests Shooting By a U.S. Officer

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (Canadian Press).—Senator Royal S. Copeland of New York, telegraphed Secretary of Labor J. J. Davis protesting the shooting of a citizen at Saranac Lake, N.Y., by an immigration officer of which he had read in press dispatches.

"It is time the authorities in Washington gave definite orders to the officials on the border that under no circumstances are they to attack the person of a citizen in this murderous fashion. I am hoping there is some mistake about it," the telegram said.

FARMERS HEAR ABOUT COMBINE

Warning Issued by Professor Hardie in Talk to Western Growers.

NOT A PANACEA

REGINA, Sask., Sept. 20 (Canadian Press).—To those farmers of Saskatchewan who are pinning their faith to the new combine harvester and thresher, a word of warning was given by Prof. E. A. Hardie, M.S.A., of the Agricultural Engineering Branch of the University of Saskatchewan, when addressing the delegates attending the twelfth annual meeting of the Dominion Mortgage and Investment Association at Regina.

Professor Hardie was discussing economies in crop harvesting and at the moment was dealing with cost of harvesting by combines. He at once discounted the idea that the combine method was a panacea for the farmers through troubles in the matter of labor and general operation costs, but left with his audience the definite conclusion that before the combine can be accepted without question many other things must be considered.

While he admitted that the combine and thresher had entered the agricultural scheme of things in such a way that they would stay, he pointed out that the farmer who desires to become successful financially with the combine system will have to work out the seeding, harvesting and marketing of his crop so that each operation will prepare for and harmonize with the other.

"To harvest your crop with the combine," he said, "in effect, you must farm for the combine. You must cultivate, drill, seed and generally work for the combine, otherwise you will be in trouble."

Professor Hardie emphasized that the farmer in Western Canada is facing the fact that farming is a business based upon science and that the successful farmer will till the soil with proper implements at the right time to produce as nearly as perfect seed as possible. "He will use the correct seed and put it in at the proper time to use the cheapest and best method for harvesting."

FITS SUMMER HOME AS TOURIST RESORT

Mrs. Hallowell Will Have Accomodation for Guests at Katapwaseepi.

TRENT RIVER, Sept. 20 (Examiner Correspondence). — "Katapwaseepi," the fine summer home owned by Mrs. Hallowell of Toronto, has been undergoing considerable repairs, James Paget having the contract.

Mrs. Hallowell and her family have been spending the summers here for the past few years, and this summer Mrs. Hallowell accommodated a number of tourists from Toronto. The improvements being made will provide three extra bedrooms besides the sleeping porch on the upper story, the windows of which give an excellent view of the River Trent. The large front verandah is being closed in and the interior sealed with British Columbia fir. Seven large windows with screens to fit, will be used. This place will be used for a dining room. Mrs. Hallowell has chosen the name Katapwaseepi, the meaning of which is "the valley of the calling river" taken from the story, "The Legend of the Calling River," by Marie Compeau.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrie of Toronto were recent guests at this resort. Mr. Thomas of Cooksville was a week-end guest and during his visit caught a 7½ pound lunge, it being the first lunge Mr. Thomas ever caught. Other guests at the same resort this week were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Harris, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Harris, of Cooksville, and Mr. S. Harris of Brower, Ontario. Mrs. Hallowell will close her cottage in a week's time and return to the city, expecting to return early next season to prepare for the accommodation of tourists.

MANY ATTEND WOOLER FAIR

Fine Displays of Farm and Domestic Produce Made by Entrants.

SCHOOL FAIR FEATURES

WOOLER, September 20. — Friday promised one of the brightest days for the Fair, and hundreds of people took advantage of the fine weather and attended. The first building contained fancy work, domestic products, and art. A very fine display of needlework was much admired. The midway was lined with lunch stands all along the way. Two special stands were those of Wooler Ladies' Aid and Mt. Zion Ladies' Aid, where business was always brisk. Many enjoyed cups of coffee and pieces of pumpkin pie or rich cake along with hot weiners. The large building which contained grain and seeds, vegetables, fruit, flowers, canned fruit, honey, domestic science display, and butter was well filled, and many visited it to view the fine goods on display. The Wooler Band furnished music in competition with loud appeals from other sources, such as side shows and the ice-cream stands. The baby show was well patronized. Dr. Rundle, of Brighton, assisted by Nurse Teal, of Wooler, was the judge. The first prize baby came from Codrington, Baby Ingram; second was Jimmie Putnam, of Wooler, and third Baby Leavitt, of Wooler.

A musical comedy company entertained during the afternoon and gave a concert in the Town Hall in the evening.

Another special feature was the School Fair exhibits in the large Government tent, with poultry judging competition for boys and a sewing competition for the girls. The school parade was excellent. The first-aid competition for setting a broken arm was much complimented on by the visitors.

HARVESTERS ARE NOT ALL PEEVED

Letter Tells of Desire to Remain in Canada With Family.

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 20 (Canadian Press).—In the face of the protests of hundreds of disgruntled miner-harvesters who have been returning to England in small parties during the last two or three weeks comes news that many others who are still out West and working happily on the farms have applied to a local steamship company for rates and full particulars and conditions as they wish to bring their families out to join them in Canada. They are more than pleased, it is stated, with the opportunities and possibilities in Canada, and more and more are making good each day.

Another miner-harvester, it was reported, has written to the company saying that he would like to repay the government, as per contract, for assisting him to come to Canada. He has decided to remain here, as he is perfectly satisfied with the conditions and has made good.

A number of men who are returning to England now are paying their own fare, officials of the concern state. They have made enough money out West and, realizing that the end of the harvesting season is close at hand, have decided to go back now without causing any expense to anyone but themselves.

A VETERAN RETIRES.

Hon. Frank Oliver, member of the Dominion Board of Railway Commissioners, automatically retired from that body yesterday, having reached the age limit of 75 years.

Hon. Mr. Oliver has been a member of the board since 1923, and his term of office has been marked by splendid service and a conscientious endeavor to safeguard the interest of the people of Canada.

His retirement brings to an end a most useful career of public service by the veteran politician, whose name has long been a household one in Canada.

As Minister of the Interior in the Cabinet of Sir Wilfred Laurier from 1905 until 1911 and in other capacities, the retiring Railway Commissioner showed ability, energy and vision, and he retires to private life with the satisfaction of knowing that he has contributed his bit toward Canadian development and earned the regard and good wishes of the Canadian people.

DIFFERENT OVER HERE.

Attorney-General Price's warning to American gunmen to keep out of Canada because "they will find that our justice is pretty swift," is timely and necessary.

Recent events in the Windsor district would seem to indicate that some of these crooks from over the border have been transferring their activities to Canadian soil, and the Attorney-General, in losing no time in advising them that the whole power of the Province will be behind the provincial authorities in dealing with such gentry, is giving the visiting gunmen a tip that they cannot afford to ignore.

If they know anything about Canada at all they should know that in this country the machinery of the law usually moves quickly and to some purpose.

Canadian juries have no love for gunmen, either home-grown or imported, and Canadian judges have shown no hesitation about ordering long sentences for such as may be convicted of implication in crimes of violence.

And in passing, our gun-toting American visitors should note that long sentences in this country are meant to be served—and usually are.

If Chicago-Detroit methods are being introduced into Ontario some well-known crooks from over the border are likely to be absent from their accustomed haunts for a long, long time.

WE COULDN'T DO IT HERE.

Suppose fifty of those British miners were to be dumped into Peterborough next month!

Does anybody think that it would be possible for local industries to absorb that many men and still take care of the local citizens who have been employed on outdoor work and will shortly be seeking employment inside during the winter months?

Wouldn't the result be an increase in the number of people that would have to be looked after by the relief authorities?

The answers to these questions are obviously "no" and "yes" respectively.

And what applies to Peterborough applies with equal force to other industrial centres.

That is why The Examiner can see no reason for complaining of the action of the Deputy Minister of Immigration in ruling that those miners who do not succeed in securing farm work for the winter will have to return home.

There is undoubtedly splendid material among the miners, but if they were to be left to find industrial employment for themselves it is to be feared that either they or the Canadians they might crowd out of work would find themselves in the bread-line before spring came.

THE OPTIMISTIC SIDE.

Prophets of disaster dwell with much sorry head-shaking on the fact that over 400,000 automobiles are owned in Ontario. They ask, not without apparent reason, if the earning capacity of three million people is sufficient to balance so great a spending program. Yet while they wonder, the depositors in the banks show an imposing total, which increases year by year. That is the trouble with statistics. Unless one has them all, a generalization is dangerous. It is easy to show that the people of Ontario have plunged into insane extravagance, and just as easy to show that there is a pronounced tendency towards the more thrifty use of money.

On the optimistic side, consider the last statement of the Penny Bank of Ontario. The total amount, in active accounts, on deposit to the credit of Public School children is $1,054,793.49; an increase in one year of over $210,000. That is a fact which has meaning for the present and good hope for the future. One hundred and fifty thousand children have accounts in the Penny Bank. Every Tuesday they bring their savings to school and hand the money to the teacher. She marks their pass-books, and sends, with the cash, carbon copies of the entries to the bank. There is no charge for the service and the depositors receive bank interest on their minimum monthly balances. It looks like small business, but the aggregate is big business. Even in these expansive times a million dollar corporation is one to be considered with respect.

The odd thing about this million dollar corporation is that no one makes any money out of it, and no one gets financial accommodation. It is a bank without call loans, or, indeed, loans of any kind. It has a president and board of directors, all of whom give their services. Its "members" who provided the original guarantee fund of $20,000 get no dividends; there is no share-capital. The bank does business in the schools under a Federal charter which specifies the nature of the investments. Funds may be used to buy Dominion Government securities; deposits may be made in the Post Office Savings Bank, and a proportion may be kept in the chartered banks as a liquid reserve to meet withdrawals. The only income of the bank is the interest on such low-yield securities and deposits, and out of this must come the interest on the depositors' minimum monthly balances. The Penny Bank is economical in its management and as safe as the Dominion of Canada.

It was founded and is maintained by a group of public-spirited educationists and financiers who believe that practical instruction in money management is a vital need of the country. They seek to encourage children to acquire the good habit of saving for future needs, knowing well that a habit developed in childhood is likely to persist through life, and that all business is dependent upon the savings of the people.

SIR JOHN AIRD ON IMMIGRATION.

Because Sir John Aird is president of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, one of the greatest of Canadian financial institutions, and because he is thus peculiarly qualified to guage the progress of the Dominion and to judge its capabilities in a great variety of directions, the views which he expresses upon any question of public concern are worthy of serious consideration. With the current issue of the Commercial Letter of the institution of which he is the head, there is being distributed a supplement under the signature of Sir John which is designed to serve as an analysis of the problem of population, as particularly applied to Canada. In it, however, he points out that Canada's need of additional population and her inability to obtain it is part of a world condition of over-population in the older and more congested countries and under-population in such "pioneering settlement belts" as Canada, Australia, Africa, South America and Siberia.

After reciting the change which has taken place in the industrial centralization of the world and the manner in which supremacy in industry is gradually shifting to the newer parts of the world, with consequent loss in employment and a growing surplus of population, Sir John proceeds to argue that, although the failure of Canada to attract a greater number of settlers has largely been due to conditions in that part of the world which is the chief source of immigrants, it is essential that Canada make the most of her opportunities. He says:

"If the opinion of the Canadian people as a whole were sought, it is certain that there would be an overwhelming majority in favor of securing at least 5,000,000 new Canadian citizens as quickly as possible. There would doubtless be difference of opinion as to the best methods to adopt to reach this objective, but there would probably be general agreement on those of major importance. Perhaps the first to be considered would be the form of organization entrusted with the task of securing new settlers and of placing them satisfactorily. This should be in the nature of a business corporation, headed by a man of exceptional ability, especially in organization, who, while working under the authority of the Government, would not have to sphere and placed in charge of the most capable duties. This does not mean that Canada's immigration policy has hitherto been bound up with politics, but that the working organization, even though it has so far done well under difficult conditions, should be detached from the governmental sphere and placed in charge of the most capable man available, whose sole purpose would be to meet Canada's need of a greater population. A precedent for this course is that adopted for the management of the Canadian National Railways, and the results speak for themselves, yet the immigration problem is of greater consequence than that which arose when this railway system was taken over by the Government.

"Possibly discussions with all other countries having more people than can be gainfully employed would impress upon them the desirability of encouraging the migration of their people. Schemes for the transference of surplus population have been in effect in Great Britain for some years and these, with the measures taken by the Canadian Government to attract new settlers, serve as good examples, though they are not on a scale that provides for any large movement of people. Preparation should be made to welcome and to establish newcomers, to follow their movements for some time with sympathetic interest so that they would not drift aimlessly into or about the country, and to assist them by expert counsel and advice in the making of their new homes. Capable men can succeed in any line of work in this country, for its productive organization is well diversified, but the least risk is in placing immigrants on farm land, and it might be necessary to make larger tracks of land available for settlement on even easier terms than now prevail. We should, of course, reserve the right to reject undesirable types, for we should not be expected to accept people who are not suited physically and mentally to the life of Canada. If, as has been stated, we make it difficult for desirable people to migrate to Canada, there should be no hesitancy or delay in altering the regulations. Nationality is by no means the best test, for, while we should endeavor to maintain a strong British strain in our race, superior types of immigrants are available in all countries, particularly those of northern and western Europe."—Brockville Recorder and Times.

BELLANCA PLANE IS FORCED DOWN

OLD ORCHARD, Maine, September 19 (Canadian Press). — The Bellanca monoplane Roma turned back and landed on the beach here at noon, twenty-one minutes after it had taken off on a projected non-stop flight to Rome. Watchers at the Cape Elizabeth Light reported that when the Roma passed there it was shooting black smoke and its motor apparently was firing unevenly.

Commander Cesare Sabelli declared when the Roma landed that he could not say what had caused the apparent failure of the motor to function perfectly until he had a conference with the other flyers.

Textile Workers Riot When Police Interfere iWth Parade.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Sept. 19 (Canadian Press).—Fifteen prisoners, twelve men and three women, all textile mill committee sympathizers, were taken by the police this morning in what was described as one of the worst riots since the strike started here. The trouble started when police attempted to disperse about two hundred marchers on their way back from picket duty at the Page mill.

The Question Box

T. S. Q.—Is there a tourist camp at Orillia?

A.—Yes. It has electric light, electric cooking and sanitary conveniences.

J. D. L. Q.—I have experience as a fireman and would like to get a job in Chilliwack or Revelstoke, B.C. Can you give me any help?

A.—Write to Fire Chief H. Farrant at Chilliwack and Fire Chief S. Needham at Revelstoke.

C. O. Q.—Where was Mederic Martin born?

A.—Montreal, January 22, 1869.

J. M. Q.—To settle a dispute, who was the author of the most popular song, sung the world over, "Bonnie Annie Laurie"?

A.—The author of Annie Laurie has never been definitely declared to be known, although many claim that Robert Burns wrote this famous song. It is thought that the Baroness of Nairne better known as Lady Nairne wrote the first and second verse and Burns the last one. At one of the local Burns celebrations Judge Huycke referred to many Scotch love songs. "It was his songs such as 'Scots Wae Hae' and many other tender love songs which rank only second to the great Scotch song 'Annie Laurie' which is sometimes credited to him, but by mistake."

GOD'S MINUTE.

Thou art a God ready to pardon, gracious and merciful . . . abundant in loving kindness.—Neh. 9:17.

Almighty God, Thy ways concerning us we do not always understand, for Thou dost lead us in paths that we know not of, and Thy ways are not as our ways, and Thy thoughts are not as our thoughts; but it is enough for us to know that Thy way is ever and always the best way. Help us to walk in it step by step, with all patience, hopefulness, and cheer, believing that Thou wilt at last lead us into a large and quiet place. Wherein we have desired to do better and to be better Thou hast not scourged us with reproach, nor chided us for our past failures, nor cast up in our faces our past misdeeds; but, rather, Thou hast welcomed us at the Cross, and there upon the cross we behold the manifestation of Thy tenderest heart love. Fill the entire horizon of our lives, blot out every other figure, destroy the light of every other attraction, and grant that as we lift up our eyes we may see no one in our Redemption but Jesus and Jesus only. Be round about us as a great defense of fire. Help us trust Thee where we cannot trace Thee. May we never forget that, always, and everywhere, God is Love. Sanctify Thine afflictive dispensations to our good and to the great glory of Thy Name. Help us to walk worthy of our calling in all things. We ask it in the name of Thy Son, Our Saviour. Amen.

There was only one load of fresh western stockers in, and these held firm.

The calf trade was quiet owing to the light run and inferior quality. Prices are unchanged for any good calves, but heavies are going at easier prices.

MONTREAL GRAIN.

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 20—(Canadian Press).—The foreign demand for all lines of grain continued quiet here yesterday and little business was transacted. There was some inquiry from spot buyers for wheat in the local market and sales of several loads of No. 3 northern now here were made at 5 ¾c per bushel over the Winnipeg October option, and a few loads of No. 4 wheat at 1-2c per bushel under, C.I.F. Montreal.

A moderate amount of business was done in cash grain in the domestic market and values were unchanged.

Owing to the renewed strength in the cash wheat market at Winnipeg a firmer feeling prevailed in the local flour situation for spring wheat grades, but there was no change in prices announced. There was no marked improvement in the volume of business. A moderate trade was done in winter wheat flour and the tone of the market was steady.

A good steady business was transacted in most lines of millfeed for domestic consumption and the undertone was firm. A fair trade was reported in standard grades of rolled oats and prices were maintained.

Owing to the continued small receipts of baled hay for the season of the year and the steady demand for supplies for domestic consumption the tone of the market remaining very firm and the prospects are without receipts increase in the near future prices may possibly reach a still higher level.

CHICAGO PRODUCE

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.— (Canadian Press)—Butter yesterday ruled barely steady with the undertone nervous and weak. In the centralized market, offerings were fairly liberal, buyers conservative and trade generally dull.

Fresh: 93 score, 47: 92, 46; 91, 45½; 90, 45; 89, 44; 88; 87, 42½.

Centralized: 90 score 45½; 89, 44; 88, 43.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Sept. 20.—(Canadian Press).—There were no new developments in the local egg situation, the undertone to the market being very firm with a good steady trade passing in fresh grades. The domestic consumptive demand for storage eggs was reported fair and prices were unchanged. A car of British Columbia fresh eggs in transit was offered and sold here at 43c for extras, and at 41c for firsts, F.O.B. Vancouver. The receipts were 1,367 cases.

A very firm feeling continued to prevail in the market for imported beans on account of the limited supplies available on spot and the fact that buyers in some cases find it difficult to fill their immediate wants Sales of small quantities of choice white hand-picked were made at $4.20 to $4.40 per bushel, ex-store and car lots were quoted at 4 per bushel to arrive, ex-track.

Owing to the continued lull in the demand for butter of late and the fact that some holders have shown a disposition to liquidate an easier feeling developed in the market and prices declined a fraction. The receipts were 130 packages.

There was also an easier undertone to the cheese market owing to the continued somewhat indifferent attitude of English importers for supplies and prices for some grades were shaded a fraction. The receipts were 4,411 boxes.

NEW YORK FLOUR

NEW YORK, Sept. 20—(Canadian Press).—Flour, hay and hops were unchanged on the local market yesterday.

MINNEAPOLIS GRAIN

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Spt. 20—(Canadian Press)—Flour unchanged. Shipments 41,788 barrels. Bran $26.50 to $27.00.

Wheat, No. 1 northern, $1.09¼ to $1.11¼; September, $1.08¼; December, $1.11¼; May $1.17¼.

Corn, No. 3 yellow, 98c to 99c.

Oats, No. 3 white, 38½c to 39½c.

Flax, No. 1, 2.12¼ to $2.16¼.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Spt. 20.—(Canadian Press). — Mammoth transfers of wheat from individual farmers to the Canadian grain growers' pool appeared to have lost all terror yesterday as a club against speculative buyers.

Regardless of announcement that for a single day the farm deliveries of Canadian wheat had reached the tremendous total of 9,236,000 bushels compared with 664,000 bushels a year ago, the wheat market scored a substantial gain, influenced by a change to unfavorable weather both in Canada and Australia.

Closing quotations on wheat were firm ⅞c to 1⅛c net higher, with corn ⅛c off to ⅛c up, oats showing ¼c to ⅝c advance, and provisions unchanged to 2?c down.

Rain reports from Winnipeg suggesting a possible repetion of sharp curtailment of the Canadian harvest movement last year did much to stimulate buying of wheat future deliveries in Chicago. Besides, Liverpool wheat quotations were tending upward, and houses with European allies appeared to be taking a hand at purchasing.

Meanwhile, arrivals of domestic wheat at Minneapolis and Duluth continued to be well under those of the corresponding time last year and news was received that anxiety was being aroused by dearth of needed moisture in Australia.

According to official advices at hand, August rains in Australia were below average, and the September rainfall is likewise deficient. Under such circumstances, commission house buying in the wheat market here became of good volume, and offerings at times were scarce, with prices moving rapidly upward. On the bulge, however, selling from northwestern sources enlarged and topmost prices failed to hold. Expert dealings in North American wheat where estimated at 400,00 bushels.

Corn and oats sympathised with the upward trend of wheat.

Comprehensive reports indicated that because of shortage of old corn the new crop is now being fed extensively in various places. Country offerings of corn to arrive were very light. In the oats market, smallness of receipts and scantiness of stock were a feature.

Liquidating sales on the part of holders of nearby deliveries of lard tended to pull provisions down.

NEW YORK PRODUCE

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—(Canadian Press).—Butter barely steady; receipts 17,189. Creamery, higher than extra 48¾c to 49¼c; extra, 92 score, 48¼; first, 88 to 91 score, 45¾ to 47¾c.

A Thought

OVERCOMING OBSTACLES.

The amount of pure exhilaration that is inherent in an obstacle and a difficulty has never been adequately estimated. There is really no such stimulus known elsewhere. It is like a ladder set up that one may climb. It is a tacit invitation to command the outlook. It is the open door of opportunity. It is the intimation to look within and discover one's latent powers and use them. It is one of the most forcible intimations of immortality.—Lilian Whitting.

THE CURE OF CONSTIPATION

During the first period of the cure of constipation, it is advisable for a patient to use one or two enemas daily for the purpose of clearing out old waste material and lessening the amount of inflammation in the intestinal tract. Each enema should contain one quart of plain warm water, and should be taken through a long rectal tube from an enema bag that is suspended about four or five feet high on the wall, with the patient in the knee-chest position.

The use of enemas does not provide the real cure, but is a helpful course of treatments which tends to lessen inflammation of the intestines, and to increase the flow of secretions. There is no danger of enemas weakening the bowels, as might occur from the continual use of strong laxatives.

It is well to begin the diet with a three or four day fruit fast, using only one kind of acid fruit at a meal, eating as much as desired three times a day. For example, use oranges one day, apples the next and grapes the third, etc. You must be careful not to eat or even taste anything else, such as bread, potatoes, soup or candy, because if you do, you will not have the results you desire.

After the three or four day fruit fast, you may begin on your regular diet, but it is advisable to avoid starches sugars and milk for a time. Eat large quantities of greens to provide the intestines with plenty of bulk. This is very important at first until the intestinal muscles have become strengthened through their work of pushing the cellulose of the greens forward. Large salads should be used at least twice a day, and two or three cooked non-starchy vegetables, such as spinach, carrots, summer squash, asparagus, celery, etc.

It is important to cultivate the habit of going to the toilet at a regular time, morning and evening. Do not allow anything to interfere with this habit, which will be one of the best that you have ever cultivated.

Constipation is much more common in civilization than in savagery, and this is partly due to the position assumed at the toilet. The savage squats and in this way the position of the internal organs is entirely changed and the rectum is opened so that the movements are more complete. This position may be imitated by drawing a chair in front of you and placing the feet on top of the chair, drawing the knees to the chest.

You should walk about five miles daily, and a short walk before retiring will enable you to sleep better. You should also take daily exercises while lying on your back in order to strengthen the abdominal muscles.

After about three weeks of the enema regime, stop the use of the enemas and the bowels will usually begin to work normally in about three days. If they do not behave entirely satisfactorily repeat these instructions, and all ordinary cases will be entirely cured.

If you still have difficulty, you should have an X-ray taken. This may disclose a kink in the large colon and perhaps adhesions. If these are present, it will be necessary to have some deep abdominal manipulations. Physicians of any school teaching manipulative therapeutics can give these treatments if they understand deep massage of the abdomen. It is not necessary to have this type of adhesions operated on by the knife.

One who is entirely free from constipation enjoys life and is brimming over with energy. The reward of feeling good and being entirely free from the diseases that result from constipation should certainly encourage one to practice these efforts for self-betterment.

Questions and Answers.

Question: O. J. asks: "Is it safe to marry a person who has had consumption in the first stages and is now cured?"

Answer: One who has had tuberculosis can usually get perfectly well, and there is no reason why she should not be married. A woman who has been tubercular must be sure she has completely recovered before she subjects herself to the ordeal of childbirth. I will be glad to send you my articles on this subject if you will send me a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope, in care of this newspaper.

Question: M. K. L. asks: "What is the difference between goat's milk and cow's milk?"

Answer: Goat's milk contains more protein and fat but not quite as much of the carbohydrate element as cow's milk. Goat's milk also has a larger proportion of mineral matter and less water. If one lives where he can have his own goat he will be insured a healthful supply of milk, as goats are naturally healthy animals and their milk is as good and often superior to cow's milk. There are very few localities where goat's milk is distributed by delivery system, so most people must be content to use good cow's milk.

Question: U.V. asks: "What am I to do for a stubborn case of St. Vitus dance of ten years' standing? I am a young man in the twenties."

Answer: You should take a fruit juice fast for at least ten days which should be followed by a carefully planned diet in order to cure yourself of any tendency to nervousness. Also, take systematic exercises using only those exercises which require slow movements and where it is necessary to use increased strength each day.

Rev. William Fraser, the "swimming parson," assistant to Dr. T. T. Shields, noted Toronto Baptist pastor, was the last Toronto swimmer to quit the men's section of the Third Wrigley Marathon. Fraser was taken out by his brother (shown standing) after doing five miles in six hours. He covered twice that distance in last year's race. In the picture are also seen the swimmer's two children. The pastor was in good condition when he retired, suffering from neither cold nor cramps, but realized it might endanger his health to continue.

No Relief from Stomach Trouble Until He Tried TANLAC.

If your stomach is sick, you are sick all over. If you can't digest your food properly, you quickly lose strength get thin and nervous, and feel just as tired in the morning as when you went to bed. For 20 years Tanlac has been restoring to permanent, buoyant health many thousands who suffered just as you do. Why shouldn't Tanlac do for you just what it did for Mr. Noah Pare, 330 Albert street, Windsor, Ont.

He writes: "There was not a day in six years that I did not suffer with my Stomach. It was sore as a boil, and gas would clog up in my chest until I had to fight for breath. I became so nervous and worried that the strain was showing on me. I could not eat, sleep or do my work properly. I tried many treatments without any benefit whatever until I started on Tanlac—and I want to tell every one who suffers as I did, to use Tanlac. After finishing the third bottle, I was well and I don't believe there is a man in Canada with a better stomach than mine. I eat and sleep well; never have pain or gas; never had a day's sickness since using Tanlac."

Tanlac brings back lost appetite, helps you digest your food, builds up weight and strength. It contains no mineral drugs; it is made of roots, barks and herbs, Nature's own medicine for the sick. Get a bottle from your druggist to-day. The cost is less than 2c a dose—and your money back if it does not help you.

Who Is Who In Music Is Interesting Book

A new edition of Who is Who in Music will appear this year under the general editorship of Dr. Sigmund Spaeth of New York, national director of community concerts, and well known as a writer and lecturer on music. Among the associate editors are W. J. Henderson, Lawrence Gilman, Leonard Liebling, George Gartlan, Glenn Dillard Gunn, and Maurice Rosenfeld, and there will be important contributions in addition by Walter Damrosch and other well known figures in the musical field.

It is planned to make the new edition as complete as possible, covering both the United States and England, and including short biographies of all the significant living artists, publishers, composers and other individuals intimately connected with modern music. The book, however, will not be merely biographical, but will contain also a number of articles of vital interest concerning present conditions in the concert field, grand opera, radio, the motion pictures and "talkies," the schools and the churches. The new Who is Who in Music is announced for publication early in the fall.

MAJOR URQUHART HERE ON SUNDAY

Famous Musical Evangelist Will Play Many Instruments at S. A. Temple.

The local Salvation Army Temple has been the scene of many campaigns of a varied nature during the course of its existence, the same having been conducted by some of the Army's most notable officers from all parts of the Dominion. Field-Major Tom Urquhart, of Toronto, revivalist and musical wizard, will arrive in Peterborough on Saturday to lead a ten days' evangelistic series of services. He is an outstanding man in his particular realm, as he plays and produces excellent harmony on twenty-five different instruments, including his famous organ chimes, sleigh bells, hand bells, fairy bells and banjo, also on several instruments which are not found on sale in music stores, such as hot water kettle, saw, broom, washboard, and the famous rolling pin. Even an ordinary tin can responds to his skilful touch. His program of music has thrilled and charmed thousands.

Field-Major Tom Urquhart was born in Londonderry, Nova Scotia, of Scottish extraction. At the early age of ten he came in touch with the Salvation Army, and at this youthful period began his musical career. He has been an officer in the Salvation Army for twenty-eight years, having served in many important commands in Canada and Newfoundland.

The Field-Major will conduct the local corps' harvest thanksgiving services this week-end, and contribute items during the sale of flowers, fruit and vegetables on Monday night. On Tuesday, at 8 p.m., he will give a program in Norwood United Church; on Wednesday night again in the local Temple; on Thursday evening in Lakefield United Church; then visiting Bethany United Church on Friday, finishing the campaign the following week-end, Saturday, Sunday and Monday, September 29 and 30 and October 1, at the local Salvation Army Temple. The closing night on Monday will feature a one-man program by the Major, entitled "One Hundred Thousand Miles in a Charlot of Music and Song." Book up the date of this program. Invite your friends. His music and song will cheer and bless you.

KIWANIS CLUB EXHIBITION IS NEXT BIG ATTRACTION

More Features Than Ever Before Engaged for Next Month.

MANY CONTESTS

Entry Lists Now Open With Competitions in Scores of Classes.

That the Produced in Canada Exhibition sponsored by Kiwanis Club will go over the top with a success never before attained is indicated by the interest being shown in every department. Entries in the music competitions are flooding Dr. J. J. Craig's office from all parts of Ontario; the Harmonica Band is already practicing and chairman H. J. McCannan has a long list of entries in the harmonica and stepdancing contests; Harry Huffman has lined up the finest games ever presented in a show of this kind; premium lists for the Cat Show are being sent out this week by Chairman W. S. Merrell, and a large entry is assured; chairman Tom Mark has hundreds of children entered in the boys' and girls' work competitions; the Better Babies Competition promises to be even greater than last year, under the chairmanship of John I. Allen; chairman F. H. Dawson has no difficulty in lining up entrants in the Horse Parade, which was so highly praised in 1927; and there will be an added attraction in the real midway, with half a dozen of the most thrilling and enjoyable rides.

Sir Joseph Flavelle will open the Exhibition this year, and other notables to be present in connection with the music festival include, Captain J. S. Atkinson, of the Bureau of Musical Advancement, Toronto; Augustus Bridle, Music and Dramatic Critic of the Toronto Daily Star; Miss Winnifred Hicks-Lyne, Toronto, and Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park, of Toronto and Peterborough.

Women's Attractions.

Special attention will be paid this year to attractions appealing to women, and an imposing array of speakers will appear on different days. There will be practical exhibitions to appeal to every woman with demonstrators from Toronto, Ottawa, and other centres. The lectures will be such as to leave a lasting impression, and few women in the district will care to miss them. A list of the speakers will appear on the Women's Page.

Then there will be the backbone of the Exhibition, the exhibits of Produced in Canada goods. These exhibits will be more varied than ever, and more interesting. In spite of the fact that this is the third year of the fair, and there has therefore been ample time to try out the worth of exhibiting from the exhibitors' standpoint, there have been more applications for space than hitherto, and the committees are hard pressed to satisfy all demands. This indicates the high standing the Exhibition has gained among manufacturers of Canadian goods. It guarantees, also, that when the manufacturer pays the price for good position in a good fair he will present something worth seeing.

The entry lists for some of the competitions close soon, and those who desire to enter any of the contests should send in their entries without delay. Information and entry forms may be obtained from the chairmen, whose names an addresses appear in an advertisement in this issue of The Examiner.

Tudge said he thought that if even fifty per cent. of the men remained in Canada, a statement in a manifesto written in English and appearing in a Finnish paper printed at Sudbury, Ontario, to the effect that boys brought out by the Salvation Army were compelled to remain in a condition of virtual slavery, Col. Tudge explained that the Army kept in touch with all the boys brought out from the Old Country under the scheme and that all complaints of unfair treatment or hardship were investigated by the Army inspectors who kept in touch with them. There had been a few cases, very few, he added, where farmers exasperated by beraches of good conduct on the part of the boys— wanton destruction or abusing stock for example—had administered corporal punishment to the boys they had employed. In such cases, although recognizing the fact that the farmers had undeniable provocation, the Army authorities stepped in and took the boys away.

Contrary to the general belief, the boys brought out to Canada by the Army were not orphans but had parents in the Old Land. If ill-treatment of starvation were the common lot of boys on the farms, the parents and the Army authorities would soon get to hear of the case. Then speedy action would follow. The Army, said Col. Tudge, maintained two lodges in Ontario, one at Woodstock and one at Smith Falls, where boys moving from one farm to another or simply coming into the town for a week end were entertained and housed free of charge.

"The Army is considered fair game for attack by many individuals," said Col. Tudge, "but it is always willing to come out in the open. We welcome investigation and are willing to have our books inspected. As a matter of fact, no official of the Department of Immigration has stepped inside our office for more than three years. The Department got a decided surprise when the Army hit back and stated its case before the public when officials of the Department made false statements concerning the work of the Army in bringing immigrants to our shores."

"It will pay you to know these inside facts about a tire"

DOMINION TIRES, as constructed today, will give unusual mileage—provided you treat them right. Here are a few of the causes of premature tire failure — and the remedy for each.

Under-inflation. Tests have proven that every 10% drop from the correct inflation causes a 20% decrease from the maximum mileage. If you do not know the correct pressures for your tires, we will tell you. Then let us check the pressures weekly.

Misalignment or wobble. A wheel that is out of alignment only half an inch literally drags the tire sideways many hundreds of feet in a few hundred miles. Let us check your wheels for toe-in, toe-out, camber and wobble — and suggest a remedy.

Neglected Tread Cuts. Moisture and dirt work into them and in time separate the tread from the fabric. A weekly tire examination by an expert, and a few minutes repair work, will add hundreds of miles to the life of your tires.

Improper adjustment of brakes. Braking pressure should at all times be equalized on all wheels. Otherwise, one tire will wear down more rapidly than the others. Have brakes checked regularly.

Cracks in the cord fabric. Caused by bumping into the curb or driving over stones or ruts, at high speed. Though not apparent on the outside, they result inevitably in blow-outs if neglected. Let an expert examine your tires inside and out once a month.

Drop in once a week at a Dominion Tire Depot and have your tires examined for injuries from these and other causes. It's not much trouble to you, but it will mean dollars off your tire bills.

The World-Famed Effervescent Saline

The Planter of the Tree

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY:

SALLY LINGFIELD, dancer at the Faun, a London night club.

JOSH AKERS, a waster, with whom Sally was once in love.

POPPY, Sally's roommate, another dancer at the Faun.

PHILIP SANDERSON, rich young man of wealth, who early one morning, when drunk, runs over Sally, badly injuring her. Sanderson loves Sally.

SOMETIMES, Sanderson's dog.

MRS. KIFF, his landlady.

Josh Akers, hearing of Sally's probably permanent injury, says he is through with her. Sanderson assumes her care, and establishes her in a cottage with Mrs. Kiff. She becomes somewhat reconciled to her lot and is kinder to Sanderson, but she meets young GARRY NAIRN, the rector's son, and they fall in love with each other. In the meantime Poppy dies.

XXXI—A BIG CHANCE

Events moved quickly.

Philip Sanderson was not a man to allow the grass to grow under his feet once he had made up his mind to a thing, and three days after Poppy Sladen was buried he took Sally back to London, to a nursing home recommended by the specialist whom he had been advised to consult.

There were painful moments before Sally left the cottage, although she tried to be brave.

Mrs. Kiff lamented long and loudly. She had no belief in what she called the new fandangle ways of doctors. She considered that it was one's duty to bow the head to the will of God. Somebody, according to her way of argument, had got to bear the crosses of life, and she declared to Sanderson that it was only tempting Providence to make Sally's cross all the bigger because of their efforts to discard it altogether. Sanderson let her talk, listening silently, his face grim.

He had been quite content to go on as they had been going during the past few months, even though he knew it was for Sally's good not to give up hope of at any rate a partial recovery; but since the girl herself had expressed her willingness to seek further advice, he had considered it his duty to help her in every possible way.

He knew that during his absence in London Garry Nairn had been a frequent visitor at the cottage, but Sally never mentioned his name until the night before she was to return to London.

She had been low-spirited and tearful, and had resisted all attempts to rouse her.

It was a glorious evening, sunny and warm, and they had stayed late in the garden.

A long, narrow bed of Darwin tulips was on the point of bursting out into flower, and Sally said suddenly, after a long silence:

"I don't suppose I shall see them, after all, shall I?"

Sanderson started from a reverie. "See what, Sally?"

"The tulips."

"You'll see them next year, even if you are away when they bloom this time," he answered gently.

Big tears ran down her cheeks.

"If they haven't killed me," she said.

Sanderson's teeth bit into the stem of his pipe, but he made no reply.

"It'd be a good thing for you if I did die," she said again after a moment; she turned her head and looked at him.

"Why don't you say something?" she demanded fretfully.

"I don't know what to say," Sanderson said heavily.

He was more unhappy than he had been for a long time. He knew without being told that he had been pushed out of the place in Sally's regard to which he had climbed with such infinite labor, and the knowledge made him more taciturn and silent than ever.

Whichever way he looked into the future, there seemed to be nothing for him. The unacknowledged presence of Nairn was always there, dodging his footsteps and clouding his sunshine. A cloud as yet no bigger than a man's hand, but which, he knew, would grow day by day until at last his sun was totally eclipsed.

He glanced at Sally with hard eyes, but she was no longer attending to him. Her head was turned towards the gate, and she was listening eagerly to steps far down the road, which were drawing nearer. Sanderson listened, too, but it was only a farmer's lad going home through the sunset, singing gruffly to himself; a farmer's lad who stared with friendly interest over the low garden gate, then went on and out of sight and hearing.

Sanderson broke the silence.

"Who did you think it was, Sally?"

"I thought it might be Mr. Nairn. I thought he might come to say goodbye to me."

Sally tried hard to speak indifferently, but there was a certain quality in her voice which was unmistakable.

Sanderson said nothing. He sat staring down at the ground, a grim smile on his lips, till Sally spoke again.

"I'm cold. Please take me in."

He obeyed without a word, giving her into Mrs. Kiff's care.

Then he whistled to Sometimes, who was well enough now to amble lamely along in lopsided fashion, and together they went down the road. Sanderson had never been to the vicarage, but he knew where it was, and he had reached the gate when he saw Garry coming across the garden towards him.

"Hallo!" Sanderson was quick to hear the sharp note in the younger man's voice. "Nothing the matter, I hope?"

"Nothing." Sanderson did not offer his hand, and Garry did not seem to expect it. "I only came along to tell you I am taking Sally back to London tomorrow—to see Brodman. I thought perhaps you might walk back with me and wish her luck."

"That's decent of you. I shall be delighted."

The veil of pretence between them was of the flimsiest, but it served. They were both glad to use it, and to draw it's transparency over the nakedness of their hearts.

"Will you come in and see the guv'nor?" Garry asked awkwardly.

"Not tonight, thanks. We ought to be getting back."

They turned out into the road together, with Sometimes ambling behind.

"The dog's better," Garry said.

"Yes."

"It would have been rotten if he'd pegged out," Garry said boyishly. "Had a dog of my own killed just before I came home. You'd laugh if I told you how it hurt."

"No, I shouldn't."

There was a more friendly note in Sanderson's voice. He could never be in Garry's company for more than a few minutes without reluctantly realizing how impossible it was to hate this boy as he wished to hate him.

They spoke very little till they reached the cottage, then Sanderson led the way into the sitting-room.

A small fire burned in the grate, but the windows were wide open to the gathering dusk. There was a bowl of bluebells on a side table, and an elaborate pink shawl of Sally's lying across her couch. Both men were painfully conscious of that shawl; it seemed somehow such a very intimate part of her.

"Help yourself to a drink," Sanderson said. "And there's baccy on the shelf, or cigarettes. I'll tell Sally you're here."

He went away, closing the door, but Garry stood where he was left, his hands hanging limply at his sides, his honest eyes full of trouble.

He was sufficiently sensitive to feel himself an interloper; he knew that Sanderson loved Sally, and hoped to marry her, but he knew also how vain that hope now was.

Sometimes, when he was away from Sally, Garry Nairn told himself that the best and most honorable thing he could do would be to go right away out of their lives. He tried to persuade himself that Sally would soon forget him: he tried to believe that her helplessness was her only attraction for him, and that he would soon weary of it, but his heart gave him the lie.

He loved her for better or worse; for good or evil; in spite of what she pathetically called her "commonness;" in spite of his own better judgment.

He knew he could not marry her unless a miracle happened and she was made strong and well once more, and yet all that was best in him longed to take her just as she was, and to love her to the end of her life.

Sanderson came back.

"Sally will be pleased to see you. Do you mind going to her bedroom?"

"Of course not."

Garry passed Sanderson with averted eyes and went to Sally's room. A lighted lamp stood beside the bed, its soft light falling on her beautiful hair, and on the slender hand which she held out to him in welcome.

"I thought you were not coming to say goodbye to me," she said.

"I wanted to come. You know that, only—you see—" He was embarrassed, and could only stammer.

"Only—what?" Sally asked.

He made a hopeless gesture.

"There's Sanderson. He's done everything—and I know—of course I know that I'm the interloper."

She drew her hand away from his.

"You didn't have to come," she said sharply.

"Sally, don't be unkind."

"It's you who are unkind. You know I am going away tomorrow, and you haven't been here for two days."

They were talking in whispers.

Nairn answered desperately:

"It's not that I haven't wanted to come—but Sanderson——"

"You put him before me?"

"No, no; you know I don't, but he's such a decent chap. He walked over and asked me to come back here with him——"

"Oh!" There was a little hurt note in her voice. "You would not have come if he hadn't done that, then!"

She lost sight of Sanderson's generosity, seeing only what she thought was Nairn's unwillingness, and when he did not answer she said brokenly:

"Oh, I hope I never get any better! I hope I die!"

"Sally!"

"Well, you wouldn't care!"

That was more than he could bear; he went down on his knees beside the bed and took her in his arms.

"I love you, Sally. You know I love you."

"And you always will, whatever happens?"

"Always."

"And afterwards, if I don't get better?"

"It will make no difference."

At that moment he really believed it would not.

HAVEN FOR OLD RAZOR BLADES.

What to do with used safety razor blades—that eternal question—may be answered in the home by adopting the method used on Pullman cars. Cut a hole through the plaster of the bathroom wall, and placel a piece of slotted metal over it. Old blades deposited through the slot fall between the partition walls, where there is room for an accumulation of a lifetime. If the opening between the partitions happens to extend into the cellar, it can be sealed at the bottom with a piece of wood or wall board.—Popular Science Monthly.

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE BLACKBERRIES.

(Copyright, 1928, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Uncle Wiggily so much liked the red raspberries which Baby Bunty helped him pick one day that the next afternoon, when the little orphan rabbit girl hopped home from school and saw Mr. Longears with a pail on his paw, she called:

"Oh, I know where you're going, Unkie Wig."

"Where?" asked the rabbit gentleman.

"You're going to pick some more red raspberries," answered Bunty. "And may I please come with you. I'll leave my coral beads home."

"You may come with me all right," said Uncle Wiggily, "but I am not going to pick red raspberries."

"Oh, dear!" said Bunty, and she looked a little sad. For she thought red raspberries were wonderful to eat. "They taste just like perfume smells," said the little orphan bunny.

Uncle Wiggily picked the blackberries.

"No, I'm not going after red berries," said Uncle Wiggily again, but by the way in which his pink nose twinkled, Baby Bunty knew there was more to come. And, surely enough, Uncle Wiggily laughed and said: "I am going after blackberries."

"Black berries or red, it makes no difference to me," said Baby Bunty, "as long as I may go adventuring with you, Unkie Wig."

"Come along, then," invited the rabbit gentleman, "and be sure your rubbers are on good and tight for I don't want to stop every now and then to pick them up if they come off."

"My rubbers won't come off, for I haven't got any on, 'cause it isn't raining." And Baby Bunty gave a laugh. "But I got my shoes on and my shoes have black buttons on," she added.

"Well, be careful not to lose your shoes or buttons," cautioned Uncle Wiggily.

Baby Bunty said she would be careful and then she and Uncle Wiggily hopped along until, pretty soon, they reached a field where some late blackberries grew on bushes.

"Oh, what fine, large, shining blackberries!" cried Baby Bunty and all at once she picked one and popped it into her mouth.

"You mustn't do that!" warned Mr. Longears.

"Why not, Unkie Wig?" asked Bunty.

"Because we must pick this pail full of berries before we eat any," said the rabbit gentleman.

"Oh, dear!" sighed the little orphan bunny. "But what shall I do about the berry I just ate. I'm afraid, Unkie Wig, that I swallowed it."

"Well, then, it's too late to do anything about that berry," chuckled Uncle Wiggily. "But don't eat any more until we have picked our pail full. Then we can sit down and eat a few with some sugar that Nurse Jane gave me. I have it here in my pocket."

"That will be a regular berry picnic!" laughed Bunty and she and Uncle Wiggily picked the blackberries so fast that soon the pail was filled and they started back home. But they had not gone far and Uncle Wiggily was looking for a little dingly or bosky dell, where they might sit down and have the berry picnic when, all of a sudden, Bunty cried:

"Oh, there goes one!"

"One what?" asked Uncle Wiggily. "Do you mean one Bad Chap?"

"And there goes another!" exclaimed Bunty, jumping up and down.

"Do you mean another Bad Chap? Is it the Fox or Wolf?" asked Uncle Wiggily, as he looked back for Baby Bunty was behind him on the path through the woods. "What is it, Bunty?"

"There goes another!" was all the little orphan bunny answered and then Uncle Wiggily saw her limping along. He set down the pail of blackberries he was carrying and asked:

"Bunty, whatever has happened?"

"A lot of buttons popped off my shoes," said the little rabbit girl. "And now that the buttons popped off my shoes are coming off and I can't wear them 'cause they keep slipping and—oh, dear!"

"My goodness!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily. "Lost your shoe buttons, eh? What are we going to do? We must sit down and think about this."

It was well they sat down when they did, for with the buttons off her shoes and with her shoes slipping, Bunty could go no farther. They were close to a bosky dell when this happened. Uncle Wiggily sat on a log near Bunty with the pail of blackberries between them to think of a way out of the little orphan bunny's trouble.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

Friday, September 21, 1928.

(Copyright, McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Early this morning the planetary government is comparatively beneficent, but astrologers read that adverse aspects gain power later in the day.

Women are subject to a sway making for much activity. Under this direction of the stars they should gain through courageous initiative.

It is a time for women writers and actresses to profit through well laid autumn plans.

There is a forbidding sign for men who carry heavy responsibilities. They should combat that tired feeling which may be felt even after vacation time.

Under this direction of the stars both men and women may be less confident than usual. It is a time to brace up mentally.

Dissensions and bickerings within organizations again are strongly indicated. Lack of harmony may be serious for many ambitious associations.

Both men and women are likely to be exceedingly self-conscious and individualistic while this rule continues.

Autumn events are to illustrate to many persons that pride goeth before a fall. Domestic peace may be easily shattered.

For a long time the seers have prophesied that at this period many surprising events will take place. The unexpected is likely to happen.

Deaths among young persons who apparently have a long life hazard may be numerous. Persons of all ages should avoid fatigue and physical strain of every sort.

Craving for new experiences and novel experiences will bring many heavy debts to the young, it is foretold. They will pay with health as well as with money.

Persons whose birthdate it is should avoid the temptation to gamble or to speculate. Risks of every sort may be peculiarly perilous and even marriage may be attended by strange disappointments.

Children born on this day probably will be exceedingly gifted and talented along unusual lines. These subjects of Virgo are on the cusp and may reveal strong Libra traits. They may be too fond of taking risks for their own peace of mind or success.

Several American collar companies have attempted to enter the British market, but only one has attained any success.

The vast majority continues to prefer finer teas. A slight reduction in the price of poorer teas does not interest them.

thought perhaps a greater use might be made of story telling, and that, as the little ones are great imitators, and no two are alike, they must be studied as well as the lessons. They need love and sympathy. The group was told of Mr. McDonald's class of ten young boys, no one of whom but is almost always present, and any one looking through the folds of his curtains sees a little group just drinking in every word.

Finances Discussed.

Mr. Somers asked about the financial end of the Associations work. There seemed to be some misunderstanding about it. Mrs. William Forsythe replied with a rapid resume of the O.R.E.C. work, for which $20,000 in all is needed annually; amounts are allocated to each township, Dummer's share being about $30. It is expected that the rally day collection will go towards this fund for extension of Sunday school work, and any extra will be voted by the Sunday school.

BUTTER AND EGGS

TORONTO, Sept. 20. — Only a small trade was done in butter again yesterday in local produce circles, and the undertone to the market was still steady. There was nothing in the day's news to affect the spot market. Recepits from the country this week have been light but are being well cleared in a fairly good day to day demand for fresh stocks for immediate requirements. Sales at between 34c to 40c per lb., for No. 1 pasteurized creamery solids were the general rule in a quiet mid-week movement. Second grade butter is still a little hard to move.

The demand from spot buyers for cheese was limited and prices were being well maintained at a quotation rate of 23½c per lb., delivered, for No. 1 large, colored, paraffined, Government graded. Extreme dullness marks the export trade in cheese at seaboard, with quotations for westerns ruling around 23½c to 23¾c Easterns at 23c.

There has been a steady decline in egg receipts here during the last few days and prices have worked higher as a result. From present indications there is a general feeling that fresh egg receipts will fall off sharply from now on and prices, especially on extra grades, are due for early upward revision. The market yesterday was quiet and unchanged, with dealers quoting shippers for ungraded eggs, delivered cases returned, extras, 40-42 cents; firsts, 38-39 cents and seconds 29-30 cents.

"Safe and Suddy"

Mrs. Hunt, R. R. 4, Peterborough.

"When I saw how many women were praising Rinso I thought I'd try it, too. I'm glad I did! Why, it's my best friend! Floors, linoleum, tiles—everything is spick and span in no time! And as for the wash, Rinso is so safe, and so sudsy in our water that the clothes become snowy and spotless without the least bit of hard rubbing! Even boiling isn't really necessary. Another thing: my hands look ever so much better now for not being in the hot suds so long."

Mrs. Hunt,
R.R. 4, Peterborough.

Try this way and get a whiter wash... without boiling or hard rubbing

THERE is now an easier, quicker way of doing the washing—thanks to Rinso.

This new way is as different from grandmother's way as your own styles are different from hers.

And millions of women have proved that this new way is far better.

For them the old days of hard rubbing and boiling are over. Yet nobody has whiter, brighter clothes than they.

Rinso will soak clothes clean. It is a granulated soap which makes rich, quick-cleansing suds, even in hard water.

Simply let clothes soak in the Rinso suds, then, with no boiling even the most soiled parts become spotless with little or no rubbing.

Rinso will save you hours of hard work each wash day. Use it in hard or soft water, wash-tub or machine. Your nearest grocer has Rinso.

ROSENEATH SERVICES

Toronto Organizer Tells of Young People's Work in Canada.

ROSENEATH, Sept. 20 (Examiner Correspondence).—There were two services in the United Church here on Sunday, with Rev. R. M. Brown in charge, with Rev. Mr. Boddy of Toronto as special speaker at both services. Rev. Mr. Boddy spoke on the young people's work throughout the Dominion. In the morning, he took for his subject, "The necessity of living," and in the evening, "Adventurous living." His lesson was practical, keeping his attentive congregation interested and leaving a message that life is not made up of things. "Our lives are ruled and governed by our faith in Jesus Christ that through Him we receive health and happiness. A true Christian is always cheerful, willing to overlook any faults and make peace. Doing our very best is the safest and surest way to gain joy and life everlasting."

Rev. Mr. Brown read the lesson in the evening. Special music was given by the choir and was well rendered under direction of Mrs. Lily Turner.

Rev. Mr. Brown is very busy preparing to re-organize the Young People's meetings, Trail Rangers and other church circles for fall and winter.

LOCAL COUNCIL OF WOMEN IS CLEARING HOUSE FOR SOCIETIES

Many Activities Proposed By Member Organizations Are Carried Out.

HAS DONE GOOD WORK.

Home and School Associations Here Are Organized Under Council's Auspices.

In view of the fact that the National Council of Women of Canada is now making a nation-wide drive for a $200,000 Foundation fund, the interest on which will be used to defray the annual expenses of the organization, it is interesting to note the record of the Local Council of Women. This organization is really a sort of Clearing-House for all women's societies in the city, and to its meetings are brought the problems affecting over two thousand women who make up the grand total of membership in the affiliated societies. Its activities include everything of interest to wome nof the city and district and its work on this account has a very vital influence on the community at large.

The Peterborough Local Council of Women was organized in the spring of 1913, with Mrs. J. C. Davidson as president. Among the initial activities of the society was an appeal to the City Council for the cleaning up of the Market, for the forbidding of spitting in public places and for the ringing of a Curfew Bell to warn the children from the streets at nine o'clock. All of these requests were readily acceded to.

During the same year, favorable consideration was given by the Board of Education to two requests made by the Local Council, one, proferred through Dr. Jessie Birnie, convenor of the Public Health committee, having to do with the question of Medical Inspection in the schools, and the second, requested by Mrs. James Rollins, giving permission to organize Mothers' Clubs, later called Parents' Circles, in nearly every school of the city. In 1919, twenty of these Clubs were re-organized through the efforts of Mrs. S. T. Medd and Mrs. W. R. Morris, under the present title of Home and School Associations. The expenses of these Clubs during their initial years were borne by the Local Council of Women.

In October of 1914 a "Better Baby" contest was arranged by Dr. Birnie's committee, this being the forerunner of the present very successful Well Babies' Clinic.

During these years also, other matters fostered and brought to a successful conclusion by the Local Council included the appointment of a Police Matron to deal with cases involving delinquent women and girls and the establishment of supervised playgrounds at several of the schools. For this latter project, members of the Local Council inaugurated the custom of selling carnations on "Mother's Day."

The bathing beaches which give so much pleasure to old and young alike, during the hot summer months, are the result of years of energetic effort on the part of members of the Playgrounds Association.

The first collection in this city of rags and waste paper was made by the Local Council of Women in the fall of 1916 and the funds realized from the sale were utilized in playgrounds' work.

In 1917 the need of a School Nurse was brought to the attention of the Board of Education by the Local Council, and an appointment was soon made.

In 1920 the thriving Well Babies' Clinic was opened, after much canvassing by members of the Local Council and was placed under the supervision of the president, Mrs. R. Harstone, with Dr. Jessie Birnie as medical supervisor. This Clinic is maintained by a grant from the City Council, supplemented by generous donations from societies affiliated with the Local Council, as well as donations from private individuals.

In 1917, a petition was circulated by the Local Council and later forwarded to the Provincial Government, asking that the franchise be extended to women.

During the terrible War years, there was no project undertaken in which the Local Council did not bear well its part, either in initiating plans of its own, or seconding those of others.

Peterborough Local Council was the first to send an appeal to the National Executive, asking that the Federal Government be immediately approached in an effort to have a Food Controller appointed.

In 1918, in response to the call of the National Executive, a service of intercessory prayer for the Allied Armies was arranged for and held on March 30th.

Another service to the community was the opening of the Public Library during Sunday afternoons, providing a quiet hour of reading in pleasant surroundings, for many of the citizens.

In order that the members of the Council may be enabled to do everything possible towards the encouragement and maintenance of world peace, a committee is now being formed by Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner, to study the aims, objects and work of the League of Nations.

The motto of the Local Council of Women, following out the motto of the National Council of Women of Canada, is to aid the right and to resist the wrong, not only in its own community, but throughout the whole of Canada and the world.

POLITICS SPURS INVENTORS.

Even the U. S. Patent Office has played a part in the Presidential campaign. It has been swamped by applications of inventors and manufacturers of advertising specialties to boost one candidate or another, reports Popular Science Monthly. New designs for buttons, banners and auto windshield stickers, even for cap bands, are among the novelties.

KNIGHTS HEAR U. S. LECTURER

Peter Collins, of Boston, Gives Informal Address to Local Meeting.

ELECTIONS OPEN

Peter Collins of Boston gave an informal address to the Knights of Columbus at their meeting on Tuesday night. For twenty-five years he has been engaged by the Knights of Columbus as a lecturer in the United States and Canada, his subjects dealing with such general questions as socialism and divorce. Prior to taking up this special work he was international secretary of the Electrician's Association, and was prominently identified with the Labor movement in the United States. In that position he had been impressed by a certain socialistic and materialistic philosophy which had arisen in some sections of organized Labor and as a result of which some Catholic members had become lost to their faith. Mr. Collins undertook an intensive study of socialism, communism and their kindred ideas, and gradually prepared himself for the work to wihch he has dedicated his life. During the war he was appointed by the United States' government as an expert to assist in speeding up the production of munitions. One of his memorable meetings in the performance of that duty was with the quiet gentleman, Calvin Coolidge whose term as President of the United States is nearing a close. Mr. Collins referred briefly but in high terms to President Coolidge, particularly mentioning those strong personal qualities that have been revealed to the world during his two terms in the White House.

Mr. Collins' address was chiefly a reminiscence of his platform experience. One of his statements was that he had had innumerable personal proofs of the efficacy of prayer. He related one instance of having lost his voice in Detroit on a Saturday and being faced with the necessity of cancelling a ten weeks' tour. In addition to his own prayer he wrote to his two little daughters asking them to pray for him. They made their own interpretation of his letter, and showed it to a Sister in their parochial school, and all the pupils joined with them on the following Monday in praying for his recovery of his voice. That day he went to Lansing, arriving in the afternoon too late to announce the cancellation of his lecture. In the evening the chairman of the meeting explained his condition to the audience, and called him forward merely to introduce him. When Mr. Collins attempted to speak he suddenly discovered that his voice was as strong as ever, and after a moment proceeded with his lecture and his tour. He also recommended as a layman to his Peterborough audience frequent reception of the Sacrament, and urged the Knights of Columbus to be at all times practical Catholics.

Nomination of officers for the new term took place on Tuesday night, and the elections will be on the first Tuesday in October.

THE MIRROR OF THE MODE

By Mary Marshall.

This velvet evening cape is trimmed with large fox skins.

Furriers, like jewelers and shoemakers, once felt that they might follow fashion at a safer distance than dressmakers and milliners. They need have nothing to do with mere fads and caprices.

And furriers had great respect for the tradition of their trade. Certain furs could be worked in certain ways. Certain furs might be combined with certain other furs, but not with furs of another sort. There were things that one might do with squirrel but not with ermine or sable. Certain furs might not and even those that might be dyed were dyed in certain tones, not in others. It was a matter of sacred convention.

But those days are gone and now the furrier has to be as brisk in following in the steps of fashion as the milliner or the dressmaker and may even blaze the trail himself if he likes. Of course, furs really are not as easy to handle as velvets or broadcloth, satin or brocade, but the furrier must manage somehow to use his materials with the free touch of a dressmaker.

This season, I understand, there are many combinations of two tones of the same sort of fur, in trimming, scarfs or fur wraps. A scarf made from pure white fox and black fox is decidedly good looking.

Where deft manipulation is required then the thinnest of furs are needed—and various sorts of krimmer, Persian lamb and galyak have come into the favor for this purpose. But for collars and borders the longest haired of pelts are favored. In the new street ensembles and coats, fabrics are often trimmed with furs of a lighter tone. For the new dull dark blues, gray krimmer, for brown, beige caracul, Paquin has used black broadcloth with gray krimmer with decided effectiveness. Vionnet goes him one better by using white caracul on black or blue costumes.

THE WHATNOT

A Place for Little Bits of Everything of Local Interest

By MARION

ONE of the most encouraging signs I have seen in a long time—encouraging for women, that is—is the splendid provision for interesting our sex at the Kiwanis Club Fair to be held next month. I had no brief for the Fair, but I am delighted to note the big array of women speakers and women's exhibits the Club has planned.

• • • • • • •

There is to be, I am told, a women's section where there will be special demonstrations and lectures. The addresses, too, are not on those abstract topics so often referred to as "Women's Affairs". (I think they sometimes call the subjects by that title because the men don't want to hear them).

• • • • • • •

The speakers have, in my opinion, chosen wisely, and their reputations are such as to assure us that they will live up to the titles of their addresses. I have not, of course, the complete list, but I will give it to you well before the week of the Fair, so that you can pick your evenings.

• • • • • • •

I am told, however, of the coming of Miss White, who, as "Bride Broder" of the Mail and Empire, is a contemporary of mine. She is listed to speak on "Woman, the Buyer", and one can fancy that she will have practical help for all of us.

• • • • • • •

Then there is Mrs. T. L. Crossely, president of the North Toronto Collegiate Home and School Association, who has chosen for her topic, "The Business of Being a Club Woman." There is probably not one of us but belongs to some organization of women, either in Home and School Associations, Council of Women, Art Association, Music Club, or some sphere of activity. This lecture will, therefore, be right in line with our interests.

• • • • • • •

Miss Chapman, of the Ontario Farmer, will speak on "Constructive Work for Women's Clubs", and "The Master Home Maker", both subjects of intense interest to all women. Miss Chapman has an enviable reputation as a lecturer, and is extremely easy to listen to.

• • • • • • •

From Campbellford comes Mrs. Macoun, who needs no introduction to Peterborough district audiences, with an address on "A Woman's Responsibilities of To-day."

• • • • • • •

Other speakers I have heard of, whose subjects have not been ascertained, will be: Miss McMahon, Toronto; Miss Bertha Tamblyn and Mrs. Groves, Toronto; Mrs. Muldrew, of the Soldiers' Settlement Board, Ottawa; Mrs. W. R. Morris and Mrs. Forbes Allan of Peterborough. Their subjects will range, Dr. Craig tells me, from styles to child welfare, and from education to home decoration.

• • • • • • •

Someone who thought he knew a great deal about newspapers sagely remarked that the average women's page looks as if it were prepared for a lot of morons. He was good enough to say that The Examiner is getting out of that class. But it just strikes me that a great many of the special "women's sections" of the shows are like that, and it is a distinct relief to be able to tell about what appears to be planned as a real, honest-to-goodness section of the Kiwanis Fair set aside to interest women.

• • • • • • •

So many requests have come in for the diagram patterns of the camiknickers and pointed slip that I am ordering more copies to be printed. Those whose requests have come in, and to whom I sent apologies, will receive their copies within a few days, as will others whose requests have come in since.

• • • • • • •

This week, I am offering diagram pattern and instructions for making the new short cape, which is so smart for autumn wear. It can be developed in the material of which the dress is made, or in silk and wool, and is very simply made. The instructions are free on request.

• • • • • • •

You will notice that I have started publication of the recipes which won prizes for their users at Peterborough Exhibition. These are worth trying, when you consider that the resulting cooking must be nearly perfect to score the points necessary to win.

• • • • • • •

Saturday will see the last of the letters on "Why Do Men Eat Downtown" published, and the prize winner will be announced then. Do you know that not a single (or married; I knew someone would catch me up on that!) man has written his opinion. Scared cats!

Why Do Men Eat Downtown?

This is one of a series of letters submitted in a competition. Others will be published daily, and the winner will be announced on Saturday. Marion will be glad to learn the men's opinions.

You were asking, dear Marion, why men prefer to eat in restaurants rather than at home. You will notice that when they go to these restaurants that they very seldom eat alone but in company of two or three men and they are enjoying themselves by relating some comic story or joke. They like a change from the grind of the office work. Women as a rule have no sense of humor and too ready to relate their troubles of the day which adds to the cares instead of lightening them. You see poor Jiggs prefers Dinty's company to Maggie's because he and Dinty can laugh and joke and Maggie takes life too seriously.

That is why, dear Marion, we all love to read your page because you are so kind and have a fine sense of humor as well. Why are so many women full of care and not able to see the humorous side of things. Is it because their burdens are too many or is it just a habit. Life is so short and difficult for most people that we should serve humor and laughter as regularly as an elaborate dinner.

J.S.

Dear Marion:

While reading the "Whatnot" I was greatly interested in "Why men like to eat uptown instead of going home." Although I am not married I have often noticed men who had very nice homes eating in restaurants.

But, did you ever notice that when young men are married first, they make a special point to go home for meals. Why? Well then they go home they find a house spotlessly clean, a very appetizing meal ready and an equally dainty wife in a crisp clean dress ready to cater to her husband's every desire.

But as time goes on, the young wife becomes careless, and no longer is the house in its spotless order, and she is no longer attired in a clean dress, more often it is soiled, she no longer is particular whether she is fixed up or not, and the meals are not always ready, and there is a dozen and one things needed, the children are ill or need clothes, and the tired wife, who is over-worked, grumbles and finds fault all the whole luncheon hour. Well the husband becomes so completely disgusted with home life that he prefers a restaurant luncheon, in an unsavory tea room, where he has no business matters to annoy him, and he can eat in peace. If the married ladies of to-day would strive to make their husbands' lunch hours more of a pleasure hour, than to continually nag about one thing and another that really doesn't matter. Men have enough to worry over their business, without their wives piling more household worries on them.

My advice is for women to make their husbands feel that it is a pleasure instead of a worry to come home.

Sincerely,

TOPSY.

Man Is a Little Boy.

Why do men patronize the restaurants etc., for the evening meal? Because in each man there still remains something of the spirit of the little boy, and he really enjoys doing the thing he is not expected to do. There seems to be a zest to the meal simply because it is the unusual, or mayhap, the forbidden thing to do.

NELLIE BLY.

"Dear Marion:

I think your page is wonderful. Every night I read it and seeing how greatly you help other people, I have decided to come to you for help. There are many, many questions I should like to ask but won't bore you by asking too many at once.

First, could you tell me what material is nice to use in making a coat for a tiny baby. He is two months old and of course, the most wonderful baby. I enjoy making things for him but don't know just how or what to use in making it.

Second, there are some questions on etiquette I should like to know. In entertaining a large number of ladies is it preferable to serve a lap supper or have them seated at one table? In serving a lap supper are serviettes passed first on a tray and when is the tea passed? Also, if I am not asking too much for the first time, what is nice to serve?

I live in the country where we do not entertain as much as in the city and one gets rusty about such things. Thanking you for the trouble of reading this even if you don't answer it, I remain

COUNTRYWOMAN."

I have put your first question up to the neighbors, "Countrywoman", and hope some of them may have valuable ideas for you about a coat for your charming baby.

With regard to your questions on etiquette, you must recognize that there is a big room for variety according to individual inclination. In answering your questions I am taking for granted this is an informal tea, and that you have not been playing cards. After a card game it is so easy to serve on the tables, covered with dainty cloths.

Elaborate refreshments are not usually served; as a rule, bouillon, tea, chocolate, little sandwiches of the daintiest sort, cakes large and small, and bonbons are offered. A salad may also be served. The table may be arranged in buffet style, and friends of the hostess may be asked to pour tea. They may be seated at the table in the dining room, and a visitor may draw up a chair and take her tea at the table, if she wishes to talk with one of the ladies "pouring", or she may prefer to sit elsewhere in the room with a friend.

Another way is for the hostess to have the tea service on a small table in her drawing-room and pour out the beverage herself. A "tea-wagon" is never used. A small tea-table may be placed for the afternoon in a corner of the drawing-room, with teacups and other things in readiness, but in most cases a folding tea-table is brought in and placed before any chair or sofa where the hostess may be seated. A white linen cloth is thrown over it, and then the tray is carried in and placed on the table with all the necessary things for tea. Teaspoons are on the saucers, not in the holder. Cut sugar is used. Guests sit near the tea-table, or take their tea and carry it to another part of the room if they are talking with friends. Little tea plates are in a pile on the table, each plate with its tiny napkin folded on it, and each plate is taken up with its napkin.

I hope, "Countrywoman", that this answers your questions. If you will write telling just what the occasion is, how many guests you expect, at what time of day the affair will be, and give me your name an address I shall be glad to write you more fully.

"Cherry" writes asking many questions about conducting a farm house wedding, and to answer her I have gathered several typewritten pages of information. I shall be glad to send this to anyone inteersted.

FIRST BLOOD TO PETERBOROUGH TEAM

RAYS DEFEAT NIAGARA FALLS IN FIRST GAME OF FINAL SERIES WIN OUT AFTER EXTRA FRAME

Fine Pitching by Maudsley and Bunched Hits in Two Frames Tell the Tale.

COUNT IS 3 TO 2

Oscar Nicholls' Long Hit in the Tenth Sends the Winning Run Over.

With "Sailor" Maudsley pitching steady and effective ball and the tail end of the Raybestos batting order supplying most of their punch Peterborough's last remaining representatives in O.B.A.A. ball climbed a notch nearer the intermediate championship by beating Niagara Falls at James Stevenson Park yesterday.

The score was 3 to 2 and victory did not perch upon the Raybestos banners until an extra frame had been played.

Then just as the crowd was beginning to believe that darkness might find the teams deadlocked, the Nicholls' duo, No. 8 and No. 9 in the batting order, decided that it was better not to put anything off for tomorrow that could be done to-day. Accordingly Harold opened the ninth with a clean single through short and a few seconds after was sprinting for the plate when Oscar poled a long one to deep right field. The ball was relayed in snappily and the play at home was decidedly close but Umpire Colling said "safe"—and the game was over.

There was considerable conversation on the part of the Niagara Falls players about the decision but as usual in such cases the argument means nothing.

It was a real ball game between two well matched teams, both of which fielded snappily behind good pitching.

Maudsley was almost invincible for Raybestos in the pinches, holding the team from the Big Roar to five hits and confidently working out of a couple of jams in which he found himself. He showed his stuff in the ninth when, after Stewart, first up for the Falls, advanced to third on a walk, a wild pitch and an infield out. With the million dollar counter on third Maudsley struck out R. Smith and Crossman to save the day.

Train, a right-hander who hails originally from Lindsay, worked nicely for the Falls. In the early innings he mixed a fast ball with a nice hook and half way home switched to a "sinker" ball, a slow drop that was puzzling to most of the Raybestos batters. Bunched hits in two frames, with Oscar Nicholls figuring prominently in both rallies turned the scales against the Falls' heaver.

Although they made more errors than their opponents Raybestos fielded nicely behind Maudsley rattling off two fast double plays that helped a lot. The visiting infielders also performed well on the defence and got by with but one misplay.

The Rays took an early lead by scoring twice in the second but the Falls crew came back with a pair in the sixth and then the rivals battled until the tenth before the Nicholls' assault added the game to the long list of Raybestos' victories.

The good fielding of Hillier and Scully stood out for Raybestos while Maudsley and H. Nicholls and O. Nicholls were the leading hitters, each getting a brace of safe blows. Dickson the Falls' left fielder drove in the visitors two runs with a long double, the only extra base hit made by the Cataract crowd.

The second game will be played at Niagara Falls on Saturday and should be a great battle.

The Game.

Steel, the first man up for the visitors, struck out after "The Sailor" had given him three balls. Dickson struckout and Whitney was out on a close decision at first, when H. Nicholls fielded a fast one.

Hillier hit at the first ball and lined it to R. Smith. Rogers went out on three strikes. Corrin was walked and Moore was out, R. Smith to Crossman.

Stewart in the second hit out to Hillier. G. Smith got the first hit of the game down the third base line. R. Smith hit into a double play, Hillier to Scully to Barry.

Scully was out when he poled one to Whitney. Maudsley singled into right and was safe on third when Barry singled to the same place. Barry stole second. O. Nicholls singled into deep right scoring both Maudsley and Barry, but was caught making second.

In the third Crossman took the count of three. Kaminsky singled and stole second but was caught off the bag by Hillier. Train was out, Scully to Barry.

Hillier hit out to R. Smith, Rogers lined one to third base and Corrin rolled to Train.

Steel was out, Scully to Barry, in the fourth. Dickson walked. Whitney struckout and Stewart hit to H. Nicholls.

Moore for the Rays hit out to R. Smith. Scully was retired when Kaminsky caught his foul. Maudsley singled to right for his second hit of the game and Barry lifted one to first.

First Error.

In the fifth G. Smith rolled out to Maudsley. R. Smith lifted one to Scully. Crossman was safe on first when Hillier threw high to Barry and made second, but a moment later Hillier had him caught off the bag at second.

H. Nicholls rolled out to Train. O. Nicholls struckout and Hillier was out, Train to Crossman.

Kaminsky, the first man up in the sixth, walked. Train lifted one to Corrin. Steel singled on a high fly into short right and Kaminsky was safe on third when Corrin's throw bounded away from Nicholls. Dickson doubled to score Kaminsky and Steel. Whitney lifted one to Barry and Stewart lined out to Hillier.

Rogers, first up for the Rays, singled into left. Corrin struckout. Moore went out the same way after Train had given him three balls, and Scully lifted one to Crossman to retire the side.

G. Smith for the Falls in the seventh, lined out to Scully. R. Smith singled. Crossman was safe on first and Smith on second when Scully dropped Hillier's throw that should have been a double play. Kaminsky was out on an infield fly and H. Nicholls failed to Tag Smith who made third. Train lifted a high one to Scully behind second base.

Maudsley lifted one to Burns who had taken the place of G Smith in right field, making it the first outfield putout for the visitors. Barrie lined out to Train. H. Nicholls singled. O. Nicholls grounded to short.

Steel struckout for the first in the eighth. Dickson lifted one to Corrin, who made a nice catch. Whitney hit to Hillier.

Hillier walked. Roegrs hit to Train. Corrin was safe on first but Hillier was caught making second on an infield play. Moore was out, Train to Crossman.

Stewart for the Falls was walked in the ninth and was safe on second when Maudsley made a wild pitch, going to third on an infield out. R. Smith and Crossman both struckout.

Scully flied to Dickson, Maudsley struckout, and Barrie lifted one to first.

Going into the extra frame Kaminsky grounded to second. Hillier nabbed Train's drive and Rogers caught Steel's foul.

H. Nicholls the first up for the Raybestos singled and O. Nicholls followed him doubling into deep right. H. Nicholls stretched to the plate and was safe on a close decision by Umpire Colling.

FIRST CALL FOR RUGBY — By Jimmie Thompson

Farewell tennis, farewell swimming and all the other good old summertime sports. Rugby is now knocking at the door, and in another week or two the gridiron season will be in full swing. It is pretty early yet to size up the prospects of various eastern teams which are likely to be in the running for the Dominion championship, but a number of the stars of last year are definitely back in the game. Conspicuous among them is "Peewee" Chantler, the flashy half-back, formerly from Queen's University, whose running and kicking did much to hoist the tri-color into the eminence it has enjoyed in recent years. "Peewee" was backfield mate to the great Batstone. Last year, however, he transferred his affections to Argos of Toronto, and this year he is scheduled to fill the same position on the double-blue half line. Two other Argonauts who are busy toughening themselves for the fray are Doc. Frank Knight and Dr. John Ruff. Of course, McGill, Hamilton Tigers, Toronto Varsity, and Queen's are all sizzling with the "will to victory." All the same, keep your lamps on the Oarsmen.

RED WINGS WIN FROM TORONTO

Rochester Triumphs When Gilbert Hits 21st Home Run.

TEN INNINGS

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Sept. 20.—(Canadian Press.)— Rochester continued in the pennant quest while practically spoiling all hopes of a Toronto victory in the International League flag chase here yesterday, winning over the Leafs, 3 to 2, in ten innings.

Charlie Gelbert hit his 21st home run in the last half of the tenth inning to break a 2 to 2 tie and bring a triumph to the Wings.

The contest was the last regular league game that will be played in the old baseball park, opened here in 1908, and Gelbert's hit furnished 6,000 fans with a chance for an outburst of enthusiasm seldom seen at the park. The ball rolled to deep right centre field and as Gelbert crossed the plate he was hoisted on the shoulders of the faithful while hundreds of other fans tried to reach him to shake his hand.

Rochester's victory keeps the Red Wing club on the heels of Buffalo, but half a game back, as the men of Southwork open a six game final series of the season at Montreal today. Toronto is one and one half games in back of Rochester, two behind Buffalo and has but three games yet to play, all with Buffalo at Buffalo.

BUFFALO PUTS MONTREAL OUT

Blow-Up in Eighth and Ninth Smothers Canadian Team.

MAY BE SECOND

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 20.—(Canadian Press.)—Montreal are now definitely out of the International League race. By losing to the Buffalo Bisons here yesterday, 7-2, they dropped to within four and a half games of the League leading Bisons and even if they swept the six-game Rochester series which starts to-day, the best they could do was to finish in second place.

The Montrealers were leading 2-1 at the beginning of the eighth, but Roy Sherrid, who relieved Buckalew after the latter had pitched six straight balls, got found by Fisher who hit a home run over the score board to drive in Thomas, who had been walked by Buckalew.

The Bisons got four more in the ninth and made the victory doubly sure.

Another Old Sport Goes to the Bow-Wows

TORONTO, Sept. 20.— Storekeepers who have mint gum-slot machines in their stores in Toronto must get rid of them by noon to-day or the police will seize them, was the announcement made yesterday by Staff Inspector McKinley, head of the morality department.

The staff inspector wants to be fair with the storekeepers but unless the machines are removed he will make a city-wide raid and gather them all in and destroy them. "They are gambling machines, nothing else but gambling machines, and they cannot stay in Toronto," he said.

BOXERS MUST PROVE TITLE

Athletic Commission Strives to Clear Up Muddle in Championships.

CONTENDERS NAMED

NEW YORK, September 20 (Canadian Press). — If the New York State Athletic Commission has its way, the bantamweight and welterweight thrones will be occupied by kings who have shown definitely that they are entitled to the royal purple.

Joe Dundee, Baltimore Italian, is the ruler of the 147 pounders, but was knocked out recently in two rounds by Young Jack Thompson, of Los Angeles, a negro. Dundee saved his crown but not his reputation by forcing the negro to come in overweight.

The bantamweight throne has had no universally recognized occupant since Charlie "Phil" Rosenberg was stripped of the 138 pound title, early in 1927, when he failed to make the weight in a titular bout with Bushy Graham, the Utica, N.Y., streak of lightning.

Taking a hand in the welterweight muddle, the New York boxing salons announced their intention of asking Dundee to meet Thompson in a return battle, but with the title at stake, then have the winner of this battle meet the survivor of a return bout between Sammy Baker, the Mitchel Field, N.Y., star, and Young Corbett, the third, of Fresno, Cal.

To clear up the bantamweight situation, the Commission would have Graham meet Brown, the elongated negro from Boston, with the winner to clash with Fidel Labarba, retired flyweight champion, now campaigning among the 118 pounders.

BELLEVILLE IN SENIOR FINALS

Beat Bell Telephone 3-1 in Second Game of the Play-offs.

GIBSON PITCHES WELL.

BELLEVILLE, September 20. — Belleville Nationals eliminated Bell Telephone, Toronto entry in the Senior O.B.A.A. play-downs here yesterday by winning the second game in the semi-finals 3-1. Belleville also defeated Bell at Toronto last Saturday 12-8, thus winning the series in two straight games. They will now meet the Walkerville "Chicks" for the provincial title, the first game in Walkerville on Saturday with the return game here next Wednesday.

Bell Telephone were at full strength with the Sniderman brothers back in the line-up, but the switch proved of little advantage, both players going hitless.

"Hoot" Gibson, pitching ace of the Nationals, had the heavy slugging Hello boys at his mercy, restricting them to two hits, one a triple by Thompson. He struck out four and walked three.

Hitless to the Sixth.

Bell Telephone went hitless until after two were out in the sixth inning and only five balls travelled to the outfield all the afternoon.

Opposing Gibson was Carleton, right-hander for Batstone's team. He pitched nice ball for seven innings and then cracked wide open, though his team-mates pulled him out of critical spots by fast fielding. Carleton walked but one batsman and whiffed the same number.

The Bells scored their lone counter in the seventh. Jennings lined to left, but Hagerman dropped the ball and Thompson followed with a triple, scoring Jennings.

Gibson started the fireworks in the eighth when he singled to right, while Scott dragged a bunt down the first base foul line and was safe. V. Weir also bunted, but along the third base line, and when Carleton played for the man at third both men were safe.

Another Successful Bunt.

Harry Mills continued the bunting spree, scoring Gibson with the bases filled, W. Mills hit to Carleton forcing Scott at the plate, but Green singled off Carleton's glove, scoring Weir, and Ross poked a hit back of second, sending in H. Mills, but W. Mills was caught at the plate on W. Sniderman's throw, while Green was run down when he was caught off second.

Harry Blakely at short for the Nationals was the fielding star. He accepted nine chances without a skip. "Wicky" Ross in centre took five hard chances. Batstone made a feature play when he raced to the grandstand to take a foul fly.

TEARS A POWERFUL GERMICIDE.

Tear drops may mean sorrow, but chemically they are a blessing in disguise. They are composed of a chemical called "lysozyme," which is probably the most powerful germ killer known. Frederick Ridley, of the Royal Society of Medicine in London, has found, according to Popular Science Monthly, that one teaspoonful of the pure chemical contained in tears has antiseptic powers equal to more than a hundred gallons of salty water against certain eye bacteria.

Miss Nellie Sutton, of Cavan, Meets With Painful Accident.

(Examiner Correspondence).

CAVAN, Sept. 19.—Miss Nettie Sutton, recently, when getting off the evening local, returning from a visit in Toronto, met with a painful accident.

As the train was slowing up for Cavan Station, the passengers had been asked to be in readiness to alight quickly as the train was behind time. Miss Sutton, with the other passengers for Cavan Station, was out on the platform and holding on by the door jam. The door was propped open. Some one in the coach closed the door, catching her fingers. Other passengers on hearing her exclaim with pain, pushed the door open, but not before her fingers were badly crushed. Medical attention was necessary. Her friends will be glad to know that they are healing and are less painful.

The Cavan Women's Institute will hold their September meeting at the home of Mrs. Loyd Sutton on Thursday afternoon.

Mr. Gordon Reynolds, Toronto, is spending a week's vacation with friends in Cavan, also visiting his mother, Mrs. Gray, 22 Cricket Place, Peterborough.

GORDON McLEOD IN "MISS ELIZABETH'S PRISONER"

Gordon McLeod, who comes to the Grand Theatre here in "Miss Elizabeth's Prisoner" to-night for an engagement of one performance, is hailed in England, as one of the greatest of London's younger stars. He appeared in the British capital as the star of "Scaramouche" and the star of "A Bill of Divorcement," but his most sensational success, nevertheless, was scored not exactly as a star at all and not in England but in Canada.

This was last season when he came to the Dominion with Sir John Martin Harvey. When, in Toronto, the famous actor-knight, was rushed to the operating table an hour before the curtain was to go up for the evening performance. Gordon McLeod was called upon to step into the breach. His characterization literally brought down the house and he continued to play the leading role for the balance of the trancontinental trip until Sir John rejoined the company on the Pacific coast.

Unaware that Mr. McLeod was already a star in his own right in London, Canadian audiences heralded his flawless performances as the discovery of a new stage celebrity. Attracted by the dramatic circumstances surrounding his appearance in the shoes of one of the most celebrated of actors, his unexpected elevation to stardom in Canada drew the attention of the English as well as the Canadian theatrical world. It was a foregone conclusion after his sensational success in Sir John's role, that he would be seen again, in the very near future, at the head of his own company.

When the curtain rises on his first appearance here, a local audience will be greeting a star who has come at the distinct request of Canadian theatre-goers. His vehicle is "Miss Elizabeth's Prisoner," a swiftly-moving drama of the American revolution which uses the background of warfare for a stirring story of love and intrigue. In some respects, it falls into the same general classification as "Scaramouche" the play in which he was seen last season. It is a costume drama so that there is something of the spectacle about its bigger scenes and it is a play of action rather than a play of words. In it, Mr. McLeod plays the role of Capt. Harry Payton, a part which was first made famous by one of the greatest of all English actors, Lewis Waller. Miss Lillian Christine appears as "Miss Elizabeth" and the rest of the company was brought from London by Mr. McLeod for this tour. Seats now selling.

AT THE CAPITOL.

RIOTOUS COMEDY RUNS RAMPANT IN "SKIRTS" SYD CHAPLIN'S NEW COMEDY HIT WHICH OPENS AT THE CAPITOL TODAY.

Funny enough to make a gas range give birth to kittens!

That's the best decription of Sydney Chaplin in his latest Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer starring picture "Skirts," that we can think of. It's a wow! It opens at the Capitol to-day.

The picture, an adaptation of the London stage success by Walter Ellis "A Little Bit of Fluff," is a fast moving comedy centering about the philandering of young husband whose wife and mother-in-law leave for a vacation. Around this ancient theme are strewn some of the best comedy gags it has ever been the pleasure of this interviewer to see on any screen.

Chaplin upholds the reputation he achieved as a comic female impersonator in "Charley's Aunt" by a short sequence in this film when he dons feminine garb to elude a pursuer. Syd powdering his nose before a mirror in imitation of a vain woman is one of the most laughable take-offs one could imagine.

A new delight for picture fans is the all English cast of this picture which was filmed in London. Betty Balfour is the leading woman and a beauty of the first water. In a cabaret scene of the film she appears in a costume made entirely of white ostrich feathers, presenting a most striking appearance. Clifford McLaglen, the younger brother of the star of "What Price Glory", makes an ideal villain, and the rest of the cast is more than adequate.

AT THE REGENT.

MOVING TALE OF PRIZE RING AND THE WAR

An elevated train rumbling overhead. Smoke issuing from five thousand cigarettes. A blatant mob howling within the East Side Boxing Arena. Pre-Volsteadian saloons. Here is a word picture of the opening scence of "The Patent Leather Kid," the big First National special starring Richard Barthelmess.

Then follow scenes of a French village. War! A phalanx of ponderous tanks in action. Shells bursting. Thousands of minute shadows moving across a great field of destruction. Then . . . !

Although "The Patent Leather Kid" is, strictly speaking, not a war story, the war sequences have been done in an epic manner and are to the tanks corps what "The Big Parade was to the doughboys and "What Price Glory" was to the Marines. The story revolves around the Patent Leather Kid, a prize fighter, who was the biggest drawing card of his day because he was the most unpopular. He got his ring title because of his affectations and his sleek shiny hair. And mobs attended the East Side Boxing Arena hoping to see the Kid's hair mussed up.

How he regenerated himself after appearing to be hopelessly beaten and yellow is told with startling detail at the Regent Theatre commencing Monday.

RIN-TIN-TIN WOWS 'EM IN "A RACE FOR LIFE

Rinty has taken to the race tracks and is now the big attraction at the Regent Theatre, in Warner Brothers "A Race for Life." Ross Lederman who directed the shaggy star in "A Dog of the Regiment," directs this thriller and the story is by Charles R. Condon. Virginia Browne Faire, Carrol Nye, Bobby Gordon, James Mason and Pat Hartigan are in the cast.

Rin-Tin-Tin is first seen making his way south by box car with his pal Danny O'Shea, who, after many difficulties, gets a job as jockey. Rival horse owners try to cripple Danny's horse. Rinty attacks and is blinded. The boy hides him and is himself kidnapped. Rinty escapes from his shack and frees the lad in time for the big races! But here comes the most exciting of all the exciting sequences of the piece. Rin-Tin-Tin has roused his audiences to wild enthusiasm many a time, but never has he had a more thrilling vehicle than "A Race for Life." Go see it and shout!

BLAKE OF SCOTLAND YARD

Hayden Stevenson is the star of "Blake of Scotland Yard," the first episode of which is being screened at the Regent Theatre to-day, and his portrayal in the series is said to be the strongest ever attempted by that sterling actor. Hayden may be remembered for his stellar acting in other serials, mainly Reginald Denny's "Leather Pushers," which marked his debut on the screen, and the "Collegians," a college comedy serial in which he portrayed the role of the coach. Those in support of the eminent serialist are Gloria Grey in the feminine lead; Wilbur Mack, Monte Montague, Albert Hart, Herbert Prior and Grace Cunard.

PILE SUFFERERS

Can You Answer These Questions?

Do you know why ointments do not give you quick and lasting relief?

Why cutting does not remove the cause?

Do you know the cause of piles is internal? That there is a stagnation of blood in the lower bowel?

Do you know that there is an internal remedy discovered by Dr. Leonhardt and known as HEM-ROID, sold by McDermid ¼ Jury, Bond's Drug Store, and all druggists with guarantee of money back if it fails?

HEM-ROID banishes piles by removing the cause—stagnation of blood in the lower bowel. This simple home treatment has an almost unbelievable record for sure, safe and lasting relief to thousands of pile sick sufferers, and saves the needless pain and expense of an operation.

of "His Master's Voice" dealers today and see a new musical instrument more colorful and beautiful than any you have seen before.

In performance, this instrument has no peer in its field. In design, it is new as tomorrow, yet it embodies design principles two hundred years old. Inspired by the recent Exposition des Arts Decoratifs in Paris,—color is its keynote, rich vibrant and harmonious color. Newspaper illustration fails utterly to convey its beauty—you must see it.

In Orthophonic tone quality Orthophonic Victrola 8-36 is approached only by the well-known "Credenza" model, which made the Orthophonic famous overnight! The Victor-controlled principle of "Matched Impedance" or "Smooth Flow of Sound" is of course, embodied in this new instrument. Go into any His Master's Voice dealers and compare it with your idea of the old style talking machine.

The new Orthophonic Victrola is made in a range of beautiful models, artistically designed in fine walnut or mahogany. Electrically driven, if you wish, at slight additional cost. The man who would never walk again.

Who could imagine a more poignant story than this? A champion athlete—bedridden. Told that he could never walk again . . . . And then he took Kruschen.

"My doctor told my landlady that I could never walk again. I had rheumatism set in about Christmas-time, and was confined to bed for two months.

"I am nearly sixty years of age. After taking six bottles I am starting to work next week.

"Up till two years ago I had been a Champion Racing Cyclist. I have won a prize every time I have ridden. Being an athlete, but a poor scholar, it would take me a week to write the facts about Kruschen Salts." —W. H. B.

Original letter on file for inspection.

Kruschen Salts is obtainable at drug and department stores in Canada at 75c. a bottle. A bottle contains enough to last for 4 or 5 months—good health for half-a-cent a day.

WILLIAMS ON TRIAL FOR SLAYING WIFE

Kingston School Teacher Mentally Wrong, Relatives Assert.

KINGSTON, Sept. 20.—Wilbert Richard Williams, former school teacher, who, police claim, admitted that he killed his wife because she insisted on his wearing his slippers to the bathroom, yesterday went on trial for his life. Evidence to show that he was not mentally responsible for his actions was presented by a series of defence witnesses. Twenty-two years ago, his brother declared, the family had decided that there was something mentally wrong with the accused.

Relatives declared that insanity ran in the family; that there had been intermarriage. Associates at the Picton Collegiate, where Williams taught four years, said he was a very poor teacher and "queer" in his actions.

Afraid of Trouble.

W. J. Running, of Owen Sound, father of the murdered woman, said Williams had treated his wife so cruelly that he could hardly keep his hands off him. He was away from the Kingston home when the tragedy occurred. "I did not want to go, I was afraid there would be trouble," the father declared.

Dr. C. H. Elliott said that he had attempted to have Williams placed in an asylum but the family had objected and the proposal had fallen through.

With the case for the Crown completed and most of the evidence for the defence in, Mr. Justice Kelly adjourned the case until to-day.

Madoc

MADOC, Sept. 20 (Examiner Correspondence).—Mr. and Mrs. George Price of Orono and Mr. and Mrs. Peter Locke of Bunston left on Monday for their respective homes, after spending some days as guests of Mr. and Mrs. B. Richmond, and of their cousin, Mrs. W. Ross of Madoc.

Miss Kathleen Bird, daughter of the late Robert Bird and Mrs. Bird, of Crookston, was taken to Kingston General Hospital on Monday morning for an operation for appendicitis, which was performed on Monday afternoon. Latest reports are that she is in a very serious condition.

MAGNESIA BEST FOR YOUR INDIGESTION

Warns Against Doping Stomach With Artificial Digestants

Most people who suffer, either occasionally or chronically from gas, sourness and indigestion, have now discontinued disagreeable diets, patent foods and the use of harmful drugs, stomach tonics, medicines and artificial digestants, and instead, follow the advice so often given in these columns, take a teaspoonful or four tablets of Bisurated Magnesia in a little water after meals with the result that their stomach no longer bothers them, they are able to eat as they please, and they enjoy much better health. Those who use Bisurated Magnesia never dread the approach of meal time because they know this wonderful anti-acid and food corrective, which can be obtained from any good drug store, will instantly neutralize the stomach acidity, sweeten the stomach, prevent food fermentation, and make digestion easy. Try this plan yourself, but be certain to get Bisurated Magnesia especially prepared for stomach use.

News From the Mines

Through Solloway, Mills & Company

Granada

TORONTO, Sept. 20.—We understand that Robert Gamble, President of Granada, is now at the property for the purpose of inspecting the new vein recently encountered at the 500-foot horizon in station cutting. It is understood this vein is very heavy mineralized and carries gold values up to $20 a ton. As diamond drilling and exploration on the 125-foot level did not disclose a trace of this vein, and it does not appear on surface so far as is known, it is considered to be a blind vein and of much importance. As yet it has not been determined whether or not this discovery will alter sinking plans, but an announcement from Mr. Gamble in this respect may be expected within the course of a few days.

Clerkz

Recent strength and activity in this issue may be attributed to a report from Ottawa that very rich samples or ore arrived at that city from their Prechette property, some forty miles north of Sudbury. The samples are said to be rich in copper, together with a high percentage of gold, and were taken from the surface of the vein, which from indications to date would appear to traverse their entire holdings in Prechette. The managing director is reported to have said should the quality of the ore at the surface continue to depth a big and valuable mine is assured. Plans are under way to carry out developments in a big way on this property.

Falconbridge

The announcement has been made in the current issue of The Ontario Gazette that letters patent have been issued to the Falconbridge Nickel Mines, Limited, with a capital of 5,000,000 shares of $1 par value. We understand the Lindsley interests through the Ventures, Limited, control the new enterprise, and are proceeding with work and plans for bringing the property to the production stage. Huge tonnage of nickel-copper ore, together with some precious metals, have already been indicated. On account of the uniformity of the deposit, very low mining costs may be expected. Production will no doubt proceed on a basis for which the marketing of the output is fully assured far in advance. Mr. Ernest Craig, formerly associated with Tonopah and Aldermac mines, is in charge.

Noranda

The second article on Noranda appearing in The Engineering and Mining Journal of September 15th by the associate editor, A. H. Hubbell, states that production is being easily maintained at 3,000,000 pounds of copper a month. No effort is being made to produce blister over 99 per cent. However, a great deal of it turns out better than 99.5 per cent. He states further that it would be logical to expect high smelting costs, owing to a combination of adverse circumstances. However, in spite of this, the costs have been brought down as low as those in Arizona.

Call Money Still High And Speculation Falters

NEW YORK Sept. 20.—(Canadian Press.)—Stiff money rates continued to provide a formidable obstacle to speculation for the advance in today's stock market. Aggressive pool operations lifted more than a score of issues, including Packard and General Motors, to new high levels in early trading. Increased selling resistance developed on the rally and several issues sank well below last night's final quotations.

Call money renewed at 7½, advanced to eight around mid-day, and thence to 8½, with indications that it might go higher before the end of the week. Packard and General Motors struggled for the leadership of the Motor group, the former climbing 5 3-8 points to a new peak at 90 7-8 and the latter moving up nearly five points to a new high at 212¾ before profit taking cut down their gains. Warner Bros. 'A' declined four points, Motor Products three and a half and International Harvester and Pressed Steel Car two points below yesterday's final quotations. Early gains of one to three points in the general list were cut down by an afternoon selling movement.

Toronto Market Dull With Changes Small

TORONTO, Sept. 20.— (Canadian Press.)—The market at the Toronto stock exchange was extremely slow and prices were almost motionless. Canada Cement was one of the few exceptions to move upward, selling up to 99½ for a net increase of 1⅛. Brazilian Traction at sixty and King Edward Hotel at 63, were each a point higher at noon. City Dairy failed to continue its activity, remaining unchanged at yesterday's close of 68. International Nickel was steady and with a very light turnover eased off ¼ at 127. Farmers' Dairy led the trading in the curb section, advancing one point to sell at 27. British American Oil was firm at 41¼, while Imperial in light trading sold at 76, or a point higher than its previous close.

Tendency To Hold Wheat Causes Price To Go Up

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—(Canadian Press).— With reports emphasizing that there is a pronounced holding tendency on the part of United States farmers and the Canadian Grain Growers Pool, wheat advanced early. The need of rain in Australia and Argentina was also a bullish factor. Opening ¾ to ⅞ cent higher, wheat afterward held near to the initial figures. Corn and oats were likewise stronger, corn starting unchanged to ¾ cent up and subsequently scoring a general advance. Provisions declined.

Opening prices were: Wheat, September 111¼; December, 114⅞. Corn September, 101⅝; December 76⅛. Oats, September 42⅛; December 42¼.

Trading Limits Narrow On Standard Exchange

TORONTO, Sept. 20.—(Canadian Press).—With less than half the issues on the board the active market on the Standard Mining Exchange to-day took on the appearance of a very dull session. Prices were inclined to slide downward, although a goodly number remained unchanged. Barry Hollinger was especially active during the morning and at noon had eased off ¾ at 54⅛. Sudbury Basin continued its see saw movement and after taking its rise of 39 cents yesterday dropped thirty cents at noon to sell at $6.35. Amulet lost nine at $3.21. Noranda weakened during the session, sagging to $52.90 for a loss of 45 cents, while Pend. Oreille at $13.50 was off 50 cents. Beaver was one of the exceptions to secure a higher price, to sell at 99½ for an increase of four and a half. Teck Hughes was two cents higher at $9.02, Wright Hargreaves up two at $3.10 and Hudson Bay up ten at $20.45 while Big Missouri after an absence of a few days appeared at 55 for a net gain of three.

Dividend Declared

NEW YORK, Sept. 20. —(Canadian Press).—The Granby Consolidated Mining, Smelting and Refining Company yesterday declared a regular quarterly capital distribution of $1 a share, payable Nov. 1, to stockholders of record Oct. 11.

angle of slant was too great, and they were on the high side. For the same reason we could not reach the boats on the low side. Then down, down, swiftly and quietly, one minute on the boat and the next struggling for life in the water, swimming, kicking, gasping for air, shaking off the deathlike grip of those who did not survive."

Capt. McKay went on to discuss theories advanced to explain the sinking of the Manasoo.

Cattle Did Not Stampede.

"I have heard enough to make me want to deny such sayings," he emphasized. "The cattle did not stampede, and could not have done so if they tried. Wallace never spoke to me of any dissatisfaction with the loading. They were penned in fifteen or twenty to a pen, and the pens were well constructed. There were two inch boards, tied to iron stanchions. They could not slip out when the boat listed for we had a bulk head built aft. The cattle were not tied, however, because shippers will not buy lines to do so.

"I have also heard that when the boat listed, the cattle crowded against the doors, breaking them and letting the water rush in. The cattle were fore and aft of the gangway and penned in. In the space between them was our only piece of freight, an automobile. The cattle went down with the boat because when we sank there was none of them in the water. Moreover, they could not have broken the gang doors because they were of steel.

Lakefield

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 19.—The prize winners in the junior judging competition at the Peterborough Fair were Miss Mabel Mullen of Smith and Mr. Roy Dunford of Douro. Both young people are intimately connected with Lakefield and Lakefield is pleased to be able to share their triumph and offer congratulations. These judging competitions are giving the farm young people opportunities which are priceless and it is a matter of genuine pride that two prizes should come to two young people who are connected with the village.

The Salvation Army Band visited Lakefield on Sunday, and through the courtesy of the officials of the Regent Street United Church, they took charge of the services in that church on Sunday evening. The church was filled to capacity and the visit of the Band very much appreciated.

SYER—DYMENT

(Examiner Correspondence)

The beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Dyment, Sydenham Mountain, Dundas, was the scene of a picturesque wedding, Wednesday evening, September the twelfth, at 7.30, when their daughter, Jessie Margaret, was united in marriage to Dr. George Eber Syer of Cayuga, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eber Syer of Millbrook. The spacious rooms were tastefully decorated with a profusion of roses, gladioli, asters and palms, tall standards filled with flowers forming the floral background for the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. Mr. Cassmore, assisted by Rev. Mr. Albright.

To the strains of the Wedding March from Lohengrin, the charming bride entered the drawing room, attired in a period gown of silver lace, a long court train falling from the shoulder. Her bridal veil, fashioned in coronet style, was of fine embroidered net, held in place with orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses, orchids and sweet peas. The bride was attended by her sister, Hazel, who wore a lovely old-fashioned gown of peach-colored taffeta and tulle, with shoes to match and carried pink roses and mauve sweet peas. Little Miss Margaret Clark made a sweet-looking flower girl in pale green georgette and carrying a nosegay of pink sweet peas.

The groom was attended by Dr. Robert Catherwood of Milton.

Before the ceremony Miss Marion Smith, cousin of the bride, sang effectively. She wore a costume of black transparent velvet and silver lace. Miss Myrtle Holden, the pianist, looked well in a gold Sequin frock, with shoes to match. During the signing of the register, Norman Langdon sang "Because."

At the wedding reception the bride's mother assisted in receiving, wearing rose bisque crepe and corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Syer, mother of the groom, looked smart in gray georgette with silver trimmings and corsage of mauve sweet peas.

The bride cut the wedding cake at a table most artistically arranged with pink tea roses and lighted candles, from which a buffet luncheon was served.

Later Dr. and Mrs. Syer left on a motor trip through the Adirondacks to New York and Montreal, the bride travelling in a chic ensemble of beige crepe, black coat with black fox collar and cloche hat of solid felt and hatter's plush, and all accessories to match.

The groom's gift to the bride was a diamond dinner ring; to the bridesmaid, a sapphire necklace; to the groomsman, white gold cuff links; to the pianist and Miss Smith, silver compacts; to the flower girl, a string of pearls, and to Mr. Langdon, cuff links.

About one hundred and twenty-five guests were present, coming from Dundas, Hamilton, St. Catharines, Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Toronto, Scranton, Pa., New York, Montreal, Lindsay and Millbrook.

FERMAN—PHELAN.

Lauretta Phelan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Phelan, of Detroit, formerly of Peterborough, became the bride of Ray Ferman, of Detroit, in St. Lawrence's Church, Detroit, on Tuesday, September 18. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Balcer.

The maid of honor was Miss Mary O'Donnell, of Windsor, formerly of Peterborough, and the groomsman was Mr. John Putrow, of Detroit. Little Pauline Simler, niece of the bride, was a charming flower girl, carrying a basket of pretty blossoms.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was daintily gowned in white satin, with lace flounces, and veil and orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lily of the valley. The maid of honor wore a pink taffeta dress with hat to match, and carried an arm bouquet of pink Premier roses.

Ushers were Messrs. Gregory O'Donnell of Peterborough and Ted Keith of Detroit.

After the wedding ceremony there was a reception at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. E. Saul, Detroit. Guests were received by Mrs Phelan, gowned in rose grey satin and wearing a corsage bouquet of roses, and Mrs. Ferman, who wore grey silk and corsage of roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Ferman are spending their honeymoon in Peterborough visiting relatives and friends.

Obituary

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MRS. WILLIAM O'BRIAN.

MILLBROOK, Sept. 20.—The funeral of Mrs. William O'Brian took place on Wednesday, September 19, at 2.30 p.m., from the family residence, Marshal street, Rev. Canon Allen having charge of the services both at the house and graveside.

Deceased, whose maiden name was Hannah Lightfoot, was the last surviving member of a family of six children, three sons and three daughters, her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. John Lightfoot, having been pioneer settlers in Monaghan township, the farm homestead being now owned and occupied by James Whittington. It is on the boundary between Cavan and South Monaghan.

More than fifty years ago deceased was united in marriage to the late William O'Brian, their first home being on the fourth line, Cavan, the farm, later occupied by their only son, having since been sold and become part of the George Bonner farm property. It is at least forty-five years since Mr. and Mrs. O'Brian moved to Millbrook purchasing the large and comfortable home on Marshal street which has continued to be the family residence until now.

Mr. O'Brian's death occurred twenty-one years ago, in 1907. The surviving members of the family are two daughters, Mrs. Charles Leach, of Victoria, B.C.; Miss May, at home; and one son, William O'Brian, whose farm is on the Fifth Line, Cavan, and less than one mile from the community limits.

A spirit of warm-hearted hospitality was an outstanding feature of Mrs. O'Brian's nature, and her many friends will always recall with pleasure this characteristic, of which they had practical experience during many happy hours spent as guests in her home. Her death, following an extended illness, took place on Sunday in the early part of the evening.

Many beautiful floral tributes gave evidence of esteem and affection, as did also the large gathering for the funeral service; the pallbearers were: Messrs. H. W. Johnston, Dr. H. A. Turner, S. H. Hunter (Toronto), J. R. Eakins, G. E. Burnham and Harry O'Brian (Bethany). Interment was beside her husband in the Presbyterian cemetery.

Among those from outside points who attended the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. T. McWilliams, Peterborough; Mr. H. and the Misses Marian, Bessie, and Mary O'Brian, of Brunswick; Mr. Bruce Eakins of Peterborough, Mrs. Whiteman, of Peterborough, Mr. S. H. Hunter, of Toronto, and Mr. Robert Fair, of Peterborough.

PARIS READY FOR RED RISING

Plan 'ZZZ' Leaks Out

French Military Forces Will Retire on Versailles Awaiting Aid.

CITY ALARMED

Prefect and Governor Oppose Scheme to Abandon Metropolis.

PARIS, Sept. 21.—In case of a Red uprising the French capital will be temporarily abandoned to the revo- temporarily abandoned to the revo-Versailles until a strong enough force is mobilized to take back Paris.

At least, that is the plan of the French general staff, whose famous "plan ZZZ" for the defense of the capital in case of revolution has leaked out, creating considerable stir not only in military circles but among the civilian Parisians who dwell within the solid "Red belt," consisting of communist suburbs, which practically surround the city.

Forces to Retire.

If or when the Reds spring a revolution, they will have only the police and republican guards to combat. "Plan ZZZ" will be immediately put into operation in case the police are beaten, the military forces retiring to the former seat of Louis XIV. Provincial troops will be rushed up then, and a concerted attack made on Paris only after a huge army has been assembled.

Only a small section of the city, comprising the president's palace, the senate and chamber of deputies, and the buildings housing the ministries, will be held by troops, according to the general staff's plan. The Bank of France, where millions of dollars in gold is stored, is outside this and would be abandoned to revolutionaries once they had driven out the police.

The areas comprising the business and residential sections also will be evacuated without a struggle.

The plan, which has all Paris frightened, was drawn up in June by the gray haired marshals of the general staff, it is learned. Prefect of the Police Chiappe and General Gouraud, military governor of Paris, took part in the conferences and bitterly opposed the plan.

Prefect Is Overruled.

They offered a scheme of their own by which the strategical points of the city and suburbs would be permanently occupied by troops and fortified. Communication facilities would be built between them, and reserve centres of tanks assure open communication between and armored cars would bet set up to the various posts.

But Prefect Chiappe was overruled, and immediately the number of troops quartered in the capital was pared down. Before the war, when revoltion was undreamed of, 29 battalions and 20 cavalry squadrons, permanently were quartered in Paris. After the war the garrison was cut down to 11 battalions and 12 squadrons. Last month after "plan ZZZ" had been adopted, the troops in Paris were ordered to be further diminished to eight battalions of infantry and eight cavalry squadrons.

"Why not retire to Bordeaux instead of stopping at Versailles?" said a big Parisian industrialist, when the plan was reported to him. "Then our army could get glory reconquering two-thirds of the country from the reds."

Retreated in 1871.

Granting that the communists ever mastered the Paris police, the action of the army in withdrawing to Versailles would not be a new

Lindsay Fair Fares No Better Than Here

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, September 21. — A steady downpour of rain, which made its initial appearance shortly before six o'clock yesterday morning, struck the second day of Lindsay Central Fair (Children's Day), and greatly discouraged the directors, who looked forward to a record show this year.

As a result of weather conditions, which could not be much worse, the program for the day had to be cancelled. The race track was inches deep in mud, and weather conditions will have to improve considerably before it can be used for Friday's racing bill

VALUE OF WOMEN'S EFFORTS OUTSIDE HOME IS SET FORTH

Mrs. Charles Thorburn, of Ottawa Addresses Local Council.

MUCH ACCOMPLISHED.

Women Have Obtained Laws Safeguarding Families—Influence Is Great.

The monthly meeting of the Local Council of Women was held yesterday afternoon in the Y.W.C.A., with a very large attendance. The President, Mrs. C. H. Edwards, presided, and welcomed the members back after their two months' rest.

After the secretary's and treasurer's reports had been received, Mrs. H. Mowat, corresponding secretary, read a letter from the Kiwanis Club, asking the assistance of all affiliated clubs in making their Made-in-Canada Fair a success. They gave the names of a number of prominent lady speakers who will give addresses at the Fair, to be held in October.

Mrs. Edwards referred to a letter received from the National Council urging a memorial service on Armistice Day. This was left over to discuss at the next meeting. She also read a letter in regard to plans and canvassing in order to raise a foundation fund of $200,000. Previously, the National Council could carry on its work with the money from affiliation fees and donations, but as prices have soared it has been unable to carry out all its plans. This is the first time it has ever asked for money and it will be the last, if this fund is secured. Modern times require modern methods and more money must be spent.

The Council is comprised of women's clubs and takes in all kinds of women's work without regard to class, political creed, or differences of religion.

Peterborough's allocation to this fund is $1,000, and on October 1 she hoped the Council would have sixty workers to go out and collect this amount. The campaign is being carried on all over Canada.

At this point in the proceedings Mrs. Charles Thorburn of Ottawa entered and received a great ovation from the ladies.

Mrs. Edwards, in introducing her, referred to her outstanding ability and the honor conferred upon her when she was appointed representative of Canadian women in the conferences at Wembly and Geneva.

Mrs. Thorburn, who has a pleasing personality, won the hearts of her hearers with her bright but unaffected manner. She spoke of the great pleasure it gave her to come and work with a former friend like Mrs. Edwards, and gave a message of regret from Mrs. Wilson, the national president, who was unable to come.

Mrs. Thorburn said "No organization in Canada has done so much constructive work as the National Council of Women. It was once said that a woman's place was inside the four walls of her home. We have outgrown the cry that woman's place is in the home. While we admit that a woman's highest job is the raising of a righteous and God-respecting family, yet we have to admit that woman has other duties to perform, especially now that we have the franchise. We, whose families have grown up, married and are away from home, how can we better employ ourselves than to do something for the good of our country

"How is it that women now have more time for work outside of their homes? Intervention. We are no longer required to knit, weave and spin. Women were forced into industry and so got away from this old idea

"Women can improve themselves immensely by working in women's organizations. In most places we have to pay for knowledge, but in the Women's Councils it is free and open to all. Here we have questions of the times discussed and are able to form intelligent opinions of our own and by taking part in such work we become self reliant and able to take our place in society. Now that women have the franchise, they are a mighty force in the country when they agree on any question and can make a tremendous impression at election time and it is women's

Five-Year-Old Girl Is Still Missing

WINNIPEG, Man., Sept. 21.—(Canadan Press.)—With an offer of five hundred dollars for information leading to discovery of Julia Johnson, aged five, who disappeared from her home here on April 25, the Manitoba government yesterday made further effort to trace the missing child. The award will be in addition to other amounts offered, including $150 by the city and $50 by the girl's parents.

The child's disappearance is one of the biggest mysteries police have had to grapple with. Despite a widespread search, no trace of her has been found.

Gordon Northcott Refuses To Pose For Photographers at Vancouver

MOTHER ADMITS IDENTITY

VANCOUVER, B.C., Sept. 21 (Canadian Press).—Shackled to a Provincial Police constable and heavily guarded by other officers, Gordon Stuart Northcott, arrested on Wednesday at Vernon, B.C., on a charge of murder preferred by the Riverside, California, authorities, last night was brought here from Kamloops, where he had been taken after his arrest.

A large crowd of people gathered to see Northcott leave the train. He refused to pose for photographers, but was seen avidly reading accounts of his arrest in local newspapers.

Admits Identity

CALGARY, Alta., Sept. 21 (Canadian Press).—The woman held by the city police last night admitted she is Mrs. Sarah Louisa Northcott, wanted at Riverside, California, in connection with five murders alleged to have been committed by her son.

After declaring for thirty hours that she was not Mrs. Northcott, the woman admitted her identity when shown a picture of her son and told he was under arrest in Vancouver. She will be held here while United States authorities are communicated with.

Mrs. Northcott was arrested here on Wednesday as she stepped from an eastbound train.

BEATRICE WILSON AWARDED MEDAL

Royal Canadian Humane Association Rewards Daring Rescue.

Beatrice Wilson of this city has been awarded a medal by the Royal Canadian Humane Association for saving the life of Herbert Bolin, aged 7, of 29 New Chamberlain Street, on May 3. The association made the announcement to-day, and along with Miss Wilson's name is that of Eva Allardyce of Kingston.

On May 3rd the little chap was playing on a raft in a pond which is formed every spring in an old sandpit near May's School. He fell off the raft, and Miss Wilson, who was nearby, heard his screams and waded into the water and saved him. She was unable to swim, and there are places where the pit is ten feet deep, but this did not deter her.

THANKSGIVING SERVICE HELD AT ST. LUKE'S

Annual Harvest Festival Observed in Prettily Decorated Church.

FINE SERMON GIVEN.

Choir Sings Special Music—Note of Thankfulness Dominates Whole Service.

Thanksgiving for the blessings of harvest was returned by the people of St Luke's Church last night at the annual Harvest Festival service. Decorated with grain, fruits, vegetables and flowers, the little church gave evidence of God's blessing to mankind in provision for their subsistence. The service was in keeping with the season, music, lessons, prayers, and sermon carrying out the idea of harvest joy and thankfulness to God.

The speaker was the Rev. W. F. Seaman, M.A. Rector of the Church of St. Mary, the Virgin, Toronto, and a former school mate of the Rector of St. Luke's Church, the Rev. G. J. Bousfield, B.A. In commencing his sermon he alluded to his associations with former rectors of St. Luke's, the Rev. Dr. Symonds in Montreal and the Rev. Canon Sawers in Toronto. He took for his text verses 21, 22, and 23 of the third chapter of the First Epistle to the Corinthians: "Therefore let no man glory in men, for all things are yours; Whether Paul, or Apollos, or Cephas, or the world, or life, or death, or things present, or things to come; all are yours; and ye are Christ's, and Christ is God's."

An Ascending Scale

This statement, said the speaker, was made when the church at Corinth was split into factions and Paul, instead of trying to adjust matters included all the factions in one greater conception of Christianity which overshadowed their partisanship. He traces things on an ascending scale from material things to man, from man to Christ, and from Christ to God.

When Paul said "All things are yours," he was making a prophecy which might have seemed impossible then but is now being borne out. Man's power over nature is increasing. Job asked if a man could measure the span of the earth, considering it impossible. Now the earth is measured and bound with bands of steal. "Canst thou send lightnings that they may go, and say unto thee: 'Here we are?' the patriarch was asked. Now the electricity is controlled and used by man as his servant. The winds and waves, formerly terrors to man, are now his servants.

Proceeding to the next phrase, "Ye are Christ's" Mr. Seaman pointed out that when man looks down at the world he is the owner, but when he looks up to Heaven he is owned. When he performs his daily tasks he is a proprietor, but when he kneels in prayer he becomes the property of another. The person who will not allow Christ to come into his life and rule it is robbing God.

All Are Christ's

Many people shrink from professing themselves Christians because they think it means acknowledging God and that they will not be able to live up to the responsibility. Paul teacnes that they are Christ's and are not acknowledging a debt but trying to pay it.

It is becoming harder for man to realize that he is God's and dependent upon him for necessities. Man is becoming so much master of nature that he cannot realize that he is just as much dependent on God as the people in the days when the world was young. As he gains more knowledge of the processes by which God governs the world he forgets God himself.

The average city dweller cannot see what difference the harvest makes to him, whether it is good or bad, because he has so many sources of supply, although the farmer is hard hit if his own immediate harvest fails. When sickness comes near to a man and all the resources of science seem futile he is prone to call upon God, but there

MOTHER LOVE BRINGS WOMAN 82 YEARS OLD, ACROSS OCEAN

Mrs. Jane Lovelock, Left With No Relatives at Home, Migrates

DAUGHTERS IN TORONTO

Lure of Home Intimacy Causes Aged Woman to Sell Up Her Reading Home

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 21 (Special to The Examiner).—Mother-love has started an 82-year-old woman across the Atlantic.

Leaving the security of a little corner tuck-shop in Reading, England, Mrs. Jane Lovelock boarded the C.P.R. liner Montnairn at Southampton this week on her way to Canada to live with her two daughters, whom she has not seen for over 29 years.

Thirty years ago her eldest daughter, Grace, sailed to visit a friend in Canada. Within a year the youngest sister, Jessie, followed, and obtaining a position in Toronto, also made her home here. Two daughters were left at home with Mrs. Lovelock, and she was happy in familiar surroundings.

But a year ago one of the sisters died, and last July death called the second sister. Mrs. Lovelock was left with an abundance of friends in the land she loved, and not a relative. She was old, and all her life she had known the intimacy of a home life. An only child, her parents had died when she was still in her teens, and she had been brought up by her grandmother. A vast expanse of ocean now separated her from her people. It was a long journey, not without its hazards for one so old and might be a bit lonely, but she was not long in reaching a decision.

Within a few weeks of the death of the second daughter she had made the bookings and was prepapred to set out on the first sea voyage of her 82 years, in answer to the call that her mother-heart felt.

A little Bible shiny with age and frayed with use, is in the hands of a granddaughter in Toronto. It was one of Mrs. Lovelock's possessions in schooldays. A new Bible is accompanying the frail body on the voyage, but the faith of her heart is as old as the hills.

Accomodating Doctor Can Plan Child's Sex

With the object of demonstrating the accuracy of his claim, Dr. Stockza has approached the Polish government with the proposal that twenty married couples who are desirous of having only male children shall be placed under his supervision.

HOSPITAL NEED TOLD KIWANIANS

E. B. Fowler Is Speaker at Club's Weekly Luncheon To-day.

RECOUNTS HISTORY.

E. Bruce Fowler, a member of the Nicholl's Hospital Board outlined to the Kiwanis to-day at their weekly luncheon why the board thinks an addition necessary to the present hospital building. Mr. Fowler understands the question thoroughly and in a short address told of the plan and gave a short resume of hospital since it was founded in 1885 by the late Mrs. Nicholls.

R. T. E. Hicks-Lynn, manager of the Dominion Bank, was the booster for the dya and his prizes went to J. Wearing, J. Geraghty and E. B. Fowler. The guests were John P. Radcliff Jr. of Yonkers N.Y., Ronald Starr of Orillia, J. Roy Taylor of Toronto and E. B. Fowler.

Introduced by the chairman, C. S. Browne, Mr. Fowler in commencing his address told of the beginning of the hospital in 1885 in the house now owned by T. E. Bradburn just west of Monaghan Road on the provincial highway. Miss Nicholls then contributed $15,000 towards the hospital and its equipment. By 1890 it was found that the accommodation was inadequate and Mrs. Nicholls donated a further sum of $35,000 and part of the present building was erected. "When these donations were given the hospital was offered to the city to be run as a civic institution but on account of certain conditions the council failed to accept the offer. Mrs. Nicholls then appointed a Board composed of representatives from the various Protestant churches in the city to operate the hospital" said Mr. Fowler.

The first board was made up of men such as the late Richard Hall, R. S. Davidson, James Stratton and G. A. Cox," continued the speaker. "In 1907 the south wing was built out of the interest received from the trust and at no cost to the city of Peterborough. I have often felt that the hospital does not occupy as important a place in the life of the community and I think it is because it has cost us nothing. In the past 20 years the number of patients per years has increased 400 percent. and last year our revenue was $47,000, with 2,000 patients passing through. To-day there is a very great need for an extension. A building that was built 20 years ago to meet the needs of the community will not meet the needs today and hence the hospital's accommodation is most inadequate. The heating system is not large enough, the original kitchens are still in use and with the advancement in medical science more cases are being treated in the hospital every year.

Mr. Fowler then gave statistics to show that the maternal death rate of Canada is the second highest of any country in the world; for last

Have Every Comfort Says Miner-Harvester

LONDON, Sept. 21 (Canadian Press).—Satisfaction with working and living conditions where a party of British harvesters are working in Saskatchewan is reported in a letter of a miner who has written to the Yorkshire Post from that province.

ORILLIA BOARD VISITS PLANT

Utilities Commissioners of Simcoe Town Inspect Local Stations.

Members of the Orillia Utilities Commission are in the city to-day viewing the plant that the people of Peterborough own in this city. The local Commission went to Orillia this summer and inspected that plant, and the visit to-day is just a return of the one paid this summer. At noon today they were the guests of the Commission at the Empress Hotel, and this afternoon they carried out their tour of inspection.

BANK ROBBED.

Five Men Get Away With $1,800 From King City Branch.

KING CITY, Ont., Sept. 21.—(Canadian Press.)—Five gunmen held up the branch of the Bank of Montreal here this afternoon and escaped with $1,800 in cash. No trace of the bandits ha been located, but county, provincial and city police are scouring York county and the City of Toronto in search of them, with the meagre description furnished by M. Benson, manager of the bank, as the sole clue.

Scoffers At Titles Inherit Baronetcy

ETWALL, Derbyshire, Sept. 21 (Canadian Press).—Sir Oswald Mosley, aged 54, died to-day. The heir to his baronetcy is Oswald Mosley, Labor member of Parliament for Smetzwick, who married Lady Cynthia Curzon, second daughter of the late Marquess Curzon of Kedleston.

There has been speculation whether young Oswald would accept the responsibility of the baronetcy. Both he and his wife scoff at titles.

HITS PARKED CAR

Motorist Blinded by Lights of Approaching Car—Both Damaged

A car driven by Herbert Stanley, 32 Park street, collided with a car owned by W. B. Edney near the corner of King and Rubidge street last night. Stanley was driving south on Rubidge street and when he was just north of King street the lights of another car coming in the opposite direction dazzled him and he ran into Edney's car which was parked next the curb without lights. Stanley's car was damaged around the radiator front, spring and front fenders, while the left rear spring and fender of Edney's car were broken.

Nicholls Hospital Notes

Written by the Board of Nicholls Hospital to explain the necessity for an addition to building and equipment.

THE GROWTH OF NICHOLL'S HOSPITAL IN 20 YEARS

Patients Admitted	510	1900

An increase of nearly 400%—if the accommodation provided in 1908 was needed then—it is obvious that the large growth requires further extension.

	1908	1928
General Receipts	$16,615.00	$72,833.00
General Expenditures	$15,818.00	$68,189.00
Average daily cost per patient in Province		$3.67
Average daily cost per patient at Nicholls		$3.41

Above shows that the Hospital is economically administered. The income from an endowment ($220,000.00) amounts yearly to $12,057.00; this income is used for maintenance purposes and, but for the endowment provided by Mrs. Nicholls, the citizens could be called on to provide this amount towards maintaining the Hospital.

High Fines Cause Glut

Liquor Control Act Offenders Unable To Pay, Have To Go To Prison.

MANY RELEASED.

First and Second Offenders Get Commutations—Bootleggers Must Serve.

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 21 (Special to The Examiner).—Convictions under the new Liquor Control Act of Ontario have so crowded the jail farm that during the past few months it has been the practice of Attorney-General Price to commute the sentences of first and second offenders after they have served one-half of their time, according to the story told by a second offender who was released to-day.

The man in question was convicted by Magistrate Cohen on August 21, and given 60 days at the jail farm, with the option of a $200 fine. Being unable to raise the money demanded, he was obliged to serve his sentence. On his arrival at the penal institution, prison gossip soon acquainted him with the fact that if representations were made to the office of the Attorney-General he could have his sentence cut in half.

Accordingly, those dependent upon the man doing time made a personal call at Mr. Price's office in Queen's Park, and were interviewed by his secretary. Shortly after having laid the facts of the case before him, they were informed that the man would be released on September 21.

Releases Common.

"It is a common practice," he said to The Examiner to-day. "As soon as I arrived at the jail, which was very overcrowded, I was told that I would have to serve only half my sentence. Sure enough, as I spent the thirty days there, I saw more than thirty men released after having served half of their time. Some of them were first offenders, others second offenders, and a few were doing time for a third breach of the law.

"When I was released, four other men went out with me. The warden acts not on his own volition but on orders from Queen's Park." The Examiner informant asserted. "Third offenders do not always get the same consideration, and bootleggers are all required to do their full time.

"I was told, however, about a floating population of 500 that drifted in and out of the jail with great regularity, who are released readily at all times. These men are sure to come back. Many of them would like to be kept in for the winter months, but the jail is far too crowded to accommodate them all.

"I was told by one of the jailers on the place that if they were to keep everyone in the jail farm until they had completed their full sentence, three new buildings would be needed to accommodate the crowd.

"Every Friday and Tuesday, when the delivery from the 'Don' would be made, an average of 19 or 20 new men would come up to us, most of them on drunk charges.

300 People In Jail.

"There are about 300 people in the jail at present, at least two-thirds of them having been sentenced on 'drunk charges.' While I was at the Don waiting to be taken to the farm, I heard that there were a number of men kept at the Toronto Jail for terms of thirty days because there was no room for them at the other institution.

According to law, the Magistrate has no other option but to impose the fines set down in the Liquor Control Act. Most of the first offenders are able to pay the $100 required from them, but second and third offenders often have difficulty in raising the large amount demanded. In many cases, they obviously cannot be met. The result is that many men have to serve from 30 to 60 days in jail, while their families or those dependent on them are left to shift for themselves.

"At the Don it is said the condemned cells have been opened for minor offenders, and even then there is not sleeping room for all those who are sent there," continued The Examiner's informant. "At the jail farm blood tests used to be compulsory for all those entering, but now only those who are sent down for the first time have to take it.

"As young boys, old offenders, and criminals of all classes are thrown much together, the practice of omitting these tests is very dangerous, and a menace to the health of many who are paying the price for their first mistake.

"When I was at the Don I was given a bed, but others were not so fortunate. There were twenty men in the lot that went up with me, sixteen of them on 'drunk' charges, and some of them had to sleep on the floor rolled up in blankets. I heard one of the jail officials complain and say that if they could not be given beds they should be released."

NO ONE KNOWS WHY BOY DIED

Suicide of Immigrant Youth on Farm Probed by Jury.

WELL TREATED

NORTH BAY, Ont., Sept. 21. — (Canadian Press).—A verdict of "suicide" was returned here yesterday by a coroner's jury under Dr. J. E. Craig in connection with the death of John Wilson, English immigrant boy who was found dead by his employer, Delmer Brownlee in a shed on his farm at Malakoff, near here on September 3. The inquest was ordered by the Ontario Attorney General. "The cause of death was due to a gun shot wound self inflicted. We also find that the deceased was well treated and had a good home with Mr. Delmer Brownlee," read the finding of the jury.

At the outset the Crown Attorney announced the inquest had been called for the purpose of establishing if cruelty had been inflicted on the dead boy or anything done to him that might have tended to make him take his own life. On the contrary, evidence submitted by more than a half dozen witnesses tended to show that the youth was very happy in his Canadian surroundings.

No reason for the suicide could be offered by any witness.

NEW PAINTINGS FOR DOMINION

National Gallery Trustees Acquire Six Works of Noted Artists.

INCLUDE TITIAN

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 21 (Canadian Press).—Confirming at their meeting here yesterday the recent purchase of six paintings, the trustees of the National Gallery have enriched Canada's collection by what is believed to be the only Titian in the country. A Gainsborough, three other portraits by Cariani, Bartel Beham and Antonio Moro, and a landscape by George Moreland complete the new acquisition.

The meeting was presided over by His Excellency the Governor General, in his capacity of Honorary President, and present also were Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian Minister to the United States; Dr. F. J. Shepherd, Chairman of the Board of Trustees; J. O. Marchand, R.C.A.; Eric Brown, and H. O. McCurry, secretary.

The Titian is a portrait of Daniele Barraro, a Venetian prelate, who was ambassador to the Court of Edward VI, and who also took a prominent part in the deliberations of the Council of Trent. It was painted by Titian for Bishop Paolo Giovo in 1545, this ecclesiastic having assembled a collection of contemporary notables. The portrait reinforces the Venetian School at the National Gallery, which also possesses three Tintorettors, two by Paul Veronese, a Moroni and a Cariani.

The English School, which is represented in Canada's collection by Sir Joshua Reynolds, Sir Thomas Lawrence, Sir Benjamin West, Romney, Hoppner and Beachey, has received its second Gainsborough in the last acquisition, which is a portrait of "Rev. William Stevens," a noted English preacher. Previously the Gallery possessed only Gainsborough's portrait of "A Negro." Four of the pictures by the foregoing artists were secured by the National War Memorial Committee, which functioned from 1916 to 1919 under the direction of Lord Beaverbrook These were Reynolds' "Lord Amherst," Lawrence's "Sir Alexander Mackenzie," Romney's "Joseph Brant,' 'and West's "Death of Wolfe." The last named was presented to the committee by the Duke of Westminster in appreciation of Canada's part in the war.

The newly-acquired Cariani is a portrait of a member of the artist's family, painted in 1510, and at one time a piece in the Thiem collection at San Remo.

The portrait of an unknown German nobleman by Bartel Beham (1502-1540) strengthening the Teutonic section at the National Gallery. Beham was a painter of the school of Albrecht Durer, and did most of his work in Munich and Italy.

Antonio Moro, whose portrait believed to be "Marguerite de Valois," is one of the six lately bought, was a Flemish painter who flourished from 1512 to 1576. A number of Moros are still to be found in England, where most of his best work is held by collectors. Moro's most familiar portrait is that of "Sir Thomas Gresham, founder of the Royal Exchange."

A landscape by Moreland rounds off the recent acquisitions. It is entitled "The Wreckers," and is representative of this artist's work.

Harvester-Miners Raise Furore

SAYS MINERS MAY DO WELL

Irish Free State Senator Lauds Men, Country and Treatment.

BLAMES COMMUNISTS

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 21 (Canadian Press).—"The majority of British miners who came to this country for the harvest have had a square deal and have been treated with every consideration," declared Lieut.-Colonel Sir John Keane, a Senator of the Irish Free State, and a director of the Bank of Ireland, who returned here yesterday from a trip to the West. During his stay in Canada, Sir John attended the Canadian Bar Association Convention at Regina. He sails for Ireland to-day.

"Of course, when one is dealing with such a large number, one is bound to come across a certain number who are discontented," continued Sir John. "The actual number of discontents is comparatively small, but what they lacked in number they seem to have made up in noise. I have every reason to believe that at least eighty per cent of the whole will make good.

"From what I could gather," added Sir John, "it would appear that those who were really anxious to work stuck together, found work, and are doing well; but, unfortunately there was a small minority who were not only discontented from the commencement, but were never really anxious to get work. These were aided by the Communists in Winnipeg, and I must say their behaviour was disgraceful. I have nothing but praise for the majority of the miners and admiration for the way they have adapted themselves to this new and very trying work."

Leaving this subject, Sir John branched out into the question of immigration from the Old Country, and said: "I think the schemes which Great Britain have on hand at the present moment for peopling the Dominions are excellent, and when I get back to Ireland, and the right opportunity arises, I am going to see what can be done on a similar scale for my countrymen."

Commanded Kron Prinz Wilhelm, Raider; Drops Dead On Bridge Of Atlantic Liner

NEW YORK, September 21 (Canadian Press). — Captain Kart Grahn of the Stuttgard, senior captain of the North German Lloyd Line, dropped dead of heart trouble on the liner's bridge yesterday as the ship was backing from her Hoboken pier, bound for Southampton, Boulogne, and Bremen.

News of his death was received at the line offices in a radiogram from J. Clare, first officer, who assumed command upon Captain Grahn' death, and kept the vessel on her course.

Captain Grahn, who had been an officer on vessels of the line for thirty-one years, was to have assumed command of the Europa, the line's 1,000-foot vessel, upon its completion next spring.

Prior to the World War, Captain Grahn commanded the Kron Prinz Wilhelm. At the time war was declared, the liner, then near the West Indies, took on guns from a German war vessel, and travelled the North and South Atlantic as a raider for some time before she was interned in a South American port.

C.P.R. PLANS BIG EXPANSION IN TWO WESTERN PROVINCES

Buys Alberta Lines From Provincial Government for $25,000,000.

ACCESS TO PEACE RIVER

Construction Mooted of New Development in Northern Saskatchewan.

WINNIPEG, Man., September 21 (Canadian Press). — Announcement that the Canadian Pacific Railway will build a bridge across the Saskatchewan River at Nipawin, Sask., to connect with a line north of the river, was made by President Beatty, who passed through Winnipeg to-day on his way east from an extensive tour of the company's lines in the West. President Beatty's announcement is taken in some circles to mean that the Canadian Pacific Railway intends to build into and open up the north-eastern part of Saskatchewan and possibly go into The Pas.

The further statement of President Beatty that he thinks it "altogether likely that the company may find it desirable to extend the Melfort line north-east to Nipawin," will make Nipawin the northern terminal point of three branch lines if this indicated program is carried out.

It is thought that, while no confirmation was given by Mr. Beatty on the rumor that the company is entering The Pas next year from Saskatchewan, this seems to be borne out by the converging of so many lines at Nipawin.

Building from Nipawin, north and east, would open up rich, new agricultural and grazing lands in the general direction of The Pas.

The Canadian Pacific has under way an extensive branch line program in Saskatchewan this year, totalling 307 miles within the Province alone, on which 76 are already completed and in operation.

BUYS IN ALBERTA.

EDMONTON, September 21. — The Alberta Government has sold all its railways tothe Canadian Pacific Railway. This was announced yesterday afternoon, and indicated that President E. W. Beatty's offer announced as $25,000,000 for the province's three Government-owned lines was acceptable to Premier Brownlee and his Government.

The three lines concerned are the Edmonton, Dunvegan and British Columbia, the Central Canada, and the Alberta and Great Waterways.

The purchase price is: First, the payment of $25,000,000 as (a) assuming first mortgage bonds of the Edmonton, Dunvegan and British Columbia Railway to the extent of -9,420,000; (b) Payment of the sum of $15,500,000 as follows: $5,000,000 on the first of June, 1929; $5,000,000 in four years thereafter; balance $5,-500,000 in ten years thereafter with interest from the date of the sale.

The railways will be sold to the Canadian Pacific Railway with the express power to the Canadian National Railways to participate in half the obligation and half the benefits.

FALL WHEAT DOESN'T PAY

Say Farmers in Bailieboro District Where Less is Sown.

SEED SPROUTED

BAILIEBORO, Sept. 21 (Examiner Correspondence).—The fall wheat is once again sown for this season. There has not been nearly as large an acreage seeded this fall as there has been in previous years.

Several of the farmers who are not sowing as much this year, claim they cannot make sufficient capital out of their wheat compared with other seeds and grain to gamble on the prospects of a crop. One farmer states that no farmer can afford to grow fall wheat less than one dollar and a half per bushel, and even then his profits are small. There are so many risks to run before the crop is harvested, and if the ground is not prepared in excellent condition, and this takes a lot of labor at the busiest season of the year, the yield of the crop will be small. It is much easier to prepare the soil for a spring crop, and the guarantee of a crop is much more certain, these farmers say.

This season the land is in a very saddened condition and very difficult to prepare a seed bed and no doubt this also accounts for a smaller acreage of wheat being sown.

In the majority of cases the farmers are sowing from ten to fifteen acres less than in past year.

On account of the sprouted wheat this year it has been difficult to secure good seed, and farmers are sowing their wheat almost a third more per acre than is the custom, as they believe a portion of the sprouted wheat will not grow.

NEW INSTITUTE AT REMINGTON

Officers Elected for Branch Organized by District Officials.

MRS. HARRIS PRESIDENT

(Examiner Correspondence)

MADOC, Sept. 21.—On Tuesday afternoon Mrs. George Bailey of Harold, District President of North Hastings Women's Institute; Mrs. T. L. Nickle, secretary-treasurer; Miss Evelyn Bailey of Harold, and Mrs. W. E. Connor, district director of Madoc went by invitation to the home of Mrs. Ernest Moore at Remington to assist in organizing a branch of the Woman's Institute.

They were received with a most hearty welcome and Mrs. Bailey presided, opening by the singing of the Institute Ode. Mrs. Bailey presented the facts leading up to the request that the District Officers organize this branch. After some discussion in which Mrs. Bailey, Mrs. Nickle and Mrs. Connor endeavored to answer the questions asked, Mrs. Moore and Mrs. Rollins moved that a branch be organized. This was carried unanimously. Eighteen persons signified their intention to join.

On motion it was decided that this be called the Cooper-Remington Institute.

The vote was taken by ballot and Mrs. W. E. Connor and Miss Evelyn Bailey were appointed as scrutineers. The election result was as follows:

President—Mrs. W. G. Harris.

1st vice-president—Mrs. Ernest Moore.

Secretary-treasurer—Mrs. Stanley Rollins.

District Director—Mrs. W. J. Rollins.

Directors—Mesdames W. J. Rollins, J. Woods, F. Keene and Reynolds.

Program committee for next month —Mesdames Harris, Moore and H. Rollins, Jr.

Organist—Mrs. Will Rollins.

It was decided to hold tne meetings on the third Wednesday of each month, one meeting at Cooper and one at Remington alternately.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. W. G. Harris, Cooper.

The newly appointed officers spoke briefly and earnestly as to their purpose to fulfill the duties of their offices to the best of their ability and asked for the earnest co-operation of all the members to make the new Institute a success.

A hearty vote of thanks was ten-

HOUSE AND BARN ARE BURNED DOWN

James Curtis and Family Rendered Homeless By Fire Near Pontypool.

(Examiner Correspondence).

PONTYPOOL, Sept. 21.—The frame house and barn belonging to James Curtis were destroyed by fire on Friday. Mr. Curtis is employed in the Government Forestry two miles east of his home, and the children were away at the School Fair at the time. When Mrs. Curtis first noticed the fire it was in the barn, and she had to run to the camp for help. On returning she found the house ablaze also. The contents of the house were saved, but the implements and feed in the barn were destroyed.

The buildings were insured for $500 each. Mr. Curtis and family are now staying at the Forestry Camp.

JAILED MINERS MAY BE FREED

Department of Justice Considering Case of Men Who Stole Ride.

NO DEPORTATION

OTTAWA, Sept. 21.— The department of justice has under consideration the case of the British harvesters sentenced to Burwash jail for beating their way back from the west on a C.P.R. train. The cases are unprecedented and are being given careful consideration before a decision is made. The men were sent to jail in lieu of fines they could not pay. It is claimed they had a right to the transportation they stole.

If clemency is extended and the men are released the department of immigration will see they are given their transportation back to Great Britain. They will not have to return under the ignominy of deportation, as is the case with men released from jail, but will be given the same treatment as accorded other harvesters previously returned, says F. C. Blair, acting deputy minister of immigration.

The men were convicted of a breach of the railway act and so the department of immigration had nothing to do with the case, nor can it take any action Their release, if it comes, must be on the initiative of the department of justice and there is a possibility that they may be released.

Release is Recommended.

SUDBURY, Sept. 21.—Release and return to the British Iles for the British harvesters serving a 30-day term at Burwash for "beating their way" on the C.N.R. has been recommended to the minister of justice at Ottawa by District Magistrate Stoddart who sentenced them from Capreol. He was requested to tender a report on the case.

SCHOOL FAIR SUCCESSFUL

Large Number of People Present at Hall's Bridge Exhibition.

EXHIBITS ARE GOOD

HALL'S BRIDGE, Sept. 21.—On Wednesday, September 19, the school fair was held on the grounds of the Hall's Bridge school, where Miss Tretheway of Peterborough is the teacher. This was the first school fair ever held at Hall's Bridge and the weather, although a little cool, was on the whole, ideal for the occasion. There were eight schools participating of which six were from the Township of Harvey, one from the Indian Village, and one from S.S. 16, Smith. A great variety of agricultural products, poultry, livestock, fancy work, etc., was exhibited and the schools participating are to be congratulated on the co-operation which resulted in the success which the fair achieved.

R. F. Downie, of Peterborough, school inspector, acted as judge for the singing and public speaking contests. Before giving his decisions, he congratulated the schools on the success of the fair and called for the hearty co-operation of the parents for future fairs. He was glad to notice that the fair had been so well patronized by the community as a whole.

The schools presented a drill and the Hall's Bridge school was adjudged the winner.

Several races were then run off and results were thus:

Boys' three-legged race—Gordon McIlmoyle and Gerald Fulton.

Girls' three-legged race—Verna Allen and Elsa Weiss.

Wheelbarrow race—Gordon McIlmoyle and Gerald Fulton.

School teachers' race—1, Miss Sutton; 2, Miss Tretheway.

PEDESTRIAN IGNORED.

TORONTO, September 21. — "Pedestrians do not seem to be considered in road construction," stated Chief Justice Latchford in the Second Appellate Court yesterday on hearing certain facts presented by T. N. Phelan, K.C., in an auto accident on Bloor Street, east of the Dundas Highway, near Islington. "They don't seem to have any right on the highway according to practice."

His Lordship, of course, was not referring to legal rights, but to the lack of footpath convenience along the highways.

North Smith.

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 21 (Examiner Correspondence).—The North Smith School Fair was held at S. S. No. 6 Smith (locally known as Pattrick's School), on Tuesday, September 18, and while the fair was not as large as former years owing to the absence of the Young's Point school, nevertheless there was a good turn out of children and parents and grandparents. It was a place of meeting where friends came together and enjoyed one another's company. There was a good deal of good humored sectional pride in the school and nothing but admiration and goodwill for the teachers, a spirit which contributes much to the success of the fair. The exhibits were excellent with good entries in nearly every class; the vegetables were splendid and some fine specimens were shown. The writing and drawing were remarkably good, and the exhibit of eggs was large in both white and brown classes. The taste of the children in poultry appeared to run largely to barred rocks, although a few wyandottes and leghorns (both white) were shown.

The needlework of the girls was not in quantity up to what one could expect, although the quality was good.

The collection of baking was good and in the school lunch class there were ten entries—seven put up in the metal lunch cases, two in pails and one in a basket. The domestic science judging competition for girls dealt with the lunches and Miss Hopkins of Lindsay was in charge and judged the work of the girls. Decided promise was shown in the workmanlike manner that these girls proceeded with their task.

The same spirit of interest and absorption in an interesting subject was shown by the boys in their live-stock judging competition, and one can't help but feel that the agricultural industry of to-morrow must reap untold benefit from these school fairs of to-day.

One exhibit which was remarkably interesting was the collection of native woods correctly named; three entries were shown and all were worth a second look.

Like the needlework class, the boys' manual training work was small in point of entries, but one can hope for improvement in these classes. The collections of apples and flowers were good in both quantity and quality.

The marching was remarkably good and the girls all in blue skirts and white middies (the latter nearly all had blue collars trimmed with white braid) looked like ideal Canadian school girls in the dress most becoming to young girls, and the boys in their neat shirt waists, all the children marching like veterans, paying strict attention to duty.

Miss Haig's school, S. S. No. 6 Smith, led the procession, the largest boy and girl carrying a large white banner bearing in red letters the name of the school, the entire school wearing scarlet paper caps with a white "6" dangling as a tassel. The effect was very happy and the conception original. There were 23 children in the school parade.

Following No. 6 came S. S. No. 7, Smith, with Miss Muriel Boyce, the teacher, the red banner with white letter was carried gy the two largest girls, the girls marching in order of size in front with the boys in the rear. Each puipl wore a red bandeaux with the name of the school. Twenty pupils were in the parade.

Miss Laird's school, S.S. No. 12, Smith, was third, the pupils wearing tri-color armlets and the banner of white, with red letters. This school numbered sixteen and made a brave showing. Fourth and last came S. S. No. 14, Douro (Pinsgrove), in charge of the teacher, Miss Mina Young. The banner showed a touch of originality in the pine trees which were painted on the white field, the pupils wore green and white streamers and the six last and smallest pupils carried pennants bearing the pine tree sign with the name of the school. Three on each side they marched, all very important with their special task.

The physical drill exhibitions of all the schools were good and the judges had a very difficult task as the first three schools were (in the eyes of the amateur) equally good.

The decisions were announced by Mr. Cox of the department, who awarded the first prize to S.S. No. 7, Smith, second to S.S. No. 6, Smith, third to S.S. No. 14, Douro and 4th to S.S. No. 12, Smith.

The singing competition followed and was interesting, and real talent was displayed, but the choice of selections appeared to be a matter of individual choice, which made a lack of uniformity and made the judging difficult. Kenneth Beavis scored a hit with the audience as he sang of the troubles of the small boy without a sister to wash the dishes. Myla Bogue sang Old Black Joe in costume and scored an instantaneous hit with the audience.

The public speaking contest brought out only one entry in the junior class, Zetta Graham who spoke on a dairy cow, an interesting subject as it is the source of the butter, milk, cream and cheese. In the senior class Edna Higgins spoke on the same subject, and in as interesting a manner, stressing the necessity of good housing.

Irene Davis gave a very interesting account of the Trent Canal, beginning with the early days when what is now called the Trent Waterways was the short cut used by the Indians coming from Lake Huron to Lake Ontario; it was the route used by Champlain more than three hundred years ago. Irene stressed the present advantages from a commercial point of view and as a tourist rendezvous. She showed a good practical knowledge of geography and also showed a deep interest in her subject.

Myle Bogue spoke on the subject of school fairs and in a clever speech she depicted the advantages of these fairs as an educational matter and also as a pleasing social function. She concluded with a telling argument regarding the advantages of the country schools over the city, where these fairs are not held and where the judging contests in domestic science and live stock cannot be held as readily.

R. F. Downey, Inspector of Rural Schools, announced the prize winners and gave some excellent advice and constructive criticism. He urged a greater amount of preparation in the pupils so that they can become masters of the situation. The speaker must realize that he or she must keep the audience in command, also the speaker must have a definite message and be convinced of its importance to get it across.

He announced the decisions and gave the reasons for these verdicts in a way which should bring out even better results next year.

J. B. Nelson, the agricultural representative, spoke briefly, commending the exhibits in the tent, inviting questions in regard to the judging and announcing the championship school fair to be held in Norwood on October 9th and 10th, which was open to all prize-winners at the smaller school fairs. It is hoped that there will be a thousand entries.

Mr. Gardiner gave an interesting talk on the vegetable exhibit, urging greater regard to uniformity in quality, and using some of the exhibits to illustrate the point.

The remainder of the afternoon was spent in viewing the exhibits and in a very interesting sports programme, which was run off by a committee of teachers, trustees and the gentlemen from the Department.

The weather was ideal, and the fair was entirely successful, both from an educational and community point of view.

The following is the prize-list:

GREAT MEN OF CANADA.

From the office of the Ontario Department of Education comes to The Examiner a copy of an interesting book, entitled "Great Men of Canada," written by John Henderson, and dealing in a non-partisan manner with the career of men who have been outstanding in Canadian history.

Copies of this book are now being sent to all the public, separate and secondary schools in the Province, with the object of arousing in the students of Ontario schools a greater interest in the lives of the men who have helped to make Canada great.

Last year, as a contribution toward the celebration of the Diamond Jubilee of Confederation, a pamphlet on the Fathers of Confederation was prepared by the department and distributed to the schools of the Province, and this year's presentation is a further effort to maintain and increase the interest of the students in their study of the great characters in Canadian history.

SHOULD BE PROTECTED.

The intersection of Charlotte and Park streets has been the scene of a number of accidents recently, and there seems to be a general belief among motorists that this danger point should be protected by electric traffic signals, such as are in use at George and Charlotte streets.

Certainly this is one of the places that should be considered by the Council when further signals are being discussed.

Past this intersection pours most of the traffic entering Peterborough, and as the north and south traffic is also heavy and the situation is further complicated by the fact that the streets do not cross each at right angles, there is obviously a need of some effective system of traffic control here.

The lights at George and Charlotte streets have been operating satisfactorily, and the installation of similar protection at the Park street intersection would considerably reduce the accident hazard.

The increasing number of accidents at this point justifies the adoption of some means of dealing with this situation, and automatic signals would seem to be the most satisfactory and surest way of preventing collisions.

A CHANCE FOR COL. PRICE.

Col. W. H. Price, Attorney-General of Ontario, was slated to formally open the Lindsay Central Exhibition to-day.

If the Attorney-General found time during his visit to inspect the midway he undoubtedly would discover much to interest him, particularly if some of the "games" were being operated there as they were here last week.

His department might find in this question of games of chance as conducted by carnival companies a profitable field for investigation.

While corner grocery stores are forbidden to operate punch-boards which each customer gets at least a chocolate bar for his ten cents and has an honest chance of winning a pound or two of candy, travelling outfits from another country are allowed to run games that are frankly gambling for money, and in which the operator in the booth is assisted by a gang of "shills" working among the crowd to lure the unwary into a transaction where the customer never wins.

There should be no place at fall fairs for out-and-out gambling for money, even where the honesty of the game is beyond dispute—which is seldom the case as some carnival games are conducted—and the Attorney-General would do well to see to it that explicit instructions to stop such gambling are given the police under his control.

ON THE RIGHT TRACK.

The decision of the Attorney-General's Department to investigate the death of young British immigrants in this Province when circumstances justify such a course, is in accord with public opinion.

There has been a number of cases where newcomers, suffering from home-sickness or from some other cause, have taken their own lives, and the reports of these suicides, when published in British newspapers, have injured the reputation of Canada in the Old Country.

"If a boy shoots himself or kills himself in any way," says Col. Price, "we should know all the particulars. It is all right to say that he committed suicide, but what we are going to find out is why he did it."

There is common sense in such a viewpoint.

If there are conditions in Ontario that cause young immigrants to end their lives rather than face the conditions any longer, it is time they were investigated and removed.

If there is anything that can be done to make the lives of these new citizens brighter and more cheerful, it is time that it was brought about.

There have been far too many cases of self-destruction among young Britishers here, and it has not always seemed that the inquiry as to the causes has been sufficiently deep.

PEACE PAYS BIG DIVIDENDS.

Commenting in the most complimentary way upon Premier King's address before the League of Nations the other day, in which the Canadian delegate emphasized the value of world peace and pointed with pride to the traditional friendship of Canada and the United States, the Washington Post used these words:

"The psychology of peace, which has been the basis of permanent good-will between Canada and the United States and which has conduced to their prosperity, can be attained by all nations if they will make a habit of renouncing war. This will remove the fear of war and with fear eliminated armaments can be reduced and abolished."

This is an excellent way of putting the situation. Canada and her American neighbor have developed the peace habit. It is an ingrained attitude with both countries. We do not think in any other terms. No one ever suggests even the possibility of war between these two nations. War is simply out of the question, for everyone appreciates that there is no matter that can arise between the two that is incapable of settlement by frank discussion.

Quite aside from the peace of mind and the general happiness that such a condition creates, Mr. King made it clear to his Geneva audience that more than a century of peace between Canada and the United States had paid these two countries excellent dividends. Instead of putting money into armaments along their three thousand miles of boundary line, Canada and the States, Mr. King pointed out, turned the money into constructive channels for the upbuilding of their countries. The inference, of course, was plain. Other nations could profit by the example set on this continent.

Europe can learn a worth-while lesson from the New World. Common sense in international relations pays big dividends.—Border Cities Star.

THE WAY TO DESTROY WAR.

(From the Buffalo Courier-Express)

There are, and naturally so, no doubt, a good many pessimists regarding attempts to outlaw war. They believe, and would have others believe, that war will continue, if not always, at least through many generations to come.

Such a view fails wholly, it seems to us, to take into account what representatives of Governments are thinking and saying to-day. For an instance, Lord Cushendun, pleading at Geneva for continued hope in the movement for disarmament, declared that the day would come when large armaments would be an "anachronism of shame," and that nations entering into war would incur disrepute among their neighbors.

Lord Cushendun is acting Foreign Minister of Great Britain while Sir Austen Chamberlain is absent on a trip for his health. He is a strong Conservative. In fact, his conservatism is so pronounced that it has been considered by some observers a serious obstacle to his chance to become the next British Foreign Minister in the event of Sir Austen's retirement. Nevertheless, Lord Cushendun predicts that the day will come when the world will look upon large armaments as an "anachronism of shame."

The significance of that statement can not well be exaggerated. One might suggest, of course, that Lord Cushendun was merely trying to smooth over a difficult situation created by Germany's complaint that so little progress had been made in disarmament. But that would be to dodge the real fact, which is that statesmen of every nation are becoming more and more anti-war-minded. Instead of holding to old beliefs that armament was necessary to a nation's preservation, they are coming to realize that the continuance of war would mean, as the late Lord Bryce said, the destruction of civilization, and that to make an end of war it is necessary to develop sentiment nationally and internationally against war and for peace so that armament may be scrapped. There is no other way to outlaw war definitely. This sentiment has been written into the Kellogg-Briand treaty. All that is required to make it an effective force for the complete overthrow of war is for the world, particularly the statesmen who deal with foreign affairs, to keep on talking about it.

NO FOOTHOLD HERE.

The evil shadow of the gangster has been thrown across Western Ontario within the last week. It is something new for this Province to be called on to provide a police bodyguard for a man who has been "marked for death" by the nabobs of organized vice. In the big cities of the United States, such incidents are accepted as part and parcel of the 1928 brand of civilization. Daily we read of gang wars, pitched battles on the streets between rival racketeers, bombings of the homes of court officials and politicians, but we have prided ourselves that we have been immune—that such a thing simply could not come to pass on this side of the boundary line. Now that it has, public opinion demands that the perpetrators be quickly run to earth and such an example made of them that others of their kind who might be tempted to ply their evil arts in Canada will be given something to think about. It has been definitely established that the gangsters who waylaid Samuel J. Low, president of the Erie Transit Company, liquor exporters, and sales manager of the Carling Brewing Company, on the highway between Chatham and London, bound and blindfolded him, and, after a period of confinement, released him only when they had exacted a promise that he would pay over the sum of $25,000, have their headquarters in the United States. Upon the advice of police, Low sent a decoy package, instead of the cash demanded, to the address given by the gangsters, and because he "double-crossed" them the threat of death has been visited upon him. The gangster who marks a man for a "ride" and then doesn't go through with his gruesome assignment loses caste, so the threatening notes that have been sent to Low must be taken seriously, and the probability is that he will remain in seclusion indefinitely—or until such time as the police on both sides of the border line effect the arrests of the blackmailers who picked on the exporter as a likely subject. If the criminals are caught, they will be put on trial in Canada, where justice is of sterner brand than it is in the United States. The gangster must not be allowed to get a foothold in this country. Upon the disposition of this particular case will depend whether others of a kind cross over to operate in the Dominion. The comment Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney-General, has made on the Low case is reassuring. "Speaking of the general aspect of the situation," he is reported to have said, "I may say that the Ontario department will protect Canadian citizens and proposes to take any necessary steps to safeguard Canadians and others within our borders. We do not intend to allow gunmen from the United States or from any other place to take the law into their own hands and commit depredations on Canadian soil. United States gunmen from Chicago, Detroit, New York or any other place are naturally under the law of that country, but when they step into Canada they come under Canadian laws and they will find that our justice is swift."—Hamilton Spectator.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Apparently this fall into every fair a little rain must come.

It is not likely that ex-Magistrate Bradford was on the reception committee when Attorney-General Price visited Lindsay to-day.

Everybody in the United States, except the voter, seems to know that prohibition is not the issue in the presidential election.

Premier Ferguson is listening in vain, if he expects to hear much cheering, following the announcement of a proposed increased gasoline tax.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, Sept. 21.—In addition to some three score cattle in the fresh receipt there were 1,200 over from Wednesday in the offering on the yard's market yesterday morning. Very few beef buyers put in an appearance and stockers and feeders made up the bulk of a light movement, which reduced the supply of cattle in the yards by only a few carloads. The stores were turned over at steady prices, showing a range of 8 to 10¼ cents per pound, a load of shortkeep feeders weighing-up at the top. Cows and bulls, to the extent of a dozen head, sold steady at the week's quarter to a half decline on those classes. A drizzling rain throughout the morning did not tend to encourage interest in the holdover from the heaviest run of cattle for a week this season, and trading was over by noon, with around 800 head unsold.

Veal calves, in a light fresh supply, sold steady with Wednesday's slight decline, the lot making a range of 9 to 16 cents per pound. A few grassers that arrived late Wednesday brought 7¾ to 8 cents, or a shade higher than the range on grassers at midweek.

Demand for lambs was poor and only some three score out of a 200-head offering of sheep and lambs sold, a few good ewes and wethers making 13 cents and some light lambs 12¼ cents per pound. A couple of dozen shep, plain to good, sold from 3 to 6 cents per pound. Lambs, in the heaviest run for the season to date, sold a cent per pound lower than last week, and sheep also were easier, few making better than 6½ cents per pound in the week's marketing.

With receipts by rail amounting to less than a carload, and but a few in by truck, hogs sold from steady at the week's quarter decline to another quarter lower at 13¼ to 13½ cents per pound being the range on bacon selects, w.o.c. Bids for week-end arrivals were at the lower figure.

MONTREAL GRAIN.

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 21—(Canadian Press).—The only business transacted with foreign buyers in grain here yesterday was the sale of a few loads of wheat to the United Kingdom for September shipment.

There was no further change in the domestic market for cash grain, prices being steady with a moderate amount of business passing in car lots for local and country account.

There were no new developments in the local flour situation, prices for spring and winter wheat grades being maintained with a fair amount of business passing.

The undertone to the market for millfeed was strong and higher prices are expected in the near future owing to the continued good demand, and the fact that supplies in millers' hands are being reduced rapidly. There was a fair demand for standard grades of rolled oats and the prices ruled firm.

Owing to the high prices being demanded by farmers for baled hay in the country, a stronger feeling prevailed in the local market and prices were marked up another $1.00 per ton. Sales of car lots of extra No. 2 timothy hay were made at $15.00 to $16.00 per ton, No. 2 timothy hay at $14.00, No. 3 timothy and clover mixed hay at $13.00 to $13.50 per ton, f.o.b. cars here.

Montreal Produce.

An active trade was done in eggs in a jobbing way, and ass upplies of fresh continue ample for immediate requirements there was no change in prices, but the undertone to the market was very firm. The demand for storage eggs was also fair, and on the whole a fairly large business was done at unchanged prices. The receipts were 908 cases.

There were no new developments in the market for imported beans, but the undertone was strong on account of the very limited supplies available on spot for which there was a good inquiry. Sales of small lots of choice white hand-picked were made at $4.20 to $4.40 per bushel, ex-store, and car lots to arrive were quoted at $4.00 per bushel, ex-track.

There were no further developments in the local butter situation, the undertone to the market being steady, but the volume of new business showed no improvement on account of the absence of any important demand from outside interests. The receipts were 540 packages.

A feature of the cheese trade was the firmer feeling in the market for Western and Eastern second grades owing to the somewhat limited supply available on spot for which there was an increased demand, and sales were made at 22½c to 22¾c per pound, with 22¾c per pound asked. On the other hand the market for the higher grades was again easier, and prices were a fraction lower with some business passing on spot. The receipts were 5,973 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Sept. 21 (Canadian Press).—Persistent stiffening of grain values yesterday accompanied news that in parts of the American northwest farmers are storing 80 per cent of their wheat. Talk was current here that this holding policy together with a similar course by the Canadian Grain Growers' Pool, is undoubtedly responsible for firm prices at this time.

Closing quotations on wheat were steady at ¼ to ½c net higher; corn ⅝ to 1⅜c up; oats showing ¼ to ⅝c advance, and provisions 10 to 27c down.

According to trade reports which were widely circulated, the virtual completion of the 1928 domestic wheat harvest northwest is going hand in hand with an evident disposition of farmers to store their wheat at home or at country elevators. Meanwhile, leading authorities here were quoted as saying that political considerations are being effective toward price advances. Need of rain in Australia and Argentina was likewise spoken of as a bullish factor, and so, too, were unsettled labor conditions in both countries. Late reports, however, told of showers in Argentina and of a forecast of rain in Australia.

On the other hand, enormous accumulation of wheat was said to be apparent both north and south of the Canadian boundary. Minneapolis stocks were reported as up almost 2,000,000 bushels in five days, with Duluth showing 2,627,000 bushels increase, and Canadian marketings making a new peak almost daily, and no signs of any betterment of export demand.

Country deliveries of wheat yesterday in the Canadian Prairie Provinces totaled 8,881,000 bushels, against 775,000 bushels a year ago. Export business in wheat from North America was estimated at but 250,000 bushels.

Corn and oats shared the strength of the wheat market. Besides, corn was responsive to indication of active eastern demand, 7 ½cents over the price of September delivery being offered for No. 2 yellow available to be shipped at once. Frost predictions for last night were largely counterbalanced by official reports that more than half of the corn, in Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas and Indiana is safe from frost.

Provisions eased down, paralleling the action of hog values.

CHICAGO PRODUCE

CHICAGO, Sept. 21 (Canadian Press).—Butter yesterday continued barely steady, with the undertone easy and unsettled. The centralized car market ruled nervous, and supplies were ample to the light demand.

Fresh: 93 score, 47c; 92, 46c; 91, 45½c; 90, 45c; 89, 44c; 88, 43c; 87, 42½c.

St. John.—The local egg market continues dull. There has been a very noticeable falling off in demand recently. This is attributed to the poor quality of eggs which have been appearing on the market and to the close of the tourist season. BUTTER AND EGGS

TORONTO, Sept. 21.—Receipts of Canadian butter are reported to be decreasing, but it is pointed out that that is the usual situation at this time of the year. The prediction is that the market quotations will for some time hold steady at just about the prices now prevailing. Though shipments from New Zealand, which amount to many millions of pounds, already have been arranged for, will not reach Canada for more than two months from now, the fact that such purchases have been consummated has a restraining effect on market prices. About 8,000,000 pounds of butter already has been purchased

GOD'S MINUTE.

I command thee this day to love the Lord thy God.—Deut. 30: 16.

Our Heavenly Father, we come to Thee this morning with praise and thanksgiving for Thy care and love. We are grateful for the temporal blessings Thou hast given us, and for the loved ones we have to enjoy. We thank Thee for the gift of Thy Son, and for the Holy Spirit.

We ask Thee to forgive our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness. Be with us this day, and help us to be kind and courteous. Help us to be more like Thee. May our eyes be opened to the opportunities, for serving Thee and helping others to know Thee, Whom to know aright is life eternal.

May Thy Spirit be with those, at home or abroad, who preach or teach salvation, and grant that the word preached may not return unto Thee void. Be with those in authority, and may they rule with justice and equity. Comfort "as one whom his mother comforteth" those in trouble and sorrow, and strengthen those in sickness.

Our Father, hear our petition, and keep us this day without sin, for the sake and in the name of Jesus, our Saviour. Amen.

ENERGY.

Energy will do anything that can be done in the world; and no talents, no circumstances, no opportunities will make a man without it.—Goethe.

The longer I live the more I am certain that the great difference between men, between the feeble and the powerful, the great and the insignificant, is energy—invincible determination, a purpose once fixed, and then death or victory. That quality will do anything that can be done in this world; and no talents, no circumstances, no opportunities, will make a two-legged creature a man without it.—Thomas Fowell Burton.

Whether you buy a Goodyear Tire next month or next year—in Toronto, in Vancouver or in Cape Town—the quality is always the same.

Ladies and Their Husbands Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Crowe.

WARSAW, Sept. 21.—Mr. and Mrs. Crowe entertained the members of the Presbyterian Ladies' Aid and their husbands at their home on Tuesday evening. A good representation of the members was present. A few of the men were evidently afraid to come.

There was a short business meeting and a committee was appointed to see what could be done about a new carpet for the pulpit.

About nine cheeses are being made daily.

THE RANIEST SPOT ON EARTH.

The world's wettest farm lies on the gulf of San Blas in Eastern Panama. Known as the San Blas Farm, it is the headquarters for a large banana plantation. In three months, says Popular Science Monthly, the rainfall there totalled 137.12 inches—three times as much as is usually recorded in Washington, D.C., in a year.

There is no place in the world, meteorologists says, where rain does not fall at one time or another. Even in deserts it rains occasionally. It is said a Yuma, Arizona, hotel has displayed for fifteen years a sign reading: "Free meals every day the sun does not shine." No free meals have been served, because rain has come only in short showers with sunshine between.

Emphatic denials have been made by Canadian immigration and railway authorities at Ottawa, Winnipeg, and Montreal to charges by members of the British Parliamentary Association that a party of 328 disgruntled British miner-harvesters were "herded" into a "cage" at Winnipeg before being put on a train for Montreal, from which they will be sent back to England on White Star and Cunard Lines. Deputy Minister of Immigration Egan stated that the men were properly treated and everything done for them it was possible to do. "We fed them over the week-end," he said, "but we could not go on indefinitely feeding men who refused the jobs offered them." Above is shown the interior of one of the men's dormitories of the C.N.R. immigration shed at Winnipeg where the harvesters were quartered before entraining for Montreal.

JUBILEE MEDAL NOW PREPARED

Striking Design Prepared For Reverse of Confederation Memorial.

GOLD MEDALS STRUCK.

OTTAWA, Sept. 21.—(Special to The Examiner).—One of the final tasks of the National Diamond Jubilee Committee, which arranged the celebration last year of the Sixtieth Anniversary of Confederation, has been the preparation of an official commemorative medal.

The records of 1867 showed that the Government of Sir John A. Macdonald issued a medal commemorating the Confederation of the Provinces. This medal, which was designed and struck in England, showed on the obverse the effigy of Queen Victoria and on the reverse a group of five figures symbolizing the handing by Britain to the four original Provinces of the pact of Confederation.

In designing a medal commemorating the Diamond Jubilee, the National Committee decided to show on the obverse an effigy of His Majesty King George V and on the reverse a single figure which would in some measure represent the spirit of unity and strength which has been developed in Canada during the last sixty years. A number of Canadian artists assisted the Committee in working out its idea and a design of C. W. Jeffreys of Toronto was finally adopted as expressing most accurately the views of the Committee. The general idea conveyed by this design was afterwards translated in his own original way into medallic art by the eminent sculptor and engraver, Raymond Delamarre, of Paris, France.

Striking Design.

A new effigy of His Majesty King George V, which is the work of one of the foremost British artists, Sir Bertram McKennal, is used on the obverse. The reverse shows a figure which admirably typifies the qualities of youth, energy and confidence in the future. By its position, facing the Atlantic, from which blows a strong invigorating breeze, there is a suggestion of the cultural origins of our people and of the ideals of liberty and justice inherited from overseas. The figure stands on a pedestal bearing the dates 1867-1927.

Surrounding the pedestal are sheaves of wheat and wreaths of maple leaves and in the background a map of Canada, in the upper part of which the shield from the Canadian coat-of-arms appears. On the Atlantic side of the map are the names of the first discoverers, Cartier and Champlain, and on the Pacific side those of Cook and Vancouver. The whole is surrmounted with the Latin motto from the Canadian coat-of-arms, "A mari usque ad mare".

The National Committee is happy to acknowledge the splendid co-operation of the London and Paris Mints in the production of the original dies of this medal. The dies arrived in Canada early in August and the work of striking the medal is proceeding at the Royal Mint in Ottawa. The medal is three inches in diameter—one of the largest ever handled by the Ottawa Mint. All the metal used is from Canadian mines and the medal is thus a happy combination of British, French and Canadian artistic and technical effort.

Gold Medals Given Out.

The Committee has ordered gold medals to be struck for His Majesty the King, for His Excellency the Governor-General of Canada and for the Prime Minister of Canada. Gold medals will also be presented to H.R.H. the Prince of Wales and to the Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, Prime Minister of Great Britain, who paid a special visit to Canada in connection with the Jubilee ceremonies last year. A gold medal will also be deposited in the Dominion Archives. Silver medals will be struck for Her Excellency the Viscountess Willingdon and for H.R.H. Prince George, who accompanied the Prince of Wales on his visit last year, for members of the Privy Council of Canada, the Lieutenant Governors of the Provinces and the Prime Ministers of the Provinces. Bronze medals will be presented the Senators and members of the House of Commons, to members of the Provincial Governments, to the surviving sons and daughters of the Fathers of Confederation, to members of the National Diamond Jubilee Committee and to officers of the Provincial Diamond Jubilee Committees. The medals are being struck as rapidly as possible at the Royal Mint and it is hoped that the distribution will be completed before the end of the present year.

The Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Prime Minister of Canada, took advantage of his trip to Europe in connection with the signing of the Kellogg treaty to present gold medals to His Majesty the King, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales and the Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin.

MUSICAL MASTERPIECES.

According to a learned music critic there are just twenty-five musical masterpieces. When this news was cabled to New York the alert city editors on th newspapers sent their reporters scurrying to interview the musical notables.

Eva Leoni, the famous Hungarian prima donna, who is now the star of the Phonofilm, was one. "Yes," she admitted, "there must be 25 musical masterpieces. And at least 300 of them are Russian, and an equal number are Italian, and probably another 300 of the 25 are French, while the rest are divided amongst the other musical nations."

Questions and Answers.

Question: W. K. F. writes: "My doctor says my trouble is due to hypererythrocythemia, but he also tells me there is nothing to be done to cure it as the cause is not known. I hope you can offer me some suggestions and encouragement about a cure."

Answer: The long-sounding name given your trouble is an attempt to describe a condition which actually exists in certain patients where there is an increase in the number of red blood cells over the normal. My researches have shown that such an extra amount of red cells is produced through a definite irritation of the nervous system, including the brain and spinal cord. Such irritation is apparently caused by some simple toxemia, as it can be very easily cured. Out of many cases treated I have never seen one that did not respond very quickly to a fast of a few days. Have your blood count taken at some responsible laboratory, then stop all food for at least five days, except fruit juice and water, and then have another blood count made. You will find the red cells reduced to normal or very closely to it. If not quite normal after the five days' fast, continue the fast for a few days more. A correct diet afterwards will prevent any recurrence of the toxemia which is apparently responsible.

Question: Mrs. R. H. asks: "Would eating buckwheat cakes be injurious to a woman of sixty-five who has eczema, acid stomach and constipation?"

Answer: If you will watch my health menus published in your paper each week you will see that I never advise buckwheat cakes, and certainly in your case such food should not be used. Send for special articles explaining the cause and cure of the disorders mentioned, enclosing a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Salvador's most important export products—coffee and sugar—are shipped in imported jute bags, 65 per cent of which are purchased in England and 20 per cent in India.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS— by John Hix

ENGINEERS' WORK VERY IMPORTANT

Sir William Ellis Tells Association of Part in Progress.

GLASGOW, Sept. 21 (by the Canadian Press).—The strong influence of engineering on civilization was stressed by Sir William Ellis in his address as president of the engineering section of the British Association for the advancement of Science, when the British Association gathered here this month. Transport, Industry, and Health were the three great phases of the modern world in which engineering played an outstanding part.

Sir William illustrated that in the early part of the 19th century, main roads did not exist to any great extent, and all roads were in a very inferior condition. The engineer stepped in and by revolution of transport methods, introduction of the modern road and of motor-driven vehicles, of the fast railroad and of the steamer—performed an invaluable work. The very existence of the population in large cities in health and comfort is the result of the engineer's work, for without an ample and reliable supply of good water and an efficient drainage control, the death rate would be greatly different from what it actually is, he said.

The noble bridges all over the world, the great reservoirs and harbors, Sir William termed the "cathedrals of engineering." He could not definitely say that any one branch of engineering held premier position in association with modern civilization. But if the value of the work was considered on the basis of the greatest good to the greatest number, some of the luxuries and comforts of modern travel, whether by road, air or water, must take a second place, much as they are appreciated. He thought such questions as purity and sufficiency of water supply for large cities, coupled with scientific drainage, were the first essentials of comfort and therefore it was in this field perhaps that engineers had done their greatest work.

Sir William tentatively suggested that the great universities would do well to apply education in general engineering problems for the first two years of a university course, and allow an honors degree to be taken in one or other of the special branches of engineering. He said it was unreasonable to expect a student to take a degree, in the short time at his disposal, if this had to cover all branches of engineering science.

Sir William pointed out the great achievements of engineers in the more important fields—the building of huge liners; the introduction of electric tramways; the development of turbine systems which revolutionized water transport; the creation of ever-new, high speed machinery which makes possible all kinds of manufacture; ventilationsystems and many other improvements which benefit the mines of the world; and development in the electric world which perhaps is the most spectacular of all advances in recent years, and which enables cheap light, heat and power for the masses. In this latter connection he paid special tribute to the leadership of hydro-electrical experts of Canada.

CIVIL AVIATION ENTERS NEW ERA

Experimental Stage Passed and Empire Air Development Reached.

London, Sept. 21 (By the Canadian Press).—The end of the experimental stage in British civil flying and the beginning of important developments in Empire air communications is signalized by the announcement of Imperial Airways' first dividend. Operation costs on British airways have now been cut to one-third, and it is hoped that before long London will be linked by high-speed aeroplane service with the Dominion capitals.

Already, disregarding the regular London-Continental services, British planes are flying on schedule between Cairo and Baghdad. A weekly service to India will be opened in the next few months.

New flying boats, built to carry 15 passengers in a capacious boat-hull over distances of more than 500 miles without a stop, have been handed over to Imperial Airways for operation on the overseas sections of the Empire route to the East and Australia. Other schemes provide for establishment of aeroplane routes to Cape Town, negotiations for which are now proceeding.

There is no doubt that 1928 has seen civil flying in Britain and Europe make greater strides than in any earlier year. This new form of transportation is beginning to make inroads on the traffic of the railways, roads and steamers. The luxurious modern air-liner offers advantages over even the latest train and finest steamer over a short distance. Women travellers, who in former years shunned the air lines, are now the majority of passengers on the cross-channel air liners.

FRENCH EDITOR SAYS THAT ENGLAND IS STILL VICTORIAN

This Statement is Made in Spite of All the Modern Parties.

OLD CUSTOMS SURVIVE

"Great Britain Still Has Her Lessons to Give, But Who Heeds Them?"

PARIS, Sept. 21 (By the Canadian Press.)—Despite lipstick and jazz, bottle and pajama parties and midnight mixed bathing, England is still Victorian. At least that is the verdict of M. Lucien Romier, the French journalist who is now Chief Editor of the "Figaro." He has visited many lands and now wants to see England and Scotland again. Not that he has not already made up his mind about the island and its inhabitants. He has already done so and perhaps only to whet his appetite for his next visit he gives his views to his readers:

"You have to go to Great Britain, —not London"—he says, "In order to get away from British snobbery and that American snobbery which has permeated the world. In Great Britain you will still find that good fellowship, genuineness and old, provincial spirit which the British have always showered on the visitor with such exquisite courtesy.

"Nowhere in the world do the old customs of Europe survive as in old England and honest Scotland.

"Great Britain still has her lessons to give but who heeds them? She struggles, but on the whole she is still in the Victorian era. A kind of heavy overpowering spirit of the past pervades the atmosphere—the imagination and breath of the new world are missing.

"Though Jeremiahs talk of overpopulation, trade crises, crushing taxation, high cost of living, I do not believe their prophecies of the decline of Great Britain. Even in the suburbs you will find that family uprightness and solidity. Sense of national duty, respect for all that serves or represents the general interest are visible everywhere.

"England, the head of the greatest Empire that has ever existed is patiently and painfully seeking a fresh balance between her needs and her strength. In her search she does not seem to be able to shed the very genuine friendship her people feel towards France."

"CAN'T PAY"—DEAD

LONDON, Sept. 21.—"I cannot pay my rent," said a note on the door of a veterinary's home at Cheltenham. The landlord called police who forced an entrance and found the occupant dead. It is believed that financial worries caused the surgeon to commit suicide.

DENY REPORTS OF TROUBLE

Under the leadership of John B. Fuller, a party of four Iowa State University students, who for months have been exploring the far northern districts in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, returned to The Pas, Man., recently. They were in the best of health and emphatically denied reports, broadcast some time ago from Lac Du Brochet, a little Hudson Bay post far north of The Pas, that they ever had been lost or had suffered privation through lack of necessary equipment to traverse the trails and streams of the northland. Fuller and two of his companions, Peder C. Boddum and Gordon C. Armstrong, are returning to their homes in Iowa, while the fourth member of the party, Max J. Kane, will stay in the north, having accepted employment with a Dominion survey party. In the above picture the expedition is shown in northern costume.

INSTITUTE HEARS SPLENDID REPORTS

Mount Pleasant Women Are Entertained My Mrs. Melville Jones.

(Examiner Correspondence)

MOUNT PLEASANT, Sept. 21.—Mrs. Melville Jones entertained the members of the Mount Pleasant Branch of the Women's Institute at her home on Wednesday afternoon. The president, Mrs. Thomas Graham was in charge and the roll call was answered by six members the subject being "A quotation from a favorite author." Mrs. Rutherford and Mrs. Jamieson reported regarding the canvass made for funds towards the repairs of the Hall.

A report of the Girls' Judging Competition, which was prepared by Mrs. Ira Lowe, was read by Mrs. T. C. Morden in the absence of the former, also a report of the activities of the Women's Institute at the C.N.E. was given by Mrs. Morden who had attended the Exhibition with Mrs. Lowe, representing the Mount Pleasant Branch at the luncheon given to members of twenty years or over and to those who had held the office of president or secretary during the past three years.

Suggestions were discussed for raising money, Mrs. Rutherford and Mrs. Jamieson suggesting that the Fairmount ladies be asked to give the play, "Strictly Business." Mrs. Lowe, Mrs. Garnet Shields and Mrs. Norman Fee were appointed as a committee in charge of the arrangements for this play.

Mrs. W. H. Lowes and Miss Finley suggested that Cavan Institute be invited to visit Mount Pleasant Institute at the October meeting to be held at the home of Mrs. Norman Fee.

Mrs. Thomas Graham contributed with a paper relating to the life and work of Mrs. Hoodless, who organized the first Women's Institute. A reading, "Mrs. O'Brien's Travels", was given by Mrs. Jamieson. A social half-hour was spent at the close and a dainty lunch was served.

Among those present included Mrs. A. Rutherford, Mrs. V. Jones, Mrs. J. Boyd, Miss Greta Boyd, Miss Ruth Windrim, Mrs. Thomas Graham, Mrs. W. H. Lowes, Miss Lena Finley, Mrs. T. C. Morden, Mrs. G. McLean, Mrs. H. Rutherford, Mrs. George Jamieson, Mrs. A Tully, Mrs. Rosenburgh, Mrs. Jones and Miss Helen Rutherford.

Catchacoma News

A party of well known Peterborough people and some guides from the north country are due here this coming week with apparatus to locate the famous Black Spring which has been referred to in the columns of The Examiner.

It having been established by the recent chemical analysis by the Government chemist at Toronto that some of these spring waters are mineral and carry the very valuable quality of iron in solution (not merely in suspension) so that it can be absorbed by the human system, a movement to put the spring on an efficient basis has been started and we may expect to hear any day of the re-discovery of the Black Pool (blackened by its iron) and of a larger migration of the seekers after health and strength to these northern highlands.

Rheumatism in its various phases and anaemia are about the only diseases likely to be greatly benefitted, however. But even that will be something.

Modern agricultural implements are used by those engaged in rice growing in the Nurrumbidgee irrigation area of New South Wales.

LEADERS ARE CONTRASTED

Leaders Present a Striking Diversity of Character and Appearance.

BIG FOUR OF CHINA

(By Glenn Babb, Associated Press Correspondent.)

PEKING, Sept. 21.—Four men are riding on the crest of the Nationalist Triumph, thrown up by the tide of the revolution to become by common assent the "big four" of Chinese Nationalism.

When in conference, as they were recently at the tomb of Dr. Sun Yat Sen near Peking and are now supposed to be in Nanking, they form the greatest concentration of power in the country. The sword is still a great deal mightier in China than the pen or any other symbol of civilian authority.

Chiang Kai-Shek is recognized as the commander-in-chief but his control over his fellow group commanders is much less than that of Foch over his allies in France in 1918.

This quartette presents a striking diversity of character and appearance. Chiang Kai-Shek is of middle height slender, handsome, rigid and formal in his carriage, dressed in a well-tailored uniform of olive drab, a Sam Browne belt setting off his trim figure. There is pride in his bearing and self consciousness, even a little of the theatrical, for Chiang seems never to forget that he is playing a leading role in a big drama. His face easily betrays his emotions. He has more sentiment and imagination than most of his fellows, too much, perhaps, ever to become the strong man in China.

Better cast for that role is Feng Yu-Hsiang, the one-time Christian General. He appeared for the Sun Yat-Sen memorial clad in a dirty blue cotton uniform, wrinkled and sagging, with muddy wrap puttees, Chinese cloth shoes, the ensemble topped by a straw hat covered against the threatening weather with the oiled cloth cover that is a part of the uniform of the second group. For all his uncouth exterior, Feng was the dominating figure of the group. Feng is six feet tall and weighs 220 pounds. His heavy features, even in rare moments of smiling, tell of intensity and seriousness. His proved capacity for manual or mental work, his powers of concentration and sustained effort set him apart among Chinese leaders.

Mild, self-effacing, apparently timid, Yen Hsi-Shan of Shansi is anything but the typical warlord. He is under middle height, rather dumpy and stooped, usually dressed in a loose, baggy type of uniform now known in China as the Sun Yat-Sen Uniform, with long tunic reaching almost to the knee and full slack trousers. His manner in the presence of his fellow generals is retiring, depreciating. Here is a man patently without sinister ambitions, one in whom confidence naturally is reposed.

The fourth member is a newcomer to this lofty plane, Li Tsung-Jen, native of Kwangsi and leader of the powerful military clique that bears the name of that province, home of fighting men. Small, slight, alert, he views the world with something like amused detachment and confidence in his own destiny. He disputes with Chiang Kai-Shek the sartorial leadership of the quartette. A youthful swaggering aspect belies his experience and known capacity for leadership.

ROAD CONVENTION DOMINION WIDE

Will Be Held in Regina September 25 to 27 Next.

REGINA, Sask., Sept. 21 (by the Canadian Press).—The motorist and the roads he travels will be under intensive discussion when the Canadian Good Roads Association holds its convention here from Sept. 25 to 27 next. All the multifarious aspects of highway building and maintenance and the varying traffic problems are up for annual review, with progress made in the past year to be reported and prospects for next year's activities reviewed.

The association is emphasizing its dominion-wide nature by holding the meeting here, since this will make the eighth different province in which the meeting has been held. Only Prince Edward Island remains unvisited.

The huge list of subjects to be introduced by experts and discussed by the delegates from all parts of the dominion shows clearer than anything else the importance of the meeting to the Canadian motorists and the dominion generally. They include improvements in methods of construction, modern methods in building gravel roads, treatment of roads with dust-layers and preservatives, civic responsibility for road improvement, conservation of road materials, responsibility of the dominion government in provincial highways, with especial reference to further federal aid in future, design of cement concrete highways and bridges, interprovincial co-operation, gasoline tax, speed regulations and highway traffic and safety signs.

FOUR-PIECE BAND ALL BY HIMSELF

Says Witness in Case of Williams, Charged With Murder.

KINGSTON, Sept. 21.—Evidence was submitted by counsel for the defence in an effort to prove Wilbert Richard Williams, on trial for the murder of his wife, Jenny Maude Williams, of unsound mind.

Evan Jones, caretaker of the Collegiate Institute in Picton, stated he knew the accused since 1923 when he came as a teacher at the school.

"Mr. Williams had very peculiar ways about him. He would reflect the rays of the sun with a small mirror. He would do this for an hour at a time, laughing to himself," said Mr. Evans. "He was a great boy to look in the glass. He would come on a Saturday morning and make a regular hobby of it, stand in front of the glass in the chemistry room for an hour perhaps. The last Easter before June, 1927, when he left, the accused took all the ashes of the stove and put them all over the floor. He put coal in the stove, then put excelsior underneath and tried to start a coal fire. The floors had all been freshly oiled.

"He had an orchestra, most comical of all. He had a drum and a fife and a tenor banjo. A whole orchestra of four pieces. He would play them all himself at once, and laugh away there for an hour at a time.

"I was notified to light a fire in the stove of the chemistry room one day," said Mr. Jones. "I did so and the stove blew up." Mr. Williams had put something in the stove.

Mrs. J. McCallum of Kingston stated that so far as she was concerned Williams had only two subjects of conversation, "suicide and regret at being married."

William F. Runnings, father of Jennie Maude Williams, who lived with the dead woman, stated that on August 15, 1928, he was at Sand Lake, near Elgin. "I did not want to go down. I was afraid there was trouble. He treated her so cruelly in every way except laying his hands on her. I could hardly keep my hands off him.. I knew he was ugly. I was afraid he would use violence during the night."

Dr. W. B. Hendry, D.S.O. (left), professor of obstetrics and gynaecology at the University of Toronto, has been elected a fellow of the American Association of Obstetricians, Gynaecologists and Abdominal Surgeons. Dr. Frederick Cleland of Toronto (right) has been chosen as one of the association's vice-presidents.

experience here. The commune of 1871 forced the government and troops to retreat from the old French capital ,and Paris was only recaptured after severe fighting with the communards.

The uneasiness of the Parisians on learning of the plan yesterday was not helped any by news that a huge red demonstration is scheduled for Saint-Denis Sunday. The government is determined not to allow the gathering if it takes as many troops as it took to put down the Sacco-Vanzetti mob a year ago, but the communis organ, l'Humanite, last night called on the French proletariat to defy the bourgeoisie despite the efforts of the troops.

Rains in Southern Fields Bring Wheat Prices Down

CHICAGO, Sept. 21 (Canadian Press).—Good rains throughout Argentina and showers in Australia had an early bearish effect to-day on wheat. Besides, indications pointed to as much as 6,000,000 bushels increase of domestic wheat visible supply figures on Monday next. Opening ¼ to ½ cent lower, wheat prices afterwards showed a slight further setback. Corn and oats held about steady, with corn starting unchanged to 1-8 cent higher, and subsequently keeping within fractional limits.

Opening prices were: Wheat, September 109¾; December 113 3-8. Corn, September 102 7-8; December 76 5-8. Oats, September 42½; December 42½.

Price Changes Small On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO, Sept. 21.— (Canadian Press.)—Trading was not confined to any particular group of stocks at the Toronto exchange this morning, but was evenly distributed over the larger part of the list. Prices failed to adopt any definite trend and selling was on a light scale. The Oils appeared to be in strong demand, but with the exception of two of these stocks, only fractional price changes were noted. Imperial continued to climb to higher ground and at 77 7-8 was up 7-8. International Petroleum followed its course, selling up to 40 7-8 for a gain of 1 3-8. The Dairy stocks weakened during the morning and in light trading both registered losses. City Dairy at 67 was down 1 1-8 and Farmers' at 23 was down three from its previous close. International Nickel remained firm and at noon was up ¾ to sell at 128¼. Kelvinator retained its increase of yesterdoay and advanced another ¾ at 9¼. Massey Harris, with a moderate turiover, was unchanged at 45½. Cockshutt Plow down a half at 30½, and Page Hersey down ¼ at 102¼.

Mine Session Slow With Trend Uncertain

TORONTO, Sept- 21.—(Canadian Press).—Boischatel, Barry Hollinger, Amulet, and Newbec were redeeming issues on a rather slow session of the Standard Mining Exchange to-day. Prices were inclined to be irregular with a good deal of liquidation occurring. Boischatel lead all trading during the morning, selling well over 90,000 shares, but was unchanged from its former price at 1¼. Barry Hollinger was up fractionally at 55½ and Amulet jumped up to $3.33, for a net increase of seven points. Newbec was steady and remained unchanged. Mond Nickel in light trading rose to $28.50, up $1.25. Pend Orielle was also on the upward movement, going to $13.80 to advance 55. Hudson Bay was up 15 at $20.35; Teck Hughes five at $9.00; Howey Gold Three at $1.08; Crown Reserve three at 53, and Abana two at $3.32. Sudbury Basin failed to retain its previous gain and eased off five points at $6.35. Noranda was off five at $51.8, while San Antonio in great activity was off one at 44.

COMMENT ON THE MARKET

A Special Service to The Examiner.

DISTILLERS-SEAGRAMS SHARES

A letter has gone forward to shareholders of Distillers Corp., Seagram, Limited, advising them of its declaration of an interim dividend of 25 units per share on the common stock. The letter follows:—

"As is already known to you this Company was incorporated on 2nd March, 1928, and has thus only been a little over six months in operation. The Subsidiary Companies whose shares comprise practically the entire assets of this Company have completed in the case of the Distiller Corporation Limited a full year's trading to 31st July last, and in the case of Joseph E. Seagram & Sons Limited, ten months' trading to the same date.

"Although the net result for the periods mentioned after providing for depreciation and income tax, has been quite satisfactory, your Directors have been advised that all profits made previous to 2nd March when this Company was incorporated should be regarded as Capital Surplus and be retained either in the Subsidiary Companies or if paid over to this Company, should be retained against Capital Account in this Company. Your Directors have elected to follow the first of these alternatives and have therefore only drawn from the Subsidiary Companies such dividends as are justified out of the profits of the five months trading from 2nd March to 31st July, 1928.

"It is not intended to close the accounts of this company until 20th September, 1929, which will permit of a further twelve months results being obtained from the Subsidiary Companies to 31st July, 1929, being the close of their respective fiscal years, and a resolution to that effect was passed by your directors at a meeting held on the 19th instant.

"At the same time your Directors declared an interim dividend of twenty-five cents per share payable on October 15th, 1928, to shareholders of record as of September 30th, 1928.

"The Directors desire to take this opportunity of informing the shareholders that the business continues to move in a satisfactory manner."

Oil Burning Plane.

What may yet mark a revolutionary step in the development of aircraft power comes from Detroit, Mich., where the Packard Motor Co. announce successful completion of test flights with an aeroplane powered by an oil-burning motor, the first Diesel type aircraft engine ever built.

Massey-Harris.

Massey-Harris Company has leased 45,000 square feet of space in Lee Building, Omaha, for its branch in that city. Retention of space formerly occupied by J. I. Case Plow Works at 517 S. Ninth St. in the same city gives Massey-Harris a total of 100,000 square feet in Omaha. Presumably, the extra space will be utilized for storing the broad line of farm implements manufactured by Massey-Harris Co., in addition to those of its new subsidiary, the J.I. Case Plow Works.

County of Middlesex Rejects All Tenders.

All tenders for the debentures ofthe County of Middlesex have been rejected. Bids were called up till yesterday on an issue of $132,748, 5% 15-year debentures, and this morning it was announced that tenders were unsatisfactory and were therefore turned down. The offering will doubtless be repeated at a later date when more favorable conditions prevail in the bond market.

City Dairy Named.

The Financial News Bureau understands that new affiliations in the dairy industry in Canada are in the making, and that if, as and when the news breaks it will be important from a stock market standpoint.

One company named in merger proceedings is City Dairy Company and the other the Canadian interests of Borden Company, which is one of the largest operators in dairy products in the United States and has lately increased in ramifications in the Dominion. If the amalgamation is consummated, the Canadian interests of Borden Co. will come under the wing of City Dairy Company. It is understood that two other large dairies operating in Canada may be involved.

Rumor has linked up Farmers Dairy and City Dairy, but the Financial News Bureau is informed that other plans are involving for this successful organization and that it may form the principal unit in another affiliation.

The advance that has taken place in City Dairy shares, without any official explanation, probably is due to the fact that negotiations have not reached a stage where a definite announcement can be made.

Breweries.

The largest constituent in the newly organized Associate Breweries of Canada, Ltd., will be formed by the Lethbridge Breweries, Ltd., together with its subsidiary the New Edmonton Breweries Ltd. In size and capacity the new company will be exceeded only by the National Breweries Ltd., of Montreal. The new merger will have a capacity of 450,000 barrels per year, with necessary bottling and labelling machinery. Soda water, ginger ale and other carbonated beverages will also be manufactured, as this business is proving increasingly possible.

Consolidated Sand and Gravel.

Earnings of Consolidated Sand and Gravel, Limited, for the period from May 15 to July 31, are officially reported at $87,210 before depreciation and taxes, against the quarterly dividend payment made August 15 on the preferred issued of $21,000. At the same time it is officially pointed out the results for the period are not to be construed as an indication of the company earnings power for the full year. The active period for building supplies extends from about April to the middle of November and then slackens off, and earnings in the off season cannot be expected to be quite as favorable as during the busy months. The magnitude of construction operations in Canada is causing a heavy demand for Consolidated Sand's products, and the company is enjoying an increased volume of sales along with other kindred industries.

Another Payment to Toronto Rail Holders.

Shareholders of the Toronto Railway can still look for a further cheque on account of capital repayment. D. H. McDougall, liquidator of the company, said to-day shareholders would receive from 60 to 75 cents more if the money now held in trust by the Queen Victoria Park Commission were returned to the Toronto Railway. Recent developments lead Mr. McDougall to believe this will be the case and a special general meeting will then be called for, winding up proceedings and the balance of the assets distributed to the stockholders.

All the assets have been realized on with the exception of the deposit mentioned above and the total after all charges including expenses of liquidation has brought over a million dollars more than the book value as carried on the balance sheet. A sum of $13,860,000 has already been distributed to stockholders, equivalent to $115.50 a share, and with the addition of 60 to 75 cents total capital payments will be in excess of $116 a share.

At the time the old power company was granted a franchise, $25,000 was deposited with the commission to compensate for any damages. This money has never been used and with accumulated interest to-day amounts to over $50,000. A writ was issued for its recovery, but an action started by the city of Niagara Falls against the commission made a settlement with the company impossible. The commission and the city have now reached a verbal agreement and the solicitors have been instructed to draw up the necessary papers. Following this it is expected that the deposit will be returned to the Toronto Railway for distribution to the shareholders.

It is just seven years, September 1, last, since the Hydro-Electric and the city of Toronto took over the proper-law suits and arbitration proceedings held up payment to the shareholders, but finish will be written shortly and the stockholders will have full payment on account of capital.

MINING BRIEFS

A Special Service to The Examiner

Larder Lake advices state that Crown Reserve have cut their No. 2 vein on the 500-foot level. Values are said to run around $8. It is also rumored that a group of New York interests are looking over the property.

A despatch from Rouyn is to the effect that the "K" ore body of Noranda has been opened up on the 300, 400 and 500-foot levels. The reports state that this is an important development as it was thought the "K" ore body was a shallow one although showing high grade copper. It is rumored that two more convertors are being brought into the property from Sudbury to help step up production.

Gold Hill Mines are reported to have commenced cross-cutting towards the vein at the 1,000-foot level. On surface these veins show about 50 to 60 feet apart, but it is believed in most quarters that they merge at depth, owing to the sharper dip of the north vein. As soon as the vein system is cut on this level the shaft will be continued down to the 1,200-foot objective. The first vein should be cut about 40 feet from the shaft.

It is reported that at a recent meeting of the Thompson-Cadillac Mines the directors accepted the resignation of J. A. MacAndrew, K.C., president and directors. J. W. Bell, Sudbury, was named to succeed him. Murray Kennedy, mine manager, who has just been on part time, will now devote his whole attention to the property. The No. 2 vein at the 300-foot level is said to be showing up very well. The two veins opened up are the No. 1, to the south, and the No. 2, to the north. A crosscut has been driven for about 200 feet to the north of the shaft, and is now said to have gone through 30 feet of silicified porphyry, and it is estimated this will continue for another 20 feet.

Interesting results are being obtained from diamond drilling at the Cartier-Malartic. It will be some weeks befor any definite results can be obtained from this work. Dr. W. F. James, of the geological survey, is directing drilling operations.

Northern advices state that the last two holes on Sudbury Basin's Vermillion Lake property have given the best results yet secured. No. 24, was, when last heard from, in about 5 feet of ore, actual vein width, and most of this was around $20 a ton. Zinc was the predominating metal. This hole went down at an angle of 70 degrees. So long as drilling continues to lengthen the ore body at both ends it is thought that sinking of the projected shaft will be deferred, in order that the best site may be chosen. What would have been the best site last spring has already been improved upon by later drilling.

Trenching and stripping is at present going on at the property of Mabell Mines, Ltd., whose holdings are in Clericy and on Dufault Lake. The engineer in charge reports that schiryholite diorite near the gratiite contact has been uneovered.

Reports of a rich surface strike on Capital Rouyn's Sudbury property have been heard. It is said that a width of 70 feet, all well mineralized, has been indicated by surface prospecting.

Central Manitoba.

A. D. Miles, president of the Central Manitoba Mines, has stated that development work at the property is being carried on steadily and that a winze has been sunk from the 140-foot level of the Tene 6 property and is now about 46 feet below that depth. The width of the faces has averaged 3.6 feet, showing an average of $12 per ton. Driving both east and west on the 520-foot level is progressing satisfactorily, and driving west on the 375-foot level is expected to be commenced shortly to connect with the Growler shaft section. The raise being put up from the 375-foot level at a distance of 775 feet west of the shaft has reached 128.6 feet, and shows an average width of 3.6 feet, averaging $11.25 to the ton. During August a total of 4,283 tons of ore were milled, producing $40,264.

Abana Directors Meet Tomorrow.

Montreal.—Directors of Abana Mines are to hold a meeting on Friday when they will deal with a number of important subjects. It is intimated that a report will be given by the engineer and that there is a possibility of the announcement being made of the attitude of the C.N.R. towards the construction of a spur line from Dupuy to the Abana property.

Mining men who arrived here from the Abana property assert that the much-mooted flooding of the mine and recent reports of water troubles have been greatly exaggerated. As the result of the power plant needing immediate repairs and as there was no immediate relief equipment, pumping from the lower level was discontinued and this resulted in this level for the time becoming temporarily filled with water.

There will be absolutely no curtailment in any shape or form of development and milling operations, said Jos. Errignton, manager of Treadwell-Yukon, to the Northern Miner. In fact, work underground is being pushed with all aggressiveness and is being expanded at every opportunity, he added, and further, an expansion of mill tonnage is being made as quickly as machinery installations will permit.

Certain surface work, such as road making and building construction, having been completed, the surface crew has been reduced, but changes in the underground and mill forces will be in the upside.

Mr. Errington said that the mine picture was unfolding very satisfactorily and that they were now working into the vicinity of diamond drill intersections on the lower horizons and the results were entirely pleasing. Throughout the mine underground work was standing up to the drilling indications. Work was not far enough on to say whether it would be better than the drilling, but Mr. Errington had no doubt they had a big proposition and one that was getting bigger.

His remarks should serve to clear up misapprehensions that may have been aroused because of the reduction in construction gangs, whose work was completed. G. A. Wiles has resigned as mine superintendent and V. A. Clausen, mill superintendent, succeeds, effective October 1st. The change follows the recent visit of P. R. Bradley, Bunker Hill and Sullivan executive.

Caribou Copper.

Caribou Copper Corporation has been getting very good results on the Bourlamaque property, Robt. F. Lethbridge, field superintendent, states in a recent progress report. He says that from a field point of view, the company's prospects are at present extremely good. Recommendation is made that development on a larger scale be carried out.

The report reads, in part:

"No. 7 drill hole was continued to a depth of 563 feet, and ran into a cave and had to be given up, but not before it had shown the presence of shalcopyrite at a vertical depth of 160 feet below the surface; at the depth reached the bit had just entered the edge of the ore zone, as expected from a vertical projection of the ore at shallower horizons allowing for the dip of the ore zone, and showed shalcopyrite in the end of the core in encouraging quantities.

"In view of the results obtained it was then decided to stop drilling for a time with a view of concentrating on necessary surface work and preparing for a campaign of underground development as outlined.

"The property was completely subdivided into 200-foot sections by a series of grid lines, from which a survey was made of the claims, which showed that your company owns about 260 acres instead of the 160 as thought at first. This work necessitated the cutting of some 75,000 feet of line.

"Surface work was also carried out with encouraging results, two areas being discovered on which further work is warranted. One of these will be dealt with in more detail later, the second being a quartz vein about five feet wide that shows interesting values in silver, and which will be further explored.

"The second discovery consists of the surface of a mineralized area of as yet undetermined width, upwards of 20 ft. and of upwards of 300 feet in length, heavily mineralized with chalcopyrite and sphalorito, a picked sample of the higher grade ore from this section assaying 6.31% copper and 17.57% zinc. The zone has only been exposed on surface and any attempt at valuation is impossible, the foregoing assay being mentioned only as a guide to show the presence of economic mineral. It is the intention of the management to examine this deposit in with a view to locating any body of commercial ore that will add materially to the tonnage already indicated."

Telluride.

Kirkland Lake;—Telluride is reported by officials of the company to have put considerable tonnage of ore in sight, running approximately $10 to the ton. At the first level, about 100 feet of an ore-shoot was drifted into the east of the shafts. It was reported that the sampling was over four feet in width, but since sampling was done, slashing of the walls is said to have shown the mineralization to extend for some distance further.

Granby.

Granby Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. declared the regular quarterly capital distribution of $1.00 per share payable November 1 to shareholders of record October 11.

Rails Reach Flin Flon.

The Pas, Man.—Steel will reach the townsite of Flin Flon to-day. Contractors have been driving ahead at full pressure, working day and night, and progress during the past fortnight has been rapid.

Noranda.

The new concentrator at Noranda is now operating one section and commenced production yesterday, states a wire from Rouyn to-day. In the "Mining Briefs" bulletin a report was given about the "K" ore body being opened up on the 300, 400, and 500-foot levels. Further details of this are contained in the later despatch which states that a raise is now being put up from 300 to 200 feet on this body. Values are stated to run approximately 30% copper and $5 in gold. It is also said that two new convertors have been purchased from the Murray Mine in Sudbury.

The Financial News Bureau is informed that an official statement will be issued next week on Sudbury Basin, that should be a bullish factor for the stock. There has been a crop of bearish rumors it is said, emanating from this district, due principally to the lack of success on several of the smaller operations.

Central Manitoba.

Central Manitoba Mines' development work is being carried on steadily and a winze has been sunk from the 140-foot level of the Tone 6 property and is now about 46 feet below that depth. The width of the faces has averaged 3.6 feet, showing an average of $12 per ton. Driving both east and west on the 502-foot level is progressing satisfactorily, the raise being put up from the 375 foot level at a distance of 775 feet west of the shaft has reached 128.6 feet, and shows an average width of 3.6 feet, averaging $11.25 to the ton. During August a total of 4,283 tons of ore were milled, producing $40,264.

Mond Nickel and International Nickel.

There is an astounding disparity between the market valuations placed on each of these two giant operators. Mond, taking its $26,000,000 bonds and preferred at par, and its 2,500,000 common at 26 or $65,000,000 is valued at only $91,000,000, while International Nickel is appraised at over $250,000,000 taking its $8,900,000 preferred at par, and the 1.9 million common shares at 130.

Although International Nickel is in the nickel mining and refining business on the larger scale there is little to choose between the Frood holdings of either company and in view of the fact that the recent $80,000,000 increase in market valuation of International Nickel is popularly supposed to result from progress and developments at the Frood property it is hard to understand why there was not a corresponding advance in Mond shares. Inasmuch as the appreciation in International Nickel seems to have justified the conclusion that Mond is behind the market is inescapable.—Watt and Watt.

MARKET REVIEW

With the exception of a Noranda rumour yesterday, there was practically no news on the Street, but despite this the market held fairly firm and the volume of trading at 1,094,313 shares was up slightly from yesterday. Despite the report on Noranda this issue sold from the opening of $53,00-$53.25 to a low of $51.85, closing off $1 from yesterday at $52.00-$52.50.

Others of the Rouyn issues, however, were somewhat better, especially Newbec which moved up quickly towards the close to 54, closing there for a net gain of 4 points. Area was also stronger and up 3 at 30-30½, while Abana and Amulet gained one each at $3.27-$3.30 and $3.26-$3.28 respectively.

In the Malartic section, Graham Bousquet succumbed to heavy profit taking and lost 3 at 40 to 40¼. Thompson Cadillac and Siscoe, however were

THE EMINENT SON - By FANNIE HURST

If you had sacrificed your own ambitions to give your son a chance, if you had slaved as a storekeeper, when you wanted to be a professional man, to put your son through school, if you and wife had saved and scraped and suffered, having few pleasures in life, what would you expect from that son? In this study of a small family, Fannie Hurst tells of the strange glory that came to the parents of a son who grew away from them.

HERE is a mystery story. Not at all in the usual sense of that phrase. There is no murder in the Rue Dupre. There is no cross to mark the staircase where the body was found. Here is just a mystery of some of the human passions and emotions and desires and satisfactions that dwelt in the humble clay of Mr. and Mrs. Klein.

The Kleins kept a shoe store, retail, in a street called Houston, which is a long, lean aisle of humanity that runs through lower New York like a worm hole. The two sides of that street are solid regiments of tenements with their fronts frivolously marked with zig-zags of fire-escapes, untidy windows with bed-clothing lolling out like tongues, congested curbs of peddlers' carts, ash cans, crawling cats and babies, shawled women and bearded men.

On this street, the Kleins kept a shoe store for twenty-six years. It was one of those shops with a well-lighted front, pretentiously decorated show-windows and a bleak interior. Two-thirds of the Klein stock was in the windows. The remaining third was on shelves along the walls.

From Morning Until Midnight

The Klein store opened at seven-thirty in the morning to catch the shop girls on their way to work and closed at twelve o'clock at night to catch them on their way home from the motion picture theatres.

The routine was something like this: At six o'clock, the Kleins, who occupied three rooms in the rear of the store, rose for breakfast. When little Abraham Klein, the only offspring of these two good, work-a-day people, was growing up, Mrs. Klein prepared that meal with the youngster dangling in one arm while she puttered about in her dark and airless kitchen, which even at high noon of a bright day, had to have a gas jet burning.

After breakfast, Mrs. Klein made beds, swept, dusted, cleaned, scrubbed and ironed. Mr. Klein, who had a rotund stomach, a bald head and a pair of short-sighted eyes behind thick-lensed glasses, opened shop. From about seven until noon, he tended it alone. Then Mrs. Klein, with a thousand chores to her credit, tended with him until midnight.

He Had Had His Own Hopes

Almost a prison existence, you will say. And yet, the Kleins had a dream—a dream that illuminated the days. A dream that made the years seem a highway that led to the stars. The dream was little Abraham's future. Father Klein had gone through life with what he called in Yiddish, "tooth-ache of the soul." Father Klein, in the days when he had been a hopeful young fellow in Russia, had wanted to be a physician.

Well, instead he had turned out to be a shoe dealer in Houston Street. Thence the dream and this is what the Kleins made possible for Abraham:

At thirteen, he was graduated from the public grade schools. At seventeen, he had finished high school. At twenty-two, he was an honor graduate of City College, and at twenty-eight, an interne in one of the largest private hospitals in New York.

At what privation, at what sacrifice, at what sweat-of-brow, at what pain, only the Kleins themselves knew and rest assured, they would not tell.

Did They Get What They Wanted?

When Abraham Klein became engaged to the only daughter of a fashionable head physician of the fashionable hospital in which he was an interne, his mother had the shrivelled look of a little prune-of-a-soul, with a face so curiously wrinkled that the lines seemed to cut in and hurt her. His father, too, was bent, into a crook of a tree with the sap almost gone.

As weather-beaten a pair as could be imagined. And yet, what they had asked for had come true. The long hours in the shop; the indoor confinement of month after month and year after year; the days of deprivation that went to pay for the college tuition were all worth it. The Kleins loved to say that their only son Abe had married on a social plane beyond anything they had ever dreamed. The Kleins loved to see the name of their son on the board of directors' lists of four or five of the most important medical enterprises in the most important city of the world. And yet, there is this aspect to it.

It was not that Doctor Klein was not perpetually grateful to the old pair who had made so much of his success possible. Sometimes it was as if the very heart of him would burst of the poignancy, of pain, of the sense of gratitude to them. To him, money was his only way of repaying them.

And the Kleins did not want or need his money. Their ways were too set. They had toiled too long to be capable of any life which did not include the six days of routine of the shoe store and the seventh of the synagogue.

Yet there was no other way in which Dr. Klein could include these old folks in the regime of life they had built up for him. They represented the secret, furtive past, before which his success must spread wings of concealment. They represented something from which he must protect his wife. When the doctor visited them, he visited them furtively. When the doctor's children were born, he had his parents come secretly to the house when there were no guests.

When public honors were conferred upon the doctor, it was best that the old folks should not be present, but the doctor installed a radio in the little back room in Houston Street, so that as the old pair tended store, they at least could listen to the speeches. They were the most prideful old pair of the world.

Could They Have Done More?

In their little old circle of cronies down in the Ghetto, the achievements of their son placed them apart. This son whom they only saw on rare occasions and then only in the furtive fashion made necessary by his eminence.

In their simple prayers, they thanked God for His benificence. How rich they were in the glory of such a son. It had been worth every inch of the struggle. With the mystery of the Life Force pouring through their shriveled old veins, to Mr. and Mrs. Klein, the acme of fulfillment, was to have turned out such a son.

FAVORITE RECIPE

"A GOOD DESSERT"

(Contributed by Mrs. J. Armstrong, Cavan.)

The juice of 1 can pineapple; juice of 1 can cherries; boil and stir in a package of pineapple jelly powder. Add the juice of 2 lemons, ½ cup white sugar.

Set aside until it begins to harden. When it is slightly set, add the beaten whites of 3 eggs, the sliced pineapple cut in small pieces, the cherries and 3 small oranges, sliced, put in a mold and decorate with walnuts.

Serve with whipped cream.

APPLE CAKE

(Contributed by Mrs. E.R.)

1½ cups hot apple sauce
½ cup butter
1 cup sugar
1 cup currants or seeded raisins
Small quantity nuts and peel
1 teaspoon baking soda
A little spice
Flour to mix (about 2 cups, unsifted)
Little salt.

Method: Blend butter and sugar. Sift flour, salt, baking soda and spice and add alternately with apple sauce (unsweetened). Lastly, add fruit and nuts and bake in a flat tin in a moderate oven (do not open oven door for about half an hour after putting cake in). When cool, brush over with a very thin icing and sprinkle with dessicated cocoanut.

MARION'S MAIL

Address correspondence to Marion, at The Examiner Office.

Dear Marion:

Whatnot again amused me. Men are such dear, funny creatures. Some of them are bad, but such lots of them are so good. If a woman took some of their actions seriously, she would be in hot water all the time.

One of my amusements in life has been just to watch people, and one who knocks around a lot has many opportunities.

Men will give all they possess, even their lives for the woman they love, and wives (I am speaking of worthwhile men) can and do rest secure in this knowledge. They know too that they are the only one. At the same time that same Mr. Man will calmly tell his wife how much nicer flowers another woman has, when if he would just give a little help, his own wife would have the nicer ones; or that some other woman has some handsome piece of needlework, or some nice pie, or anything in the world he happens to hear, see, or taste, that has taken his fancy. While if he would only think so, it is probably his own thoughtlessness that keeps his wife from having as good or better, and her heart may be longing for it.

A man may never think his own wife needs a new dress, and does not like to ask for it as they are saving to pay for a piece of land, but hubby will calmly smoke away more than would pay for the dress.

He takes his own home as a matter of course, and really does not notice a bit of untidiness (unless it be quite glaring). Neither will he notice that his own wife has gotten things extra pretty, but he will notice them quickly enough in another woman's home.

His wife is his wife; he would probably notice if she started to church or to a party in a soiled morning dress. Or he may never have thought of his wife needing something until he sees someone else with it, and the thought comes into his dear old head that that would be nice for Jane. Perhaps said Jane will like it, and perhaps not.

Women are generally a bit to blame for this.

Other men are very thoughtful about everything from the very first. They were probably well trained from infancy by their mothers.

Recently a woman told me she and her husband (for whom I have no use) were walking along the street and passed a handsomely gowned woman, of a shady character. The husband actually turned, and remarked, "She does certainly look stunning." The woman decided she could look as stunning if she had the same clothes, as she knew she was more beautiful. That night friend husband was asked for money to provide an outfit that put women in the shade. Such a husband would be unbearable.

Men have their ways, women have theirs and women may be just as thoughtless in some ways as men. They may be thoughtless in demanding too much. These little things you mention are ripples on the surface, the great calm sea of care and thought lies underneath it all.

Yours sincerely,

Quid Est.

THE MIRROR OF THE MODE

By Mary Marshall.

The oval of the face is emphasized by such a hat as the one in the sketch that shows a bit of forehead and frames the cheeks effectively.

Oval faces for women have, I suppose, always been admired, but sometimes fashions are such that the oval lineis lost sight of, and sometimes hats and headdresses, necklaces and collars are so designed that even the round faced and the square jawed take on the aspect of the oval. Look through the art galleries where there are examples of portrait painting of the past three or four years and you can see for yourself that the oval line has sometimes been more apparent than at others.

The ladies of the mid-Victorian era with their smoothly parted hair and bonnets and rounded necklines showed scarcely more allegiance to the oval line than the girl of today, who wears one of the new eyebrow line hats drooping at the side and a string of pearls just a bit too loose to be a choker.

This means, of course, that the forehead or at least a patch of forehead is eminently desirable. We may cover the temples and the sides of the ears as much as we like but the little section of brow above the nose and center half of the eyebrows has taken on great importance.

This new outline of the hat gives to many faces an entirely different expression from the one they bore when hats were draped straight across the brow or worn at a rakish, vagabondish angle. Girls who looked like gipsies now look like madonnas. Eyes that looked very sophisticated when shaded by the low drawn brim meet yours now with the guilelessness of a figure in a stained glass window.

Necklaces are often worn so as to give further effect of the oval and in order to get this slightly drooping curve at the neck you may want to have your chokers made to fit a little less closely around the neck. A good many of the new chokers I have noticed are made with a fairly large ornamental clasp placed at the front, not at the back, the weight of which brings the necklace down a bit at the front.

calls the days of its medieval grandeur when the Kings of France were crowned within its walls, not the least of whom was Charles VII, who owed so much to Joan of Arc. To this old city tourists have wandered for years, so beautiful has been its appeal. Situated in a vine-clad region with flower-flanked walls, it has appealed to all who have loved the real France which is too often missed in the larger city of Paris. Here was born Colbert, Gobelin and Linquet, and here Clovis was baptized in the twelfth century. If history does not lure you, I guess that its famous wines and confections, its many ancient mansions and fountains will make your days there delightful.

THE WHATNOT

A Place for Little Bits of Everything of Local Interest

By MARION

IN THE last day of the Ex. I was a witness of a piece of good nature on the part of the bus driver. Our chariot was nearing the grounds when it encountered an obstruction in the form of a balky car. Instead of honking the horn and generally behaving as if the car and itsshoving passengers were deliberately keeping him back, the driver crept up behind and gently bunted the car to the end of the street. A laugh was the response of the occupants of the bus, a wave of the hand thanked the driver for his help and everyone was happy.

I called the above a sample of good nature but I believe it was part of the training given that chap as a small boy. My reason is this. On the return trip that night I was on the same bus and on arriving at Charlotte street I transferred, waiting for a Jackson Park bus. This courteous driver came over to where I was standing and told me if I were waiting for a car to East City it was to be had in front of the Customs building that night.

Things like that are part of the policy of our transportation system but sad to relate they aren't common. Perhaps that is why I noticed this instance and my conclusion was that early training in thoughtfulness for others was the reason.

When one stops to think it is only reasonable to suppose that children who learn to be courteous when they are small will find it second nature to be so when they are adults. There are difficulties in the way for the small gentleman however. One little chap I saw with his mother down town was waiting for her to go in a store before him and she, becoming impatient with him for being slow, caught him by the sleeve and pulled him in. He was evidently a sensitive lad for he started to cry and when asked what the trouble was sobbed, "I was trying to be polite."

No doubt the mother wished him to behave nicely, but in the rush and worry of shopping forgot her own admonitions.

Sometimes small people learn a lesson more thoroughly from a person not so well known to them as their parents. One wee girl who had been corrected by father and mother for some time was taken by her big brother whom she adored to Toronto. One correction from him impressed itself so forcibly on her mind that now at the advanced age of twenty-one she tells me she has never forgotten how mortified she felt when she knew her brother had noticed her fault.

I think we all know the selfish child who will not share his toys or treat with others. Sometimes he is an only child, but this is not always the case. Children who play together usually make way for the other fellow, while the lone child has things all his own way unless he has company come in. If that child were taught to consider others, how much better he would be liked and how much easier it would be for him when he has to make his own way. One boy, the only child in a north end home, is going to be a most considerate young man. He has toys innumerable that he shares with any child who happens to come. His mother has trained him in this and I have heard her say, "Bob, don't you want to give Jack that car?" to which Bob answers, "Yes."

Some of you may say a child of that type has no spirit if he allows others to have his things. In some children that may be true but on the whole I think it is a better way to train the child than to teach him to think, "He can't have that, it's mine."

Those women who make gifts for their friends at Christmas will not consider it too early to receive a hint about presents. It is sometimes possible to find remnants at a large reduction. One industrious woman who lives in the west end showed me a number of gifts made and in the making. Among them were towels made dainty by the addition of hand crocheted insertion, a luncheon set, three bibs bound with bias tape and embroidered, wash clothes, a case for silverware, two ice-box bags and two tea towels.

Just recently I heard of a small boy who confessed the breakage of a salt-shaker as the result of jarring it to loosen the salt, to his mother on her return from a visit. The wise woman knowing the way salt gets clannish and sticks together didn't scold but proceeded to remedy the trouble in her other shakers. She used a pinch of ground arrowroot but told the boy that auntie heated a little rice and put in hers.

A lovely and cosy carriage cover and pillow made his Highness, King Baby, comfy on George Street yesterday. The material used was radium in a pretty buttercup yellow. The whole was quilted and fuzzy white eider-down bunnies were appliqued on both pillow and robe. Lamb's wool or wadding might be used as the interlining.

TWO FACED

The double faced scarf is new. One side is apt to be plain color and the other very modernistic and decorative. One is pearl grey on one side and on the other grey with all the plum and fushcia shades patterning it in calico design.

STRASS BUCKLE

A six-inch wide strass buckle of great beauty is the focal point on a black panne velvet frock with fullness concentrated in the center front and a deep lace fichu around the pointed neck.

BUCKLES' POPULARITY

It is a winter of buckles. A smart tweed outfit in slate blue has matching blue leather buckles, with silver mountings, to fasten its jacket, ornament its hat-band, pumps and to close a purse carried with it.

OLD-FASHIONED WINDOWS

If your home has old-fashioned windows with inside blinds that have been removed, build shallow bookcases where the blinds were. They make a tremendously decorative border to windows and form a kind of focal point for a room.

BRITISH RUGBY THRILLS MONTREAL CROWD

ENGLAND WINS IN MONTREAL

Defeats Wales in Exhibition Rugby Game Last Night.

SCORE 21-18

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 21.—(Canadian Press.) — England defeated Wales by a score of 21-18 in an exhibition rugby game played here last night between members of the rugby league (Northern Union) touring all-star club.

Wales started the contest with a rush and before long had taken the lead on two magnificent 45-yard placement kicks by Sullivan and three tries which came as the result of passing bouts by the Welsh three-quarters the like of which has not been seen on a local football field. The open field attacks in which the entire Welsh team supported the ball carriers ended with Gwynne, Rosser and Sullivan scoring tries in the first half for a 12-8 lead for Wales. England's backs could not get together as well as the Welsh threes in the first 35 minutes and as a result the side depended on the individual brilliance of Asmin for two tries and the trusty kicking of Oliver for a goal from a penalty.

But in the second half the white-jerseyed Englishmen swarmed all over the Welsh defences. Led by the veteran Parkin and the brilliant wings Askin and Ellary the English took the lead with tries by these two, Oliver converting one. They added to their margin when Rentham took up where the English backs failed near the Welsh gaol line and dashed over for a try converted by Oliver. Wales got back into the picture in the last minutes on a try by Frodsham, which Sullivan converted.

The Northern Union style of play thrilled the Canadians in the crowd who have never witnessed such fast, open field play in football.

LONDON, Sept. 21 (Canadian Press).—An Exchange Telegraph despatch from Budapest yesterday quotes Paavo Nurmi, famous Finnish runner, as saying he was tired of record-smashing and would retire at the end of the present season.

YANKS' LEAD IS CUT IN HALF

Athletics Beat Tigers 6-1 While Leaders Lose To White Sox.

BROWNS FINISH THIRD.

DETROIT, September 21. — The ever-threatening Philadelphia Athletics cut the lead of the Yankees in the race for the American League pennant in half yesterday by winning the first game of the series with the Tigers here by a 6 to 1 score, while the Yanks were losing to Chicago.

With but ten games left on the schedule for New York and nine for Philadelphia, the Yankees hold first place by the margin of a single game.

The aged right arm of Jack Quinn, oldest of the major league pitchers, was too much for the Tiger batters yesterday. They could get only six hits off his moist delivery, and the only run they made was due directly to a fumble by Jimmy Dykes, Philadelphia shortstop.

BROWNS CLINCH THIRD.

ST. LOUIS, September 21.—Picked by most critics to finish in the second division, the St. Louis Browns clinched third place in the American League standings with a 5-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox here yesterday.

General Alvin Crowder, leading hurler of the junior circuit, pitched his nineteenth victory against five defeats for the season.

Heinie Manush, leading batsman of the league, got one single in three times up.

SOX BEAT YANKEES.

CHICAGO, September 21. — The Yankees' lead dwindled to one mere game yesterday when they lost a twelve-inning battle to White Sox, 4 to 3, before 15,000 fans at Comiskey Park. The Sox tied the score in the the eighth inning, and then went ahead in the twelfth when Swanson lifted a fly to Babe Ruth in right field, and Reynolds raced over the plate with the winning run—a run that put the Athletics back in the American League pennant race.

Dog-Racing Prohibited by Attorney-General of Quebec.

MONTREAL, Que., September 21 (Canadian Press). — Chief Dorais, of the Provincial Police, announced last night that he had received instructions from the Attorney-General's Department at Quebec to the effect that dog-racing was not to be permitted anywhere in the Province of Quebec.

The ruling of the Attorney-General follows the announcement by a group of promoters that a dog-racing meet would be held here next week.

McGILL TRACK TEAM IS GOOD

Influx of Star Men Augments College Athletic Strength.

BROWN LEAVES

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 21. — (Canadian Press). —McGill's track prospects as well as the junior rugby team's chances are being augmented again this year by the influx of Canadian and United States college star athletes who are entering medicine this fall. Four promising athletes reported in yesterday whose performances on their respective college teams make them welcome additions to the already strong squad of cinder path performers under the McGill banner this year.

The first is Drew who comes to McGill from Amherst College where he captained the track team last year. Drew was national junior hurdling champion in 1926 and one of the star performers on the Amherst track team for the last two years. His forte is the high and low hurdles but he is also a star performer in the broad and high jump and sprints. In athletic build, Dred is one of the best looking track men that has appeared in Molson Stadium in some years.

The three others are Rice, of Mount Allison, Mahoney, from Holy Cross, and Walsh, of Catholic University of America.

Rice is a sprinter of note and Mahoney comes to McGill with a fine record as a miler. The Washington College man is also a miler.

It was learned that one of McGill's good point winners in the field events will be lost to the Red Team this season. Brown, the jumper, has gone to Harvard but with the influx of new material there is little doubt that there will be many good men trying for places in this event.

GIANTS REMAIN IN LEAGUE RACE

Break Even With St. Louis in Opening Games of Crucial Series.

PIRATES WIN.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Burly young Francis Hogan kept the Giants in the race for the National League pennant yesterday, by booming a home run with the bases full to close the biggest double header of the Giant season with an even break.

He won the second game 7 to 4. Just before this, one of the spurned and rejected Giants of the early Summer, George Harper, who was traded to the Cardinals for Bob O'Farrell, had caused all sorts of anguish to a multitude of close to 50,000 by winning the first game with three home runs.

The score of that was 8 to 5. The Giants are right where they were they were when the first game started, two games behind the Redbirds, and they lose little ground to the pressing Cubs behind them, for the Cubs were idle.

Pirates Beat Phillies

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 21— The Pittsburg Pirates opened their final four-game series of the season here by beating the Phillies, 6 to 4 yesterday.

Both Carmen Hill and Claude Willoughby went the route for their respective teams, each surrendering eleven hits that included home-runs by Virgil Davis and Lloyd Waner.

Each blow came with a man on base, Lloyd's evening the score at three runs in the fifth inning.

In addition to his homer "Little Poison" had two singles and a double.

Manager Donie [illegible] and Pete Scott, of the Pirates, were chased by the umpires for arguing decisions at the close of the seventh inning.

Braves and Reds Divide

BOSTON, Sept. 21.— Cincinnati swept its way to a 7-to-2 win over Boston in the opening game, but lost the night-cap, 9 to 5, here yesterday, after the Braves had made eight runs in the first inning.

In this inning Bell hit a homer into the left-field bleachers with the bases full. His single in the seventh gave the Braves another run.

Pincinich hit for the circuit off Cantwell in the eighth with two men on.

RIN-TIN-TIN SCORES IN "A RACE FOR LIFE."

Rin-Tin-Tin has portrayed many a character in picture parts, which have endeared him to millions of young folks (of all ages) everywhere. He has been wolf-dog, North-West mounted, London waif, mountaineer, flying hero, and now comes "A Race for Life," in which he is a follower of the race tracks.

He and his pal go South by the box-car route, so that the former may become a jockey. All sorts of obstacles are overcome with a bounding eagerness that rouses onlookers to wild excitement. A rival horse owner tries to injure the horse Rinty's pal is to drive. Rinty attacks and is temporarily blinded. Rescued by his pal he is hidden and apparently deserted since the men have kidnaped the boy.

Rinty escapes, and rushing to his master, frees him in time to get to the track as the big racing meet starts. But this is only the beginning! Rinty outclasses even himself—in the astonishing way by which he contrives to make the race a victory! You'll root for Rinty as never before!

HISTORIC FIGHT SCENES IN FILM.

Famous "Dempsey Dive" Recalled By Barthelmess In "The Patent Leather Kid."

This historic "Dempsey-through-the ropes" scene in the Dempsey - Firpo fight has been reproduced for the screen in "The Patent Leather Kid," Richard Barthelmess' big First National production, which comes to the Regent Theatre next Monday.

At the Hollywood Stadium, the thrilling prize-ring sequences were enacted under the direction of Alfred Santell with technical advice from several noted pugilists, including Mickey Walker, present holder of the world's middleweight championship. In the scene alluded to, Barthelmess, as "The Kid," knocks Mickey McMinn, who in real life is an ex-pugilist, through the ropes, only to be knocked out himself in the next round.

Thousands of extras were used in these boxing scenes and prominent authorities on boxing acclaim the results as authentic. Barthelmess portrays the title role, a hard-boiled fistic artist whose apathetic attitude towards his country's part in the World War goes through an amazing metamorphosis as a tank-nurse in the tank corps. The tank sequences have been produced on a gigantic scale and is the first motion picture epic of the very important part played by these juggernauts in modern warfare.

A remarkable cast supports Richard Barthelmess, including Molly O'Day, a sensational screen find who plays the feminine lead; Arthur Stone as Jimmy, the trainer; Matthew Betz as Stuke, the Kid's manager, and Raymond Turner as the colored second Molasses. Lawford Davidson is the villain.

"MISS ELIZABETH'S PRISONER"

To Gordon McLeod, distinguished young British star and his company of British players Peterborough theatre-goers owe a vote of thanks for two hours of delightful entertainment at the Grand last night, when Mr. McLeod was starred in that colorful and romantic comedy-drama, 'Miss Elizabeth's Prisoner." It was a smooth and convincing performance of a type of play that is becoming all too rare on the modern stage; one of those costume productions, full of love, action and intrigue, that still possess charm for the average patron of the theatre, even if producers do not seem to think so.

With the warfare of the American revolution as a background, this exciting play that working up to a gripping climax after a somewhat draggy opening formed an ideal vehicle for Mr. McLeod, giving him an opportunity to display the art which made his performance of Sir John Martin-Harvey's role in "Scaramouche," one of the outstanding features of last year's Canadian theatrical season.

As Captain Harry Payton, a part that was created by the way by that sterling actor Lewis Waller, the young star scored a triumph. It was a role that made exacting demands upon Mr. McLeod, but he met every test with complete success and earned the ovation he received at the end of each act. Many in the audience, as they watched his perforamnce with keen delight, must have felt a desire to see him in other roles, such as the Rat in 'The Breed of The Treshams."

Staring with Mr. McLeod in the triumph of the evening was Miss Lilian Christie who, cast as the proud, impetuous but loveable loyalist heroine, rose to the occasion and contributed a memorable characterization in a part full of possibilities. And, associated with the principals, was a capable cast. The picture of Mr. Valentine, hunting for No. 3 and still going strong at 80, given by Aubrey Mallalieu was a high-light of the production, and Miss Olive Walter as the amorous aunt, registered an individual triumph. Other parts were convincingly taken care of and in point of costumes and staging the presentation was a complete success.

It is to be hoped that Peterborough will have another chance later in the season to see Mr. McLeod and his associates in another vehicle.

AT THE CAPITOL.

'SKIRTS' AT THE CAPITOL IS ONE CONTINUOUS LAUGH — SYD. CHAPLIN IN THIS ENGLISH COMEDY IS AT HIS AMUSING BEST.

Every husband has a different way of enjoying life when his ball-and-chain, headache, mountain-of-ills, or whatever it is he calls his wife, leaves for a vacation, but the strangest of all ways to enjoy life under such circumstances is illustrated in an uproarious manner by Syd Chaplin in his newest comedy "Skirts," which opened at the Capitol yesterday.

"Skirts" is just one long, loud laugh. Last night the audience laughed until the floors creaked. The film starts with Chaplin attempting to aid his wife and mother-in-law as they pack for a vacation trip and ends with their return amid a hailstorm of flying fists. In the interim there are some wildly amusing comedy chases, a trick dog, a splendid cabaret scene, one of Syd Chaplin's justly famous female impersonations, and a host of other laughable matters. It is one of the most amusing comedies that has come to town in a dog's age.

The cast is a splendid one, and most of the faces are "new faces" as far as a Canadian audience is concerned. "Skirts" was filmed in London, the locale of the story, and the supporting cast is English. Betty Balfour, one of London's noted beauties, has the leading feminine role, and proves to be not only beautiful but also a talented comedienne. Clifford McLaglen, brother of Victor McLaglen, has the heavy role and distinguishes himself in that capacity. Edmond Breon, a London stage actor of reputation, also has a part and his acting is up to the high standard set by the star of this piece. Others in the cast who show up to decided advantage are Nancy Rigg, Annie Esmond, Diana Wilson and Enid Stamp Taywor, a London heiress, who was once reported as being engaged to the Prince of Wales.

SUGGESTION BOX CLOSES TO-NIGHT

Program For Peterborough's Night On the Air Nearly Full.

The following letter from the Satin Finish Hardwood Flooring Company, Limited, is indicative of the effort which is being put forth to have "All Peterborough Night" September 26th, Station CKGW a most successful one. Numerous requests for musical numbers have been sent by Peterborough radio fans, and it is essential that these be sent to Station CKGW in the very near future. Consequently, the suggestion box closes tonight.

Chamber of Commerce,
Peterborough, Ont.
Dear sirs:

We are just in receipt of your letter of the 17th of September and are very pleased to hear that you are in a position to take advantage of 26th September program. We are today notifying CKGW accordingly, and asking that they give this evening their especial attention. Please let us have your musical program as early as possible.

We are now receiving letters from our last broadcast—people writing in from as far East as Truro, Nova Scotia, stating they enjoyed the concert and hope to visit Kingston in the near future.

As Gananoque will be on the air on 3rd October and your station on the 26th September, they should be a good inducement for tourists to spend a week or two next year in your section of the country.

Again thanking you for your co-operation in putting Peterborough on the air.

Yours very truly,
Satin Finish Hardwood Flooring Ltd.

are so many things he tries first.

Man cannot understand the things that happen unless he looks up from the things of the world to Christ. The hope of the world is that man is not going down the chain but up. All things belong to him, he belongs to Christ, and Christ is God's.

The first lesson was from the eighth chapter of the Book Deuteronomy, and was read by the Rev. G. J. Bousfield senior; the second lesson, part of the twelfth chapter of the Gospel according to St. Luke was read by the Rector, who also read the prayers.

Special Music

Under the direction of the organist, W. C. Thomson, the choir sang in splendid manner special music suitable to the occasion. The anthem was the first chorus from Maunder's "Song of Thanksgiving," with duet for soprano and tenor taken by Miss Queenie Hope and Cecil Hope. Turner's setting in F was used for the Gloria, the Magnificant, and the Nunc Dimittis. The hymns were "On our way rejoicinf," "We plow the fields and scatter," "Come ye thankful people, come," and "O Lord of Heaven and earth and sea." The choir was assisted by Messrs. George Coleman junior and Edmund Coleman, as in former years.

VALUE OF WOMEN'S EFFORTS SET FORTH

duty to call men's attention to this fact.

"The members of the National Council of Women interest themselves in regard to Health, Home Life and Social Conditions. We must unite to do away with unjust laws in regard to women and children, for as long as they are on the statute books of our land women are not safe.

"Premier Ross stated that the N.C. women could claim the accomplishment of manual training and domestic scieice being taught in the schools. We also succeeded in getting the Mothers' Allowance Act passed. They have also been instrumental in having laws passed to safeguard the family, to supervise motion pictures to ban indecent literature, and to have women police matrons and women magistrates and equality of divorce.

"But the greatest achievement of all is the founding of the Victorian Order of Nurses, an order that alone would justify the existence of the National Council of Women."

She urged the women to work and help raise the foundation fund so that they might have the National Council carry on their good work and be one of the great forces for marking a united Canada. The N. C. W. conventions are great meeting places for women from east to west, and the slogan is, "From contact to appreciation."

A reception was afterwards held for Mrs. Thorburn and afternoon tea served from a table beautifully decorated, with a lace cloth and silver vase of pink and white cosmos. Mrs. W. R. Morris and Miss Lancaster poured tea and assistants were Mrs. N. H. Sutton, Mrs. R. B. Cottrell, Mrs. B. McNeety and Mrs. Richard Parnell. Mrs. F. H. Deceborn was in charge of arrangements assisted by Mrs. G. A. Helson.

HOSPITAL NEEDS

year there were 5,032 mothers died, leaving behind them 5,072 children.

In discussing the plans, the speaker said the cost would be $340,000 to thoroughly remodel the old hospital, erect a new wing, and put in the proper heating equipment, new laundry, and kitchens. The board is asking the city for $300,000, hoping to make up the remainder by private donations, and already $10,000 has been promised.

"There is no more fitting memorial than to equip and endow a ward. The equipment will cost $50,000 and the plan is to have $50,000 put away as an endowment, so that the needs of the equipment can be taken care of for years to come. The hospital is the same as a school. I believe we will get the worth of our money out of the addition to the Collegiate, and I also believe that the city will be more than repaid for the amount of money that the board wishes to spend in equipping Nicholls hospital and making it one that will fill the needs of this community."

In closing, Mr. Fowler made a strong appeal to the members to support the project and to get their friends out to vote for the bylaw next Wednesday.

John McNabb moved a vote of thanks to the speaker and welcomed back Coll Miller, who has been absent from the luncheons for most of the summer. J. Comstock moved a motion of sympathy to Dr. Neal in his recent bereavement.

CAR DESTROYED BY SUDDEN BLAZE

Explosion in Auto Parked Outside Stable Causes Fire.

(Examiner Correspondence).

PONTYPOOL, Sept. 21.—A touring car owned by Leonard Alduad was destroyed by fire on Saturday night. Mr. Alduad had left the car parked outside of R. Mitchell's stable at Ballyduff at 11 p.m., with everything apparently all right, but shortly after midnight, the household were awakened by an explosion, and found the rear of the car ablaze.

The car was a new one, having been purchased this season.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

PONTYPOOL, Sept. 21.— Mr. and Mrs. Archie Whitmore and baby daughter, who have spent the past year at Caledonia are visiting at Mr. Robt. Payne's.

Mr. James Thompson, Cartwright township, had the misfortune while threshing to be thrown off the tank. He had several ribs broken and his foot injured by the wheel of the tank. His daughter, Miss Fern Thompson, is a prominent music teacher in this locality.

Mr. John Kellett, Sr., was a recent visitor at Mr. Roy Kellett's, Oshawa.

Mr. Ed. Kellett is confined to his bed, under the care of Dr. T. W. McNeil Miss Vera Kellett, of Toronto, is home during his illness.

Mrs. Robt. Payne has recovered again after a rather serious bilious attack.

Carscaddens S.S. No. 14 made a very favourable showing at the school fair held at Lotus, when over twenty pupils and their teacher, Miss Matchett, turned out in the big school parade. The children were well trained and captured third prize in the parade and third also for singing. The past two years this school has been more interested in the school fair and by present indications another year should see the first prize honors coming to this school.

LOCAL TOSSERS WIN AT LINDSAY

Bring Home First and Third Prizes from Scugogville Fair

EIGHTEEN ENTRIES

Eighteen teams entered in the horseshoe pitching contest at Lindsay Fair, and consequently it took some time to eliminate all but the winners. There were teams from Fenelon Falls, Woodville, Oakwood, Peterborough, Lindsay, and the district around Lindsay.

In the semi-finals C. W. Endicott and D. S. Endicott lost to Dan Campbell and Percy Reid of Peterborough, while W. Free and Bert Courtney won from E. Drumm and T. Drumm, of Peterborough. Campbell and Reid then trimmed Courtney and Free, 50-39, and in doing so won first place putting Courtney and Free in second place. Drumm and Drumm were placed third by winning from Endicott and Endicott, 50 to 38. The prizes were valued at $25, $15 and $10.

better, the former gaining one at 62–63 and the latter 2½ points at 81 to 83. Malartic sold off 3 points to close at $1.71-2.

In the Porcupine group, Dome gained 25 at $9.50–$9.60, and Hollinger was up 2 at $8.52–$8.55, while McIntyre lost 40 at $21.60–$22.00.

The two Lindsley stocks, Sherritt-Gordon and Sudbury Basin were up slightly from yesterday; the former in closing at $6.75–$6.80 was up 5, while the latter at $6.36–40 was up 11. Its neighbour, Yukon Treadwell, was also firmer and up 75 at $14.50–75 in very small trading.

In the Kirkland section, Kirkland Lake was weaker again and off 2, being offered at $1.50. Lake Shore gained 5 at $22.30–50 and Wright-Hargreaves gained 2 at $3.10–15, while Teck at $9.00–$9.05 was unchanged, and Tough Oakes lost another point at 33½–34. In the eastern section of the property, Murphy lost a further 2 points at 57-8, while Bidgood also lost 2 points at 60–63. Barry-Hollinger was very heavily traded in and closed one point stronger at 55½-6. Howey lost 3 at $1.05-8. Hudson Bay was unable to hold its early morning advance and closed 15 points easier at $20.10-$20.25, while its neighbour Mandy closed unchanged at $2.15-$2.25.

Big Missouri.

According to a despatch from Stewart, B.C., the recent discovery at Big Missouri consisted of 5 feet of ore encountered between 1,675 and 1,680 feet from the portal of the tunnel. The report stated that approximately one foot of the ore carried exceptional values in gold. It was said the vein had been drifted on for more than 80 feet with the high grade section still persisting and showing free gold. The management has, as yet, issued no statement but report comes from the most reliable source.

Sudbury Basin.

New found strength in this issue is attributed to a despatch from Sudbury stating that drill hole No. 23 revealed 50feet of high grade ore running 20 per cent zinc, 5 per cent lead and 4½ per cent copper.

Amity.

It is officially announced that Amity Copper has commenced drifting on the 375 foot horizon, and the first rounds taken out showed the vein to be as wide and rich as ever. Drifting at the 375 foot level marks an interesting stage of development at Amity, as it proves continuous ore from the surface to this horizon. The ore from the drift now in progress is being prepared for shipment to the Horne smelter at Noranda, and when completed will make the eighth carload shipped to date. These shipments of sorted ore to Noranda form a very satisfactory source of revenue. It is understood plans are under way for the erection of a 100 ton concentrating mill.

Bathurst.

The main shaft at Bathurst Mines in the Patricia district has been sunk to a depth of 230 feet on their No. 3 vein, according to a report from Mr. Frank Carnegie, mine superintendent. At the 200 foot level he states the drift had been carried 36 feet from which a crosscut will run 70 feet to the north and another 50 feet to the south. The north crosscut disclosed 5 feet of vein matter running $13.65 in gold per ton. The drift from this shaft will be continued approximately 700 feet north west to intersect what is known on the surface as the "golden sidewalk." On the way it is expected this drift will intersect a large sulphide zone showing quartz stringers carrying high gold values. On the Price-Logan group of the company another shaft is to be started immediately and will be carried to the 100 foot level, where drifting will be undertaken to prospect a vein which has been trenched for 400 feet in length with average width of 8 feet and surface values in gold running up to $10 a ton.

Amulet.

Strength in Amulet yesterday near the close was due to a report that in their north west crosscut some new ore, not previously indicated by diamond drilling, had been encountered. This ore appears to be far enough away from both the "C" and "B" bodies to prove it an entirely new body. Work on this is being aggressively pushed.

Noranda.

A report from our field man states that the "K" orebody of Noranda has been opened up on the 300, 400 and 500 foot levels. This is highly important, as the "K" orebody originally was thought to be a very shallow one, and on the upper levels showed extraordinarily high grade copper. It is understood that two more converters are being brought in from Sudbury to help step up production.

KINGSTON, Ont., Sept. 21. —(Canadian Press).—The hearing of evidence in the case of Wilbert R. Dr. Ryan told of two interviews with the prisoner recently in which Williams had shown a remarkable memory and had given a clear and connected story of his life.

Wedding Bells

YEARWOOD—KILPATRICK

MADOC, Sept. 21.—The wedding took place on Wednesday, September 12, at 2 p.m. of Sadie, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Kilpatrick, of Madoc, and Albert Yearwood, also of Madoc. The service was read by the Rev. T. G. Marshall, of St. Peter's church.

FLETCHER—WEDLOCK.

A pretty wedding was quietly solemnized at George Street United Church by Rev. Mr. Wren, at 2 p.m., September 19th, when Letitia Mae, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Wedlock, was married to Mr. William Fletcher, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Fletcher of Keene. The bride, who entered the church on the arm of her father, to the strains of the Wedding March, played by Mr. J. H. Renwick of Oshawa, was prettily gowned in white georgette, with silver trimming, and wore a cap veil of embroidered net, arranged with orange blossoms. Her bouquet was of Madame Butterfly roses. Miss Laura Macfarlane acted as bridesmaid, and wore rose glow taffeta with Spanish lace trimming and black velvet picture hat. She also carried Madame Butterfly roses.

The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. Alfred Fletcher, of Keene.

During the signing of the register a solo was rendered by Mrs. J. H. Renwick of Oshawa.

The groom's gift to the bride was a cabinet of silver; to the bridesmaid, a French beaded bag; to the best man, military brushes; to the soloist, a silver spoon tray, and to the organist, cane with silver trimmings.

After the ceremony a reception and buffet luncheon was held at the home of the bride's parents.

The happy couple then left for a motor trip through the States by way of Kingston, the bride travelling in an ensemble of rose biege poiret twill, with hat, gloves, shoes, hose and bag to match.

The bride and groom received many beautiful and costly presents, including an electric heater and toaster from Fitzpatrick and Geraghty and staff, with whom the bride has been employed, also a beautiful mantel clock from T. Brightman and Co., with whom the groom is connected.

On their return they will reside in Peterborough.

Beg Your Pardon.

Miss Helen Whittington and not Miss Helen Staples, as stated in The Examiner, signed the register at the Westington—Murray wedding on Tuesday.

Bowling

To-night is expected to be a red letter night for bowlers at the local bowling green. There will be lots of bowling and varoous prizes. Be on hand early and get in on the draw.

MRS. TRUDE WALDON.

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 21.—The death occurred at Cleveland, Ohio, at six o'clock this morning of Laura Northcott, wife of Trude Waldon, in her 46th year. Mrs. Waldon was born in Lakefield, youngest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Northcott. She lived in the village until last winter, when she moved to Detroit to join her husband. She spent the summer in the village with her sister, and although her health was not good it was only within the past two weeks that the gravity of her condition was discovered. She left last Saturday morning for Cleveland to enter a hospital for treatment, and the news of her death at such an early date was a great shock to her friends in the village.

She leaves to mourn her loss her husband, two sisters: Mrs. Blackstock of Detroit and Miss Fanny Northcott of Lakefield, and two brothers: John of Detroit and William of Toronto. Her mother died about ten months ago.

Mrs. Waldon was a member of St. John's Church and was for years actively connected with the W.A. and the A.Y.P.A., serving as president in both organizations.

Funeral announcement will be made later.

MRS. EMMA MARSHALL

The death occurred yesterday of Emma Windover, wife of Robert Marshall, Chemong road. The deceased was 80 years of age, and was born in Napanee.

The funeral will be held on Saturday from the residence of A. McDonald, 262 Dublin street, at 2.00 o'clock, with the Rev. W. S. Edgar of Gilmour Memorial Church officiating. Interment will take place in Lakefield cemetery.

WILLIAM SCOTT

Word was received in this city this afternoon of the death of William Scott of Smith township. Mr. Scott died at 10:15 this morning at Benson, Saskatchewan, where he had undergone a serious operation. Mr. Scott was a resident of the township of Smith where he was a most successful farmer. Several years ago he retired to this city and took up residence on Gilmour street. Two years ago his wife died and he went back to live on the farm with his only son Bruce. He attended St. Paul's Presbyterian Church.

There are left to mour his loss besides his son, one sister, Mrs. Andrew Robson, London street and three brothers, Walter Scott of Charlotte street; John Scott of chamberlain street; and Robert Scott of Toronto.

The funeral will be held from his late home in Smith township.

DENY CROWDING IS CAUSE OF RELEASES

WILLIAMS SENTENCED TO HANG

Verdict of Murder Given

Sentence Pronounced To-day On Kingston Man Who Slew Wife.

CLEMENCY URGED.

Nearly Three Hours Required By Jury To Reach Decision —Execution Dec. 6.

KINGSTON, Ont., Sept. 22 (Canadian Press).—Wilbert Williams, former school teacher, was sentenced by Mr. Justice Kelly to-day to hang on December 6 for the murder of his wife. He was found guilty by the jury yesterday of battering his wife to death with a claw hammer in their home here on August 15.

The crime for which Williams was sentenced to death was one of the most unusual in the criminal history of the district. Police received their first notice of it from Williams himself, who telephoned them and calmly stated that he had killed his wife. He seemed at no time to be in the least concerned over the crime or over his fate. While awaiting trial in jail he gained several pounds.

Mrs. Williams was killed with a hammer. When the police arrived at the home they found her body on the bed with the head badly beaten, and near it a blood-stained hammer.

The only defence offered at the trial was insanity. Evidence was offered by Williams' former associates that he was a "queer" person, as well as expert medical testimony.

The doomed man was a former school teacher at Picton. It was there that he met his wife, who also was a teacher and a native of Owen Sound. About a year age he retired from teaching and with his wife moved to Kingston. Both were ardent tennis players and well known on local courts.

The verdict of guilty was returned by the jury after two hours and forty-five minutes deliberation. The verdict contained a strong recommendation for mercy. Sentence will be pronounced by Mr. Justice Kelley to-day.

Williams showed no emotion as the verdict was announced.

The trial concluded yesterday afternoon. Crown Prosecutor T. J. Rigney, in his address to the jury stated that it appeared strange that the accused could remember details of his past life, with the exception of the actual time of the killing of his wife.

Justice Kelley in charging the jury pointed out that there was a difference in insanity as viewed from the medical and legal aspects. If the jury found the accused insane, he stated, they must find that he did not appeciate the nature and quality of the crime and did not know right from wrong.

W. G. Hodgins, defense counsel in summing up, had declared that there could be no question of the sanity of Williams. "It is a fine state of affairs," he exclaimed, "when a crazy man is allowed to be at large and not admitted to an asylum and two weeks later kills his wife."

The crime for which Williams was tried first came to the attention of the police when Williams called from his home asking that a constable be sent. Police officers who answered the call found the accused smoking a cigarette. He told them that he had been "nagged" by his wife and that he had secured a hammer and "hit her on the head with it."

COW AND CALF ELECTROCUTED

High Tension Wire Falls On Wire Fence Around Pasture Field.

NEAR AUBURN MILL.

A cow and a calf owned by William Wattman, River road, Douro, were electrocuted yesterday afternoon in their pasture field near the Auburn Woollen Mills. One of the wires of the high tension line coming from the Auburn power house broke and fell on a wire fence, passing the current along the fence. The calf while grazing came in contact with the fence and was severely burned around the neck and head. The calls of the calf attracted the cow's attention; she rushed to the aid of her calf and also was electrocuted. The wire was carrying 2,200 volts. The cow was valued at $125 and the calf $25.

Scoffs At Titles; Won't Reject One

LONDON, September 22 (Canadian Press). — Young Oswald Mosley, whose father, Sir Oswald Mosley, died yesterday, is not going to reject the title despite his Socialistic beliefs, says the Evening Star in a despatch from Nice. "It is not worth giving up. Titles count for nothing nowadays," Mosley said.

GLAD TO START HIS WORK HERE

Sir William Clark, British High Commissioner, Lands at Quebec.

AVOIDS CONTROVERSY.

QUEBEC, Que., Sept. 22.—(Canadian Press).—Canada late this morning welcomed to her shores the first High Commissioner for Great Britain to be appointed to the Dominion, Sir William Clark. Tall, slim, and alert, Sir William in most courteous terms declined on his arrival here to express an opinion on any subject savoring of controversy. Shortly after his arrival, the British High Commissioner left for Ottawa, where he will be met tonight by the Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Acting Prime Minister.

"First and foremost," Sir William declared, though, "I am glad to be in Canada. From any point of view that almost goes without saying, but I am very glad indeed to find myself on your shores and really about to begin my work.

"As to the work itself, surely there could be none more fascinating. My function will be to be an additional channel of cummunication between the government of Canada and the British government in London, two governments serving equally the same king and governing nations within one and the same empire."

A. S. CUTTING BADLY HURT

Peterborough Man In Hospital As Result of Collision in Toronto.

DRIVER ARRESTED.

TORONTO, Sept 22—A. B. Cutting of Peterborough is in the Western Hospital, suffering from three fractured ribs, a punctured lung and cuts about the face, as the result of a motor car driven by Thomas Brown, Warren Crescent, crashing into the rear of a C.N.R. express truck, in charge of John Butler, 268 Lisgar street, at King and Portland streets yesterday afternoon. Cutting's condition is regarded as serious.

Brown was taken into custody by Detectives Hutchinson and Breen on a charge of criminal negligence.

Brown, the police say, was proceeding east on King street, when, at Portland street, he crashed into the rear of the truck. Brown managed to save himself from going through the windshield by grasping tightly the steering wheel, but Cutting, having nothing to hold to was hurled forward against the interior of the car. Hoping to avert the crash, Brown as he neared the truck, swung to one side, in this way causing the side on which Cutting was seated to bear the brunt of the impact. After striking the truck, the car veered off and came into collision with a street car. Truck, street car and automobile, suffered damage in the crash.

Cutting was taken out of the auto, and rushed to the hospital, while Brown was conveyed to Claremont station.

IN POLICE COURT

An out of town man pleaded guilty to consuming liquor in other than a residence and was fined $10 and $5.00 costs.

The evidence in the case brought against Joseph Johnston of Harvey township for keeping liquor in other than a residence was heard yesterday afternoon and judgment was reserved for one week. Provincial Constable Thompson and Provincial Officer Stewart searched Johnston's home this week and found a carton of beer in his garage. Alex Elliott defended the accused while Crown Attorney Hatton K.C., prosecuted.

The charge of assault laid against J. Gates Jr. was dismissed by Magistrate Langley.

A local man pleaded guilty to being intoxicated in a public place and was fined $10 and $4.50 costs.

HARVEST HOME SERVICE HELD AT ALL SAINTS'

Rev. A. T. Weir Preaches Sermon On Thankfulness to God.

SPECIAL MUSIC.

Church Is Beautifully Decorated With Fruit and Flowers For the Occasion.

"Let everything that hath breath praise the Lord," the sixth and last verse of the 150th Psalm, was the text chosen by the Rev. A. T. Weir of Christ Church, Omemee, for his sermon at the harvest home service in All Saints' Church last night. From this text he preached a thoughtful sermon in keeping with the season.

The church was beautifully decorated with grain, fruit, flowers and vegetables in the windows and on the seat ends. Suitable music was provided by the choir, while the congregational singing of familiar harvest hymns was most hearty.

The 150th Psalm, said Mr. Weir, is the culmination of the Book of Psalms, which shows vivid pictures of the phases of thought through which the soul of the psalmist was passing. He who reads with understanding can almost feel the fears and hopes of the psalmist, and is aware that they are not only the feelings of one man three thousand years ago, but fit every man who lives here now.

The Psalm is a summing up of the joyousness and confident assurance felt by the writer, who seems to have thought of the whole wide world, calling on men who cared and men who didn't care to praise the Lord. The speaker compared the 150th with the 19th Psalm, in which it is said that the heavens and earth and other things which are considered inanimate declare the Glory of God.

In the theological school there were taught the three great proofs of the existence of God; first, the existence of all matter, second, the fact that there is a purpose in all things; and thirdly, that man has a moral sense. There are people who say that all things have come into existence from the working out of a great principle that is inanimate and without personality. If that were so the great aspirations and thoughts of man would be subordinate to a creative power without personality, whereas there is over all things a power that is merciful, that has love and benevolence. Things are moving forward to a definite end, whether or not man can see it.

When the Children of Israel were in the desert they were being prepared for the land of plenty which they were to receive. With privileges come responsibilities. They were coming to a good land and certain duties were to be theirs. They were to be careful lest they forgot God and were to be workers in advancing the great principles of God.

The people of Canada have almost completed another harvest, continued Mr. Weir. The quantities of fruits of the earth gathered in would seem tremendous to the dwellers of some countries. There are responsibilities laid on the people who have these privileges. Canada is one of the few countries that are not over-populated. There is certain to be a great influx of people from other lands, and the building up of a Canadian nationality is just beginning. What is it going to be?

The responsibility for what Canada will be in years to come was placed by the speaker on the shoulders of this generation and the generations that are to come. The people who are coming are not going to remain isolated units. They will be merged into one great race. No one can say what Canada will be one thousand years from now.

All things are moving forward, actuated by a God who has a purpose behind it all. Things are going to work out to something worth while, and the people must have faith and develop within themselves the best there is. If people want to offer up a true thanksgiving to God for His goodness, they must give the best that is in them to give, not money but by development and making the most of themselves.

"This land is worth while; the future is worth while; you are worth while. All these things are of tremendous importance to the mighty God that made all things. May we as intelligent people join the great chorus of inanimate things and praise the Lord."

The anthem sung by the choir, under the leadership of George E. Chandler, was "Praise the Lord." The hymns were, "We Plow the Fields," "The Sower Went Forth Sowing," and "O Lord of Heaven and Earth and Sea."

WIFE IS FINED BECAUSE SHE PICKED HUSBAND FOR TARGET.

CHESTER, Pa., Sept. 22.—Mrs. Eleanor Jones of May Street was fined $25 and costs the other day by Police Magistrate Berry on a charge of shooting at her husband. The woman became angry because her husband, Robert Jones, left home for a motor trip. All of the bullets went wide of their mark.

Two other prisoners, Edward Bell and Lillian Turner, who figured in gun play, were fined $10 and costs by Berry.

Y.W.C.A. BOARD PLANS SEASON

Members and Staff Hold Conference in Cottage at Chemong.

RALLY ARRANGED.

Board committee members and staff of the Y.W.C.A. enjoyed a delightful setting up conference at the summer home of Mrs. Eastwood, Chemong, on Thursday.

Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner presided at the meetings which were opened by devotional period, followed by a review of past year's Y.W.C.A. World Study course of the Life of Christ.

After lunch, which was in charge of the Social committee, the various committees met for a discussion of their part in the Y.W.C.A. year's program. Reports of the committees were received by the Board later in the afternoon.

The Swimming Pool committee announced plans for a water pageant at the close of the swimming season and the regular life saving examinations in November. Swimming has been very popular this summer and many regrets that lessons close the end of this month. The pool will remain open for swimmers and life saving class until November. The committee reported on the vacuum and announced water tests Grade A and a generous gift of an up-to-date hair dryer has been received and a welcomed addition to the equipment.

The Physical committee has arranged a full schedule of gymnasium classes which will commence October first. Classes include gymnastics, folk and aesthetic dances basket ball and games. Badminton it is expected will be quite a feature this year and also a snow-shoe club which has been asked for by the girls. The Hallowe'en parties for all members will be held the end of October.

Educational classes for this year will include a Shakespearean course to be taken by Prof. Davies of the Toronto University. During the year the committee also hopes to include several lectures on interesting subjects. A new suggestion was Travels in an Arm Chair, to which all interested in other countries would be invited to spend an evening around the fire with some interesting traveller. The program might also include songs and readings of the country being travelled. The regular ukulele, basketry, wood carving, home-nursing classes will be organized early in October. Also junior cooking and junior story hour. In order to supplement the junior library a book shower in November was suggested.

The residence committee is planning a social evening for the girls of the residenc and also to send flowers to the girls who are ill. The committee recommended the addition of extra baths and equipment. Special Hallowe'en, Christmas and holiday dinners, a delightful feature of the residence social life, will again be a feature.

The membership committee discussed the new basis of membership advised for the Y.W.C.A., which aims to promote the real association purpose rather than making the first requirement, the payment of membership fee. Membership suppers, sleigh drives, programs and ceremonies were planned.

The Religious Work Committee felt the Sunday afternoon friendly hour and sing-songs were much appreciated, and offered their help in connection with these services. The Bible study class will continue the second year's course of the world study on the life of Christ, in charge of Mrs. E. E. Harvey. Special plans will be made for world fellowship week in November, and through contributions, entertainments and sales, the committee will assist the members in raising $150 for the foreign work.

Plans of the Y.W.C.A. rally, Friday, September 29, were discussed by the program and entertainment committee. Mrs. Percival Foster, field secretary of the National Y.W.C.A. council will open the season's activities, and each department will contribute

MOTHER WISHED TO TAKE BLAME INSTEAD OF SON

Mrs. Northcott Struck Final Blow Which Killed Walter Collins.

GRANDSON HELPED.

Degenerate Son's Whims Ruled Mrs. Northcott, According To Her Husband.

RIVERSIDE, Calif., September 22 (Canadian Press.)— Mother love so intense it led her to plot murder and assume the blame at the behest of her son's degenerate whims to-day stood revealed as the background of the murder indictments against Mrs. Sarah Louisa Northcott and her 21-year-old son, Gordon Northcott, under arrest in Canada. Cyrus Northcott, husband and faher, told the authorities yesterday that his son's desires ruled the mother and led her to take a hand in each of the several executions. Sanford Clark, 15, grandson of Mrs. Northcott, corroborated the statement, and described the killing of Walter Collins nine-year-old Los Angeles boy. He said he was forced to participate in the slaying to ensure his silence.

The Collins boy fell a victim of the Northcott chicken ranch because he saw Gordon slay a man in Mint Canyon, Clark said. After deciding to employ an axe because a gun made too much noise, Clark said, Mrs. Northcott led her grandson and son to the hen house where three of Northcott's victims later were alleged to have been buried, and where Young Collins was sleeping. Gordon struck the first blow, then, "so none of us can tell," Clark said Mrs. Northcott forced her grandson to strike a blow. Mrs. Northcott struck Mrs. Northcott then said, "If it ever the final blow herself.

comes out and gets into the Court, put all the blame on me, because I'm old, and it wouldn't be hard to die," Clark added.

WHEN METAL GETS TIRED.

A metal gets tired and needs a rest the same as does an animal, declares Prof. J. B. Kommers expert on metal fatigue at the University of Wisconsin. When an axle breaks or an automobile wheel drops off without any apparent cause, the reason usually is that the metal is fatigued and needed a rest and din't get it. There is no way of preventing this fatigue, says Popular Science Monthly, except by resting the metal.

Man Finds Serious Mistake In Getting Wives Together

EL MONTE, Cal., September 22. — Manuel Torrey may be worth fighting for, but when it comes to paying $200 to retain him as a husband and possibly keep him out of the penitentiary, that is something else.

Torrey, who was arrested the other afternoon by Chief L. C. Burdick on suspicion of bigamy, is charged by Concepcion De Galarza with having married her in Douglas, Ariz., on April 20 last, without undergoing the formality of a divorce from the wife he had wed at El Paso some sixteen years previously.

Torrey made the mistake of bringing the two wives together here, which resulted in a three-cornered pitched battle and his subsequent arrest. The second Mrs. Torrey the other night offered to drop the proceedings if Torrey would give her $200.00 to pay her fare back to Douglas and enable her to annul her marriage. The first Mrs. Torrey listened carefully to the proposition put to her by Chief Burdick through her fifteen-year-old son, who was acting as interpreter. Notwithstanding that her stockings were bulging with currency, her son interpreted her reply as follows: "She say too much dinero. He not worth it." Torrey was locked up to await trial.

KIDNAPPERS GROW BOLDER

Threaten Union President Who Reported Abduction of Business Agent.

NO MONEY INVOLVED.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 22 (Special to The Examiner).—A second Motion Picture Operators' Union official is under threat of kidnapping. Ray Gagnon, president of the union, who gave police the facts about the kidnapping of Max Ruben, business agent, received notice last evening that his turn was next.

It was Gagnon who told all he knew about the raid of the four gunmen on his office on the Hofman Building last Thursday afternoon.

Last evening Gagnon's telephone rang. "Who is this?" a voice asked.

"Gagnon," the president answered.

"So you notified the police, did you?" the voice asked, adding: "Well, just wait."

Before Gagnon could say more the caller hung up.

Police Informed.

He at once reported the threat to Inspector Joseph C. Garvin, head of the crime and bomb squad, who is in charge of the kidnapping investigation. He believes that Max Ruben is still alive, though in very grave danger, and the motive for his kidnapping is still puzzling. It turns out now that no money was in the treasury of the union and that Ruben has little or no money of his own except a car presented by the Union and $200 a week salary. The ever mounting kidnapping and crime wave is the subject of an editorial under the caption of "defiant lawlessness" in the Detroit Free Press to-day.

The abduction by armed men of Max Ruben, secretary of the Motion Picture Operators' Union, while he was in his office guarded by friends who feared just such an outrage, was an unusually flagrant example of a type of lawlessness that is more and more generally threatening and disrupting the right of men and women to pursue their callings in life in peace and safety. And in so far as it is an expression of factional dispute within trades unionism it is a peril to all that organized labor has won for itself throughout many years of struggle.

LARGE MARKET THIS MORNING

Produce Of All Kinds Plentiful Many Buyers Attend.

PRICES HOLD FIRM.

One of the largest markets of the season was held this morning. All kinds of produce of the gardens and dairies of the district were offered for sale, and hundreds of buyers turned out to purchase the best that nature can produce.

Chickens were most plentiful, roasters selling at from 28 to 30 cents a pound, and broilers at 32 cents. Butter, although not as plentiful as it has been earlier in the season, commanded the fair price of 42 cents a pound. Eggs, sometimes becoming rather scarce at this time of year, appeared to be plentiful this morning, and by noon many baskets still remained to be sold. The commanding price was 35 cents a dozen. Cauliflower, cabbages, potatoes, carrots, beets, tomatoes, and all other kinds of garden produce were most plentiful. They sold at: cauliflower, 15 cents a head; cabbage, 10 cents; potatoes, $1.00 a bag; carrots and beets 5 cents a bunch; tomatoes, $1.00 a bushel, and corn, 15 cents a dozen.

HEARTACHE BRINGS 180-DAY HEADACHE TO BOOTLEGGER.

MODESTO, Cal., Sept. 22. — 'Twas a heartache that drove E. W. Wicks of Turlock to bootlegging, he declared in Superior Judge L. W. Fulkerth's court the other day. The court sentenced him to 180 days in the county jail here. Asked what caused him to bootleg, Wicks said it was domestic and financial troubles. "I had a heartache," he declared.

NAVAL ACCORD SURE TO OFFEND

Give France and England What They Want and U. S. Nothing, Says News.

TERMS MADE KNOWN.

LONDON, Sept. 22 (Canadian Press).—With the terms of the Anglo-French naval compromise gradually becoming known, the Opposition press to-day criticized it as bound to offend the United States.

Advices from Geneva assert that the accord covers an agreement that the disarmament conference shall deal with these classes of naval vessels.

1. Surface ships of 10,000 tons or less, armed with guns over six and up to eight inches calibre

2 Ocean going submarines of more than 600 tons

3. Capital ships of more than 10,000 tons or armed with guns exceeding eight inches in calibre.

4. Airplane carriers of more than 10,000 tons.

The Daily News said: "If Sir Austen Chamberlain really found the compromise hopeful he must be more innocent than anybody thought. It gives Great Britain unlimited small cruisers, France unlimited small submarines, and America nothing she wanted. It is almost too crude to be true."

W.M.S. MEETS.

Trinity Church Women Hear Address By Rev. J. H. Dudgeon.

Trinity W.M.S. held their first meeting of the season in Reid Street Hall with a splendid attendance. Mrs. A. Bookhout presided over the usual business routine. Mrs. F. D. Carver's group then took charge. Rev J. H. Dudgeon, of St. James' Church, gave a very interesting address and Miss Ingram sang a solo.

Jail Farm Can Care For 300

Attorney-General's Office Says Circumstances Govern Releases.

TERMS TOO LONG.

Farm and Don Jail Full, Say Officials, But Not Yet Overcrowded.

TORONTO, Sept 22.—(Special to The Examiner).—Officials are not unanimous as to conditions at the Toronto Jail Farm following allegations made by a former inmate. The Attorney-General's department denies that inmates have been released because of congestion at the institution and advises that only because of estinuating circumstances has this ever been done. "There are many cases of men sent down for two months who really should be allowed out before that time" said one official.

"Although the Toronto jail is taxed to capacity all the inmates have been taken care of properly" was the statement of Major W. J. Morrison, Governor of the jail. "The farm can take care of 300 men comfortably and there is exactly that number there. If we could not take carke of them properly we would refuse to take them in."

Said Dan. Chisholm, property Commissioner, "If larger quarters are needed they are constructed on advice from Queen's Park. The city is not expected to take the initiative."

"I could tell of worse conditions if the newspapers could print them. The trouble is they are not fit to print. I am amazed." That is the statement of Alderman Quinn.

Mayor McBride has decided to make a personal investigation. Hon. Lincoln Goldie, Provincial Secretary, under whose department the Jail Farm is administered, would make no statement but an official in his department said "The jail farm is crowded, so is the Don Jail. That is generally known. Conditions are not abnormal, however."

MUCH BUILDING IS AUTHORIZED

Fourteen Permits Issued During Past Week—Three New Houses.

EIGHT FOR GARAGES.

Building in Peterborough during the past week kept up its previous record of the season when 14 permits for work valued at $17,255.00 were issued by City Engineer R. H. Parsons. Applications were made for the erection of three new dwellings, two of them valued together at $13,000 by Alderman Walter Stocker and the third estimated to cost $3,000 by C. Robson. Mr. Robson is building his new house at 574 Waterford street while Mr. Stocker is building his on Downie street. The De Laval Company took out a permit to build a new garage at its plant which will cost $600. Eight permits in all were taken out for the erection of private garages. The other permits were for the making of repairs and the moving of buildings.

Nicholls Hospital Notes

Written by the Board of Nicholls Hospital to explain the necessity for an addition to building and equipment.

CITY COUNCIL ENDORSES HOSPITAL EXTENSION

I desire to use the space donated by The Examiner for that purpose to commend the favorable consideration of the qualified electors the By-Law to provide for the enlargement and improvement of the Nicholls Hospital.

After discussing the matter very fully with the Hospital Board the City Council is in full accord with the Board that the enlargement and betterment should be made. The sick of our people should have the care they require, and the mothers especially should have the accommodation and attention they need, which can only be given when there is sufficient hospital accommodation.

The Nicholls Hospital which was given to the citizens without cost, through the generosity of Mrs. Nicholls, needs the enlargement, as the demands upon it are more than can be met, and this can only be provided by the electors endorsing the By-law that the required funds for that purpose may be furnished.

I hope that the electors will bear in mind the date, next Wednesday and support the By-Law.

TARIFF FIGHT LOOMS

PARTIES PLAN BATTLE FIELD FOR ELECTION

England Exercised Over Protection Versus Free Trade Issue.

RELIGION ENTERS.

Problem of 5,000,000 New Women Voters Worries Party Chiefs.

(By Dewitt Mackenzie, Associated Press London Bureau.)

LONDON, Sept. 22.—Farmer Stanley Baldwin, by avocation prime minister of England, knows all there is to know about pigs. But he can't tell from the length of a frog's hind legs how far the tantalizing little animal can jump.

If he could do that he would be the happiest man in Britain, because only such depth of perspicacity would enable him, or anybody else to forecast what is going to happen to him and his Conservative majority in the general election which is now brewing.

The big guns of the campaign are getting into action, and an interesting sidelight is the personal competition between Farmer Stanley Baldwin and former Premier Lloyd George, the Liberal leader, who is proud of his Welsh birthright. The little Welsh Napoleon is posing for his picture as he stands by a sty looking down knowingly at a huge pig; and farmer Stanley has invaded Mr. Lloyd George's native hills and tried to speak Welsh.

May Inject Religion.

The latest and most surprising development is that religion may play a part in the election, thereby getting into politics for the first time in many years. The prayer book controversy, which has divided the Church of England into two camps, has left the venerable Archbishop of Canterbury a broken hearted man, has already cropped up in the political field.

Certain Anglo-Catholics are planning to run a candidate in an effort to defeat Home Secretary Sir William Joynson Hicks, who is leader of the anti-Anglo-Catholic members of the Church of England. Sir William has expressed regret that religion should get into politics, but at the same time has issued warning that if he is opposed on religious grounds in his constituency there will be reprisals elsewhere.

The religious question, however, is not a party issue. If it arises it probably will be through individual effort. It could hardly be taken cognizance of in any party platform. The main issues, so far as they have developed, are:

To put it bluntly, the class warfare which is being waged between labor and so-called "vested interests," or upper-classes.

The highly important question of protection versus free-trade.

The grievous unemployment problem, and the slump which has hit many industries so hard, especially the coal trade.

Perhaps the most puzzling aspect of the situation is how some 18,000,000 women voters, about 5,000,000 of whom are newly enfranchised will cast their ballots. Many a homely politician is at this moment wishing he were a "Sheik." Incongruous as it may seem, the free-trade issue is likely to affect the feminine vote materially.

Protection versus free-trade bids fair to loom large, although the conservatives as a whole wish to avoid it. The Premier and his party are mainly protectionists; the laborites and the liberals are free-traders. Mr. Baldwin, having brought his party to disaster in the general election of 1923, by advocating protection, has been forced to accept the mandate of the people and compromise by putting on tariffs for the "safeguarding" of industries, as opposed to tariffs for the purposes of revenue.

Long Distance and Record Flights Barred By New French Air Ministry

PARIS, September 22 (Canadian Press). — The newly created Fench Air Ministry has decided to suspend indefinitely all proposed long distance flights or attemps to break aviation records by French airmen.

This officially closes the French trans-Atlantic flight season, Dieudonne Coste, the only one still preparing for such a flight, bowing gracefully to the Ministry's decision.

The order includes speed and altitude attempts as well as long distance records. M. Eynac, the new Air Minister, announced that the ban would be lifted after he had time to investigate the situation thoroughly, probably by next spring.

LABOR AVERTED REVOLUTION IN TRYING POST WAR YEARS

Hon. H. P. MacMillan Pays Tribute to Government of Ramsay MacDonald.

HELPED EMPIRE.

Visitor Tells Canadian Club His Impressions of the Dominion.

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 22 (Canadian Press). — "The greatest safeguard against the possibility of revolution during the trying post-war days," was the tribute paid to the first Labor government of Great Britain under the Premiership of Ramsay Macdonald, by Rt. Hon. H. P. MacMillan, who served in the Labor administration as Lord Advocate, in the course of an address before the Canadian Club here yesterday.

"I personally regard the nine months in which the Labor government was in power as being of the greatest security to the British Empire," Mr. MacMillan said. "During that period the Labor leaders obtained experience which will prove of immense value to the country and increase their sense of responsibility. It is wonderful what a steadying influence responsibility exerts."

Mr. MacMillan, who is returning home after attending the recent convention of the Canada Bar Association at Regina, Sask., journeyed right through to the Pacific Coast, "to be instructed and educated," as he put it, with respect to Canada's development and future prospects.

Visit a Revelation

"My impression of your great Dominion has been a revelation. Everywhere I went there were unmistakeable signs of industry and prosperity and a country with as great opportunities as Canada possesses cannot but continue along the path of success and greatness," Mr MacMillan asserted.

The speaker said that he had been struck with the manifold nature of the development underway throughout the Dominion.

Continuing, he referred to the "harmful propaganda" which had been broadcast respecting conditions in the British Isles.

"It is true that we have been confronted with our tribulations and that the outlook at times has appeared gloomy, but I ask you not to believe all those tales of despair. The nation," he said, "has met these difficulties with its traditional fortitude and a spirit which must win out."

A certain amount of nonsense had gone abroad respecting unemployment and emigration in the Old Land, Mr. MacMillan added. The real situation was that as a result of industry in Great Britain being unable to absorb the available supply of workers, it had been necesary for those willing to work to seek employment in other parts of the Empire.

6 Years of Misery

No Relief from Stomach Trouble Until He Tried TANLAC.

If your stomach is sick, you are sick all over. If you can't digest your food properly, you quickly lose strength get thin and nervous, and feel just as tired in the morning as when you went to bed. For 20 years Tanlac has been restoring to permanent, buoyant health many thousands who suffered just as you do. Why shouldn't Tanlac do for you just what it did for Mr. Noah Pare, 330 Albert street, Windsor, Ont.

He writes: "There was not a day in six years that I did not suffer with my Stomach. It was sore as a boil, and gas would clog up in my chest until I had to fight for breath. I became so nervous and worried that the strain was showing on me. I could not eat, sleep or do my work properly. I tried many treatments without any benefit whatever until I started on Tanlac—and I want to tell every one who suffers as I did, to use Tanlac. After finishing the third bottle, I was well and I don't believe there is a man in Canada with a better stomach than mine. I eat and sleep well; never have pain or gas; never had a day's sickness since using Tanlac."

Tanlac brings back lost appetite, helps you digest your food, builds up weight and strength. It contains no mineral drugs; it is made of roots, barks and herbs, Nature's own medicine for the sick. Get a bottle from your druggist to-day. The cost is less than 2c a dose—and your money back if it does not help you.

BETHEL COUPLE RECEIVE GIFTS

Mr. and Mrs. K. Murray Honored On Occasion of Their Marriage.

EAST EMILY Sept. 22.—On Wednesday evening, the members of Bethel United church and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Kerr to bid farewell to and present their daughter Sadie, whose marriage took place two weeks ago, with a miscellaneous shower and electric lamp before moving to their new home in Maple.

Mr. and Mrs. Murray spent their honeymoon on a motor trip to Quebec, where Mr. Murray's parents live.

The evening was very pleasantly spent in games and music.

In the midst of the evening the shower of gifts being presented, little Misses Marion Deyell and Audrey Boate dressed in white entered the dining room drawing a wagon nicely decorated with white tissue paper and asters laden down with the numerous gifts, after which Mrs. Murray in her pleasing manner made a most suitable reply and the groom also spoke a few words of appreciation on behalf of his wife and himself.

The Sunday school also presented Sadie with a very pretty electric table lamp. The following address was read by Miss Eva Gardiner, and Mr. Herb Jackson made the presentation.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Murray:

Dear Sadie,— The occasion which draws us together to-night is one of special interest to all, an occasion into which each may enter with general appreciation and esteem as we meet to offer our praise in a more permanent and tangible form than in the mere expression of words.

To one who not only took such a keen interest in our Sabbath school work but showed her interest by her regular attendance at the Sababth school that she was fulfilling no secondary position, so we wish to express our unfeigned appreciation in a manner which shall yet live when these lines of address have long been forgotten

Dear Mrs. Murray we have marked with appreciation and gratitude your earnest zeal and devotion in performing your duties as teacher of your class and pianist for our Sunday school, so we the members of the Bethel Sabbath school, therefore take this opportunity of presenting to you this table lamp and humbly ask that you accept it, not on account of its material value but as a slight token of the esteem in which you are held and while using it, you map feel you are using your friends.

May you long be spared not only to use this lamp, but to employ your talents in the service of the Master, rendering such assistance in the Sabbath school as He may deem your portion in the establishing of His glorious kingdom and to wield a greater influence for righteousness in the new community in which you are making your home.

In future years we may be all scattered, "God knows where," but as fond remembrances upon her downy wings carries you back to the present evening and attending circumstances we humbly try to share of your thoughts and may this token be a tie to bind our hearts in mutual friendship.

Signed on behalf of the Bethel Sabbath school — Herbert Jackson, superintendent, Marwood McCarrell, secretary.

"They are the most comfortable shoes I ever have had," Moeller insists.

The shoes are made of wood, size 6 by 14 inches. They can be used for house slippers, work shoes, and Sunday shoes, the wearer says.

GRANDMOTHERS ARE HONORED

Lakefield Church Ladies Hold Their Second Successful Party.

PRESENTATIONS MADE.

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 22.—Wednesday was the day selected by the Ladies' Aid of Regent Street Church for "Grandmothers' Day" and the weather was clear and not too chilly to keep any of the grandmothers from attending. Last year's party was so successful that it is being made an annual event and perhaps no meeting of the Ladies' Aid gives as much pleasure to both officers and members than this day which is set apart to those who are beloved and venerated by all.

The attendance was even larger than last year and the ranks of the grandmothers were augmented by several ladies who only attained this class during the past year. One entire section of the Sunday school room of Regent street church was reserved for the guests of honor.

The president, Mrs. Albert Darling, occupied the chair, and the first vice-president, Mrs. Robert Nugent, conducted the opening exercises. Following a brilliantly executed piano solo by Miss Alice Payne, Rev. S. A. Kemp gave the address of welcome.

Speaking on behalf of the Church Universal, Mr. Kemp extended heartiest greetings to the grandmothers who, having fought life's battle through the heat of the day, made possible the comforts we are enjoying so, in honoring these ladies we are only offering some of the joy which they reaped for the church. We feel gratitude for what these efforts of theirs, put across in spite of strain, disappointment and discouragement, and we rejoice that we are what we are because of their sacrifices. The work done by these ladies is not forgotten, but is dovetailed into the work of the present day and goes on gaining in richness as the years go by.

The speaker said he had often wondered what would happen to the church without the women and their work. Age does not mean that they are put on the shelf and forgotten, for there is the joy and sunshine of trust in God and the full realization of the Master's presence and the joy at last when we "Shall see Him face to face and tell the story—saved by Grace." Miss Frances Fairbairn sang, "Over the Hill to Grandma," with Mrs. H. E. Moore as accompanist; Mrs. John Murphy gave a very appropriate reading, and Mrs. F. H. Richardson and Mrs. Percy Spence sang a pleasing duet, "I'm Coming Home," accompanied by Miss Margaret Richardson on the piano.

Bouquet Presented

Following the musical program Miss Webster presented a bouquet of mauve dahlias to Mrs. Peter Baptie, Kemp gave the addres sof welcome. grandmother, and to Mrs. Thomas Hendren, the second oldest grandmother was presented a bouquet of sweet peas. Mrs. Baptie is 86 years of age, and Mrs. Hendren one year younger. Mrs. George Hamblin, who celebrated her fourty-fourth birthday on Tuesday, was the youngest grandmother and also was presented with a bouquet. The honor of being the youngest great grandmother and

LARGE CROWD VISITS TWEED FOR BIG FAIR

"Banner Fair of Hastings County" Lives Up To Its Fine Reputation.

HORSES FEATURED.

Fast Time Made in Races in Spite of the Heavy Track.

(Examiner Staff Correspondence).

TWEED, Sept. 22.—Sunshine after the rain brought success to the Tweed Fair which has seldom if ever been surpassed. The number of persons on the grounds yesterday was more than four thousand, and it was the belief of the directors and officials that had the weather been favorable earlier in the day and the previous day, the Fair this year would have outstripped all previous records by a wide margin. Under the circumstances, they express not a little satisfaction that the Fair was as largely attended as it was. There was a slight falling off in the number of entries on the prize-list, but this was entirely due to weather conditions. The fast horses and horses of every kind were among the best that could be found anywhere. Hal Pointer, a Smith Falls horse, stepped a mile in 2.10½ on two different occasions, and on a third trip made it in 2.10¾. He won against a fast field.

Just how nearly Tweed came to not having its Fair yesterday will probably never be known to a few, but it is safe to say that it was as close a call as any fair could possibly have. This fact was disclosed in an interview with the president, H. A. Mouck. During the conversation, Mr. Mouck related how they had called a directors' meeting on Thursday afternoon for the purpose of discussing the proper course to take under the then existing weather conditions. For practically two hours the officials debated this question and this question only.

To postpone the Fair seemed to be the only thing to do at one stage of the game, and so certain did it appear that this would be done that the local press ran an item to that effect. But the discussion continued and it was finally decided that there might be something in the old saying, "Nothing venture, nothing win." The directors decided to hold their Fair as scheduled. In the meantime the local paper was off the press, and it was necessary to go to the Post Office and score out the item which would reach the general public throughout a wide district in a very few minutes.

The event was well worthy of the title, "The Banner Fair of Hastings County." For more than fifty years the directors each year have spared no effort to maintain a high standard of exhibition. Generous prizes have been offered in the various classes and this detail seldom fails to attract a large number of entries. The building in which the smaller exhibits and those of a perishable nature are placed is exceptionally clean and in a good state of repair. Its location in a grove of trees is very picturesque.

Fine Horses.

To a visitor, the most noticeable item is the fine horses, and the wonderfully skilled horsemanship that is everywhere in evidence. Ladies as well as men drive spirited horses with all the ease, skill, and assurance of not trained, but born horsemen and horsewomen. The horses themselves are well groomed specimens, and are invariably hitched to the smartest of turnouts. The sight of these sleek, high-stepping animals skilfully guided by charming ladies goes far in explaining why there are so many horse lovers in the district. As proof of the fact, when the horses to compete for the Tummon special prize were led in front of the grandstand, one of the judges scratched his head, at a loss as to whether or not there was one horse any better than the other.

Hundreds of racing fans filled the grandstand all afternoon to watch the fast horses run. J. S. Johnston, Adolphus Town, veteran starter and well known at such driving parks as Napanee and Picton, kept the horses in their place and insisted on proper starts. The drivers co-operated with him to the best of the ability. Horses from Smith's Falls, Napanee, and Frankford took the biggest part of the prize money out of town. Of the ten horses entered, all ran save Alberta Hal, owned by J. McNaught of Tweed. After running one heat in the free-for-all class, Mr. McNaught took the horse out of the race.

Generally, the racing was of the highest order. Time and again the judges crowded their heads togeth-

TENSE SESSION.

GENEVA, Sept. 22 (Canadian Press).—With the British still withholding their consent to the French suggestion to publish the text of their naval accord here immediately, the disarmament committee of the assembly of the League of Nations held a rather tense session yesterday while striving to reach an agreement.

Count Von Bernstorff, German delegate, and Dr. J. Loudon of Holland, president of the committee, both continued to argue doggedly for their proposals. The former German minister to Washington was alone in insisting that a date for an international conference for reduction of armaments be inserted in the committee resolution as drafted. However, it was finally recommitted for modification to a drafting committee. Von Bernstorff had argued that the League should step in when the big powers were unable to agree.

Dr. Loudon warned his auditors that if the assembly ordered him to convoke a preparatory meeting of the commision on a definite date, he would wash his hands of all personal responsibility and leave it solely up to the assembly. He persisted in his idea that private conversations between the great powers was the best way to harmonize their differences, even if three or four, instead of the five concerned, accepted the invitation.

British Viewpoint

A British spokesman yesterday said that Great Britain and France by their accord were merely trying to extend the underlying idea of the

Casting Out Devils

VERY REV. C. J. VAUGHAN, D.D.,
BY DEAN OFLLANDOFF.

Luke viii. 35.—"Then they went to see what was done; and came to Jesus, and found the man, out of whom the devils were departed, seated at the feet of Jesus, clothed, and in his right mind."

It is, I think, John Foster who somewhere says that Christ's miracles were "the great belt round the farthest sun." It is quite true for us who believe in the historical character of our Lord's miracles. But they were something more than that: they were a great part of the sun in themselves. Out of them is this thought, that on the lower level of material and physical nature we may learn great lesson as to what He was, and His power to do in the spiritual world. Now that is not a mere bit of pulpit use of words, but in this case, as in so many others, extremes meet, and to the people who do not believe in the historical character of the gospel, we say a miracle is, first of all, a fact—if you like, operation—and then it is a symbol.

They say, "Oh, no; because it is a symbol, it is not a fact—it is merely a throwing into a legendary form of spiritual ideas." I will accept the interpretation. And first of all, taking these stories in their plain, simple literality, as being things that did verily happen on this green earth of ours, and thereby manifestations of a present god, I take them to be also patterns, types, pictures, symbols, prophecies—anything you like—perennial powers which are constantly sent out from Jesus Christ over all the deformities and weaknesses of this blind, paralysed, thirsty, dying world of ours. And when He said, "go and tell John what things ye have seen and heard; how the sick are healed, the blind see, the lepers are cleansed, the dead are raised up, and the poor have the gospel preached unto them," He stated in the last clause the deepest meaning and highest blessedness of all forms and manifestations of His power.

And so the words have not only a bearing upon that story with which they are immediately connected, but as throwing out in a picturesque and powerfully true form, the blessed truths referred to. But first of all, to begin with, of the way in which we look at these New Testament miracles as connected with their historical veracity. So one or two points about the narrative. I do not deal with the style of the disease, or of the cure. The thing I want to fix upon is that picture, so beautiful in the suffused calm as it were, side by side with the dreadful story which has preceded it of the paroxysm of madness and misery from which the man was delivered. The things I want to emphasize in this connection are two. "They found the man, out of whom the devils were departed, sitting at the feet of Jesus, clothed, and in his right mind." Turn to Mark; he leaves out these words, "at the feet of Jesus," and so, you see, puts the mere attitude of sitting actually there as being the prominent thing which struck the men as they went out. As it stands in Luke's Gospel, the main emphasis is thrown upon the thought, "at the feet of Jesus." And you will see that the thing meant is, that there were three characteristics about the man when they came out, which were noticeable: first, sitting; second, clothed; third, sane, controlling himself. And the explanation of all three follows in the clause which stands independently, "at the feet of Jesus." That is to say, the picture of our narrative is this: here is the man as they knew him, with the paroxysms of his possession upon him, rolling among the mountains and tombs day and night, in the terrible restlessness of his malady, incapable of controlling for a moment the muscular working of his disturbed frame, the indications of his tortured and torn mind. Look at the change. He whom they had known constantly on the move, incapable of a moment's cessation, restless, ceaseless, mad—at once the tension has collapsed, and there he is seated quietly, with no more agitation and disturbance, the limbs that formerly had rejected the chains, clothed; in his tranquillity some returning consciousness of the decencies of life had marked the influence of the mind; able to hold his hand on the bridle and control himself. Compos mentis, as the phrase is, master of himself—no longer hurled hither and thither by the lion power which had had hold of him, but lord of his own faculties. And so sitting, clothed, sane, restful, decent, master of his own being, and all because of his closeness to that Lord. He laid himself along there at the feet of Christ the attitude of the disciple, with love, with humility, with thankfulness, with the instinct strong within him that said,—

"Here at Thy feet 'tis good to be, Thy voice to hear, Thy presence see."

The nervous fear of the return of the ancient evil was still strong within him, and he did not venture to go away from the side of Him in whom was peace and healing. And so, when the Master was about to go away, his prayer, in singular contrast with the prayer of the onlookers—that He would depart out of their coasts—was, that He should suffer him to be with Him, for he dreaded to be alone, lest the old devildom should surge upon his spirit once more. But Christ says to him, "Go to thy home, and tell what things God has done for thee." The man, with the freshest, most uncertain, most tremulous possession of the new position, of the new light, need not be afraid; no man need be afraid of going where Christ sends him.

So much for it as a picture, as a bit of historical fact.

These two points are, I think, often slurred over—of the restfulness and the explanation of "at the feet of Jesus."

Another point about this incident, taken as being a pattern specimen of the transforming power of Christianity on a wide scale in the world's history. I don't spend much time over that. First of all, transformations like that; then down to the externals and the material part of it.

Transformations like that are the common trophies, the every-day results of the spread through the world of the gospel of Jesus Christ. Account for it as you like, it is no part of my present business; but here is the fact to be dealt with by all honest men, that the old story of the man, the outcast, devil-ridden, mad under the possession, being brought back by a touch, by the power of Christ's love, into quiet, into sanity, into decency; that that is only a picturesque way of saying what the poorest preaching of His great name is doing over all the world. You tell us that Christianity in its missionary aspect has failed. Very well, admitted that the quantity of results is not what might have been expected, what I say is, that the fact of one single soul taken out of the dirt and slough and demoniacal abyss of heathendom: some rampant, raving savage taken, clothed, brought within the limits of civilization, taught decency, taught propriety, delivered from the gross and the sensual—though with many infirmities—and set upon a path of, at least, incipient purity; that this is a fact that cannot be accounted for by the people who say Christianity has failed. I want to know what else does that. Go to those dark islands of the Southern Pacific, where seventy or eighty years ago you had the lowest depths of savagedom. Look at them now. Travellers make merry with the strange hybrid of an English Christianity grafted upon a Sandwich Islander,—and I do not know that the men who have gone to do the preaching have always gone the wisest way about it—the main central thing is, that here comparatively ignorant men, people with no knowledge of the genesis of idolatry, and no power of dealing with philosophy, have gone there and said, "Jesus Christ loves me, and He came to die for me." And somehow or other that has got into men's minds, and it has made them, instead of rampant demoniacs, to be in restful tranquillity, clothed with many a material good, in their right minds, at the feet of Jesus. Young man! is there anything else, do you think, will do that? And until something else will do it, I want you to consider whether that is not the power of God and the wisdom of God. So they said long ago; so we, I think, may very quietly say now. Let them do the same with their enchantments, and then we will begin to discuss how they have managed it.

We say, Christ crucified, the germ of all social, moral, and political, and intellectual advancement, and who hath won men that will fight with heathendom and savagery and devildom over all the world! And so, to the other points, for a minute or two. For instance, one of them is this, that here then, with this picture of the man, "sitting, clothed," and in his right mind, at the feet of Jesus," interpreted by the facts which we see round us—and these things are being wrought out in many a back slum, and all round us—these may tell us the true method of dealing with all social and political and moral problems. Christianity does conduce to the material well-being. It was worth while to tell that the man was clothed. That point came in worth noting, even in the midst of the better thought, that he was restful—the influence of the mind. And at the feet of Jesus. We Christian teachers have, I think, been seriously to blame in not sufficiently depicting that side of Christian truth. And then another set of Christian teachers have sprung up all round about us, and say, "Oh, you people who are always talking about conversion, and the fantastic experience of individual lives, you have forgotten the main characteristic of Christianity, that is a social force intended to lift whole masses of men." Yes, I believe that too. And still further, what some of you will think very narrow, that there is very little prospect of permanence and going far with any kind of reformation or amelioration of the conditions of humanity which does not flow from the power of the gospel of Jesus Christ. If Christianity is nothing more than a means of saving a man's own miserable soul, in shutting up for him a future hell, then it is not worth preaching, I was going to say!

If Christianity is nothing more than a social agent—a means of keeping down the police and the poor-rates—then it is still less worth preaching. "What God hath joined, let no man put asunder!"

And I say this, the power of the gospel to lift masses of men in their material and social well-being is a result of the power of the gospel to deal with the far deeper disease of the sores and sins of single souls. The individual first, and the mass afterwards. First of all, peace and forgiveness through our Lord Jesus Christ, and then all the beauties and graces of life after that; but first of all he has to get the power of the devil crushed out of him, and the Master will do that. We may either take this picture as being not only a pattern on a large scale of Christian perfection in the world, but also, my dear friend, it may be, and ought to be, to you and me, a prophecy full of blessedness as to what Christ will do for you and me, for each of us by himself And here is the message it seems to proclaim. First of all, am I speaking to any man or woman that is ready to say, "Oh! I have tried so often, that it is no use trying any more; I am shut out by the obstinacy of my nature, by my many failures, by my long service and slavery to sin. And the old proverb, that 'It is never too late to mend,' is but very poor, cold comfort." But He has a meassge for you. There are no outcasts beyond the sweep of Christ's large mercy, beyond the leverage of Christ's great love; and you, brother and friend, and all of you, the very poorest wretch on the face of the earth, we may all light up eyes of hope and say, "I too have a place in Christ's love, and for me too was that blood shed, and it has not been shed in vain." I ask you to take the picture, and for a moment or two take the two verses in contrast: "There met Him out of the city a certain man, which had devils long time, and wore no clothes, neither abode in any house, but in the tombs. For oftentimes it (the unclean spirit) had caught him: and he was kept bound with chains and in fetters; and he brake the bands, and was driven of the devil into the wilderness." That is what he was. Are you worse than that? Are you more hopeless than that? Are any of us much better than that? Are not you like that? Come, that is a more testing question, is not it? Are not you like that? Conscience, answer! Memory, answer! Well, what then? Then here is the other, "And they found him sitting at the feet of Jesus, clothed, and in his right mind." Lesson the first.

Lesson the second. Here is what God sends me to offer to every man and woman in this place to-night: rest for distraction; peace; tranquillity; quiet of heart, of conscience, of memory, of soul, of hope. Rest! self-command; power of ruling your own animal nature. And that is something, young man,—the power of ruling your own passions, your own purposes, your own thoughts. Emancipation from the madness of sins, from the delirium of dissipation, from the insanity of a life hid up by the things that are seen and temporal. I tell you, the only reasonable man in the world is the Christian man; and religion is nothing more than the superlative of common sense! And so the madman is the man that says, "Tush! I do not think of a God; and as for the 'beyond,' we will jump at it." Dear brother, rest, strength, righteousness, wisdom—all that can clothe your spirit with radiance and beauty, and loveliness and peace—I bring to you "at the feet of Jesus." Take Him for your Helper, and the ejected demon will not come back. Go away from Him and he will, and "the last of that man shall be worse than the first." Keep near Him, love Him, hold firm by His hand, bring your heart, and your thoughts, and your will, and your purposes all under His control, and turn to Him and say "Lord, I am weak; cast Thou Thy strength about me. My heart is empty; fill Thou it." And He will give you, in His own good time, liberty from many a struggle and much difficulty the victory from all your sins, will make such poor characters as you and I may know ourselves to be, images of His own body, radiant with His own lustre, and perfect with His own completeness Keep near to Christ, and Christ will lift those that have found safety and hearing at His feet, will lift them up to be partakers of His crown and His throne.

"Saturday Sermonette"

Psalm CXXX. 6.—"My soul waiteth for the Lord, more than they that watch for the morning."

* * *

Long had the sailors battled with storm and wind and wave,
Darkness and desolation, and fear of the watery grave.
Starless, and moonless, and black were the heavens overhead,
Weary, and worn, and wretched, they fought for their lives in dread.
See! There's a rift in the sky! The dawn is breaking through!
Wider and wider the rift, and clearer the light it grew.
Up and up came the sun till it flooded the world with light,
Then to the worn-out sailors a haven appeared in sight.

So have we longed for our God, 'mid the waves of life's troubled sea,
And fought our way through the darkness, for life is dark without Thee.
See where the morning cometh! See where our longings cease,
And we rest our hearts in the haven of God, in His boundless love and peace.

—Elizabeth Cameron.

A PRAYER

Prayers On Seven Words From Cross

PRAYER No. 6.

O Blessed Jesus, Who, having fulfilled all that was appointed for Thee of the Father, didst finish the perfect life of Thy humiliation upon earth; Grant us so to run the race that is set before us, that when our earthly course is ended, we may present unto the Father the work of a life finished, though imperfect, to be accepted for Thy merits, Who livest with the Father and the Holy Ghost, God for ever and ever. Amen.

Look not on his countenance, or on the height of his stature, because I have refused him: for the Lord seeth not as man seeth: for man looketh on the outward appearance, but the Lord looketh on the heart. I Sam., xvi, 7.

STORIES FOR LITTLE PEOPLE

DAVID, or THE FIGHT OF FAITH
I Sam. xvii, 38-54.
"(By M. B.)"

When Saul heard David speak these words, he told him, to go and fight the giant. But David had no sword, or coat of iron, so Saul lent him his own armour, and his own sword; he put a cap of brass on David's head, and dressed him in a coat of iron. But David had no been used to wearing armour; so he said to Saul, "I cannot wear his armour," and he took it off again: neither would he take a sword, or a spear. He went to the brook and chose five smooth stones, and put them in a bag which he had, and took the bag with him and a cloth. You will hear what he did with the bag, and the stones, and the cloth. In the other hand he held a stick. Then David went to meet the giant.

The giant heard the one o the Israelites was ready to fight with him, and he came near to David: a man with a shield went before him.

When the giant looked and saw David, he was surprised; he had expected to see a great man like himself, dressed in armour, and holding a spear in his hand.

But David was very young, and his face was rosy like a child's, and he only wore a shepherd's dress, and he held a stick in his hand.

The Philistine giant was angry when he saw him, and cursed him, and used very wicked words. Then he began to laugh at David, and said, "Come to me, and I will give your flesh to the birds and to the beasts to eat."

But David was not afraid, and he said to the giant, "You have a sword, and a spear, and a shield: but God will figh for me; and he will help me to kill you, and take your head from you: and the beast and the birds shall eat up the flesh of all the Philistines, and everybody shall see that the God of Israel is the true God, and that he can save whom he pleases."

Then the Philistine giant came still nearer to David, and David ran toward him quickly, and put his hand in his bag, and drew out a stone, and put it in the cloth that he had; then holding one end of the cloth, he threw the stone out of it with all his strength, and the stone hit the giant in the forehead, and it sank into it, and the giant fell upon the ground on his face.

Then David ran to the giant, and taking the giant's sword out of its sheath, he cut off his head When the Philistines saw what a great wonder God had done they were frightened: and the Israelites shouted, for they saw that their God fought for them, and they ran after the Philistines, and the Philistines tried to run away; but the Israelites overtook a great many of them and killed them. David showed the head of the Philistine to a great many of the Israelites, and he kept the armour that the Philistine had worn.

Did David thank God for helping him to conquer the giant? Oh yes, he sang God's praise, and played upon his harp. David did not wish people to praise him; he wished everybody to praise God. He wished all the people to say, "How great God is! He helped the poor young shepherd to conquer the great giant."

Proud peoplewish to be praised; but people who love God wish people to praise God. If God helps you to be good, my dear children, you ought to praise God for helping you to be good; if you remember things you are taught, you ought to praise God for helping you to remember. What do you say the Lord's Prayer about praising "You say, 'Hallowed be thy name;' which means, 'Let God's name be praised.'

Upon those hills two armies stand,
A conflict to behold:
The shepherd yough hath raised his hand
Against the giant bold.

A stone which from the brook he fetch'd
Now gives the deadly wound:
Ah! see the mighty giant stretch'd
Expiring on the ground!

It was the power of God alone
Made David's arm so strong;
And now he wakes the harp's sweet tone,
And pours a grateful song.

Those armies too, that waiting stood,
The wondrous vic'try see;
While Israel triumphs in his God
The trembling heathen flee.

Oh, that all nations now would own
That God can save from death!
Oh, that all idols now were thrown
In darkest caves beneath!

For the wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord. Rom. vi, 23.

All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth. And, lo, I am with you alway even unto the end of the world. Amen. Matt. xxviii, 18, 20.

Some Christians are like the Israelites, they remember the flesh-pots, the fish and mellons, the cucumbers and onions, but forget the afflictions of Egypt. Murmurers usually have short memories.

Beauty of Character

Under the right conditions it is as natural for character to become beautiful as for a flower; and if on God's earth there is not some machinery for effecting it, the supreme gift to the world has been forgotten. This is simply what man was made for. With Browning: "I say that Man was made to grow, not stop." Or in the deeper words of an older Book: "Whom He did foreknow, He also did predestinate . . . to be conformed to the Image of His Son."

I will arise and go to my father, and will say unto him, Father, I have sinned against heaven, and before thee. And he arose and came to his father. But when he was yet a great way off, his father saw him, and had compassion, and ran, and fell on his neck, and kissed him. And the son said unto him, Father, I have sinned against Heaven, and in thy sight, and am no more worthy to be called thy son. But the father said to his servants, Bring forth the best robe, and put it on him, and put a ring on his hand, and shoes on his feet: And bring hither the fatted calf and kill it; and let us eat, and be merry: For this my son was dead, and is alive again: he was lost and is found. Luke xv, 18, 20-24.

And there ye shall serve gods, the work of men's hands, wood and stone, which neither see, no hear, not eat, nor smell. But if from thence thou shalt seek the Lord thy God, thou shalt find him, if thou seek him with all thy heart and with all thy soul. When thou art in tribulation, and all these things are come upon thee, even in the latter days, if thou turn to the Lord thy God, and shalt be obedient unto his voice: (for the Lord thy God is a merciful God): he will not forsake thee, neither destroy thee, nor forget the covenant of thy fathers which he sware unto them. Deut. iv, 28-31.

Ye shall die in your sins: for if ye believe not that I am he, ye shall die in your sins. Jno. viii, 24.

Backsliding Its Penalty

The penalty of backsliding is not something unreal and vague, some unknown quantity which may be measured out to us disproportionately, or which, perchance, since God is good, we may altogether evade. The consequences are already marked within the structure of the soul. So to speak, they are physiological. The thing affected by our indifference or by our indulgence is not the book of final judgment, but the present fabric of the soul.

THE KIWANIS FAIR.

The local Kiwanis Club in planning for its Produced-in-Canada Fair next month, while providing entertainment with a lavish hand, is wisely emphasizing the fundamental idea of the fair, namely, interesting the people of Peterborough in the merits of Canadian-made goods and stimulating home buying.

Our imports of foreign-made goods are assuming huge proportions.

During the twelve months ending with August of this year we brought in this country over a billion dollars worth of foreign products, a large share of which could have been bought in Canada.

The Produced-in-Canada Fair will to a considerable degree—and to the full extent of the accommodation available—help to inspire in Peterborough people an interest in Canadian products, and such interest should be reflected by a greater demand for goods made or produced in our own country, thus ensuring employment for our own workers.

While there will be entertaining and amusing features on every hand in connection with the Kiwanis Fair, the exhibits, which form the basis for the whole enterprise, should be closely studied by every visitor.

ON THE RIGHT PATH.

It is announced that women interested in furthering the cause of temperance are preparing a nation-wide educational campaign in connection with which a thousand prizes will be offered.

These women are getting somewhere in their efforts to minimize the effect of the liquor evil.

They have a much greater chance to succeed in a campaign designed to educate young Canada to the folly of intemperance than they would have in attempting to make Canada temperate by law.

Temperance organizations made that mistake when war-time emergency caused the passing of prohibition laws.

They thought that what they had been striving to accomplish would henceforth be done by the police, and they dropped their educational campaign and relaxed, confident that Canada was dry.

The error made then must be apparent to everybody by this time, and the fact that this nation-wide drive is shortly to be launched is proof that the temperance forces are getting back on the right path.

THE RISK IS TOO GREAT.

The Federal Department of Marine will have the support of the public in the effort it is making to reduce the perils of late lake navigation, and its suggestion that December 5 should be the latest date for eastbound grain-laden vessels to leave Fort William or Port Arthur, should be heeded by the ship-owners.

Every year the temptation to risk just one more trip seems to be irresistible, and the result has been a series of marine disasters involving loss of life and property.

December navigation on the Great Lakes is a most hazardous occupation, and there is no reason why the cupidity of vessel-owners should be allowed to place men's lives in dire peril.

Insurance companies refused to take the risk of protecting mercantile grain movements at that period of the year, but the owners seem willing to take a chance.

They are but gambling on monetary gain or loss; it is the men who go down to the sea in ships who wager their very lives on those late voyages.

The record of December navigation shows that scores of brave sailors have lost out in the gamble with death.

This year it is hoped that the pockets of the owners and skippers will not weigh more than the lives of seamen.

PROTECT THE PEDESTRIAN.

Chief Justice Latchford's remarks in regard to the rights of pedestrians on the highways of Ontario should not be missed by the Provincial Government.

"Pedestrians do not seem to be considered in road construction," said the well-known jurist. "They don't seem to have any right on the highways according to practice."

Undoubtedly that is the case.

The pedestrian on any main highway these days is in constant danger.

And yet it is necessary for many people to walk on the highways—children must go to school and other people have to travel on foot along the roads.

Sooner or later the Highways Department will have to deal with the situation and provide footpaths parallel with the highways for the use of pedestrians.

Certainly in all new highway work that is to be undertaken provision should be made for the man on foot.

Otherwise it is to be feared that the casualty list among pedestrians—already large—will constantly be increased as motor traffic grows.

In the wake of the automobile have come many problems, of which one of the most important is the responsibility of protecting the lives of pedestrians on the roads of the Province.

THE CANADIAN HERITAGE

"Natural Resources, Canada," is the title of a bulletin published monthly by the Department of the Interior. It is a well-edited publication which sets forth current facts regarding the possibilities and development of the national assets. These bulletins contain usually a remarkable amount of interesting information. The latest, for September, is a good illustration.

First, an interesting sketch is given of the summer trip the Governor-General and Lady Willingdon made on the Peace River, in the far northwest, a thousand miles by road or steamer from Edmonton to the Rockies and back.

Next, an account is given of the Prime Minister opening Canada's newest great national park, the Prince Albert, in Saskatchewan. This noble addition to the national playgrounds contains 1,400 square miles in the heart of a virgin forest region in which centre two of the great canoe routes of the fur trader days, the one, to the northeast, leading to Hudson Bay, and the other, to the northwest, to Lake Athabaska, and the Mackenzie Valley. Bear, moose, deer and other game animals roam through the forests of the park; bird life abounds; pelicans and other large birds nest around the lakes, of which there are hundreds with white sand beaches gleaming through dark fringes of spruce and fir; and every stretch of water teems with fish.

Now the ten national parks of Canada cover an area of 11,000 square miles. England is only four times as large.

"In opening Prince Albert National Park," said the Prime Minister, "we dedicate it to the glory of the Creator, whose bounty it mirrors in forest, lake and stream, and to the highest good of the Canadian people for all time to come.

"In the building of Canadian national life and the moulding of our national character it is of the utmost importance that we should cultivate an appreciation of all that is beautiful in our physical environment. In a young country so amply endowed with material resources there is always a danger that we may turn to the gods of the market place, and sacrifice the beautiful on the altar of utility. To be aware of the danger is a long step towards the application of the remedy. It is indeed cause for deep satisfaction that Canada in her youth has learned the wisdom of conservation. The existence of ten national reservations, covering an extent of more than 11,000 square miles, is the best possible evidence that the foundations of our country are rooted in the things that endure beyond the life of brick and mortar."

Next, the opening is described in "Natural Resources" of another national park, the Fort Beausejour Historic Park in New Brunswick, close to Nova Scotia.

"Natural Resources" goes on to tell of muskrat farming in Western Canada becoming profitable; of the Government surveys which reveal a vast area in the far north suitable for reindeer; of the establishment of aerial and radio posts to aid in navigation of Hudson Straits; of big increase in Alberta's petroleum product; of discoveries of new and great mineral deposits in various parts of Canada; of establishment of medical posts in the extreme north for the benefit of the Eskimo.

The Department of the Interior is to be congratulated on the periodical issue of the fine publication.—Ottawa Journal.

CANADA STEPS ON THEM!

Eight and ten-year terms for highwaymen who took part in an escapade here some months ago and who finally came to grief elsewhere, should from an interesting object lesson for any youth who is contemplating a career of crime.

So, too, should the case of Paul Jaworski, the former Hamtramck lad who now lies in a Cleveland hospital, the victim of a policeman's bullet. Jaworski has figured in one crime after another. He has not hesitated to take human life. Indeed, in a confession the other day, he said he had killed 26 men. This number, however, is said to be exaggerated. In any event Jaworski is about to die. During his few years of criminality he made himself the possessor of large sums of money, something like a quarter of a million dollars. But most of it has drifted away and now the killer is dying. It was an exciting business, but it didn't pay.

Highwaymen, hi-jackers, bank bandits and blackmailers reap a large harvest in the United States because of the weaknesses of that country's system of administering law and order. In Canada the same gentry are given every attention—but from a different angle. The essential difference is that our law enforcement aims to protect society rather than the criminals. So-called "sob squads" get little encouragement here. Nor are our courts interested in the thousand and one technicalities that American lawyers are able to devise in order that their clients may be able to defeat the ends of justice.

Criminals from the other side usually give Canada a wide berth and, as Attorney-General Price forcefully suggests, they would be well advised to keep on doing so. This country is not a healthy place for those brain-twisted individuals who figure that a "gat" is the chief equipment required for the business of making a living.—Border Cities Star.

The Question Box

R.H.G. Q.—What is the speed of sound?

A.—In dry air at freezing it travels about 1,091 feet a second; in water its speed is about 4,680 feet a second. It travelled at 11,463 feet a second through an iron bar 3,000 feet long. Sound moves at a constantly diminishing rate of speed.

A Thought

GOOD LIVING

Most people are fond of good living, and no doubt you are fond of it too; but let me ask what it is that you call good living. For if you have fallen into the common mistake, that eating immoderately of dainty food, and drinking freely of intoxicating liquors, if you really think these things constitute god living? we by no means agree; for such a course is the worst living in the world. The best living must be that which is most conducive to health; for without health all other temporal blessings are vain.—G. Mogridge.

EGG MARKETS

OTTAWA, Sept. 22 (Canadian Press).—The majority of Canadian egg markets are holding steady although there is a weaker tendency to the lower grades at Montreal.

Toronto.—The local egg market is practically unchanged. Dealers are quoting country shippers for ungraded eggs, delivered, extras 40 to 42c; seconds, 29 to 30c. The poultry market is easier with receipts increasing rapidly.

Montreal.—There is an over supply of fresh eggs here and the market has turned draggy although fresh extras are still selling readily at unchanged prices. Firsts are particularly difficult to move, although offered from the West at 38 to 40c, f.o.b. Storage firsts are offered at 35c f.o.b. Calgary without sale, as dealers here want to move their own stocks before buying outside supplies.

Vancouver.—Conditions on the egg market here are unchanged. Dealers are quoting producers for ungraded eggs, delivered, extras, 37; firsts, 34c; pullet extras, 29c.

Halifax.—This egg market is holding steady with local receipts light and quality good. Dealers are quoting country shippers for ungraded eggs, delivered, cases returned, extras 42 to 44c; firsts, 38 to 39c; seconds, 29 to 30c.

Charlottetown—Dealers' quotations at country points are unchanged at extras, 35c; firsts, 32c; seconds, 25c. The last co-operative car shipped from the island returned producers 21c for fowl over 5 lbs., 20c for 4 to 5 lbs birds, and 15c for birds under 4 lbs.

STERLING

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 22 (Canadian Press).—Sterling exchange rates were quoted here yesterday as follows:

Demand $4.84½ to 9-16.

Cables, $4.84⅞ to 15-16.

MONTREAL GRAIN

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 22 (Canadian Press).—Extreme dullness again marked the export trade in Canadian grain here yesterday owing to the fact that foreign bids were below local exporters' views.

Owing to the strength displayed in the cash wheat situation at Winnipeg the local market was strong and prices for wheat were advanced 5c per bushel, oats 2c, barley 1c, and corn 1c to 2c. Manitoba No. 5 wheat was quoted at $1.13, No. 6 wheat at $1.04, feed wheat at $1.01, Argentine corn at $1.04 to $1.06, American corn at $1.03, and Manitoba feed barley at 77c.

A feature of the local flour trade was the stronger feeling that developed for Spring wheat grades and prices were advanced 10c per barrel, which was attributed to the sharp rise in contract grades of cash wheat in the Winnipeg market. There was no change in the condition of the market for Winter wheat flour, but the undertone was firmer.

Owing to the continued good demand from local and country buyers for all lines of millfeed and the steady increasing scarcity of supplies a stronger feeling developed in the market, and prices generally were marked up $1 per ton. There was no change in prices for standard grade sof rolled oats, but the undertone to the market was very firm with a fair trade reported.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

There was no actual change in the local fresh egg situation, the extreme price for fresh extras being 50c per dozen and it is doubtful if they will go any higher for the time being, as importations of fresh eggs are being made from the United States at less money than they can be bought at from Ontario shippers, with the result supplies are ample to meet all immediate wants. The tone of the market for storage eggs remains firm under a steady demand. The receipts were 1,745 cases.

Owing to the continued scarcity of imported beans on spot a very firm feeling prevails in the market on account of the fact that buyers find it somewhat difficult to fill their immediate wants. Sales of odd small lots of choice white hand-picked were made at $4.20 to $4.40 per bushel, ex-store and car lots to arrive were quoted at $4 per bushel, ex-track.

Trading in butter showed no improvement, the demand being still of a very limited character and the undertone was easy, but there was no change in prices to note. The receipts were 2,533 packages.

The undertone to the cheese market was steady, but the volume of business was small in all directions. The receipts were 12,851 boxes.

CHICAGO PRODUCE

CHICAGO, Sept. 22 ((Canadian Press).—Butter yesterday ruled barely steady, with trade quiet. Supplies were fairly liberal, and were rather freely offered. In some quarters dealers were sending high cost butter to storage. Buyers were operating for immediate needs only on the centralized car market, the price on 90 score cars was ½c lower.

Fresh, 93 score, 47; 92, 46; 91, 45½; 89, 44; 88, 43; 87, 42½. Centralized—

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Sept. 22 (Canadian Press).—In a whirlwind upturn yesterday, the wheat market yesterday went nearly five cents a bushel above Thursday's finish in some cases. The close was buoyant at practically the top figures reached. Houses with connections northwest led the buying, which found offerings scarce. In some quarters, a feeling that the grain markets have a background of political support was given as a reason for the advance.

Closing quotations on wheat were strong, 3¾ and 3¾ to 4⅞c net higher, with corn varying from ½c decline to 1½c gain, oats showing ¾ to ½c advance, and provisions varying from 47c setback to a rise of 20c.

Price gains that bordered on the sensational came only as the day in the wheat market approached an end. Earlier, the course of values had been downward, influenced by reports of better moisture conditions for crops in Australia and Argentina. There were also reports that Siberian railways were congested with grain en route to Russia and that the United States visible supply figures were likely to show as much as 6,000,000 bushels increase on Monday next. It soon became evident, nevertheless that persistent buying was in progress, which appeared to originate northwest. Besides, export demand was improved, Europe yesterday taking 600,000 bushels of wheat from North America.

Significance of an intensified holding policy by farmers was by some traders ascribed to the fact that arrivals of wheat at Minneapolis and Duluth totalled by 938 cars, against 1,226 cars a week back and 1,643 a year ago. It was further pointed out that there was a notable absence of hedging sales against newly-harvested wheat northwest, although Canadian farm deliveries for 24 hours amounted to 8,673,000 bushels, talk was also heard that a successful stock market operator had become a big buyers of grain. Under such circumstances, signs accumulated that the market was in a heavily oversold condition, and a rapid advance began. At the last, previous bears were rushing to stop losses, and a buying flurry was general.

Corn, oats and other grain, especially rye, sympathized with wheat strength. About the only laggard at the finish was September corn. Receipts of corn in Chicago were liberal, 121 cars, and the cash corn trading basis was ½ to 1c off. Frosts were expected last night over parts of the corn belt, but no great damage was looked for.

Despite lower quotation on hogs, provisions as a rule were responsive to the upward trend of grain.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, September 22. — A heavy run of cattle at the Union Stock Yards this week, together with large arrivals direct from the west to the abattoirs, made slow and depressed markets. Good to choice steers and heifers were off 25 cents a cwt. on Monday and on Wednesday rough steers and plain to medium butchers were down 75 cents a cwt. The day to day carryover was heavy and upwards of 1,000 head of mixed varieties will not be marketed till next week. Many loads of unfinished butchers were bought to go back to the country at more than the packers bid.

Any outstanding heavy steers made $11.75 a cwt. up, but handy weight butchers, good to choice, mixed, were obtainable at $11.00 to $11.50, and on Wednesday good loads of killers were had at $10.00 and $10.25 a cwt. A load of rough heavy steers, mostly black and white, only brought $9.35

GOD'S MINUTE.

All the ways of a man are clean in his own eyes; but the Lord weigheth the spirits. Commit thy works unto the Lord, and thy thoughts shall be established.—Prov. 16:2-3.

Our Father, Who art in Heaven, Thou art our Father, though we are of the earth, and impure in Thy sight. Thou dost love us, and we are Thy children. Thy goodness is shown in that Thou hearest our prayers.

We thank Thee for so many tokens of Thy favor and abiding love. Help us to live as Thy children should live every day that we tarry here. May we learn more of Thee as the days rush on into eternity. May all our powers and service be devoted to Thee. May it be our constant joy to serve Thee and follow where Thou dost lead. Thou dost always design the best possible course for us—therefore we are safe in doing Thy will.

Teach us Thy way, and help us to keep our feet therein. In the hard places of life's pathway, help us, Lord, for we are weak, and sometimes we fall. "We need Thee every hour." Keep us from falling into sin. Save us now and evermore, for the sake of Jesus, our Master. Amen.

A Letter From The 'Seckatary'

Dear Club Members:

Here we have a contest in which every boy and girl can join in. It's about something we all see every year, and something we all enjoy. Some of us see the Toronto Exhibition; some of us visited Peterborough Exhibition last week; and all of us see our own Exhibitions at Apsley, Frankford, Lakefield, Madoc, Marmora, Millbrook, Norwood, Roseneath, Stirling, Tweed, Wooler, Brighton, or wherever we live. So we all know something about Fall Fairs.

And what fun there is! There are funny sideshows, with all kinds of queer and wonderful people and things; great games that we like to play, although no one ever seems to win much; lots of horses we would like to ride; cows, chickens, turkeys, rabbits, sheep, pigs, flowers, fruit, vegetables—and everything. Then there are rides, and merry-go-rounds, and ferris wheels, and bands and horse races, and vaudeville.

There's such a lot to see that even if a fellow only wrote about one or two things he should be able to fill a couple of pages.

To the boy or girl who writes the best story, poem or letter about a Fall Fair I will give a splendid book, containing a great story more than 300 pages long, bound in a good stiff cover. It's a book you will be glad to have for your book shelf; it's an inch and a quarter thick.

Now, members, get busy at your letter or story, and see that it gets to me before Saturday next at midnight. The result will be announced on Saturday, October 6—will your name be the winner?

New Members.

If you haven't joined the Club yet, send in your application form along with your letter or story, and I will send you your membership pin and membership card at once. Then I will enter your story or letter in the competition.

And if you are already a member, send me the name of a new member and I will send you my picture for yourself; or send in six new names and I will send you a picture of the gang, more than thirteen inches long and eight inches deep. It is on heavy cardboard, and well worth having for your room.

Don't delay. Think of all the good things I'm promising, and make sure that you get some of them!

In case you don't understand it, every boy and girl who reads this page is entitled to become a member of the Club. This is just one branch of the Seckatary Hawkins Club, which has hundreds of thousands of members all over the world. Don't you want to be one?

Our Weekly Meeting

We are going to open this meeting by announcing the winner of the "Autumn" prize. Beverly Rogers, McFarlane avenue, Peterborough, is the winner this week, and the prize has already been sent. This is a nice poem you sent, Beverly, and I hope you write some more for the Club page. Here is Beverly's poem:

The Autumn leaves are falling fast,
I'm sorry that the Summer's past.
Our little feathered friends have flown
Back again to their winter home.

The earth has lost its dress of green,
But soon will a soft white coat be seen
Made up of little flakes of white
Making of her a sparkling sight.

Kind mother nature plans for all
Happy days when the red leaves fall;
And though the summer days are o'er
And we are back at school once more,
We'll always try with special care
To live our motto, "FAIR AND SQUARE."

Next we have a nice letter from Lloyd Perdue, who makes me wish to get out and play in one of his leaf houses. Will you let me, Lloyd?

"Dear Seck:

I like Autumn because the most fun is to bury yourself in leaves and have leaf fights. But what I like best is to make leaf houses.

Yours, fair and square,
Lloyd Perdue."

And here is a letter and poem from Cora Petherick. I really don't think your sister is too old to join the Club, Cora, and I'll be glad to have her as a member. We might start a senior branch this winter for boys and girls over 14, eh?

Dear Seckatary Hawkins:

I have enjoyed reading the Seckatary Hawkins page very much. I noticed that your subject for this week was Autumn. My sister Gladys wrote a poem some time ago about Autumn, so I asked her if I might send it in to your page as I suppose she is too old to join your club. (She is fifteen.) So here is the poem:

Last Days of Autumn.

The summer days they now are gone ever so far away.
No more they'll come with early dawn or close with the sun's last ray.
The grass it now is Brown and sere
the goldenrod uncouth.
The very birds we all held dear have taken their journey south.

And how we miss their happy trill,
Miss the robin's bright cheer-up
As we search now in vale and hill for a single buttercup.
The leaves, some have fallen, some still are brightly drest,
But soon they too shall settle down, to a long, long winter's rest.

In these last days the corn all golden, stands all ready reaped in the field
The same as in days of olden when the soil did to Jacob yield.

Spring and summer days are gladsome, with nature in bright green drest,
The last days of Autumn are lonely,
but I love those days the best.
For they teach that if now at the dawn of life we shall do our very best,
At the set of sun we shall hear 'Well done' and shall enter into rest."

I guess that is all for now. I would send a story myself only I am not much good at anything like that. Hoping to see this letter and poem in print on your page.

I remain,
Yours fair and square.
Cora M. Petherick."

PASSWORD

Last week our password was easy, the name of the greatest birthday in the history of the world—"CHRISTMAS."

Now, this week we are going to have another easy one, in keeping with our competition which is about fall fairs. You know what is given to show that the cows and horses, etc., have won prizes? Well, figure it out:

E O I U B B B I L R N

When you arrange the letters properly they make two words.

I'm very glad to hear from Betty McCarthy, and I hope that she will write me a longer letter soon, and also that se will try for some of the prizes.

"Deah Seck:

I ram very interested in your Club, so I thought I would join. I am sending in my application. You get some pretty good stories from the members. Wishing you success in your club,

I am, yours fair and square,
Betty McCarthy."

212 Perry street,
Peterborough.

Here's a letter from Dorothy Hall, which arrived too late for the "School Days" competition. I'm sure you'll all be glad to read it, just the same. Please write to us again, Dorothy.

"Dear Seck:

My sister and I received our membership cards and we are pleased with them. I am trying to write a story of "School Days."

Jack was grumbling because he had to go to school. On his way to school he met a poor, ragged boy. He was crying because he could not go to school. Jack took him along to school. The teacher was very much pleased. Jack declared that "School Days" were the very best of all. This showed he was fair and square.

Yours, fair and square,
Dorothy Hall."

109 Smith St.,
Peterborough.

Foreign Members.

And now I wish to present some members who are far away from Peterborough. Here is one away down in Ohio, in United States:

"Dear Seck:

I guess I might as well try to win a book, as I love to read. My hobbies are reading and tennis. Are they not very opposite? One is rather a rest while the other is a good bit of exercise.

My city was once a great historical center. This was where Anthony Wayne signed the Peace Treaty with the Indians after he had defeated them at the Battle of Fallen Timber.

We have a very interesting library. In the basement is our museum. We have a very valuable collection of Indian relics. We are also very proud of Commander Zachary Landsdowne's possessions. We also have the tusks of the prehistoric mammoth and a few of its teeth.

Enclosed you will find the names of a few new members which I am sending.

Well, I will close, as I've taken a good bit of your time now.

Yours fair and square,
Reiland Grovenor, 13, "

318 East Devor,
Greenville, Ohio.

To show you that it does not pay to be called a quitter, we next present a communication from another Ohio member.

Thank Goodness! Tonsils are Gone!

"Dear Seck:

I have written you several letters, but have not received any prizes. I do not want to be called a quitter, so I am trying again. I had my tonsils removed last week, and just got up today. Hope I will receive one of your books of travel.

Yours fair and square,
Mary Eleanor Metzger, 13"

129 S. Mulberry St.,
Chillicothe, Ohio.

Next we introduce you to a very interesting member from Indiana, who is writing his first letter to the club and who reads our page every week.

Dad Reads it, Too!

"Dear Seckatary:

I am sending in the membership blank, and hope you will accept me as a member.

Every Sunday I read your page, and so does father. We both think it is great. I asked him what he thought it was that caused the doom of the stonewall house, and he said he thought it was a falling star. But I think it was a planet message.

Some time I expect to write a story for your page. Well, I must close for this time.

Yours fair and square,
Rolland Terry Richardson,"

R.R. 2, Box 40, Holton, Ind.

Here's a message from one of our Wisconsin members who went on a very fine vacation.

He Saw Something!

"Dear Seck:

I spent my vacation in Buffalo, N.Y. I saw Niagara Falls, and on the Fourth of July I saw the man go down the Falls in a big rubber ball. It sure was thrilling.

And now I am going on a little vacation in Shawano, Bowler and Birnamwood, Wis. I sure will be glad to see all my friends again. I will close.

Yours fair and square,
Leonard Mitchel,"

Cudahy, Wis.

Au Revoir.

And so we come again to the time of adjournment, but we will meet again on this page next Saturday. I almost forgot to tell you, too, that on Tuesday and Thursday there will be a little "Junior Examiner" printed for you somewhere in the big Examiner. Watch for it, because it will contain notices for the Club, letters from members, and other things of interest.

Don't forget that every member has a chance to win the prize book every week, so sit down and try your luck with a letter or poem or story on "Fall Fair." And write me a letter anyhow, that can be printed on our page.

Till next week,
Yours fair and square,

Seckatary Hawkins

Do you know that not a single one of our members has a birthday next week?

Now, won't some boys and girls whose birthdays do fal between September 23 and September 30 join our club so that we can fill in these dates? It's awful not to be able to celebrate one single birthday in a whole week!

Rush in your memberships so I can send you a Birthday Card.

The Seck.

Fill out the blank and send it to Seckatary Hawkins, care of The Examiner, Peterborough:—

OUR SENSES.

Have you ever considered that all of your consciousness of the external world comes to you through your special senses of seeing, hearing, touching, tasting, smelling, and equilibrium? If at birth a person were deprived of the organs which register these sensations, it is doubtful if he would ever realize that he lived.

Most of our actions are complex reflexes from stimulations that have come to us through these sense organs. For example, if we see an automobile coming at us while we are crossing the street, we dodge or otherwise endeavor to avoid being struck. If we hear a footstep climbing the stair at night, we listen intently, and may even get up to find out who is there. If we smell smoke as of burning wood, we look around to find out whether or not the house is on fire. In fact, you will be able to trace practically every movement or thought that you have to some impulse that has come to you through some of your organs of sense.

We have the eye for detecting variations of light; the ear for detecting noises; the nose for detecting odors; the tastebuds in the tongue and mouth for overseeing our food; touch organs in the skin and internal organs for registering heat, touch and internal sensations; we have the semilunar canals in our skulls near the ears, for observing our equilibrium. These sensations are carried by nerves to the brain, where they register and start channels of impulses which may cause us to perform very complicated physical movements.

All of our knowledge of the world has come to us through the sense organs, and it is interesting to trace the development of the first recognition of these senses by an infant. Probably the first knowledge that a baby has of the external world comes to it through its sense of touch. It becomes conscious of the support of the bed and things coming in contact with its arms and legs. Gradually it realizes the difference being held by the mattress and its mother's arms. The undirected physical movements of the baby's arms and legs bring its attention to clothes, pillows and crib. One of the reflexes that a child seems to be born with is to try to grasp any object placed in its hands.

At first a baby cannot see objects; it is merely conscious of lights and shadows. Gradually its eyes become conscious of large moving objects, and the eyes will follow them in a horizontal position, since the muscles for raising and lowering the eyes are not developed until some time after birth.

The newborn child is deaf, but as the air enters the middle ear through the eustachian tube the hearing becomes developed. Possibly sound at first is simply a disturbing factor. The child becomes able to distinguish between harsh and soothing tones, and the mother's lullaby has been evolved in practically every country of the world as an aid to quieting the child. Hearing does not develop fully for from several hours to several days after birth.

The child at first is not conscious of a sense of hunger. The suckling of milk for the first few weeks seems to be purely a reflex action. Oddly enough, the sense of smell seems to be more acute than the sense of taste in recently born babies.

It is most interesting to watch a baby's enjoyment of experimenting with its new-found senses. If baby is given an object, or if an object is placed within grasping distance, first the infant looks at the object, then grasps and tastes it, and may even listen to the object. Many mothers develop gray hairs because baby insists on tasting everything, but this is simply a natural method of the child trying out its new-found senses.

Questions and Answers.

Question: Mrs. A. G. writes: "I have a most annoying feeling come over me at times. It begins in my head, then seems to make my body stiff. Does not last long, but when it goes away, it leaves me with a very bad headache all the rest of the day. Could you tell me what it is and what to do about it?

Answer: It would be necessary for me to know more about your trouble in order to give you a correct explanation of the cause and cure. I cannot attempt to diagnose cases without personal examinations.

Question: Mrs. J. writes: "I am fond of pancakes and coffee for breakfast. Sometimes I use oatmeal and poached eggs in addition. Would this hurt if I am careful with my other meals? I never see you mention pancakes in your menus. Can you give me a good recipe for them?"

Answer: I do not recommend the ordinary pancake because it is exceedingly hard to digest, and a breakfast such as you describe is apt to make you loggy and sleepy the remainder of the day. Even if your digestive system is good the strain will tell in time. A good substitute for pancakes is a thoroughly toasted waffle in which the starch is completely dextrinized. I do not advise much butter or syrup on the waffle. In addition, one or two eggs may be used, cooked in any manner except frying, and some stewed fruit, preferably prepared without sugar. I do not advise the use of breakfast cereals except in the case of children and those doing heavy work.

Question: Rose writes: "Am thirty-two years old and my hair is just beginning to get curly. Could there be anything wrong with my health or scalp? Am feeling fine, but would just like to know the reason for this change in my hair."

Answer: Hair frequently turns curly toward middle age, and this change is no doubt due to the results of a bad fever or to a radical change of diet. I have known many cases where thin, straight hair became curly after a fasting and diet treatment.

COMMENT ON THE MARKET

A Special Service to The Examiner.

Lyal May Get Big Contract on Temple.

Another substantial addition to the already huge volume of business on the books of P. Lyall & Sons Construction Co. is expected to accrue from the granting of tenders this week on the big new Masonic Temple, in Montreal.

The company has made a bid for this contract, which will run between $1,000,000 and $1,500,000, and it is stated that the business is almost certain to come to the big Montreal organization.

General Motors Reports Denied.

New York.—It has been reported in several brokerage houses that president Sloan, of the General Motors, would make a statement announcing a 25% stock dividend and the entry of the company into the aeroplane business. This was definitely denied at Mr. Sloan's office last night by an officer close to the president, who said no announcement of a stock dividend would be made or was under consideration, and that reports of the entry of the company into the aeroplane business were false.

News From the Mines

Through Solloway, Mills & Company

MARKET REVIEW

There was little news on the Street today; however, the mining market remained firm, some issues scoring substantial gains, especially the nickel group, International Nickel and Mond. The former in small trading on the Standard Exchange gained $1 to close at $128.50–$130.00, while the latter although it has received but very little attention on the Standard Exchange, suddenly jumped into the limelight, and closed $5.25 better at $32.25–$32.50. Activity in this stock has been anticipated for some time and it may be expected that the stock will give a better account of itself.

In the Rouyn group, Noranda sold off 20 points to close at $51.80–$52.00, while Newbec was firm around 54, closing unchanged at that point from yesterday. Granada received more attention today again, and was up ¼ point at 26½-27. Amulet in heavy trading lost one point to close at $3.25–$3.30, while Area lost 3 at 27–8.

In the Malartic section, Graham Bousquet sold off one point more to close at 39 to 40, while Siscoe and Malartic were stronger, the former closing 1½ points better at 82½–83, while Malartic at $1.74–5 was up 3.

The two Erenhous stocks, Bidgood and Crown Reserve, gave a much better account of themselves today, especially the latter which after opening at 50—50½ sold up to 59c, closing 58½–59 for a net gain of 9½ points. The former at 63½ to 64 was up 3½.

Others of the Kirkland group did not do so well, however. Kirkland Lake was decidedly weaker, closing 1.45–9. Lake Shore was off 5 at $22.25 to $22.40. Teck was off 10 at $8.90–$8.95, and Wright-Hargreaves was off 1 at $3.09–10, while Tough Oakes was unchanged at 33½-33 3-4.

The two Lindsley stocks, Sherritt-Gordon and Sudbury Basin, were also weaker, the former closing off 15 at $6.60–5, while the latter at $6.35–50 was off 1.

In the Porcupine group Hollinger was strong and up 18 at $8.70–5 and McIntyre was up 20 at $21.80–$22.00, while Dome lost 10 at $9.40–50.

Howey was up 2 at $1.07–9, while Jackson-Manion gained 4 in closing at 85 bid. Hudson Bay in closing at $20.00–$20.10 was off 10 from yesterday, and Mandy at $2.21—4 was up 6. Abana was heavily bought again and up 23 at $3.50-52. Barry Hollinger was heavily traded in and lost 1½ points at 54-55.

The volume of trading at 1,040, 074 shares was off slightly from yesterday.

Central Manitoba.

Steady improvement in affairs of this mine is reflected in the milling report just made public for the month of July. Much better results were obtained than those for the month of June. During July the mill treated 3,747 tons with an average recovery of $12.15 per ton. The total value of the ore treated was $42,764. The accumulation of mill concentrates is now being treated in large quantities in the cyanide plant, and these should, of course, contribute materially to the bullion recovery.

The most important feature of the report is that the mill operated in July at a very good profit.

Hudson Bay.

According to advice received in the city yesterday, the steel is now completely laid to the Flin Flon property in Manitoba. This is considerably ahead of schedule and therefore, another of the great essentials before a mining company with ore such as Hudson Bay can be a success has been supplied. This will make very much easier the question of getting supplies not only for the Flin Flon but for other properties in the neighborhood.

Granada.

Mr. Gamble, President of Granada, is reported as having said the discovery at the 500 foot level appears to be the most important so far made at the property. Visible gold across a width of 8 feet has convinced officials of the accuracy of their belief that depth will disclose uniform gold deposition. Despite the importance of this discovery, officials are still inclined to continue shaft sinking to greater depth prior to undertaking general lateral development.

The station at the 500 foot level is practically completed, and the shaft will no doubt be continued to the 700 foot horizon, where they anticipate cutting their No. 2 vein before the commencement of drifting and cross-cutting operations to intersect parallel deposits.

Granada is well financed for the deep development campaign, having adequate cash on hand for such requirements, together with 700,000 shares in the treasury, some of which is now under option.

Mining Corporation.

This company occupies one of the most enviable positions of any mining company in Canada to-day. They have approximately $1,800,000 treasury surplus, together with 185,000 shares of Hudson Bay Mining & Smelting, worth at present prices close to $3,700,000. These together give them quick assets of $5,500,000 against a capital of 1,660,000 shares. From this it will be seen their quick assets equal the present selling price of the stock on the Standard Mining Exchange around $3.35 a share.

Their silver properties in Cobalt and South Lorraine together would appear to be good for a few years yet, and their Murray property at Noranda is, in our opinion, an important asset.

With a highly capable and aggressive management, it may be expected that new properties will be acquired by Mining Corporation sufficient to keep it in the limelight as a producer and dividend payer for many years to come.

Mond Nickel.

Mond is strong on the different exchanges where it is traded in today, as has been the case for the past week or more, following the spectacular advance in International Nickel. It is reported that the International Nickel group have been and are accumulating Mond, and it is our firm opinion that this issue will sell at considerably higher prices in the very near future.

Mayland.

The following wire has just been received from our Calgary office manager:

"I visited Mayland well yesterday. Depth 2,870 feet. Coal seam, which is a reliable marker in Turner Valley formation, encountered from 2,750 to 2,760 feet. Driller estimates gas pressure all the way from three to four million, but to be conservative say two million. Putting new band on wheel last two days and commenced drilling again yesterday afternoon. Driller advises no question that they are in Kootenays and expects get lime anywhere between 3,600 and 4,000 feet. Looks to me like a splendid prospect."

MINING BRIEFS

A Special Service to The Examiner

A meeting of the members of the Copenhagen Lead Syndicate was held recently in Sudbury and it is said that they had decided to accept shares in a new company to be formed in lieu of cash payments for the property. For every three shares of treasury stock that is sold one share of vendor's stock will also be sold until the sum of $25,000 has been realized by the vendors. The remainder of the proceeds will be available for the treasury of the new company. Copenhagen Lead holds properties in Hutton and Kitchener Townships.

Diamond Drilling at Sudbury

Surface exploration and development has been actively carried out during the past six months at the property of the Sudbury Concentrating and Mining Company, situated about 40 miles west of Sudbury on the C.P.R. High assays have been obtained from this work and returns of a shipment of ore made to the Base Metals Extraction Company, Ottawa, yielded 10.72 per cent zinc, 0.38 copper, 0.61 lead, 0.01 ounces of gold and 3.07 ounces of silver. Another shipment yielded 10.39 per cent zinc, 0.65 copper, 109 lead, 0.01 ounces of gold and 4.44 ounces of silver.

A diamond drill will be taken into the property this week and it is expected that important news will be forthcoming shortly.

Permanent buildings have been erected at the property and a crew of men are kept steadily at work. An ore zone of about 1½ miles length is reported to have been disclosed and cross-trenching the vein has been going on steadily in preparation for the drilling campaign about to commence. A geological report on the property was prepared recently by Percy Hopkins, in which he states "Geological conditions, as far as could be determined are favorable. Rusty-weathering quartz mica schists contain in places concentrations of zinc, copper and lead values, extending across the property in an east-west direction. Paralleling and adjoining this bone is a pronounced depression which may represent larger deposits than those already found. The known concentrations are four to five feet wide and are rich enough to warrant considerable expenditure in proving their length and grade."

The company is capitalized at $4,000,000 in shares having a par value of $1 each. Of this amount some 2,000,000 shares were issued for the properties.

D. W. Lang is president of the company, with H. N. Kilpatrick, D. R. Michener, A. G. Penmand, and H. E. Harcourt with Percy E. Hopkins as consulting engineer and geologist.

A private wire dispatch to F. G. Oke & Company states:

Amulet is reported to be driving in ore of a very good grade at the 150 ft. level. This ore is thought to be an entirely new body. As the date of the annual meeting draws closer many different opinions are heard on the street. R. E. Hore, M.E., in an article dealing with Amulet report an analysis the on situation and arrived at the conclusion that according to the report Amulet shares are worth slightly under $1. However, you will find other people on the street who will show you that the stock is worth $10. However, this bulletin will not give itself over to the pastime of estimating Amulet's value.

According to advice received in the city on Thursday, the steel is now completely laid to the Flin Flon property in Manitoba. This is considerably ahead of schedule and therefore, another of the great essentials before a mining company with ore such as Hudson Bay can be a success has been supplied.

Malartic will be an important producer early in 1929.

Goodfish is reported to be finishing off work on its 300 and 600 ft. levels to determine whether shaft sinking should continue immediately to 1000 feet where best values are anticipated from present developments. Although erratic values have been obtained, a strong vein system is said to have been exposed which is believed might be enriched at depth.

It is stated that Sherritt-Gordon have petitioned Federal Government to exempt their company from payment of Royalties on the ore taken from their mine for a period of twenty years in order that the mine may be assisted during its early days to that extent. The request has been refused by Hon. Chas. Stewart on the ground that as the Dominion Government is acting in the capacity as trustee for the Manitoba Government, insofar as the disposition of the latter's natural resources is concerned, the decision must come from Premier Bracken, Mr. Stewart has referred that matter to Mr. Bracken for a declaration of opinion, but it is believed that Mr. Bracken decides to leave the settlement of the request to the judgment of Mr. Stewart. The request of the company will not be acceded to.—G.N.B.

Toronto Trading Active With Gains in Majority

TORONTO, Sept. 22.— (Canadian Press.)—Prices were decidedly firm in an active trading session on the Toronto stock exchange to-day. Many issues showed small gains and losses were few and small. International Nickel was the leader in activity among the listed stocks and proved an exception to the general trend by dropping 2½ to 126 3-8. Cockshutt in light trading was up a fraction at 31, while Massey Harris with a moderate turnover advanced a half to 46. Twin City was up a quarter at 33 and Canada Cement was down 5-8 at 29. Most of the activity on the unlisted centered on the oil stocks, both British American and Imperial scoring large turnovers. The former was unchanged at 41½ and the latter was down a half at 79. Hiram Walkers gained a half at the close to 61 and Seagrams was unchanged at 19¾.

Wheat Prices Advance When Mills Start Buying

CHICAGO, Sept. 22.— (Canadian Press.)—Despite the failure of Liverpool quotations to respond fully to upturns on this side of the Atlantic, wheat values here scored an early fresh advance to-day. Mills were reported as large buyers of wheat both here and at Minneapolis Opening at 5-8c. declines to -1-8c. advance, Chicago wheat later underwent a moderate general drop but then jumped sharply above yesterdays finish. Corn opened unchanged to 5-8c. up and afterward averaged lower. Oats were easy.

Opening prices were: Wheat, September 115 1-8, December 118 7-8. Corn, September 112¾, December 78 1-8. Oats, September 43¼, December 43.

Nickel Touches New High But Fails To Hold Gain

TORONTO Sept 22.—After reaching the record price of $33.65, Mond Nickel failed to retain its footing at the standard mining exchange today, sagging off in fairly active trading to close at noon at 31.00 for a net loss of 1.50. Newbec assumed the active leadership to-day. Selling well over 142,000 shares, it jumped up four points to sell at 58½. Abana was another bright spot on the market and in active trading rose to 3.95 for an increase of 45 cents. Noranda continued to claim a higher price, securing a gain of thirty cents at 52.25. The general condition of the market was slow but prices were mostly firm and in some cases recorded light advances.

The Planter of the Tree

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY:

SALLY LINGFIELD, dancer at the Faun, a London night club.

JOSH AKERS, a waster, with whom Sally was once in love.

POPPY, Sally's roommate, another dancer at the Faun.

PHILIP SANDERSON, rich young man of wealth, who early one morning, when drunk, runs over Sally, badly injuring her. Sanderson loves Sally.

SOMETIMES, Sanderson's dog.

MRS. KIFF, his landlady.

Josh Akers, hearing of Sally's probably permanent injury, says he is through with her. Sanderson assumes her care, and establishes her in a cottage with Mrs. Kiff. She becomes somewhat reconciled to her lot and is kinder to Sanderson, but she meets young GARRY NAIRN, the rector's son, and they fall in love with each other. In the meantime Poppy dies. Sanderson and Garry persuade Sally to go to London and let a specialist operate on her, and Garry comes to bid her goodbye. Later he meets Josh Akers at a club after leaving Sally at a hospital for her operation. Josh speaks disparagingly of Sally's past.

XXXIII—NO WORD

Philip Sanderson struggled out of his heavy sleep late in the evening to the sound of incessant knocking on the door.

For some moments he lay limply back in his chair, listening apathetically. Then slowly he dragged himself to his feet.

His head felt as heavy as lead and his mind was dull and confused. It was so long since he had taken spirits in any quantity that he found the reaction decidedly unpleasant, and he swore to himself as he blundered aimlessly against the furniture on his way to the door.

It was getting dark and the room felt stuffy, and down below in the street someone was playing Mrs. Kiff's favorite melody on a very harsh cornet.

"I shall love you the same for ever!" Sanderson paused to listen, rocking gently on his feet. The sentimental air was knocking insistently at the door of his fuddled brain, bringing with it returning memories of the country and of the pure, fresh air in the little garden of the cottage, and the sleepy song of the birds through the twilight.

Sally! In a flash he remembered the events of the morning, and his own great dread which had once again driven him to make a beast of himself.

God, how ashamed he was! Was he such a weakling that at the first hint of trouble he must fly for comfort to his old enemy?

The knocking on the door became more insistent, followed by an impatient voice: "Sanderson! Are you there? Why the devil can't you answer?" Sanderson unlocked the door and flung it open.

"What is it—Sally?" He could hardly speak; fear was clutching at his heart. There was a moment's silence. Then Garry Nairn said shortly:

"I thought you might be ill. That's all. I've been here three times today. Sorry I disturbed you."

There was contempt in his voice and in his eyes as he turned to go, but Sanderson caught him by the arm.

"Don't be a damned fool. Come in." His eyes fell before the younger man's direct gaze, and he laughed harshly, shrugging his shoulders.

"I've been on the binge; I couldn't have got through the day without. Come in, for God's sake, and don't stand there like an infernal parson bursting to preach a sermon!" He turned on his heel and went back to the room, and after a moment's hesitation Garry followed him.

He stood looking round him with antagonistic eyes while Sanderson flung open the windows and picked up a tumbler which he had overturned on to the floor.

"What's the time?" he asked gruffly.

"Half-past eight," Garry answered. Sanderson turned sharply round. "Half-past eight? Why the devil didn't you knock me up before?"

"I've been here three times today, and I could get no answer. I nearly broke the door down."

The two men looked at one another silently, then Sanderson said again:

"Sally?"

"I've been to the nursing home twice. The first time she wasn't out of the chloroform, but the second time she was conscious."

"And you saw her?"

"No, they wouldn't let me."

"What did they say? Did they tell you anything?"

"Only that everything had gone as well as could be expected."

"Thank God for that!" said Philip Sanderson. He turned to the table and poured out a neat brandy, which he tossed off.

"Help yourself," he said.

"No thanks."

"Oh, all right." Sanderson laughed and shrugged his shoulders. He was conscious of a new and constrained atmosphere between himself and Garry, but his brain was still too dull and confused to attempt to account for it. After a moment he said:

"If you'll wait while I have a wash, I'll come along to the nursing home with you."

"They asked me not to call again tonight. They said if there was any need they would ring up."

"I'm not on the 'phone," Sanderson said sharply.

"I know. I gave the number of the hotel where I am staying. If they ring, of course, I'll come along for you."

"Very good of you, I'm sure," Sanderson said with a bitter sneer.

He lounged across to his bedroom, and after a moment Garry heard the splashing of water.

He went over to the window and stood looking out, but it was too dark to distinguish anything but the vague outline of roofs and chimneypots. To Garry Nairn the day had seemed endless, and crowded with torturous emotions. First the horror of leaving Sally to God alone knew what fate, and then the encounter in the club with Josh Akers.

He clenched his hands, and the moisture broke out on his forehead as he recalled that moment. The brute's sneering allusions to Sally, and then the dragging in of Sanderson's name: "Sanderson and I went shares for her favors for months." A lie—a damned lie! The furious denial had sprung at once to his lips, and yet now he was not so sure. In spite of his love and loyalty, the poison had entered into Garry Nairn's soul with that first abominable shaft.

Supposing it were true?

Garry knew his own sex, and he knew the sort of life to which Sally had been accustomed before her accident. She came from a world who held lightly the middle-class standard of morality. By her own confession she was "not a lady," and she had never tried to hide the fact that Philip Sanderson was paying for the upkeep of the cottage and for everything she possessed.

Supposing what Akers said was true! The very thought turned him sick, even while his honest heart told him he should be ashamed of permitting it to enter his mind.

Akers had refused to fight; he had accepted Garry's volume of abuse with a cynical smile, and when the club officials had come to interfere, attracted by the sound of angry voices, Akers had passed the whole thing off imperturbably.

"A little difference of opinion, that is all. No need to get excited. My friend here——"

Garry had broken in furiously:

"Damn it all, I'm no friend of yours!" And he lunged at him again, only to be held back by the hefty arms of the officials. Akers had seized the opportunity to slip away, and had not returned.

For the rest of the day Garry Nairn had walked the streets, three times returning to Sanderson's flat in the vain hope of seeing him. One moment he felt that he could never rest until he had told him of Akers' foul accusation, and the next moment he shuddered at the mere thought of broaching the subject at all. It was horrible, with Sally lying at death's door—horrible to allow himself to entertain such a vile suspicion. He did his honest best to push the thought aside as unworthy and disloyal, but it came back again and again like a mean little shadow following closely upon his heels.

Supposing it were true? It would mean an end of everything between himself and Sally. Garry Nairn was no better and no worse than any ordinary man, but the shock of his sudden encounter with Akers had shown him more clearly than anything else could have done how deep and sincere his love for her really was. Even the danger to her life caused by this operation had not been so illuminating, and he knew, as he stood and stared at the vague outline of roofsand chimneys from Sanderson's window, that he would rather have Sally dead than the unspeakable thing which Akers had called her.

His whole desire had been to find Sanderson and demand the truth of him, and yet as soon as they came face to face he realized its utter hopelessness and futility.

How could he go to him and ask:

"Are you the blackguard this man declares you to be? Did Sally and you—"

Impossible! Utterly impossible and preposterous!

Sanderson came out of his bedroom. He had changed his clothes and looked spruce and clean, but his eyes avoided Nairn's.

"Let's go out and get some food."

"All right; but I'm not hungry."

"It will kill time."

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 23, 1928

This is rather an unimportant day in planetary government, according to astrology which finds much that is not benefic in the rule.

With the beginning of the autumn quarter the Earth forms a major conjunction with the planet Uranus.

The seers warn that the craving for what is new will become an obsession with the people and will affect politics.

Mars is elevated in a manner most threatening to Europe and indications of war are strong where boundary lines are in dispute.

Banks will develop greatly and business will be stimulated as the autumn advances, astrologers predict.

The Moon promises prosperity to workers and the outlook for American farmers appears much improved.

Sudden revolutions and drastic changes in government among European nations are foreshadowed by the configuration of this important day.

Violent wind storms may be expected as heralding the autumn and electrical phenomena may cause great damage in the United States.

New dictators in Europe appear to be indicated by the stars and their influence will be reflected in this country, where the people will be suspicious of imitations in business as well as politics, astrologers decire.

New policies in the Orient will enable Japan as well as China to expand greatly, astrologers forecast.

The stars seem to presage for the Pacific coast rapid growth and the focussing of world attention.

Women are to gain in psychic power under this rule of the stars and they will prepare themselves for important public service, the seers prognosticate.

Persons whose birthdate it is should administer their financial affairs with much wisdom in the coming year. These subjects of Libra will have a prosperous year, if the stars are rightly interpreted, but they should safeguard their health.

Children born today probably will be exceedingly quick and clever. Under the middle sign of the air triplicity they are likely to be ambitious generous and psychic. Libra men are exceedingly fascinating and artistic. Libra women often are beautiful and very talented, but they have a horror of money matters.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 24, 1928

Threatening stars dominate through the morning of this day, according to astrology, which reads in the horoscope warning against hasty decisions or ill-considered actions.

Women should be especially cautious and circumspect in all their actions while this rule prevails.

The sway is threatening for new plays and bodes ill for early theatrical productions.

Motion pictures also come under a planetary sway which is read as presaging sweeping changes that will cause heavy losses.

The seers warn that salaries of actors and actresses who perform for the screen will fall to a lower standard than formerly. They declare that the golden age of film fortunes is passing for players.

This is not an auspicious rule for borrowing money and wives should be cautious in their demands for allowances.

Newspapers may be inclined to publish severe arraignments of public officials and editors may be exceedingly hard to placate when they undertake reform movements.

Under this direction of the stars, farmers and all who till the soil may be inclined to air their troubles.

The stars presage mistakes in the management of the marketing of foods and much dissatisfaction is presaged on the part of world consumers.

Housekeepers may be exceedingly difficult to deal with while this configuration prevails. They may organize for reforms of many sorts, astrologers foretell.

Persons whose birthdate it is should not court or marry in the coming year, according to the seers who recommend attention to business affairs. Girls will benefit by paying attention to beauty aids.

Children born on this day have possibilities of big success because of talents and natural ambitions, but these subjects of Libra may be too impulsive for their own good. They should be taught to think twice before they speak or write letters.

A quarterly decline of more than 230,000 gross tons in the volume of merchant vessels being constructed throughout the world is shown in a statement by Lloyd's Register of Shipping, based on returns from all maritime countries for the three months ended June 30, 1928.

UNCLE WIGGILY

By HOWARD R. GARIS

Bedtime Story

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE COCOANUTS

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

"Hey, Uncle Wiggily! Don't you want to come with us?"

"We're going to have lots of fun and get something good to eat!"

Johnnie and Billie Bushytail, the two squirrel boys, called across the path to Mr. Longears one Saturday morning as the bunny gentleman was about to hop off and look for an adventure.

"Where are you going?" Uncle Wiggily inquired before he told the two squirrels that he would go with them. If they were going to play football Mr. Longears didn't want to go. For once a football hit him on his pink nose and since then he didn't care to play.

"We are going after something good to eat," chattered Johnnie.

"What can you find good to eat in the woods?" asked Uncle Wiggily. Not because he didn't know, but because he wanted to hear what the squirrel boys would say.

"We are going after chestnuts and hickorynuts and beechnuts," said Johnnie. "And they're very good to eat, especially for squirrels."

Up the tree they scrambled.

"Yes, that is very true," answered Mr. Longears. "But, speaking of nuts, why don't you take Jacko and Jumpo Kinkytail with you. Those monkey boys love nuts."

"That's so! Let's invite Jacko and Jumpo!" cried Billie.

Uncle Wiggily hopped along as the squirrels scampered down the path through the woods and soon they came to the house near the hand organ factory where Mr. Kinkytail lived with his monkey family. Jacko and Jumpo were out in front swinging by their tails from a tree branch.

"Want to come nutting with us?" called Johnnie.

"What kind of nuts are you going after?" asked Jacko.

"Hickorynuts, chestnuts, walnuts and beechnuts," said Billie.

"Thank you very much for asking us," chattered Jacko, "but we monkeys can't eat nuts like those. If you could tell us where some cocoanuts grew we would gladly go after them."

"You see we love cocoanuts very much," added Jumpo. "In the country where we came from cocoanuts grow on tall palm trees and we monkey boys used to climb up, twist off the nuts, drop them down on a rock so they would crack open and then we would drink the milk and eat the soft, white meat inside."

"I'm sorry, but we don't know where any cocoanuts grow around here," said Johnnie, which was true enough as cocoanuts only grow in warm countries down South.

So Jacko and Jumpo kept on swinging by their tails and Johnnie and Billie set off to gather the kind of nuts they liked to eat. For the squirrels had sharp teeth that could gnaw through the hard shells of even hickorynuts. But the teeth of monkeys are not made for gnawing.

And when the squirrels had scampered away Uncle Wiggily began to think how sad it was that, since they had come away from their own warm south country, Jacko and Jumpo could never more gather cocoanuts.

"But I know what I can do," said Mr. Longears. "I can buy some cocoanuts in the store and tie them on the branches of a tree. I'll do that and then I'll lead these two little monkeys beneath the tree and watch their faces when they see cocoanuts and think they are growing there."

It did not take the bunny uncle long to buy a dozen cocoanuts and soon he had them dangling by strings from tree branches in the woods. Then Uncle Wiggily went back to where Jacko and Jumpo were still swinging by their tails.

"Hello, monkey boys," called the rabbit. "If you will come with me I'll show you where you can pick cocoanuts."

"Oh, Uncle Wiggily! That is too good to be true!" chattered Jacko.

But when he and his brother saw, up in a tree, some dangling cocoanuts, they were so delighted that they stood on their heads and chattered loudly. Up the tree they scrambled and began to twist off the cocoanuts.

Of course when they did this they saw what Uncle Wiggily had done for the cocoanuts hung by strings instead of stems, and, besides, the nuts were out of the big, outside husk which covers the shell in countries where cocoanuts really grow on trees.

"But it's almost as much fun to pick these cocoanuts as it would be if they grew on palm trees!" cried Jacko, and he and Jumpo had a fine time eating cocoanuts while Johnnie and Billie gathered smaller nuts better suited for squirrels.

So all the boys were happy.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY WE HAVE SO MANY DIVORCES

By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D.

(Author, The Springs of Human Action)

One out of every seven marriages in the United States ends in divorce. This the world's record.

To the startling divorce rate must be added the great number of ill-mated persons who are kept from divorce by religious scruples and by othersocial or personal considerations. There are also a large number of separations and desertions which are equivalent to divorce but which are not included in the above ratio of seven to one.

Marriage, to be successful, must enlist the entire personality. Each party to the contract must feel that his or her partner calls forth the best that is in him. When one or the other is markedly superior the superior person is due for a bitter disappointment and is marked for slaughter on the altar of domestic infelicity.

Love, in the usually accepted meaning of the term, is the most insecure basis for a happy marriage. Physical compatibility is essential, but there must be other elements of a mental, spiritual, and temperamental nature. The first to take wings is the physical, which is more accurately described by the word infatuation.

For a successful and happy marriage the major ambition or master motive of each must be satisfied by the union. Hence, contrary to the popular notion, a great many marriages dominated by the money motive are really successful. If a man or woman is after money or social prestige and marries it, he or she has satisfied the one thing that means most in the given case. Nothing else matters much so long as the individual continues to hold to his original master motive.

But when a husband or wife stands in the way of a master motive and thwarts a major interest there is bound to be trouble. People get married in order to enhance life; not to curtail it. Marriage, however, requires so many sacrifices that disappointment and disillusionment pave the road from the altar to the divorce court.

Marriage is also likely to kill romance. Those who are unusually romantic suffer accordingly and finally seek a divorce to begin again the thrill of more flirtations, more adventure, more romance.

Freshness of the Skin

What a charm there is in freshness of the skin. What so adds to the attractiveness of men or women as a clear fresh skin.

The usual effects of sun and wind are to make the skin dry and harsh. The use of cosmetics has a similar result.

To overcome this condition the skin should be thoroughly cleansed every night and Dr. Chase's Ointment applied and left on until morning.

With persistent use of this treatment the skin is kept clear and smooth, becomes finer in texture and is fresh and healthy in appearance.

Men usually apply the ointment after shaving.

LYRICS OF LIFE

SOMEONE ELSE

Isn't it nice to know somewhere
That there is someone else to care
When things go right or things go wrong?
The load is heavy, road is long.
And rain there is as well as sun
Before the merest task is done.
Isn't it fine right then to know
That someone wonders how things go?

Isn't it good, when luck you've had,
To know that someone else is glad,
When fame or fortune come to you
That someone else rejoices, too?
Not fame you win or wealth you gain
Will pay you for your toil and pain.
Isn't it joy to work things out
That someone else will care about?

Isn't something, something more
Than even all you struggled for,
To know, although the world divide,
That someone else is at your side?
Isn't it nice to know somewhere
That there is someone else to care,
What height you climb, what goal you miss?
And that is why I send you this.

LATE MOLTERS ARE BEST HENS

Feeding of Mash During Idle Period Shortens Slack Time.

SLOW MOLTERS BAD.

A hen regularly renews her worn-out coat of feathers once a year. It should be of special interest to every poultry raiser to know how he might help his hens through the molt and avoid too great a loss in egg production.

Beware of Slow Early Molters.

While the fall is the natural time for the birds to molt, it is not uncommon to find individual hens molting even in early summer. The time of year a hen molts is a guide as to the past and future production of the bird. Repeated tests have shown that the hens which begin to molt before September are usually slow molters and are low producers.

Occasionally a whole flock will start to molt in July or August as a result of improper management. Parasites, hot, stuffy, poorly ventilated houses, sudden changes of ration and insufficient fresh, clean water are a few of the probable causes. It would be poor policy to dispose of a whole flock, but beware of the individual slow molters.

When the hens are molting it is unfair to expect very much in the way of production. There is a heavy drain on the system of the birds to make a complete new coat of feathers, so it takes all the nourishment you provide them. You can help them molt by good feeding.

Help the Hens Molt.

So many poultrymen make the mistake of closing the mash hoppers when the flock starts to molt in the fall. Just because they stop laying while molting does not permit cutting down on the feed. If there is ever a time when the hens need a ration that is highly digestible and one that contains the different nutrients needed to nourish all parts of the body, it is when they molt. Feathers roughly represent 5 per cent. of the bird's total weight.

Ancestors of the hen of to-day took anywhere from four to six months to molt as there was little else for them to do. Their average production was from 15 to 20 eggs, all of which were laid in the spring. We to-day are far from being satisfied with a production of 15 eggs and most of our hens are willing to lay many times that number if we provide them with the proper feed.

If you have never fed an egg mash the year around, now is a good time to start. A good mash will bring the birds through the molting period faster and keep them in better health and in better condition. It will shorten the molting period a month or more and get the hens back into laying when the egg prices are still high. It is poor economy to force your hens to build a new coat of feathers on a ration composed principally of scratch grains.

RAIN AT FRANKFORD.

Fair Opened in Drizzle That Kept Spectators Under Cover.

(Examiner Staff Correspondence)

FRANKFORD, September 22. — All eyes were turned toward the weather man watching for the first sign of sunshine which would dry up the wet grounds and make the fair the success that it has been in other years. A bleak afternoon, with a drizzle of rain depressed the spirits of many of those interested as well as having a disastrous effect on the grounds and track. A mere handful of cars was parked in front of the large sheet metal exhibition building, but there was practically no one on the grounds. Inside the building, a few people strolled along the long rows of exhibits. Some were the official judges, others were officials of the association, and others were exhibitors and spectators. Two long tables laid lengthwise of the arena carried the major portion of the lighter produce. Along one was arranged garden produce. The rear wall of the building presented the appearance of an art gallery. On it were hung the many entries in the fine arts department. At one end of this wall was the photography display. Along the north wall were the hundreds of entries in the needlework line, everything from plain stitching to the finest and most intricate embroidery. One of the rare articles displayed here was a rubber wrist bag, beautifully decorated with fringe of the same material. It was of a shade not unlike burnt leather, and at a little distance could easily be taken for that material.

The floral display was exceptionally good, comprising a multitude of, seemingly, perfect blooms all arranged to the best advantage for display purposes. The needle craft was also of an exceptionally high grade, and comprised everything from the plainest of bedding at one end to beautiful wearing apparel at the other.

The fine arts display was one of the best seen thus far at the fall fairs of the district. The oil paintings were especially good. Basket work and fine wood work was also on exhibition.

(Examiner Correspondence)

Attendance Small

STERLING, Sept. 22.—The officials of Frankford Agricultural Society were somewhat disheartened as the result of their Annual Fall Exhibition which was held on Thursday and Friday. The continued wet weather of the past week caused the attendance to be small in numbers compared with other years. The exhibits in the large building were of good quality and up to the standard set by other fairs of this society. The number of entries in some classes was not as large as heretofore. The showing of fruit was of good quality but not as much shown as a few years ago. The grain exhibit was small. The domestic products section had a good display of canned fruits, different kinds of cooking, pickles, etc. There were some pumpkins there but not many of them, also a great collection of the Murphy family which would be hard to beat even in Erin itself.

A great display of the handiwork of the ladies was shown as the north side of the building and there the women gathered to view and criticize the work.

The livestock classes were not filled as good as formerly. The cattle and sheep were fairly well represented but not so the horses and swine.

Races Called Off

Speeding in the ring was called off, as the track was a sea of mud. Half a dozen booths were dispensing their wares to those who cared for hot dogs, ice cream, etc. A baseball match between a team from the "Tabernacle" in Murray township and the Sidney Town Hall interested the major portion of those present.

Baby Show Feature

An interesting part of the fair program was the baby show. The judging was held upstairs in the main building and during its progress there was an anxious time for twenty-two mothers, each one of whom thought hers was the best baby there.

The judges who were two registered nurses thought differently and gave them their awards as follows: 1st, Barbara Ann Read, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clem. Ketcheson, of Belleville; 2nd, Shirley Rodgers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Rodgers, Frankford; and 3rd Joan Ingram of Codrington, shown by her grandmother, Mrs. Bates.

Seventy-four different exhibitors contributed to make the Fair what it was, and no one seemed completely discouraged at the result of their work. Frankford Band enlivened the surroundings by discoursing several selections during the afternoon.

JOHN PENROSE EXONERATED

Jury Urges Law Compelling Pedestrians To Cross at Intersections.

INQUEST AT TORONTO.

TORONTO, Sept. 22.—An amendment to the Highways Act to compel pedestrians to cross streets at intersections or designated crossings was urged on Thursday night by a coroner's jury at the City Morgue, investigating the death of John Roach, aged 23, 77 Shuter Street, a C.P.R. telegraph operator, who was fatally injured on Labor Day when he was struck by a motor car on Church Street just below Shuter. Roach died of a fractured skull 10 days later in St. Michael's Hospital.

No blame was attached by the jury to the driver of the car, John Penrose, of 546 Sherbrooke Street, Peterborough, who declared in the box that Roach had stepped out suddenly from behind a parked car.

Such an amendment to the Highways Act as was proposed by the jury was suggested by Coroner G. W. Glendenan in the course of his summary of the evidence. "I don't think Roach exercised proper care," he said.

A passing motorist, whose name remains unknown, took Roach to the hospital, and police were not notified of the accident until an hour after it happened. As a consequence, no eye-witnesses were produced except Penrose and Charles W. Sheridan, of Lyall Avenue who was accompanying the Peterborough man to the baseball game.

Both swore that Roach had been struck by one of the windshield supports of the car, which was a 1923 Ford coupe, and was thrown to the pavement. Penrose's left arm has been amputated, but he had a driving permit and did not believe that this had contributed to the accident as he did not see the man, he said, until the moment of impact. Acting Crown Attorney G. Mason Saunders contended, however that Roach had walked six feeet in full view of the motorist before he was struck.

MISSION AUXILIARY COMPLETES STUDY

New Book Will Be Started By St. James' Women Next Month.

The September meeting of St. James' United Auxiliary was held on Tuesday evening in Wesley Hall, with a good attendance.

The meeting was opened with singing and prayer, after which the routine business was conducted by the President, Mrs. E. L. Woodley.

A complete report of the nine months' finances was presented by the treasurer, Mrs. Bonney. Plans for a W.M.S. Sunday service were discussed, and the autumn thankoffering envelopes placed in the hands of the finance committee for distribution.

Mrs. Wesley Rose of Morrow street, leader of Group 4, then took charge of the missionary part of the program.

"Rescue the Perishing" was sung and several members led in sentence prayers.

Mrs. Payne gave a most interesting devotional reading, the theme of which was "In the beginning."

A series of short papers on the habits of the early Indians, and the first attempts that were made to Christianize them, were treated by Mrs. Elliott, Miss Collins, Mrs. Woodley, Mrs. Rose and Mrs. Sargent.

Very pleasing was the duet by two Mission Band girls, Jean Rose and Eleanor Gibson, with ukulele accompaniment.

The book, which has been under study during the past year, was concluded at this meeting; the last two chapters being given by Miss Connie Wagar in an interesting and concise grouping of facts.

The new book of study, "Drums in the Darkness," a story of Africa, will be opened at the October meeting, which will be in charge of Group 1, with Mrs. Bonney and Mrs. Wagar as leaders.

YUCATAN NATIVES HAD SQUASH COURTS

Traces of Popular Game Found in Central American Jungles.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 22. — (Canadian Press).—Evidence that a game similar to squash was played by natives of Yucatan 2,000 years ago was found by a Tulane University expedition which returned here from an exploring trip through Central America and Mexico.

Dr. Frans Blom of the Department of Middle American Research of Tulane, who headed the expedition, said he found courts upon which the game had been played by the ancient Mayan tribes. The courts still were in excellent repair, he said, and there could be no mistake about what they were used for.

The game apparently had been played with rubber balls which had been knocked back and forth across the court with something similar to racquets.

$3,075 TAKEN AT KING CITY

Two Armed Robbers Make Clean Getaway—Miss $1,700 Cash.

MEN NOT MASKED.

KING CITY, Sept. 22.—Two armed, unmasked robbers entered the King City branch of the Bank of Montreal at 12.40 p.m. standard time yesterday, forced M. S. Benson, manager; his nine-year-old son, Billy, and R. Linton, ledgerkeeper, into the vault and decamped with $3,075, mostly in bills of small denominations. The marauders missed valuable bonds and securities, as well as about $1,700 in cash in a tin box in the teller's cage. There were no customers in the bank at the time.

Immediately the trio had forced their way out of the vault, an alarm was telephoned to the head office of the bank in Toronto, and City detectives were rushed to the scene. Every bank in the county was notified within 45 minutes of the appearance of robbers.

Provincial police and highway officers were given descriptions of the robbers. About four o'clock a Richmond Hill resident reported to Constable S. A. Barraclough, of the village police, that, while he was travelling north at about 1.30, he had noticed a wire-wheeled roadster approaching Schomberg Junction, speeding from the direction of King City. There were two men in the car, he said, but owing to the distance and the speed of the roadster, he was unable to give a more accurate description. The car turned north upon reaching Yonge Street, and soon disappeared over the hill.

The annual fall fair, held under the auspices of the Lakefield Agricultural Society will be the premier event of next week, and takes place on September 25th and 26th. The second day will, of course, be the big day and is a community place of meeting. This year several new attractions are being offered and the program promises to be unusually interesting. The school fair will be a prominent feature and several athletic events will be held including a tug of war, open to teams for the district, flat races and jumping. The Citizens' Band will furnish music and the midway offers novel attractions.

WOULD ALLOW U.S. TO LEAD

Washington naval treaty. The British thought, he said, that owing to the difficulties of reaching agreement on smaller cruisers, it was much better to make a beginning on the powerful cruisers and submarines, leaving to the future the posibility of limiting smaller warships.

Speaking more in detail, he said that what the accord provides is that all cruisers carrying guns exceeding the six-inch calibre would fall within the category subject to limitation. Similarly all submarines above 600 tons would come within the limitation agreement. He said that both countries were quite disposed to allow America to set the pace in fixing the number of big cruisers.

Although the Franco-British accord occupies less than one tpye-written page, it covers a great deal of ground because it also provides a way of extending the Washington naval treaty to smaller powers. This met with failure when attempted at Rome several years ago at a meeting of a special commision in the presence of a Rusian delegate.

France and Great Britain now propose that the League's preparatory commision take it up. They suggest that the smaller states accept the principles agreed upon at Washington concerning capital ships, which include battleships, battle cruisers, and aircraft carriers.

The council of the League last night invited the Colombian, Netherlands and Chinese governments, which recently retired from the council, to continue to collaborate in the work of the special commission preparing for an international conference on disarmament. As States that are members of the council are automatically members of this commission, Venezuela and Persia will henceforth take part in the work.

Hungary and Rumania yesterday agreed that they would open direct negotiations to settle their dispute over the expropriation of lands in Transylvania by the Rumanian state.

Geneva circles hold that the important new feature of the Franco-British accord is the proposal to limit the total tonnage of big cruiser by a general agreement limiting surface ships of 10,000 tons or less carrying guns more than six inches and up to eight inches in calibre.

It is pointed out that the Washington treaty restricted the individual size of cruiser to the 10,000 ton limit but places no limit on the number or total tonnage of cruiser which the signatory powers could possess.

Annexed to the accord is a table of four classes of war vessels, two referring to matters settled at Washington, and two to cruisers and submarines not settled at Washington.

Wedding Bells

(Examiner Correspondence)

RICHARDS—WILSON.

YOUNG'S POINT, Sept. 22.—The marriage of Bessie Doreen Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Wilson, Young's Point, and Richard Percival Richards, of Windsor, was solemnized in St. Alden's Church, Young's Point, on Wednesday, Sept. 19, at 7 p.m., Rev. R. T. C. Dwelly, B.A., rector of the church, officiating.

The church was beautifully decorated with flowers and ferns for the occasion.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March, played by her sister, Miss Daisy Wilson, and looked charming in her wedding gown of white silk lace over crepe de chine. Her veil was of silk net, trimmed with pearls and edged with Chantilly lace, and was arranged in cap effect, with lily-of-the-valley.

She wore white kid shoes with rhinestone buckles and carried a shower bouquet of gladiolas and white asters with gypsophila.

During the ceremony the congregation sang the hymn, "O Perfect Love."

After the ceremony the bride and room left the church to the strains of Mendelsohn's Wedding March. A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, when a dainty buffet luncheon was served. The color scheme of the house was pink and white, and was beautifully carried out in the various rooms and table decorations.

Later the young couple left amid showers of confetti and good wishes for their honeymoon, which will be spent metoring in the United States. The bride travelled in a navy celenese crepe dress, wine colored broadcloth coat trimmed with opossum fur and sequin hat to match.

On their return they will reside in Windsor.

Many beautiful and costly gifts were received by the young people.

Among the guests were: Rev. and Mrs. Dwelly; Mr. and Mrs. Theo. Aisthrope, Toronto; Mr. John Wilson, Toronto; Misses Dorothy and Marjorie Wilson, Toronto; Mr. Val. Rayham, Toronto; Mrs. J. Bateson Ludington, Mich.; Mrs. Harold Harley Ludington, Mich.; Mrs. Leon Ellsworth and Master Royden Ellsworth, Windsor; Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Wilson, Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. George Jackman, Lakefield; Mr. and Mrs. Percy Stenner, Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. George Wilson, Hall's Bridge; Misses Leota Wilson, Helen Wilson and Lyda Wilson, Peterborough; Misses Alice Wilson, Marie Wilson and Mr. Mac Wilson, Hall's Bridge; Miss Evelyn Northey, Lakefield; Miss Lulu Darling, Lakefield; Mr. William Copp, Peterborough; Mr. Percy Darling, Lakefield; Mr. and Mrs. David Darling, Selwyn; Miss Alice Whitmore, Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Wilson and Miss Genevieve Armstrong, Smith.

a cwt. and less than they cost in the country. Heifers were in better demand than steers this week. Butchers cows and bulls did not lose more than 25 cents a cwt. Canners and cutters and bologna bulls were, as a matter of fact, unchanged from last week.

Butchers cows, good to choice, were $8.00 to $9.25 a cwt.; medium, $7.00 to $7.75, and common, $6.00 to $6.50 a cwt. Butchers bulls, light, were $8.00 to $8.25; heavies, $7.50 to $8.00, and heavy bolognas $6.75 to $7.00 a cwt. A steady demand held springers about unchanged, and the same may be said of stockers and feeders. Loads of good short-keeps averaged $10.50 a cwt. The held-over cattle will be a drag on next week's market, and unless the supply is materially lowered there will be no improvement.

The calf market has not been as good this week and common to choice calves are down $1.60 a cwt. Top calves are 16 to 16½ cents, good 15 to 16, medium 12 to 14, and common 10 to 11 cents a pound.

The big supply of lambs has brought the price back to 13 cents a pound on ewes and wethers. Some sales were made a little higher but this would account for the bulk. Good butchers' sheep are had at 7 cents a pound.

Hogs are down 50 cents a cwt., with the prospect of a further drop of 25 cents for next week, making the f.o.b. price $12.00 and weighed off cars $13.00 a cwt.

BUTTER AND EGGS.

TORONTO, Sept. 22.—During the present week the Toronto wholesale egg market has been steady, with quotations about unchanged. Fewer firsts and seconds were reported arriving. One reason given was that quite a few short-held fresh eggs are now coming to the market and, as the general quality was not very desirable, with a decidedly small percentage good enough to grade "extras," the bulk of these eggs were going into competition with strictly fresh first and seconds. Extras continued in good demand and advancing prices for this grade are expected. Dealers are offering to country shippers for supplies delivered at Toronto, 42c. to 43c. for extras, 38c. to 40c. for firsts, 31c. for pullet extras, 29c. to 30c. for seconds. With receipts showing material increases this week, prices on chickens were easier. Good fat hens are holding steady under fair to brisk demand for the prevailing Jewish holidays.

Quebec Lady Took A Friend's Advice

CIRCLE PLANNING AUTUMN MEETINGS

Social Hour and Corn Roast Held By St. James' Girls.

The X L Mission Circle held their first meeting of the fall session, with a large and encouraging attendance of interested members.

In the absence of the president, Miss Nina Andrus, first vice-president, took the chair.

After the devotional exercises, plans were discussed for the fall's work and study.

Misses Eleanor Gibson and Jean Rose sang very sweetly, with ukulele accompaniment, "Let Jesus come into your heart," and Miss Geneva Sedgwick delighted the girls with her solo, "Does Jesus Care?"

Mrs. G. Patterson gave a humorous reading as an opening to a very entertaining social hour.

A corn roast came as a pleasant ending for the evening, and was thoroughly enjoyed by all the members.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered our hostess, Mrs. G. Patterson, and the committee in charge, Misses Marjorie Dudgeon and Jean Patterson.

MEMORY GOES TO BIRTH

How far back can you remember? Are you able to recall happenings when you were a baby?

L. A. Hadfield, a psychologist of London University in England, who has just completed a study of memory, says in Popular Science Monthly that adults remember much more of their childhood than commonly supposed. He found one man who remembered clearly a fire that occurred when he was only eight months old, and a woman who recalled what happened a few minutes after her birth.

Parents who think babies are "too young to understand," warns Hadfield, may cause much suffering to their children in later life. Disturbing sights and events may linger in memory to harass them in later years.

THE MIRROR OF THE MODE

By Mary Marshall.

This is a coiffure showing the new and becoming sculptored curls.

Sculptored curls, I believe you should call them, though I have heard them referred to as spit curls a number of times lately. Anyway, you know what I mean and you may be one of the progressive members of your community who have already begun to wear them.

The idea of these new flat little curls really did come from the sculptored busts of ancient Greece. And before the fashion was launched fashionable and influential coiffeurs in Paris doubtless spent hours in the Musee de Louvre looking with more than usual interest at the reproductions of the work done by their predecessors in Athens centuries ago.

In going back to the Greek models of hairdressing they aimed high, because it is an acknowledged fact that in no place and at no time did the art of hairdressing reach a higher level than in Greece in classic times.

Sometimes these flat little curls are arranged at the side of the head as indicated in the sketch, sometimes there is a profusion of them all over the head. In one rather amazing coiffure I saw the other evening there was a row of them running in single file from the center of the forehead to the nape of the neck.

It would probably be difficult to revive a fashion for wigs as they were worn in the eighteenth century, but the wig-like evening head-dresses, in which silk floss is used instead of hair, are enjoying considerable vogue. They might be considered simply as closely fitting evening toques covered with neatly arranged strands of silk. I have seen very lovely ones in light yellow, pink, mauve or green.

In pure white these evening head-dresses are most appropriate for wear with the bouffant skirted period frocks, suggesting as they do the white wigs worn by the hoop-skirted ladies of the eighteenth century.

FATE'S HOUR.

By Jane Burton.

Miss Hannah Clay came back from the postoffice and paused in front of her own millinery shop.

The windows look real tasty, if I do say it as shouldn't," she murmured. "That plum hat with the petunias would do right well for me, but where would I wear it?"

People never wondered much about Hannah Clay's spinsterhood. They knew she had been pretty enough and was still attractive in a gentle, faded way, and that if she didn't marry it was because she didn't want to.

She was thinking about that now as she saw a mother—one of her schoolmates—pass with a young daughter. She was glad of an interruption. It proved to be Judge Scott, and at the sight of him she felt very faint. All her small savings were in his bank. Was he bringing her ill news?"

"You can't imagine what I came for," said the Judge, putting his hat on the case and adjusting his glasses.

"The bank has failed and my money's gone," she whispered.

He threw back his head and laughed mellowly.

"It isn't the bank, then?" sighed Hannah, relievedly.

"Bless you, no—bank's sound as a nut. I came to buy a bonnet."

"A bonnet?"

"Yes. You mustn't breathe a word about it; it's a secret between us two. You know my cousin, Angeline Spall—lives up the hill and sits two seats ahead of me in church?"

"Of course I know her."

"Ever see that awful brown silk bonnet she wears year in and year out?"

"It is old as the hills," agreed Hannah, "but she looks real well in it. Angeline would be quite sweet looking if she wasn't worried so for money."

The Judge looked startled. "I thought Spall left her well fixed," he muttered.

Hannah shook her head. "Drank every penny up before he died. She'll lose the place if she doesn't look out."

The Judge was vrey thoughtful. After awhile he took out a notebook and did some figuring. "Hannah, I'll buy in that little house and give it to Angeline Spall, and I'll settle a regular income upon her. I can afford it, and I'll take the prettiest bonnet you've got here as a present."

Hannah took the petunia hat out of the window. "This is the prettiest hat," she said, and tried it on before him. The Judge looked and looked—and looked, and Hannah blushed and hastily took off the hat. This loosened some of her faded hair and made her seem quite pretty.

"Put that one away," said the Judge at last. "I think I'll give Angeline the money and let her choose her own hat.

"I believe she would rather do that," said Hannah honestly.

"You've lost a sale, Hannah Clay."

Hannah's little work-worn fingers trembled as he pressed them. "I'm coming in and tell you all about Mrs. Spall," said the Judge as he left the shop.

Hannah closed her eyes in momentary ecstasy as she relived the last half hour. When she opened them again she saw her own reflection in the mirror. It was the face of a stranger, so changed it was. She reached into the window and drew out the petunia hat and tried it on. She did not hear the door open gently and the soft, gliding footsteps of old Mrs. Beebe, who, through advanced age and an almost uncanny knowledge of human nature, claimed the gift of prophecy.

"How be ye, Hannah?" she chirruped, perching on the edge of a chair. "That hat's right pretty."

Hannah started violently and dropped the petunia hat.

Mrs. Beebe picked it up and twirled it around on her gnarled fingers. "Why don't ye treat your wedding hat better, Hannah Clay?" she shrilled.

"That's not a wedding hat, Mrs. Beebe, it's just one I made to sell.

Mrs. Beebe lifted her hand and closed her eyes. Hannah realized that her visitor was about to "prophesy."

"No one shall wear the bridal hat but the Jedge's bride—the hour of fate has struck—it strikes once for every man and woman and then—" her voice suddenly became stern and practical: "Be choice of that hat, Hannah Clay, you will need it soon!" She hopped off the chair and went out of the shop.

Hannah stared after her and then, chiding herself the while, she put the petunia hat away amid much tissue paper in the prettiest hatbox she possessed. "Angeline Spall may want to buy it," he said guiltily.

The next day Judge Scott came to tell about Angeline Spall and how he had arranged to make things easier for her. "She's coming to pick out a hat, and Hannah," he hesitated and a twinkle came into his gray eyes, "don't sell the petunia hat!"

It took Judge Scott several months to discuss Angeline Spall with Hannah, and he spent many evenings in the pretty little shop with its rag carpet, old-fashioned chints curtains and rush-bottomed chairs.

One evening the Judge suddenly put his arm around Hannah and said: "If we don't get married right away, Hannah, that hat'll be out of style, and I've been counting on my wife wearing it—so if you'll just get a petunia colored dress—I'll see the parson—and I've picked out my wedding present for you already—a fur coat. Why are you crying?"

Hannah looked up, drying her eyes, bright now with renewed youth. "Every woman cries when her hour of fate strikes," she said mysteriously.

THE WHATNOT

A Place for Little Bits of Everything of Local Interest

By MARION

DID you ever start a project and wonder just how it would turn out—wonder, in fact, whether you would come within calling distance, even, of success? I did.

• • • • • • •

A few short months ago this column was launched on a sea that had been vacant, as far The Examiner was concerned, of similiar craft. No one had ever sailed the uncharted waters.

• • • • • • •

And to-day I am the most delighted mariner who ever ventured among rocks and shoals to prove the truth of an idea. And here's why.

• • • • • • •

The letters from women readers have been steadily increasing in number and interest, showing that something like this page was needed for the interchange of their ideas. To-day I had the pleasure of writing 34 little notes to women readers, thanking them for helps they had given—and the number has been about the same all week.

• • • • • • •

I believed that the women who read The Examiner were quite willing to be neighborly, if they had an opportunity—and you certainly are neighborly! When one appeals for a recipe, or for help of some kind, half a dozen or more answer nearly at once. And if it is nice to be able to come here for assistances in one's problems it is far more thrilling and self-satisfying to be in a position to give help. Don't you find it so?

• • • • • • •

I like to have the oportunity of writing personally to thank those who contribute items, and for that reason I like correspondents to add their names and addresses. But I have a lot of hints that came in bearing no name, so I wish to take this opportunity of thanking the writers, and at the same time pass on their ideas to you.

• • • • • • •

A good housewife, who is noted for the delicious flavor of her canned plums contributes this suggestion: Fill the gems with the raw plums. Place in the boiler, which must have a board with holes bored in it or a rack in the bottom and have water part way up on the gems. Cook until the juice boils out of the plums. Let cool slightly, then place a sieve over the top of the gem and pour off the juice, which will be quite bitter. Add syrup which has been prepared from sugar and water. Let cook gently until the syrup has time to penetrate the fruit, then seal. This method takes less sugar and gives a better flavor.

• • • • • • •

And here is a recipe for women who suffer from ridged or brittle nails, contributed by an unnamed reader: "Melt 30 grains of powdered resin and 30 grains of white wax, and, as you gently stir the mixture, add 30 grains of table salt, 1½ ounces of almond oil, and 30 grains of powdered alum. Pour into a jar resistant of heat and let cool. Apply this to the nails with a piece of cotton as often as possible."

• • • • • • •

Another writes: 'A good many mothers feel that the baby's firs teeth are not very important except at the actual time of teething. They are apt to think that because the first set of teeth are to last for so short of time it is useless to spend much time and money on their care and that when the second or permanent set comes through it is early enough to start some form of dental attention.

• • • • • • •

But have your forgotten—or do you know—that the condition of the second teeth will depend almost entirely upon the care that has been given to the first or temporary teeth?"

• • • • • • •

And here is a hint mailed from Millbrook, but unsigned. It should appeal to nearly every busy housewife who knows the trouble of being called from her work in the kitchen to open the door to she knows not whom. "I have a little mirror on the kitchen wall," writes this lady, "with a pointed self underneath. On this shelf I keep a spare powder box and puff. Then, when the door bell rings I can give my nose a 'dab' without running upstairs, and I always feel at ease from the fear of having a shiny nose."

• • • • • • •

Now, when you look over this page of fine helps, both in letters and in the diferent columns, don't you, too, feel enthusiastic? Sure, you do!

• • • • • • •

Offered this week is the short cape for autumn wear, easily made from the instructions which I shall be glad to send on request. I have had more camiknicker and pointed slip instructions printed, so don't be afraid to ask for them.

• • • • • • •

A pattern which would be most acceptable to mothers who are teaching their teen-age daughters to sew was being used by a girl in a south end home. It is in one large sheet so that none of the pieces are mislaid. Perhaps to more experienced home dressmakers it would seem unnecesary to have a guide in cutting so that goods are not wasted. To the beginner that is a big problem and very often there is a wail of "Oh, I only have one sleeve" or "one sleeve is cut wrong side out." With this pattern there can be none of that, every piece being shown.

ENTERTAINING GUESTS

A Series Giving Hints on Arranging Parties.

By LAURA.

THE COTTON WEDDING

Just one year from the date of the wonderful event, is a delightful opportunity of holding a party in memory of the joyous occasion. The very name cotton expresses in itself various ways of entertainment, for decorations can be carried through without entailing too much expense.

Invitations may take the form of mystery or may be sent out on visiting cards with little miniature powder puffs attached at the upper corner—suggestive of the anniversary. On the lower corner will be written the address and the hour and, "Wear your oldest clothes and an apron." The apron was changed on the men's invitations to "overalls."

There was nothing else on the card to give the smallest hint of the nature of the affair, and it is up to the guests to puzzle it out, and if they do, they will come armed with various gifts suitable for the occasion. A number of these were given last week, but in case the item has been mislaid, I will give a few more. Spools of cotton and balls of darning cotton for the family workbasket; rolls of absorbent cotton for the medicine cabinet; huge and gaudy cotton bandannas that could be converted into dust-cloths; and some really pretty articles such as laundry bags, smaller bags for soiled handkerchiefs, and a bag for stockings waiting to be darned.

The guests may be welcomed by a black-faced host and hostess (providing the husband of one year consents to be so adorned) the former wearing old faded khaki trousers, torn shirt, old shoes and a dilapidated wide-brimmed straw hat. His wife may wear a huge gingham apron covering all of her dress, large gold earrings, and a large bandanna bound around her head. Each guest is given a small basket which contains a bright bandanna handkerchief, and is told to make use of the lamp-black they would find in the dressing-rooms. When they assemble ready for the fray, the hostess explains the nature of the affair and tells them there are little tufts of cotton hidden all over the porch, lawn and parts of the house. The girl gathering the most might be given a dainty powder puff in a leather case, and the man a fountain pen carefully wrapped in cotton in a box.

A drawing contest provides much merriment and for this a square of black cardboard is given to each guest and a basket of the picked wool, placed on the centre of the table. Each one is told to draw with white chalk either a single darkey picker or a group. The cotton was used for the woolly head and whiskers attached with glue. The prize for this might be a popular book of negro tales.

At one cotton wedding the dining room had been daintily decorated. The table had been very cleverly arranged to look like a field of cotton. The top had been covered with branches, grass and moss to represent a field, with white drifts of cotton and tiny darkey-dolls dressed in gay colors, bending over, filling the baskets. The centerpiece was a huge market basket apparently filled with cotton, but on inspection proved to be full of home-made, crisp brown doughnuts and rosy apples.

Others basket, one at each end of the table, covered with cotton disclosed sandwiches wrapped in wax paper and filled with a salad con-I, and the other one filled with hollowed oranges and lined with wax paper and filled with a salar composed of chopped chicken, celery and nuts and mayonnaise dressing. A huge chocolate cake, topped with fluffy, cotton-like mounds of whipped cream.

A Tip or Two

Grated cheese does not keep well. The least damp affects it. Keep it in a tightly corked bottle in a cool, dry cupboard.

Fine orange or lemon flavoring for cakes, puddings, etc. When using fresh oranges or lemons, pare rind very thin (do not get any of the thick white inner skin), and put in a glass jar of granulated sugar; when sugar has absorbed enough oil to become moist, it is ready for use and will keep indefinitely.

To prevent soggy fruit pies, beat the white of an egg, and, before filling, brush the sides and bottom crust with it; then sprinkle with grated bread crumbs (do not use crusts), add filling and put at once in oven. Putting in the sugar when the pie is half filled also helps to keep fruit pies from being heavy.

Make Pickles At Home This Year Is Advice to Every Housewife

Many Reasons Why it is Best To Do So — Desired Ingredients Can Be Put Into Pickles — Zest Can Be Given and Pickles Made Easily Digestible with Mustard.

The practice of putting down her own pickles always has been popular with the Canadian housewife. There are a number of reasons for this. First, a woman is sure that vegetables and fruits used are to her liking; second, the flavour she desires can be obtained; third, by making them in her own spick-and-span kitchen, she knows that the pickles will be free from impurities; fourth, she can put down the exact quantity she wants of each kind she likes; and lastly it is practical economy.

First Pickle Was Sour

It seems fairly certain that the first pickle known to the palate was of the sour variety and that it was made by putting a cucumber in brine. Some gourmet, in the dim shadows of yesterday, probably found that it increased the flow of saliva and put an edge on his appetite. This is his contribution to the modern table. The sweet pickle, mustard pickle, Dutch pickle, fruit pickle, chow, chutney and other kinds are of comparatively recent invention. But they have extended the use of pickles and lifted them into a class with pepper and salt as universally recognized table adjuncts.

Mustard Promoted Health

Today pickles have a further justification than just being tasty and good appetizers. The use of dry mustard in their preparation is the reason for this, because it has functions that promote good health; and the world will eat what is good for it. Mustard is recognized far and wide as an aid to digestion; so that mustard pickles are now eaten not only because they are relishing but because they also help digestion. Only a few months of the year, the end of the summer and early autumn, constitute the pickling season. But housewives find that this gives them plenty of time to prepare their annual supply. It is during this particular period that the onions, tomatoes, cucumbers, cauliflowers and beans that go into the pickles risen.

WOMEN'S PAGE

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE WEEKLY COLUMN

A goodly thing it is to meet
In Friendship's circle bright,
Where nothing stains the pleasure sweet,
Or dims the radiant light.
No unkind word our lips shall pass,
No envy sour the mind,
But each shall seek the common weal,
The good of all mankind.

WARSAW

Those who attended the September Warsaw Institute meeting must surely have gotten a treat and an inspiration from Mrs. Cameron's address. Her subject was "When Mrs. Canada Goes Shopping."

Mrs. Canada is us, the housekeepers of Canada.

The speaker asked why we lose so many of our young people to the United States? We spend labor and money bringing them up, and when fully equipped away they go, and all the labor and money is lost to Canada, along with the young man or young woman. We spend and work and the country to the south of us gets the good. It is neither fair nor wise. We should keep up our own country with our own stock. It is the best.

The solution lies in the shopping bag. Many people will go to local stores, run up bills and for special things go to Peterborough or some other place and pay cash. Then if any community needs arise, it is to the long-suffering local dealer the appeal is made, and he puts his hand into his pocket and hands out all he can. It is not a square deal. No he can. It is not a square deal. Mrs. Cameron did commend Eaton's becaue they do make an especial effort to use Canadian goods.

If the local dealer gets a surplus he invests it in what brings returns to the country, and the amount of money gotten out of a small place is amazing.

If the local stores do not handle the goods desired could not some arrangement be made whereby they will?

Instances of foreign-made goods being sold in village stores were cited. Even one woman objecting to United States jars, when just as good Canadian may be had for the same price, and generally less, because of the tariff, has resulted in the merchant getting Canadian goods.

Why buy American made goods and pay tariff? Why not keep the money circulating in our own country.

We are told to love our neighbors, but there is no place where we are told to ruin ourselves for their benefit.

Cannot Canadian products and Canadian manufactured goods be given a fair trial in Canada by Canadians?

Very little is used but is made in Canada if Canadians would only insist on getting the Canadian product. Then employment would be given to our own people and we would build up our own industries. If we imitate the United States we will build up our own country. The United States is quite right. They are out for themselves, and if they can get our best, so much the better for them, and the worse for us.

Women have refused to take foreign goods, and gotten as good, or better for the same price and manufactured at home where it helped give employment to our own people. What one woman or band of women has done, others can do.

In June the United States bought from us forty million dollars worth of goods, but we bought from them over seventy-five million dollars worth of goods.

British Columbia fruits rot for want of purchasers, and we are using American fruits. A few days ago peaches, at a certain store, were 40c a dozen, while Niagara grown peaches were 50c a basket and better. Oranges and bananas from British West Indies are better and cheaper than from the States. Let us keep the money in the family, and build up Canada, the best country on earth. Other parts of the Empire buy from us, want our goods.

Very few but were touched more or less by the War. The young men went willingly. One influenced another. Many of them gave their lives for their country. If Canada was worth their dying for, it is surely worth our living for and in, and doing all in our power to keep our young men and women home. Our Empire is our own, our own dear possession. Loyalty to Canada, and to the Empire means loyalty to all we hold dear.

These boys gave their all for us. Are we trying to build up the country?

The shopping bag is a little thing, but it is a mighty power.

MOUNT PLEASANT

Thirty years ago the only three Women's Institutes in existence were in the Province of Ontario. The extension and development of the work is a very interesting story which follows with the outling of a few of the features which have most impressed.

Possibly the most significant feature, and the one which promises the most for the future is the development of community consciousness. In the beginning the Institutes centred their thoughts, discussions, and study largely on matters related to the housing, clothing, feeding of the family; but the members most of them mothers, soon realized that if they were to serve their families and their homes effectively, they must look well to community equipment, service and activities. So, through co-operative effort, the Institutes have done much to provide community homes good literature, wholesome social opportunities, and have contributed and rendered service where the need existed. The power of women through co-operation to serve their communities well has been forcefully demonstrated in the Institutes.

One of the outstanding features is the discovery and development of talents in the women of rural Ontario. At the Provincial gathering twenty-four years ago with two hundred delegates from various sections of the Province in attendance it was difficult to arouse discussion, and only a very small proportion were ready to take their place on the platform and assist in the program. To-day in every county in Ontario we have numbers of women who can take their place on the platform with credit in the discussion of features in which women and children are concerned. The excellence of the papers prepared and the addresses given, largely along practical lines, but many of them cultural and entertaining in character, are a credit to the women of the Province. These women have a very keen appreciation of the literature published by the various departments of Government bearing upon their work and are utilizing the same to good advantage. The hearty response to the appeal for assistance when the World War came was an evidence of the loyalty and spirit of service of the members. The first appeal was from the Red Cross for feathers and it was only a few weeks until those in charge had to send out notice that the supply more than met the demand. Then the appeal for socks, shirts and supplies of various kinds met with most liberal and hearty response throughout the conflict. The regular work of the Institutes was largely given up for war work and it took some years after the cessation of hostilities before the women got back to the old level in educational and community service work, for they, as an organization were somewhat exhausted after their strenuous efforts and liberal giving of time, money and supplies.

In referring to the educational features of the Institutes the members speak of it as "A school for grown-ups" or "Our rural university," and there is no doubt but that the Institute is one of the greatest factors making for efficiency in the lives of thousands of country women.

Premier Baldwin on his recent visit to Canada stated that Canada's greatest contribution to the Mother Country is the Women's Institute, which has been adapted to the needs and possibilities of the communities in which it has been introduced in the British Isles.

May we enumerate at this time some of the underlying principles which have made for success in this organization which has proved its worth where women are desirous to acquire efficiency, enjoy a wholesome social life and render service of lasting worth to the community.

(1)—A membership composed of women, of responsibility, who were anxious to acquire greater efficiency as homemakers and community builders.

(2)—Adherence to the principle of recognizing no class, sectarian or party distinctions, and avoiding the introduction of features which would antagonize groups of members.

(3)—The adoption of a democratic basis of election in the branch, district, subdivision and provincial organization.

(4)—The spirit of service in the home and to the community, then to local public institutions and provincial undertakings.

(5)—The stand for a wholesome social life in the community and assistance in providing amusement and entertainment of a constructive, educative and elevating character.

(6)—A definite basis of effective co-operation on the part of Government service and local voluntary organizations. The Department of Agriculture undertakes to provide instructors and literature to the Institutes along lines which are of unquestionable value to women of responsibility, provided the Institute members will hold regular meetings of educational value at which local talent and the literature available is utilized in such ways as are thought to be of the greatest value to the individual members. This co-operation has undoubtedly enabled the Government to render sufficient service at less cost than would have been possible without the voluntary local organizations; and, on the other hand, it would have been impossible for the Institutes to have carried on so effectively, without the literature furnished, lecturers and instructors provided and assistance in formulating a basis for organizing and extending the work through district, subdivision convention area and provincial organization.

It has been a very happy effective and mutually beneficial co-operation between Government, service and voluntary local groups. It is stated by those who have had the opportunity of studying systems of Government assistance in other countries that Ontario presents an example, through co-operation of the Government with Women's Institutes, of most effective results at a minimum of outlay.

The most valuable development in the Institutes is a realization on the part of the women of rural Ontario that they have through their local groups the power to materially raise the standard of efficiency, to foster a wholesome social life, and to render most valuable service to the community. The accomplishments of the present day in hundreds of community groups would have been looked upon as impossible by the leaders of twenty-five years ago.

Groups of women in the rural districts would no more consider effective effort towards individual advancement, a wholesome social life and efficient community service without a Women's Institute or similar all-embracing local organization than they would think of trying to provide adequate education and training for their children without a school.

It would be in the best interests of the Institutes and would give opportunity for the development of a larger number of capable women if changes were made in the presidency and secretaryship from time to time. In a few branches a change is made every year, but the great majority elect a new president every two years, while some of the most successful Institutes have had the same president for a number of years.

Some say "If you have a good secretary, keep her," but the better plan would be, if you have other capable women, to pass the office on from time to time, say, every three or four years at least. Some branches elect a new secretary one year and a president the next year, thus overcoming the handicap of having two newly appointed officers to assume responsibility at the same time.

Dietitic Dissertations

(Specially Written for The Examiner.)

VII.—VITAMINES

Now for vitamines! How that word has sounded and resounded through every dietetic discussion for the last decade. Perhaps we have almost given it undue importance—attributed to it the proverbial efficiency of the new broom, as it were. Yet surely in the mouths of such men as McCollum, Hutchison, Sherman, Carter, Howe and Mason (not to mention the Fleischmann Yeast people and manufacturers of Health Iluminum) the importance of vitamines must be established. Even the lamented author of The Keeper of the Bees restored her hero to health by the use of oranges and tomatoes.

Vitamines are rather paradoxical in character. We do not know their composition. It is when they are a minus quantity that their existence is most evident. What is known of them has been learned chiefly from their absence. Jacques Cartier's men, though probably both unversed and uninterested in dietetics, knew much more of the effects of a vitamineless diet than most of us. Even their classification has a negative sound; anti-rachitic, anti-scorbutic, etc. However, we also use the alphabet in designating them. (I once knew a deluded household science student rise and expound on vitamine H.—She was, after all, only three letters ahead of the scientists.)

Vitamines have been called food accessories (to me, this seems a rather superficial name), activators, catalysts, and the spark plug that liberates the fuel for burning.

A knowledge of this food principle has put a rather effective check on the refining of food. After our so long preaching cleanliness, sterilization, and the destruction of bacteria, vitamines would seem to arise and command "As you were!" The anti-scorbutic vitamine is particularly sensitive to heat and alkali. In a lantern slide lecture on vitamines which I once attended, Professor McCorrison said that near the Himalayas he had seen the most physically perfect people he had ever met anywhere. One of the three causes to which he attributed their perfection was the fact that they live on natural food.

As deficiency diseases are prone to be chronic and of long incubation, their prevention is vital.

Vitamine rich foods are, mainly—milk, eggs, fruit, vegetables (especially tomatoes and leaf vegetables), unrefined cereals, and—indeed yes—the humble calf's liver. Then there is always Cartier's pine needle concoction.

MARION'S MAIL

Address correspondence to Marion at The Examiner Office.

DEAR Marion:

I like your page a whole lot, and I have surely enjoyed reading the Whatnot every night since you started it. Some days it is better than others, of course, but it is always worth reading. I think it is just great how you are able to help out with recipes, and how the other readers help, too. Just to do my share I'm sending you a recipe for drop doughnuts, which I hope you can use.

I am a teacher of music, and very often my evenings and afternoons are so taken up that I cannot find time to entertain friends I would like to. I got the idea this fall that I would have an occasional friend in to lunch instead of to afternoon tea, and will appreciate your telling me what you think of it. If the idea is all right, what would be appropriate to serve? One knows what one likes oneself, but it is unusual to serve lunch for visitors, isn't it?

Yours sincerely,
RAMONA."

Thanks from myself, Ramona, for the kind words, and from the neighbors for the recipe. Your doughnuts should be very tasty indeed, and I'm sure there will be a lot made within the next few weeks.

About the lunch, I think your idea is unique and worth while. I can readily understand that the usual hours for entertaining would, in your case, be fully taken up, and I see no reason why your alternative should not become popular. The old idea of luncheon was to have a meal very much like dinner, only just a little less "hearty" and less elaborate. In fact, you will find this followed in many places even now; in hotels, for instance. The "company" luncheon began with soup or appetizer, had a meat or fish course with some sort of vegetable, a salad and desert. At least three courses was the rule. It is my opinion that ideas have changed, so that now daintiness is essential in a luncheon, and it would certainly have to be the keynote of such luncheons as your plan.

Many women never think of a dessert for luncheon, and many are loath to eat more than a salad or a simple meatless entree, and you will probably please your friends by not plannig more than the two courses. Present-day taste permits less formality in the serving of luncheon than of dinner, but demands a touch of daintiness in the cooking and presentation of the dishes. There would be something distinctly out of place in your luncheons about a substantial roast, boiled potatoes, or any of the heartier sorts of desserts. Here are some possible luncheon menus that would meet with the approval of the most fastidious: Spanish omelet, bran muffins, strawberry salad, tea or coffee; toasted cheese sandwiches, pineapple salad with cream cheese, wafers, tea or coffee; potato salad, boneless sardines, parkerhouse rolls, sliced peaches and cream. At a more pretentious luncheon I enjoyed recently the menu was: Salmon croquettes with tomato sauce, cucumber sandwiches, plain bread and butter sandwiches, macedoine of fruit, tea, and, of course, the trimmings such as olives, nuts and bonbons.

'Dear Marion:

I have been reading your page for a couple of months, and I notice that whereas it started with many items of interest to young people, it seems now to be reserved for married people and old fogies. However, I'm going to try to break in although I won't be 17 until two months from now.

My mother thinks I'm too young to go out with boys, but I sometimes slip out and go. When my boy friends asks me to go out and I tell him I can't, he asks me why I don't ask mother and maybe she would let me. He doesn't like to see me slip out. This is the part I want you to help me with. Should I take a chance and ask my mother if I can go at least twice a week? Do you think I'm too young to go out with boys? It makes me rather blue to see other girls my age going out with boys when I can't.

Yours truly, B.F.H.

I'm afraid, B.F.H., you may not like my answer. In the first place this page is not the meeting place of "old fogies." People who like to help out their neighbors by giving hints and recipes cannot possibly become "old fogies" although they might disapprove the actions of a girl of 17 who crawls out through a window to keep a date against her mother's wishes. I agree with your boy friends when he objects to your doing a sneaky thing. He will not only be more comfortable but he will have a higher opinion of you if you are straightforward and square and refuse to do underhand things. By all means, ask your mother; I hope she will allow you to go out at least once a week. Introduce the boy to your mother; that might make a difference.

"Dear Marion:

I am passing on an experience of mine with my children in the hope that it may help other mothers. Getting the children to come to dinner at the first call seemed to be the greatest bugbear, as they would just wait for a second and third call for every meal, until I resolved one day that they should answer the first or go without their dinner. First, I gave them fair warning which was, as usual, of no avail. Believe me, it hurt me as much as them not to give them their dinner that day, but I have been thankful ever since that I had the courage to uphold my decision. I only had to do that once, and there are now no more two and three calls at meal times. It is quite worth while, especially when there are several in a family.

I have received a great many helps from your pages, and I hope that this hint will help other mothers.

Yours sincerely,
MRS. F. R.

It is very nice of you, Mrs. F. R., to pass on this idea, which I am sure it will not do any family any harm to adopt. Don't you think a similar plan might be followed in other things, too, in order to get obedience?

Dear Marion:

Here's a little tip you may wish to pass on to your readers. I make very nice peanut butter spread at home by running salted peanuts through the food chopper twice, using the finest knife. My family like this better than the bought butter.

MRS. D. E.

This is a nice idea, Mrs. D. E., which will be appreciated by the neighbors. How does it compare as to cost?

MILLBROOK

The local branch of the Women's Institute followed its usual custom this year of having an exhibit of member's work at the fall fair; the space in the main building set apart by the director of the Agricultural Society for this purpose being well filled, and the display, apparently, larger and better than that of any previous season.

It was in 1905 that the Institute here made its initial move in this matter of a fall fair exhibit, the minutes of the meeting when this decision was arrived at, on April 29, 1905, containing the following motions:

"Moved by Mrs. J. D. Devell, seconded by Mrs. W. E. Russell: That the members make entries at the fall fair for layer cake, the first prize to be $2.00, and the second $1.00.

Moved in amendment by Mrs. (Dr.) Hassard, seconded by Mrs. (Dr.) McKinnon: That the first prize be $1.00, and the second 50 cents. Carried.

Moved by Miss Alice Vance, seconded by Miss Ella Grandy: That Mrs. Walter Gillott and Mrs. Hassard be a committee to wait on the officers of the Agricultural Society and ask if they would be satisfied for the ladies to make these entries. Carried."

Mrs. Walter Gillott, the vice-president of the Institute, presided at the meeting, which was attended by thirty-three members, and was held in the council chamber.

The annual W. I. exhibit has grown in proportions since the layer cakes alone made up the entire list of entries, and more recently there has been included fancy work, handmade rugs, quilts, white bread, gems, dark layer cake (from the recipe printed in the prize list), pumpkin and apple pies, butter, pickles, canned vegetables, and flowers.

The prizes in each case were 50 and 25 cents, except for the quilt, when the money was $1.00 and 50 cents, about $20.00 in all being expended in this way. Exhibitors in these classes must be members of the Millbrook Women's Institute and also of the Agricultural Society.

An annual grant to the school fairs is another commendable feature of Institute activities throughout the branches of the East Durham district.

Thus has interest been broadened, community welfare advanced, and a spirit of co-operation been more fully developed.

Why Do Men Eat Downtown?

This is one of a series of letters submitted in a competition. Others will be published daily, and the winner will be announced on Saturday. Marion will be glad to learn the men's opinions.

To-day I print the last of the contributions on "Why Do Men Eat Downtown?" It has been an interesting contest, even if the much-scared men didn't join in! They must have been afraid of the revelations.

The first prize goes to the writer of the article published on Tuesday, who signed herself "I, Dunno." She lives in Peterborough. Six other contributions were very good, and consolation awards have been sent to their writers who live at Bonarlaw, Warsaw, Madoc, Omemee, a Peterborough rural route, and in Peterboough city. I'm afaid that after all the effort to keep their identities secret these ladies will have a difficult time explain to their husbands where these prizes came from! All but two, that is, who are not married.

The prizes should arrive by Monday.

—MARION.

"In Whatnot you wonder why somer men seem to prefer going to a restauant for luncheon than going home. That is a poser. I do not think any can acually give a definie reason, nor could those dear men themselves.

There are probably sub-conscious drawings or pushings.

A laddie, working for us was at the Exhibition in Toronto, and since returning regaled us with descriptions of meals he got for fifty cents, and finally with one gotten at a Greek restaurant for thirty-five cents, which consisted of chicken, lots of it and gravy, potatoes, another vegetable, a plate of tomatoes in front of him, and it all disappeared, celery and some other stuff, and pudding, bread and butter which was on a plate so they could take all they wanted, tea or coffee or milk. I drew a line and said "see here youngster, if I were to give you a meal of the quality of materials, cooked as they must have been, served as they must have been to cost thirty-five cents, you would have talked all over the country about it. I, on the farm, could not use the quality and serve as I do, those things for thirty-five cents. I have heard no more of what he ate. He had previously complained of the service, at this very place. It was different, and he was hungry, therefore he was pleased.

No matter how good a cook one may be, and how well the table may be appointed there is a certain style to every woman, from which she cannot separate herself, and men, like the Athenians in Paul's time, seek after some new thing.

Restaurant table manners are frightfully bad, and perhaps Mr. Husband likes the laxity sometimes. He would not admit it.

Possibly his wife may not be well, and he wishes to spare her the extra work of preparing a meal.

Perhaps he likes to foregather with some cronies, and it is a very good chance, and he may not notice what he eats.

Possibly, wife may be in the habit of having luncheon late, or may often be away, or the children may be too noisy.

I do not know about the Kiwanis, but the Rotary Club has the regulation, they must meet at luncheon on some set day each week; they all have to eat, all cannot go home, it is a rush home any way, and it gives the wife a set day on which she may go out, or at least be free.

Quid Est?"

Men Are Queer Things.

"Dear Marion:

"Why do men eat up town' is only one question, as there are a great many questions why men do what they do. They are very queer things indeed. Man is a failure, was in the beginning and will remain so, I expect. Did you ever hear a man complain about his food in a public place; not very often. We all know that a man will notice how hard the meat is cooked; how thick the bread is cut and always takes the greatest of care to find some fault at meal time. While eating in a public place he would not take any notice of such things. Then when he complains it perhaps upsets the poor wife who has had a great many more things to attend to than preparing meals. Quarrles at meal time usually cause indigestion. If these dear husbands would just stop to think before they pass so many remarks his wife would be much more pleasant and he would enjoy his meals. I have seen men just feast at his own table, but is so hard-hearted he would not say the pie was good. Oh no, that would be strictly against his religion to give his wife a little praise. I hope, Marion, you will not think me so terrible but by experience I write. I have a good husband and a family of boys. They are all good, but at the same time I find men are as a rule very selfish in some ways.

Hope I don't hop into the W.P.B.

Yours truly,
Plane Jane."

MONTREAL DIVIDES GAMES ON HOME GROUND

ROYALS CRIMP WINGS' HOPES

Split Double Header at Montreal To Help Bisons.

SHOE STRING CATCH.

MONTREAL, Que. Sept. 21. —(Canadian Press).—The Royals put a crimp in the flag hopes of the Rochester Red Wings when they held them to a division of the double header yesterday afternoon, Southworth's men winning the first game 3-0 and the Royals taking the second 3-3.

Inasmuch as Buffalo beat the leafs to take a full game lead over the Wings, the Bisons are in a strong position in the flag race. If the games with Toronto, the Wings will have to win all four of theirs to cop the pennant. If the Bisons break even, Rochester must win three out of four. Should the herd lose both then Rochester can get in with a division of to-day and Sunday's double header with the Royals.

"Lefty" Irvin pitched the Wings to a shutout in the first contest, his third of seven scored by his club this season, but when he essayed to do the iron man act in the second frame the Royals blasted him from the mound in the first inning. Herman Bell and finally Mal Smith had to go in to stop the Royals, Roy Sherrid chalking up his 15th victory of the year.

A sensational shoe-string catch by Ninkey Haines featured in a day of agged fielding. The continued rains had played havoc with the playing field and the ground was slow and heavy. It rained at intervals through the two games and there is an even chance that showers may wash out some of the Red Wings precious contests in the next two days.

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—(Canadian Press.)—The Boston Braves and the Cincinnati Reds split a double header at Boston yesterday, the Braves taking the first game 5 to 3 and the visitors the second 3 to 2.

Hornsby's home run in the seventh inning of the first game was an important factor in the Braves victory and, although he repeated that accomplishment in the seventh inning of the second, the result was not as effective.

Cincinnati in yesterday's games established a major league record for double plays in a single season, making its 183rd double play in the first game and adding two to that total in the second.

The Robins put a serious crimp in the pennant hopes of the Cubs at Brooklyn when Dazzy Vance led the home team to a brilliant two to one victory over the invaders. Vance allowed just two singles and fanned eleven. He was opposed by Art Hehf.

The defeat dropped the Cubs to a point four games behind the leading Cardinals, and two to the rear of the second-place Giants. More important still, it added a defeat to the Cub record while the other two contenders were idle.

Pittsburgh won from the Philadelphia Nationals at Philadelphia six to five. Wright, Pittsburgh, and Leach and Whitney, Philadelphia, each hit a home run.

BISONS BEAT LEAFS 7 TO 3

Opening Game of Final Series Goes To Buffalo at Home.

TWO HOMERS.

BUFFALO, Sept. 22.—(Canadian Press)—The Buffalo Bisons took a firm grip on the top rung of the International League ladder here yesterday defeating the Toronto Leafs in the opening game of the final series of the year by a score of 7 to 3 while Rochester was dividing with Montreal. The pitching of Art. Mills and the hitting of George Fisher along with a miraculous allround defensive made victory comparatively easy for the Bisons, although the Leafs had three runs over the plate before an out was made in the game.

Mills, though allowing eleven hits was particularly clever in the pinches and his win s all the more remarkable because yesterday's contest completed a string of twenty-six innings he has hurled since last Sunday with only six runs picked from his delivery. Easterling and Sheedy hit home runs for the Leafs.

Our Boarding House . . . . . By Ahern

Inside Sportin' Dope—By a Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, we got a excellent chance of landing 1 anyway ball championship. Them Raybestos lads, by nosing out Niagara Falls here Wed., is right in the running, and the Silver Edges, as I call them, should come through and drag home the tinware. The Wed. game, Mac, was a wow, worth running the risk of getting ammonia for, and it had a regular Frank Merriwell finish, two, when the Nicholls lads demonstrated that next to a homer over the fence the quickest way to score a run is to bunch a coupla lusty clouts. Of course, the boys from the Big Roar went home still talking to themselves and telling everybody what would listen that Mister Ken Calling, the plate umps, was the best player the Rays had when he called Mister Harold Nicholls safe at the counting station in that exciting 10th. Anyway what Mister Calling thought went, and so Mister Bill Kay's proteges is, as I write this, 1 up and 1 to play, and they oughta to be able to repeat the trick. Mister Sailor Maudsley did a smart job of southpawing to hold the Cataracts tight, and he deserved to win the verdict. The Sailor was at his best when the going was hardest, and only onst did the Falls boys bust through his service enough to hurt. Mister Train, for them, was good, too, and altogether, Mac, it was a classy clash.

The same day, Mister Sporting Editor, the Bell Telephone team, Toronto champs, developed wire trouble at Belleville when Mister Walt. Gerow's Nationals, which, it would be well to remember, the Petes beat 4 times in 6 starts this season, upset the Telephone gang for the 2nd game of the serious and discontinued their service for the season. Local fans was glad to see Belleville come through, 1st because they got a lotta respect for Mister Gerow and his players, and 2nd because its always a treat to see the Toronto titleholders spilled on their necks. The fact that the Petes done the trick to the St. Georges last year and Belleville has repeated at the expense of this season's winners, shows that the sr. ball played down in this neck of the woods has something on the Queen City article. Mister "Hoot" Gibson give the Bells only 2 hits—a real performance. Belleville clash next with the Walkerville Chicks in the finals, and by way of helping the Central Ontario winners, I'm going to call the western talent to come through and grab the title. If this dope goes as wrong as my other guesses lately then Mister Gerow's athaletes will owe me a vote of thanks.

Rugby is at our doors, Mac. The Collegiate kids has begun the fall grind, and besides them it is hoped to have a city team that will get somewhere. She's a grand old game, Mister Sporting Editor, and we're all hoping that Peterborough is in for a good season.

I don't know of nothing more to talk about, Mac. By next week mebbe I'll be able to hand out my best to the new intermediate champs.

Anyway, here's hoping.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

P.S.—Speaking of fishing, Mac, henceforth anybody what wants to have a big fish mentioned in this col. has gotta leave the fish with me. I'm getting tired writing about other folks' dinners, and if they think their fish deserves publicity it's up to them.—A.W.C.

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—(Canadian Press). —The Philadelphia Athletics lost a notch in their chase for the American League pennant when they lost the second game of the series to the Tigers, 9 to 4. Two homers, one by Rice with the bases loaded in the fifth and one by Stone with two on in the eighth gave Detroit most of its runs. Elam Vangilder held the Athletics to sevent hits.

The Yankees gained a full game over the second place Athletics by defeating the White Sox here Tuesday by a score of 5 to 2 while the challenging Mackmen were being sunk in Detroit, 9 to 4. The champions now are out in front by two games.

Old Tom Zachary, St. Louis and Washington discard, not only pitched a superb game against young Grady Adkins, but also struck a noble blow in his own cause, a home run into the upper right field stand after Durecher had singled in the eighth. Lazzeri again started at second but had to give way in the seventh to Durocher.

Charley Ruffing, Boston Red Sox pitcher, won his own game from the St. Louis Browns, 5 to 3, by hitting a homer in the seventh with two men on. The Browns got three runs in the first on four hits and an error. After that Ruffing steadied down and held them scoreless.

The Washington Senators took a double header from Cleveland, winning both games 2 to 1 at Cleveland. In the first contest the Indians outhit the invaders. Underhill, a recruit, allowing eight hits while the Tribesmen gathered nine off Braxton.

In the second, Sam Jones held the Cleveland line-up which consisted almost entirely of rookies to four hits. Moore, a southern league recruit allowed the Nationals five safeties. Joe Judge was the batting star, collecting five hits in the two games.

FISCHER GIVES BEARS VICTORY

Inserts Home Run in Midst of Splendid Pitching.

SKEETERS LOSE.

NEWARK, N.J., Sept. 22.—(Canadian Press).—Lefty Fishcher was the whole show in the victory the Bears registered over the Jersey City Skeeters here yesterday afternoon. Lefty not only pitched great ball, but inserted a home run smash in the seventh with the bases loaded. At the time, the Bears were leading 2 to 1. Fischer is the fourth Bear to hit a homer this season with the bases populated. His error also enabled the visitors to score their only run.

The game was a pitcher's duel between Fischer and Bream and outside of the seventh both pitched good ball. Fischer had seven strikeouts. In the sixth with the the bases loaded, through a walk and two singles, he fanned Walsh and made Head hit to Conlan.

The Bears have won fifteen of the twenty-one games to date.

RACES FEATURE LINDSAY FAIR

Better Weather Aids Exhibition But Attendance Is Still Low.

OPENED BY PRICE.

(Examiner Correspondence)

LINDSAY, Sept. 22.—Improved weather conditions favored the directors of Lindsay Central Fair on the second day, but the attendance at Agricultural Park did not reach that of the same day last year. The directorate looks confidently to a bumper crowd on Saturday should the weatherman be on his good behavior.

The Fair was formally opened yesterday afternoon by Attorney General Price, who addressed the gathering from the platform in front of the grandstand. The features of the afternoon program were the musical rides and drills of the Royal Canadian Dragoons and the speeding events. The track was in poor condition following Thursday's heavy rainfall, but notwithstanding this handicap for the racers, the different events provided a good afternoon's sport. The results were as follows:

400,000 NEED HELP

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Sept. 21. —Four hundred thousand destitute persons need immediate assistance and most of them will require help for a considerable time in the opinion of the Red Cross organization here. GRANDMOTHERS ARE HONORED the accompanying bouquet was accorded to Mrs. Wesley Northcott. Beautiful bouquets were also presented to Miss Gow (who was the oldest lady present, having passed her 87th birthday), and to the press representative.

Mrs. Darling gracefully thanked all who had contributed to the afternoon's success, and assured the grandmothers of the pleasure it gave the Ladies' Aid to give this entertainment in their honor.

A social hour followed, the Ladies' Aid serving afternoon tea. More than fifty grandmothers were present and about the same number of others who had not yet attained to that honor.

Mrs. Thomas Hendren thanked the hostesses for this outward sign of inward affection on the part of the Regent Street ladies, and also Mr. Kemp for his beautifully worded address. It was a pleasant afternoon and there was great reason for thankfulness in the fact that none of the grandmothers had died in the past year, but all were going on with steadfast purpose.

A special meeting of the Ladies' Aid to which all the ladies of the congregation are urged to attend will be held on Friday, September 28th.

This is the second of these pleasant days arranged to honor those who have achieved the crowning joy of grandmotherhood, and the spirit of kindliness and hospitality added the last touch to an afternoon which will always remain a precious memory.

Takes New Position

The following extract from The Port Colborne citizen of September 13, refers to a former resident of Lakefield:

"Port Colborne is about to lose one of its best-known and most-respected citizens in Mr. Harold Nicholls, who is leaving on Monday to assume a new position with the General Calcine Corporation, whose plant is located about eight miles from Milton and fifteen miles from Hamilton.

"Mr. Nicholls had been employed by the Canada Cement Company for the past 17 years, and for three years prior to that was employed by the Lakefield Portland Cement Company, going with the Canada Cement when the two companies amalgamated. Thus Mr. Nicholls has had twenty years of experience in the cement business.

"Coming to Port Colborne from the Belleville plant in 1917, Mr. Nicholls has, for the past few years, been chief electrician of the plant here, and his resignation is accepted by the company with keen regret. He will assume the managership of the General Calcine Corporation on Monday. The corporation is capitalized at $300,000 and Mr. Nicholls will have a splendid opportunity to grow with the firm.

"While in Port Colborne, Mr. Nicholls has been actively connected with the Baptist Church, as a trustee and a valued member. Always to the fore in church activities, much of the achievement in the church could be traced to his unselfish service. For the past four year he has been president of the Won by One Bible Class and he has discharged the duties of his office in a manner which won him the lasting friendship of his fellows.

"The best wishes of goodwill of the citizens of Port Colborne and Humberstone will accompany Mr. Nicholls to his new and better position."

LARGE CROWD

er to pick the winner as the horses thundered past the stand. So close was the fourth heat of the free for all race that it was declared a dead heat between the first and second horses. The honors for the event could not be decided till the fifth and final round. The official judges were D. H. Morrison, John Quinn and J. L. McGowan. T. V. Anderson was the official time keeper.

The Races.

The free for all race was the first on the list and the only one to go the full five heats. Hal Pointer, owned by S. Craig, Smith's Falls, won first money when he stepped the mile in two minutes, ten and one-half seconds. In the five heats he finished 3rd. 3rd, 1st and 1st respectively. Fred Patch, owned by Fred Brown of Centreville, carried off the second money by running second, first, second, second, second, respectively. Billy Sunday, owned by B. J. Davy of Verona, took the third purse with a first, second, third, second and third. Alberta Hal, owned by J. McNaught of Tweed, finished fourth in the first heat and was withdrawn by his owner from the race.

The classified event seemed to be an open and shut affair. Peg O' My Heart, owned by R. Graham of Napanee, won three firsts and first money in the fast time of 2.12½. Leo Stewart, owned by P. J. O'Sullivan of Frankford, came in for second money with a third in the first heat and two seconds in the other two. Norma Direct, a Smith Falls horse owned by S. Craig, was third with a second in the first heat and two thirds in the last two. It was necessary to run only three heats.

The results of the 2.50 class race were very similar to those of the classified event. There were only three heats in this race, and Barney Kelly, owned by Cy Garrison, Frankford, took home the bacon with three firsts and the fast time of 2.14½ as his best for the afternoon. The second money remained in Tweed when Frank Rush's Dorothy H. finished second in the first and second heats and third in the final round. The third money went to Napanee to the stable of Charles Randall, whose Mr. Penalty drew down two-thirds in the first and second heats and a second in the last.

The track was very soft and at one time it was though that there could not possibly be any speed events. But the sun and wind in the morning did their part for the success of the afternoon, and although the track was heavy, the horses ran well, and in practically every case there was little room between them at the end of the heat. When the fourth heat of the free-for-all finished, the judges were forced to call it a dead heat between the second two horses to come under the wire. This brought a storm of protest from the grandstand, where some were sure that one horse had been ahead, while others were of the reverse opinion. Between speed events the attractions before the grandstand were practically all driving contests. One feature of the program was the absence of delays which are so often noticed at fall fairs. As soon as one event was finished the entries were at hand and ready to proceed with the next.

THE SAFEST WAY TO WASH SILK

The life of silk depends upon how it is washed, according to the Bureau of Home Economics of the Department of Agriculture. Wash silk garments in luke-warm water, never in hot. Do not rub hard or twist the fabric. Rinse thoroughly in water of the same temperature as that of washing and remove the water by squeezing and patting the silk between dry towels. Never dry silk in the sun. To keep pongee silk from spotting, iron it dry. Silk hose should never be ironed.— Popular Science Monthly.

An annual event in Calcutta is known as the Noah's Ark Race. The competitors on the last occasion were a goat, a horse and an elephant.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

"GOOD MORNING JUDGE," WITH REGINALD DENNY, AT THE CAPITOL IN AN EXCELLENT COMEDY.

Reginald Denny, popular comedy star, tops all his former successful performances in "Good Morning, Judge," the swiftest, moving and most entertaining picture of his career, which will be shown at the Capitol Theatre beginning Monday.

Denny, filmdom's best-known farceur, has a role that fits him perfectly. He is Freddie Grey, young and wealthy, who falls in love with the owner of a mission for reformed criminals. The star's ability at comedy was never better shown than in this film.

William A. Seiter, who has directed so many of Denny's pictures, wielded the megaphone on "Good Morning Judge." The Denny-Seiter combination has been responsible for such hits as 'Rolling Home,' 'Skinner's Dress Suit,' 'Take It From Me' and others. Their teaming is a certain indication of the success of a production.

Mary Nolan, the American girl who starred for three years in German films, plays opposite Denny. Miss Nilan's blonde beauty has already carried her a long way in filmdom and even now she has become one of the most sought-after actresses on the screen.

Dorothy Gulliver, a 1928 Baby Wampas star, and formerly of the "Collegians," also has a prominent role. Otis Harlan plays a comedy part while others in the stellar cast are William Davidson, William Worthington, Bull Montana, Sailor Sharkey and Charles Coleman.

"Good Morning, Judge," is from an original story by Harry O. Hoyt. The adaption was written by Earle Snell and the continuity by Beatrice Van.

The story concerns a young society blade, Freddie Grey, who is arrested in a brawl following a prize fight. He spends the night in jail, loses his wallet and has his fine paid the next day by a beautiful heiress whose hobby is reforming criminals. He conceals his identity and goes in for being reformed at her mission for homeless bums. She is singularly attracted by him, but her interest is complicated by a series of events which might seem to indicate he is far from reforming. To complicate matters further, his sister shows up as a friend of the beautiful mission worker and threatens to expose him How he evades exposure and gets the goods on a brace of real crooks who are robbing their benefactor, makes a picture filled with interest, romance and funny mix-ups.

AT THE REGENT.

RICHARD BARTHELMESS COMING HERE IN FILM ACHIEVEMENT THAT WON HIM SENSATIONAL TRIUMPH ON BROADWAY.

Patrons of the Regent Theatre will see an entirely new Richard Barthelmess next week in "The Patent Leather Kid.' This epic of the tank corps, produced by First National Pictures on an imposing scale introduces Barthelmess as a cynical, hard-boiled prize fighter—a characterization differing very radically from anything he has heretofore esssayed. The picture is fresh from a sensational engagement of several months at the Globe Theatre on Broadway.

Barthelmess long since gained the reputation of being the most versatile of the screen's younger stars with a remarkable list of screen delineations ranging from the philosophic Chinaman of "Broken Blossoms" to the swaggering gob in "Shore Leave."

In "Experience," the allegorical story of life and its temptations, he appeared as the symbol of "Youth"; in "Scarlet Days" he was the moustachioed Spaniard. The beachcomber of "The Idol Dancer," the country boy of "Tol'able David," the dreamer of "The Bright Shawl," the Cromwellian soldier of fortune in "The Fighting Blade," these are high lights of Richard Barthelmess' diversified career.

His career is dotted with just such examples of variety in characterizations—a daring achievement for an actor of the romantic type. The crippled and deformed young man of "The Enchanted Cottage," that beautifully imaginative story, and the Brummellian young Englishman of "The Amateur Gentleman," are two more instances of Barthelmess' amazing versatility.

Tough Fighter.

"The Patent Leather Kid" introduces Richard Barthelmess in a role far removed from any of the above mentioned parts. In the title role he plays a pugilist famed for his affectation of shiny black leather and the gloss of his black unruffled hair. His cocksure attitude towards life and people, his shortcomings in such things as patriotism, respect for the American flag, concern for other pepole's feelings, unselfishness, are the landmarks of his character. A tremendously difficult role to essay, but one which is acclaimed a milestone in histrionic annals.

"The Patent Leather Kid's" eventual discovery of his soul, his spiritual regeneration, forms the denouement of the story leading up to a climax said to bring the audience to their feet cheering.

Screen Sensation.

The production was made on a big scale and is an Alfred Santell production. The leading feminine role, that of Curly Calahan, the Golden Dancer is enacted by a sensational screen discovery in the person of Molly O'Day, a seventeen-year-old actress.

TINTED RADIATORS SAVE COAL BILLS

Latest Color Fashions in Home Decoration Conserve Heat Supply.

After remaining for years unchanged as an object of often garish and commonplace appearance, the radiator now is yielding to the artist's touch, along with other household furnishings. In finishing radiators when they are exposed to view, color combinations are being used to harmonize with the general decorative scheme.

If the proper colors and types of finishes are chosen, writes Berton Elliot in the October issue of Popular Science Monthly, it is now possible to save many dollars in your coal bill. That is because you can choose a type of finish that will cause practically no impairment in the radiation of heat as compared with other finishes, which may retard radiation as much as fifteen percent.

By refinishing radiators before the fire is started for the winter, the home owner can improve the appearance of his rooms with very little effort and at small cost. The essential idea is to make the radiators less conspicuous. This is accomplished by using colors that blend with the background. In certain cases, however, a necessary accent in a room can be obtained by a contrasting color.

When a wall of plain color constitutes the background, the color may be matched with flat wall paint. For radiators that stand in front of paneled woodwork in enamel finish, enamel of the same color can be used, and a touch of contrasting color applied to the ornamental embossing with a camel's-hair pencil brush. If the wall decoration is wall paper of a pronounced pattern or paint-stippled or Tiffany two-tone blended effects, the ideal treatment for the radiator is stippling

The first step is to make sure the radiators are thoroughly clean and free from grease and dust. If they are new and unpainted, or if the finish is in bad condition, apply a priming coat of red lead-in-oil and boiled linseed oil, or other rust inhibitive metal paint.

Give the radiator two solid covering coats of flat wall paint of the desired foundation color. The stippling then may be done by applying the color with a sponge cut across the grain to give a good painting surface.

The highest efficiency in radiation is obtained with flat paints and enamels. Gold, bronze and aluminum finishes are less efficient. That does not mean that the metallic finishes must be removed in order to allow the radiator to release the maximum amount of heat. If coated over with any good paint or enamel, the surface will not retard the heat and the efficiency will be increased. The improvement will be from nine to eighteen percent, according to comparative tests by William H. Severns, of the University of Illinois.

The new brushing lacquers also are of high efficiency. They are very nearly the equal of flat wall paint; and, like it, they will withstand the heat to which radiators are subjected.

After being decorated, the radiators should be warmed up slowly the first time they are used to give a chance for evaporative liquids to leave the paint film and to allow the finish to bake slowly on the surface.

girl a genius. Give her time. And even if you believe her to be one, don't, for heaven's sake, keep telling her. Once a child imagines she is better than others there is no holding her, and she neglects the hard work that must be done. Paderewski has said, "Genius is a gift for hard work."

RAKE-OFFS DENIED

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 21 (Canadian Press).—Officials of the Board of Pensions Commissioners expressed ignorance of any charges of "rake-offs" in connection with advancing claims for soldiers' pensions in Western Ontario. No report of any irregularities had reached the department and nothing whatever was known of such having taken place.

MUSIC NOTES

ARE YOU A MUSICIAN?

"A musician," says the dictionary, "is one skilled in the art of music." In the light of the above definition, and in answer to the above question, most people would probably reply in the words of the old negro when asked to change a twenty-dollar bill: "I thanks you for the compliment, suh, but ah can't do it."

A musician in the popular mind, is one who is skilled in the performance of music, and very few claim this distinction. This is a day of such spectacular specialism that the ordinary person is a bit apt to feel discouraged as to his ability, and to sit back and watch the stars, instead of hitching his wagon to one.

But this popular opinion is a very one-sided one. Many a person has a soul filled with the love of music, and an intense longing to express this feeling, but his vocal chords and fingers simply will not function as he desires. Is that any reason why he should be shut out from the enjoyment of that for which his soul craves?

Even if, as the old nursery rhyme says, "There is music in me, but you can't get it out," is that any real reason why I cannot become skilled in the art of music, in that branch of it to which the vast majority of people belong—the art of listening?

And listening is an art. Listening requires the use of a mind as well as the use of a pair of ears. A trained mind can hear many things that to an ordinary untrained mind are just as many "noises."

Would it then not be a fine thing if each music teacher would devote one-half of his time to the teaching of the art of listening and the appreciation of real music?

Many music-lovers would then be enabled to take advantage of the training they desire, but rarely can get, and the love and enjoyment of music would become much more general.

Begin Early.

Start early with the children. When you think your little girl is musical, get her a good teacher—the very best you can afford. Take the advice of a musician of standing. Don't run to anybody who puts out a shingle marked piano studio. Be sure; spend more time selecting the teacher than you do worrying afterward. Once you have selected the teacher, leave it to him as to future development. The less you interfere the better for the child.

It is not always the teacher's fault that the child is not improving. Very often it is the fault of the pupil, who has been too busy with school work and has hardly enough time to practice one hour a day. Oftentimes it is the fault of the parents, who are over-indulgent and over-tickled with the children's supposed genius.

Wait before you proclaim the little

For no other than the Chrysler-Plymouth gives for style the new chromium-plated slender-profile radiator, the new type fenders, the pleasing new arched-window silhouette. No other gives for comfort and elegance, such full-sized, roomy, luxuriously upholstered and finely fitted bodies.

No other gives for performance true high compression through the "Silver-Dome" high-compression engine using any fuel; and for safety, the surety and ease of light-action, internal-expanding hydraulic four-wheel brakes with squeakless moulded brake linings.

No other assures the sturdy dependability and long life with freedom from trouble which Chrysler Standardized Quality builds into each and every Chrysler.

And these are only a few of the features unique to Plymouth which are convincing thousands upon thousands that the Plymouth is the standard whereby to judge values in the lowest-priced fields—that anything less than the Plymouth gives is less than your dollar's worth.

BRITISH BUYERS VISIT CANADA

Two Men Make Tour of Country Seeking Goods For Home Market.

PLAN CAMPAIGN.

TORONTO, Sept. 22.—(Canadian Press).—Two Englishmen who have been on a unique visit to Canada have now set sail for the Old Country. They are Col. E. Watts Allen, C.B.E., chairman and managing director, and Thomas W. King, general manager and director, of the Civil Service Supply Association, one of the larger retail general stores in London. Colonel Allen and Mr. King came to Canada to seek out new lines of Canadian goods to place on the English market, and they state that they are very well pleased with the result of their enquiries. It is believed that this is the first visit of the kind ever made by business men from the Old Country.

"The publicity of the Empire Marketing Board," said Colonel Allen to the Canadian Press, "is helping to create in the Old Country a background in favor of buying from Canada and the other Dominions, rather than from foreign sources. I am confident that wherever price and quality are comparable, we shall be able to sell Canadian rather than foreign goods, and I shall be glad to hear from any Canadian exporters with whom I have not already been in touch and who have their eyes on the enormous Old Country market." Special sample hampers of Canadian assorted goods will be distributed to bring to the attention of the Old Country public Canadian lines hitherto unknown in England.

1928 CONVENTION TO BE EFFECTIVE

Members Unanimous On Main Highways, Says Good Roads Executive.

MONTREAL, September 22.—"The convention of the Canadian Good Roads Association at Regina next week is going to have a greater effect throughout Canada than any of our fourteen previous gatherings," stated J. A. Duchastel, a member of the Association's Executive Committee. "This opinion is based on the fact that the persons interested in this movement from coast to coast are now almost unanimous on the main questions affecting highways. Since our Association is a representative cross section of public opinion these unanimous findings assuredly will meet with favorable receptions from our legislators."

Mr. Duchastel pointed out that safety regulations, taxation of commercial vehicles, federal highway aid and grade crossing elimination were all matters upon which the leaders were in practical agreement.

"Long ago we realized that action won't come from merely passing resolutions and then forwarding these soluations to the authorities. Our Canadian Good Roads Association is nothing if not practical. We refer our conclusions to a Fact Finding Committee, on which committee experts of all transportation agencies serve. This committee gets right down to fundamentals. In turn, the data from this committee goes before an Interprovincial Conference each year. At this Interprovincial Conference, ministers and departmental heads are present in addition to our own representatives, so that we really follow through with public opinion to the highest courts in the land. General conclusions on the subjects I have mentioned are going through this process now, and their progress will be speeded up after our convention next week. The last step in our legislative halls."

In this connection Mr. Duchastel brought out a point vital to all motorists. In some provinces, for instances certain motoring accessories, mirrors for instance, are required by law. Mr. Duchastel asked if it would not be better to compel manufacturers to instal such accessories rather than put the onus on individual drivers. He admitted, however, that the onus of maintaining such accessories should rest with the drivers. Other matters in the same category were brakes on trailers and lights to indicate the width and length of passing vehicles.

He stated that such matters were now receiving consideration, but he was emphatic in adding that any regulations should be uniform throughout Canada.

Other officials of the Canadian Good Roads Association pointed out that no fewer than eight discussions on the engineering and scientific side of the highways question were billed for the convention. These questions would be treated by the experts from each Province and several of the States. Such a subject as the maintenance of highways under winter conditions is given prominence in this year's discussions, a matter of very great interest through out the Prairie Provinces. Engineering thought it also directed this year to the road problem in the west, where it is not yet feasible to do much more than build earth roads in a great many sections. No fewer than five discussions have a particular bearing on the road problem as presented by the prairies.

"Our program next week embraces all Canada," said Hon. Percy C. Black, Nova Scotia Minister of Highways, who is also President of the Association. " agree with Mr. Duchastel on his statement that we are now further on our way towards that may be termed an all-Canadian highway system than ever before By this, of course I don't mean any federally maintained system of roads, since they are under Provincial jurisdiction. Our present goal is uniformity in our road systems, that will give each Province an equal chance to profit by the advantages of improved highways."

Further Opportunity To Request Musical Numbers Given Citizens.

MANY IN ALREADY.

Indicative of the interest manifested in "All Peterborough Night," Station CKGW, Wednesday, September 26th, is a letter from a Peterborough citizen requesting a musical number:

"In regard to your request for citizens to send in our numbers for the broadcast on September 26th, we would like, if possible, to hear an old favorite, 'Land of Hope and Glory,' either played or sung.

"We are hoping for a fine night so city and country folks can get the program clearly.

"Wishing your undertaking the best of success, we are,

"Yours very sincerely,
"Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Panter,
"623 Chamberlain St."

It has been decided not to close the suggestion box until to-night, in order to secure a full expression of interest in musical numbers.

DOCKERS' STRIKE GROWING WORSE

Premier Bruce Makes Statement in Australian Parliament To-day

CANBERRA, Australia, Sept. 21.—(Canadian Press Cable Via Reuters.)—The strike of the waterside workers who refused to go to work last Wednesday, tying up shipping for the second time in two weeks, is getting worse hourly, Premier S. M. Bruce declared in the House of Representatives to-day.

The Transport Workers' Bill, introduced by the government, providing that all wharf employes must be registered, recieved the first reading, but the second reading was postponed owing to strong obstruction from Labor members.

to the entertainment. Everyone is cordially invited. This committee recommended various entertainments through the year in the nature of recitals, parties, and moving pictures.

Social, industrial, repairs and camp committees also met to plan their part in the season's program. The interest in the all-round program of each club increases every year. Every girl who wants good times, friends, opportunities for study and service is welcome to join one of the clubs.

Leaders' week-end camp conference will be held October 6, and it is hoped the Wohelo Club camp week-end will be arranged for October 13.

During afternoon tea two representatives of the Peterborough Y.W.C.A., Isabel Davidson and Viola Harvey gave interesting accounts of the ten days spent at Camperdown "Y" conference in July, with the theme, "Know Your Association."

A conference ceremony was a fitting closing to a day much enjoyed and a great value to the Y.W.C.A. in the coming year.

POLICE KEPT BUSY DURING FAIR WEEK

Three Robberies Reported at Lindsay—Midway Game Operator Arrested.

LINDSAY, Sept. 22.—(Special) — Lindsay police have been kept quite busy during the first two days of the fair looking up suspicious characters who are apparently working overtime. A residence on Sussex street was entered on Thursday night and a sum of money stolen; McBride's store in broad daylight five dollars was extracted from the till at the Elsmure Hotel; a purse snatcher was nabbed plying his vocation at the Fair grounds, and an operator on the midway, was arrested for running a gambling device.

Two Stories That Centre Around Lack Of Matches

The story of a city doctor's search for matches in a house where he was calling, told yesterday, recalls another about a man who had discarded matches for a cigarette lighter.

The doctor apparently ran out of matches to light his cigarettes, and wandered into the kitchen in search of a supply. He went to the most natural place for them, the kitchen stove's vicinity, but failed in his search. It was an electric stove.

The other incident occurred during a thunderstorm last week, when all lights on Charlotte Street and the avenues there were out. A resident made his way homeward in the dark morning hours, found his avenue all right, but couldn't locate his house in the darkness under the trees. He had no matches, and there wasn't a light within blocks. So, in desperation, he lit his cigarette lighter and used it as a torch to locate the domicile. The lighter was, appropriately enough, one of the new storm affairs resembling an old time torch.

DETROIT, Sept. 21.—A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the Nativity church when Aurora Marcotte, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Marcotte of this city, became the bride of Vincent Kennedy, formerly of Peterborough.

The marriage ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father Decker.

The bride, who was charmingly attired in white satin crepe trimmed with silk lace, with picture hat to match and carrying a bouquet of white roses, was assisted by her sister, Miss Cecelia Marcotte, who wore pink satin trimmed with silk tulle with picture hat to match and carried a bouquet of pink roses. Little Gloria Roberts, cousin of the bride, daintily dressed in pink satin trimmed with silk tulle, acted as flower girl.

The groom was ably assisted by his brother, Leonard Kennedy.

A sumptuous wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents, and was attended by near relatives. The young couple were recipients of many costly gifts.

After the wedding breakfast the happy couple left by motor for Chicago, Sault Ste. Marie and other points. Upon their return they will reside in Detroit.

RUNNETT—STOREY

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized in George Street United Church at 1.30 p.m. to-day, when Ila Agnes, daughter of Mrs. Ella Storey was united in marriage to James Robin, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Runnett.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. E. Todd, assisted by Rev. J. D. Paterson of All Saints' Church, in the presence of a large number of friends.

Mr. G. F. Liddle presided at the organ and played softly during the ceremony.

The bride was attired in a becoming rose beige georgette crepe gown with matching shoes and stockings and a black picture hat. She carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses and wore the gift of the bridegroom, an amber fox neckpiece.

Miss Betty Runnett, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid and wore a pretty dew-point crepe gown with picture hat. She carried Madam Butterfly roses and wore a cinnamon brown fox fur.

Mr. Gordon Evans acted as best man. The ushers were Mr. Charles Stanton and Mr. Connie Runnett.

The bridegroom's gift to the bridesmaid was a sterling silver compact and to the groomsman a Masonic emblem.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother, where the rooms were beautifully decorated in pink and white with huge baskets of white asters and pink gladiolus. The bride's table was done in pink and white with a silver basket of asters and gladiolus. A buffet luncheon was served to the intimate friends and relatives. Misses Thelma and Viola Freeman, Hilda Taylor, Lewis, girl friends of the bride, assisted in serving.

The happy couple left by motor for Toronto, from where they will take the boat trip to Cleveland, Toledo and points west. The bride travelled in a blue crepe dress trimmed with gold trimming and a blue coat, with moleskin collar and small blue and grey French hat, grey kid shoes and stockings.

The bride and bridegroom were the recipients of a number of beautiful gifts including a handsome bridge lamp and magazine rack from the Peterborough Milk Products, where the bride was formerly an office employee; also a beautiful silver tea service from the staff of the Canadian General Electric.

The out-of-town guests included the bride's sisters, Mrs. R. Montgomery and three children of Antliers, Que.; Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Shields of of Islington, Toronto, uncle of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. M. Coulter, Mr. Allen of Toronto.

RICHARD ELMHIRST.

KEENE, Sept. 22.—The funeral of the late Richard ("Dick") Elmhirst was held on Tuesday afternoon from his late residence near Lang. There were nearly 1,000 people present, and the large number of floral tributes testified to the esteem in which the late Mr. Elmhirst was held.

Mr. Elmhirst had been in poor health for some time, but his sudden death came as a distinct shock to the community.

He was especially well liked among his fellow race-horse owners, and several floral tributes were there from different associations, one being from the Port Hope district and one from Peterborough district.

BISHOPS DIFFER ON POPULATION PROBLEM

Campbellford Man Attempts Suicide

CHARLES OULTON CUTS THROAT WITH A RAZOR

Frustrated By Police, Lies in Serious Condition in St. Joseph's Hospital.

WAS DESPONDENT.

Saw Service in England and France With 59th Battalion.

(Examiner Staff Correspondence)

CAMPBELLFORD, September 24.—Employing the instrument of his trade, Charles Oulton, a Front street barber here, made an attempt to end his life by cutting his throat about eight o'clock Saturday night when there was no one in his shop, but while several players were engaged in the pool room. Due to the prompt action of the local police, Oulton did not immediately succeed in his plan, and is at present lying in St. Joseph's Hospital Peterborough in a serious condition as the result of his act. From stories told by those who were nearest at hand, it appears that Oulton who was not feeling well and was inclined to be despondent. Police and doctors who were present state that he had not been drinking since there was no trace of liquor on his breath. Rushed to Hospital in Peterborough, Oulton underwent an operation and the latest reports are that his chances of recovery are very good. He did not, apparently, succeed in severing a large artery but completely severed the windpipe. Oulton is an overseas man, having gone overseas from Canada with the 59th Canadian Infantry Battalion. He saw service in England and France. He is about thirty-three years of age.

As nearly as can be ascertained at the present time, Thomas Atkinson, Rear Street, had just been shaved. He had suspected that Oulton was not feeling well and had offered to shave himself if Oulton would give him a razor. But the barber assured him that he would be alright and proceeded with the operation. It was not a perfect shave and Atkinson had to finish the job at his home the next morning. He got out of the chair when he was, apparently, shaved and whispered to the second customer that there was something wrong. The second man followed Atkinson out of the shop without waiting for his turn in the chair. Atkinson is a customer of the Oulton barber shop of many years standing. He says, however, that he has not been in the habit of getting shaved there since the father, Thomas Oulton, has been unable to take an active interest in the business. The shave Saturday night was the second which Charles Oulton had given him.

Saw Incident

Clifford Wannamaker claims to be the man who first saw the incident and notified the police. According to his story as told to The Examiner he was looking for a friend and went into the barber shop and pool room and thinking the man he sought might be there. As he passed through the front shop to the pool room in rear, he noticed Oulton standing in front of a mirror apparently shaving himself. He paid no attention to him at the time, although he noticed a little blood on his neck. Even this did not arouse any suspicion on his part since he thought that Oulton had accidently cut himself slightly while shaving. The friend he sought not in the pool room, he said, so he returned to the street through the barber shop. There was blood on the barber's hands and shirt sleeves, and he was still standing before the glass. Oulton, he thought, did not notice him. Immediately Wannamaker rushed out to notify the police, finding constable Duncalfe standing on the corner of Front and Bridge treets in front of the Bank of Montreal there. Wannamaker did not return to the scene, but went to the show.

Knocked From Hand

In an interview given about midnight, Constable Duncalfe said that a young man had told him of the affair as he as standing on the corner. He did not know the youth's name but afterwards learned that it was Wannamaker. The boy ran up to him and said "Charlie Oulton is cutting his throat." As Duncalfe went up the street, a second boy stopped him and told him the same thing, adding a plea that the officer hurry. At this, Duncalfe broke into a run. When he arrived, he found Oulton still standing in front of the mirror and apparently cutting at his throat. With a swift blow to his razor arm, Duncalfe knocked the razor to the floor and seized him from behind, holding his arms well back. But even with this advantage, he was unable to keep Oulton from clawing at his throat and called on a second man, who had followed him up the street and who remain-

Lila Lee To Seek Separation

$15,000 DAMAGE DONE TO LOCKS

Loss Caused By Accident Will Be Much Higher Due To Tie-up.

GRAIN SHIPS DELAYED.

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 24 (Canadian Press).—The actual and visible damage to the Welland Canal Locks from the crashing of the steamer Doris into the head gates is estimated at $15,000, according to Col. Dubuc, Chief Engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals. This is only the first estimate, however. Divers are now at work examining the under-water damage, and the $15,000 will be increased when the complete survey is made. The damage is a claim against the steamer, but the greatest damage, which cannot be recovered, is the delay to shipping in the canal.

The loss to the boats tied up in the canal by the accident will run into thousands, with no basis of claim. The loss will have to be absorbed by the owners of the ships tied up, the Doris only being liable for the physical damage.

Full Tilt Into Gates

The Doris crashed full tilt into the headgates at one o'clock yesterday morning during a heavy rain and in a gale. The cable running through the hawser slipped and before the crew realized, the Norwegian vessel had rammed the gates, opening one and releasing the flood tide of water.

The avalanche of water swept away the two upper gates and one of the lower ones.

The vessel was caught in the torrent and thrown crosswise across the channel. When the vessel started to go back the anchor was dropped. It caught and yanked out the mitre sill of the gates. Canal official say that dropping of the anchor caused the worst part of the smash.

Sweeping along, the flood waters tore out a weir on the south side of the canal, swept over the north wall and carried away a small barn. Only the fact that it had opened to allow the vessel to enter, saved the bridge at the lock from destruction.

ORILLIA PASTOR RESIGNS CHARGE WHEN DEGREE SAID TO BE FAKE

Heated Controversy in Congregation Precedes His Leaving Church.

OTHER CHARGES.

Mr. Mason Still Occupies Manse While Seeking New Pulpit—Supply Preacher Acts.

(Special to The Examiner)

ORILLIA, Ont., Sept. 24—Having publicly answered charges disparaging the genuineness of his degree of Doctor of Divinity, Dennis Mason, resigned minister of Orillia Presbyterian church, still occupies the manse, but yesterday a supply minister occupied the pulpit.

Mr. Mason, who is now seeking another church, has been the centre of a warm congregational controversy in which not a few of his flock have rallied to his support against the allegations in which it was declared that he was not a supporter of Temperance, following his refusal to champion the Ontario Temperance Act at the last provincial election.

It was also alleged that he had secret leanings toward the Union, after he had conducted a series of lectures in the United Church. It was charged that under his ministry the church was retarded financially. And finally it was suggested that as an Englishman, he was unsuitable as a minister for the "Auld Kirk."

Two and a half years ago Dennis Mason as Rev. Dennis Mason, D.D., anwered a unanimous call to Orillia. He had not been called to a Canadian church before, but on a vacation which he had just completed at the time he had preached in several Presbyterian churches in Toronto on the invitation of the Moderator.

His Ministry at the time was at Reynoldsville, Penn., where his success in building up the local church had attracted the notice of a Presbyterian Minister from Toronto, who had recommended him to his fellow Canadians. Mr. Mason began his Orillia ministry in March 1926, stipulating as a condition of his acceptance that he be allowed leave of absence in a short time to visit relatives in the old country. In May he was given the leave after he had been in his new pulpit only two months. Everyone seemed satisfied with the work he had done and as a sign of appreciation of his services one of the elders of the church drove him and his family as far as Toronto. In a month or so he returned but noticed, he said, a strange atmosphere. "Then we began to realize that during the ministry of the brother who had taken my place while I was away something had been done or said to injure me. I could not think what it was."

One of the oldest members, a staunch supporter of Mr. Mason, ventured some information. "As far as we could find out an item in a Toronto paper was the beginning of the trouble. It seems that the paper contained an article about a college in the United States which had been granting fake Doctor of Divinity degrees. The college was in Iowa where Dr. Mason said he had obtained his degree. Some one then searched among his papers while he was away and found out that he had obtained his degree from the college mentioned in the article. Of course they concluded that his degree was a fake too, although when he returned he pointed out that the college had been a bona-fide institution when he was there."

CHIMNEYS MUST BE KEPT CLEAN

Chief Gimblett Will Enforce Penalty Clause of Fire By-law.

Fire Chief George Gimblett this morning called The Examiner's attention to the new fire by-law which provides a fine of $50.00 for the householder who is responsible for a fire through failure to have furnace and stove pipes in good repair and well cleaned. Since this is the time of year when furnaces will again be brought into use, if only for short spells, the Chief stated that the by-law will be strictly enforced. Co-operation with his department will avoid such trouble.

Only one alarm was received at the Fire Hall within the past couple of days, 408 Belmont Avenue calling for assistance at 3.19 on Saturday afternoon.

DEPARTMENT ORDERS INQUIRY INTO CRASH OF GODFREY PLANE

Board Will Sit When Four Aviators Return To Ottawa.

NO DIRECT WORD.

Tightening Up of Air Regulations Is Predicted By Deputy Minister.

OTTAWA, Sept. 24 (Canadian Press).—An official enquiry into the crashing in Peace River of the Fairchild plane carrying Squadron Commander E. A. Godfrey and three companions will be made. In making this announcement this morning, the Department of National Defence stated that the enquiry would probably open in Ottawa as soon as the airmen return to the Capital. The personnel of the board has not yet been selected.

No official word has been received from the fliers direct since their forced landing, owing to poor telegraphic communication. Flying Officer C. R. Slemon, who left on Friday to endeavor to locate the four airmen, is believed to be in the Peace River district, but no communication had been received from him at noon.

EDMONTON, Sept. 24.—(Canadian Press).—Major Earl Godfrey and his three companions, missing since last Saturday were located yesterday by General A. D. McCrae, M.P., for Vancouver, who found them in a trapper's cabin near Carcajou, about 100 miles down river from Peace River town while he was returning from Fort Vermillion on Saturday afternoon.

Their plane was forced down last Saturday but none was injured except Commander Lindsay Gordon who is suffering from a bruised lag. The machine is a total loss.

The plane was forced down by dense smoke and plunged into the river. The party was saved by the quick action of Gordon who opened the door of the plane's cabin. The four men swam from under and gained the plane's wings, which floated. They then swam some 100 feet to shore.

General McCrae found the party on Wednesday last. His party took wing —Commanders Gordon and Breadner on their chartered boat which by pre-arrangement was left at Battle River. The flyers will arrive at Peace River town tomorrow at noon by motor.

Godfrey and Sergt.-Major Graham were provisioned for a week and left behind to dismantle the engine of the plane.

Joy Riding Opposed

OTTAWA, Sept. 24 (Canadian Press).—Application of the Camp Borden rugby team for permission to fly to Ottawa on September 29 for their exhibition game with the Ottawa Senators has been turned down by the Department of National Defence.

Department is opposed to such innovations which were termed "joy-riding under guist of science flying."

Must Use Seaplanes

OTTAWA, Sept. 24 (Canadian Press).—Commercial flying companies carrying passengers over water routes may be required to use seaplanes if proposed changes in the air regulations are carried out, G. J. Desbarats, Deputy Minister of National Defence, stated to-day. The whole question will be gone into shortly and an order-in-council will probably be passed.

Cottager at Stoney Lake Finds Monkey in Woods

Fred Green made an unusual capture at Stoney Lake the other day when he rounded up a monkey that had been a waif in the woods for over a week. The little fellow was a pet owned by the family of Dr. Meyers of Toronto and disappeared from the latter's cottage shortly before the Meyers' family left for home a week ago. The monkey seemed to have had enough of his return to the primitive. He is being shipped to his owner.

RELATIVES FEAR FOR FISHERMEN GONE TEN DAYS

Two Collingwood Men Left On Short Trip On Sept. 14.

BAY VERY ROUGH.

Father and Son Had Little Food and No Blankets Or Other Coverings.

(Special to The Examiner.)

COLLINGWOOD, Ont. Sept. 24.—Slipping their 22 foot fishing launch from its mooring at the Collingwood harbor on the afternoon of Friday, Sept. 14th, Robert Bishop, aged 71 years, who has lived in Collingwood all his life and fished in the waters of the neighborhood for 50 years, accompanied by his son, Ernest Bishop, aged 28, set out on their daily fishing excursion into the waters of the Georgian Bay. They have not been seen or heard from since, and some fears are entertained for their safety. One hope is that they have reached Salt Harbor or the Christian Islands, 22 miles away. The islands are unapproachable at present, however, because of the high sea which would swamp any available tug that could set out to search for them. With only food enough to last them a few days, and no blankets or coverings, it is doubtful whether the elder Bishop could stand exposure to the weather.

Could Have Returned.

J. Von Kunits, Collingwood shipping man, beelieved that the Bishops are lost. He explained that last week they had one good day in which to come home if they had been in shelter, the day being calm.

At first the families of the men were not worried as they have been away for a few days at a time out their absence of over a week, with their food supply limited, has occasioned alaram. Mrs. Robert Bishop, who is over 70 years of age, and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Ernest Bishop, with the latter's five year old son, stand all day long eagerly searching the horizon and waters of the lake for some sign of the little craft.

Isaac Van Koughnet, experienced fisherman, does not believe, however, there is anything about which to worry He thinks the Bishops are waiting for good weather to take up their nets. The weather has been bad for fishing all week and to-day is no improvement. Van Koughnet hopes to leave in the morning for Parry Sound and says he will go to Bishop's fishing ground on Tiny Island, about twelve miles from Penetanguishene.

CHEMONG ROAD NEARLY READY

Cement Work Will Be Finished Next Week—Ditching To Be Compieted.

NOT OPEN THIS MONTH.

The paving contract of Wilford and Son on the Chemong road from the Fourth Concession of Smith to this city is almost completed and in a day or two it should be finished as far as the cement work is concerned. There will still be considerable ditching and "shouldering" to do. On Saturday the cement mixer was only a few hundred feet from the boundary and one days must elapse for the pave-one day must elapse for the pavement to harden permanently before it can be used by traffic.

Peterborough Youths See Finals Cheaply

Two ardent young Peterborough baseball fans, Doug. Hatton and S. Jones, solved the problem of seeing the final game in Niagara Falls on Saturday without undue expense. Leaving Peterborough just before supper on Friday evening, they started out to hike for the Falls, counting on the kindness of motorists to see them through. They were not disappointed, for a series of lifts carried them to Niagara Falls early Saturday morning. As a matter of fact, the "hitch-hikers" were within hearing of the great cataract before the Raybestos team, who broke their long trip by remaining overnight at Hamilton.

TWO MEN ROB CAFE OWNER

Enter Lindsay Chinese Restaurant Through Skylight Early Sunday.

GET $300 OR $400.

LINSDAY, Ont., Sept. 24 (Special to The Examiner).—A daring holdup was staged at the Dominion Cafe here early Sunday morning, when two thugs held up the Chinese proprietor and relieved him of three or four hundred dollars. Entrance was gained through a skylight on the roof. The proprietor was aroused from his slumbers by one of the thugs who held a revolver at his head, while the other thug gathered in the cash.

21ST BATTALION HOLDS RE-UNION

Annual Get Together of Veterans Will Be Held in Kingston.

The following enticing letter has been sent out by the Re-union Secretary to all ex-members of the 21st Battalion, who are invited to meet in Kingston next Saturday:

Dear Comrade,—It is with great pleasure we announce the Tenth Annual Re-Union, to which all ex-members of the Battalion are cordially invited to attend.

All roads lead to Kingston, so come early and stay late. Your old comrades will be glad to see you.

On your arrival proceed direct to the Armouries and register. When you come to the Armouries you will find delights beyond the power of printer's ink to describe.

At 8.00 p.m. the grand procession headed by the Pipe Band will leave the Armouries and proceed along familiar scenes to Kingston's new Hotel LaSalle where rich viands will tempt and satisfy your appetite, and oxen and lambs and fat fowl slain for your feasting, and rich syrups prepared by French chefs with pointed whiskers.

And there will be pleasures for every age and every desire; yes sir, from the young veteran who knoweth each breed of feathered fowl by the turn of its ankle, to the toothless veteran of many wars who taketh his joys in looking.

So spread the news far and wide, and make this Re-union the biggest and best yet.

If you attend this Re-union you will never miss another one, so don't forget the date. Write and let us know you are coming, also let us have the names of any comrades whom you think are likely to be overlooked by not being on our mailing list.

Yours in comradeship,
E. COCKBURN,
Re-union Secretary.

FINE COTTAGE IS DESTROYED

Harry Wolff's Summer Home at Chemong Burned To Ground.

CONTENTS ALSO BURN.

The cottage of Harry Wolff, Chemong Park, was burned to the ground this morning at about 10.30. The fire, it is thought, broke out in the chimney, and in a very few minutes the entire frame building was a mass of flames. Mr. Wolff and his family were occupying the cottage, and escaped with only what clothing they were wearing, all the furniture and furnishings being burnt. The cottage was the largest in the Park.

Only for the efforts of a large number of men from the surrounding district, several nearby cottages would have been burnt.

The piano playing record is held by Mlle. Qanotha. She played, from Mendelssohn, 5595 notes in 4 minutes 5 seconds.

The Field of the Cloth of Gold was the scene of an interview between Henry VIII of England and Francois I of France.

General Election For Next Spring

LONDON, September 24 (Canadian Press Cable). — Close observers of political conditions here generally express the certainty of a general election next spring. While no announcement of the date has yet been made by the Government, it is generally assumed in Conservative circles that Premier Baldwin will go to the country next May.

120 DIE IN THEATRE FIRE

Scenery Catches Fire in Crowded Madrid Playhause—Hundreds Hurt.

STAMPEDE FATAL.

MADRID, Sept. 24 (Canadian Press).—Approximately 120 persons were officially estimated to-day to have been trapped and perished in the Novedades Theatre when it caught fire during a crowded Sunday evening performance. The injured were estimated at more than 350. The exact figures have not been established because the dense smoke coming from smouldering ruins has prevented the authorities from learning how many bodies were yet to be extricated.

Most of the victims were not burned but were either suffocated or crushed during the stampede for the exits.

Bodies were being taken from some sections of the ruins this morning and soldiers with fixed bayonets kept back a large crowd of anguished persons who clamored for news of relatives and friends. The blaze started during a storm scene on the stage.

The theatre held 4,000 persons and it was crowded to capacity. Electrical sparks ignoted the ropes of part of the scenery and the flames spread rapidly to other parts of the stage setting.

Solutions Offered Differ

Bishop Lloyd Would Limit Further Entry of Non-British Settlers.

PROPOSES QUOTA LAW.

Bishop Gray Believes Newcomers Should Be Helped Attain Canadian Ideals.

(By R. C. Reade).

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 24.—This is a tale of two bishops. They both come from the West but they do not see the immigration problem in quite the same light.

Their difference, however, is not so much in their recognition of facts as in the conclusions they draw from the same set of facts. They both see the unassimilated lumps in the melting pot of the polyglot prairie.

Bishop Lloyd of Saskatchewan demands vigorously, even bitterly, that something be done about it. He is all for upsetting the melting pot and cooling it by a British solution and dilution. He would, by a strict quota system, limit the addition of any further subservient ingredients.

Bishop Gray, whose diocese of Edmonton is not merely the city but the middle section of Alberta, thinks that it is more important to extend the hand of fellowship to the non-British inside our door than to bolt it against those still outside. He has more faith than his brother of Saskatchewan that the West can evolve men as well as wheat, that out of a congeries of races Canadians ultimately will come. He admitted that the West is in parts a tower of babel, but saw no good in the stirring up of racial strife. Neither pogroms nor protests would solve the problem.

Wants British Blood.

These different reactions came out in the course of interviews with the two bishops at the Hamilton conclave of the House of Anglican Bishops. It took no prompting to induce Bishop Lloyd to take up the topic of immigration. He has diagnosed the alien as the cancer of Saskatchewan, and evidently feels it his solemn duty to declare the disease and suggest the cure. One felt that he was moved more by logic than by prejudice.

"Yes," said he "there is an alien menace and it is increasing. The other day we gave away the last of our good land to a colony of 7,000 Germans. The population of Saskatchewan is only 48 per cent. British. Unless something is done to stem the alien tide the British element will soon be submerged."

By British Bishop Lloyd meant British and not French Canadians and other Canadian citizens born in Canada of non-British parents. "Some people," he said, "minimize the gravity of the situation by saying that these people are Britishers. Of course they are legally Britishers, but that is beside the point."

Favors Helping Hand.

In the person of Bishop Gray Alberta was far more hospitable to the foreign born and the Canadian children of the foreign born than was Saskatchewan.

He favored the immigration of the young and was willing to give them a helping hand at starting.

Bishop Lloyd has not so much Western experience as his Edmonton confrere. His first contact with the West was when in 1885 he was attached as chaplain to the Queen's Own Rifles during the Riel Rebellion. In 1903 he again went West when he effected the salvage of the English settlement scheme, the Barr Colony. Since that time he has been in Saskatchewan in the interests of his Church.

Nicholls Hospital Notes

Written by the Board of Nicholls Hospital to explain the necessity for an addition to building and equipment.

The Nicholls Hospital has been for over 40 years practically self sustaining—it has been asked that should the Hospital be enlarged would it entail further grants from the city for maintenance purposes—It can be said that, at other points where development has taken place the ability to take care of those requiring hospital care has added to the clintele and has justified the program of development in a reasonable time.

GRANDMOTHERS' DAY IS OBSERVED AT HAVELOCK

Interesting Program Provided at Meeting of Belmont Women's Institute.

READING GIVEN.

HAVELOCK, Sept. 24 (Examiner Correspondence). — Grandmothers' Day was fittingly observed Thursday afternoon by the Belmont Women's Institute on the occasion of their regular monthly meeting held in the Belmont town hall, when there was a good attendance, the president, Mrs. A. Russell, presiding.

Each member was requested to exhibit some article belonging to their grandmother in answer to the roll call, and some very interesting exhibits were shown.

The main part of the program which had been appropriately arranged in keeping with the day was a reading given by Mrs. Joseph Seabrooks, entitled "Joys of later years," dealing with the things elderly people like to do beside rest. "In most places," she said, "grandmother and grandfather have never been better cared for or more lonely than they are in this age. The present generation has for its motto, "Youth."

"Let the young fellows try their wings. Encourage them with responsibility. Get new blood into the country. Push youth ahead. It is a useful thing for the country in general, only to make it work we must push aside grandma and grandpa. They must give up the farm management. They must drop out of the church choir. They must not driven a horse and buggy on the highways, over the road they cut through the woods and laid logs over the low places. They must either play bridge and dance, or do nothing. There is nothing else to do.

Of course there are many grandmas who fortunately for themselves have kept pace with the fast-changing world; but when I say grandma I mean a grandma who wears a white apron and can kindle a wood fire with chips and make sugar cookies; who wears a little shawl about her shoulders and speaks with a bit of accent; has hands that say they can do any mortal thing man or woman was every called upon to do; reads the Bible every morning and thinks a switch is the best cure for rude and saucy children.

She may be tired from many years of never getting really rested, still she loves to do many things. She likes a bit of a flower garden of her own, a few pet hens, the old loom that she has woven hundreds of yards on—she likes to do a little pick-up work on it yet. We imagine she would be glad to just do nothing, but she longs to keep going at things she has done for fifty years. She cannot stop now. Her mother's dishes, quilts and furniture are part of herself. It is hard to judge what she would like to do because our pleasures are so different. Do not try to make her enjoy our pleasures.

One thing grandma and grandpa always like to do is to visit someone whom they knew when they were young; someone with whom they can begin every sentence with :"Do ye mind?"

Whn grandma visits she likes to walk around the place and see the crops, and how the garden looks, and if the apple crop is going to be good, as these things have always been vitally important to her.

All old gentlemen like to attend celebrations, even if they have to rest all next day to make up for it. Then they meet other old friends, boys they played with and girls they loved. There are lots and lots of things grandma and grandpa like to do beside rest.

Mrs. Seabrooks also gave a very interesting outline of the history of this

CHEESEMAKERS' ASSOCIATION HOLD MEETING AT BELLEVILLE

Co-operation With Milk Producers Would Improve Quality of Product.

MANY ADDRESSES.

(Examiner Correspondence).

BELLEVILLE, Sept. 24.—Sidney Town Hall was the scene of an important meeting as far as the dairy industry is concerned, when over 200 assembled Friday night for a mass meeting of the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association. The presence of over twenty ladies lent color to the occasion. President W. E. Brennan was in the chair.

Prof. Suffelt of Kingston was the first speaker. He expressed pleasure at meeting the cheesemakers of Central Ontario. Looking back, he expressed the opinion that last season's work and progress was due to the individual effort of cheesemakers. "The maker is the strong and the weakling of the industry," he said. Until three years ago, the makers were a little distant. They were not given to talking over troubles or getting the co-operation of other makers. Now they were on the fair road to success. Nearly every maker has made the statement that this has been a difficult year to make cheese, notwithstanding the gain has been three or four per cent. Speaking of research work, the speaker said that difficulties had been located with one exception, the rancid flavor. Arrangements were being made with Queen's University for a special man to deal with the matter from the chemist's standpoint. Closing, he referred to the special course soon to be held for old experienced makers.

J. P. Griffin, manager Ontario Milk Producers' Association, referred to Dr. Ruddick, succeeding speaker, as the great follower of the cheese industry in this province, and also paid tribute to Mr Publow and Mr. McLaughlin, champion maker of Eastern Ontario. He was glad cheesemakers of Central Ontario had seen their way to get organized, and he assured them of the co-operation of the Ontario Milk and Cream Producers' Association. The increase in the quality of cheese was remarkable. He mentioned that the cheesemakers who would not comply with instructions was removed and that a similar work remained for the producer. While quality of milk has improved at the same time in every factory, there was one or two delinquents. That is where an association of patrons would shine. His ambition was for the cheesemakers to co-operate with the milk producers and try to get the patrons to organize. He referred to his association donating a cup for the cheesemakers in each of the three associations, Western, Eastern and Central Ontario having the highest score in firsts and specials. Personally, he was donating a shield for the association making the highest score. Dr. Ruddick declared that he had watched the development of the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association with great interest. It contained the germ of great possibilities. He noted a decided different spirit among the cheesemakers and the bulk of patrons, that will count in the end for real constructive work and advance of the industry. He advised careful progress with the recognition that there are two sides to every question. There will be more influence, he pointed out, if this is done. He referred to the new venture having the goodwill and support of the dairy branch at Ottawa. He further declared that the grabing scheme could never serve the country as it should unless it had the co-operation of all concerned. He said it was hoped to extend activities in research work at Ottawa when facilities are afforded. The whole question as to where flavor comes from is a single problem. Dr. Ruddick gave an interesting account next of the World's Dairy Congress recently held in London, where 42 countries were represented and 1,200 delegates were in attendance. In connection he made the significant remark that Canadian cheese stood higher to-day relatively than ever before, and gave his hearers an insight into cheesemaking methods.

James Clement of the Glasgow cheese buyers spoke next. James Irwin, Instructors Murray and Samuels, James Cook, Colvander Water R. McLaughlin and Mr. Ketcheson, veteran patron of 91 years, also addressed the gathering.

Selections by Sprague's orchestra and first-class refreshments added to the delights of the evening.

General Chang Is Unable To Locate But Eight Of His Twenty-Eight Wives

MUEKDEN Manchuria, Sept. 24—(Associated Press)—General Chang Tsung-Chang, the picturesque Chinese leader who rose from a coolie laborer in Harbin to Dictator of Shantung Province, can't locate but eight of his 28 wives and concubines and this is worrying him more than the reverses he suffered in battle last week.

A little more than 10 days ago, Chang bid a fond farewell to the female members of his household, buckled on his sword and started out for the battle front northeast of Tientsin to engage General Pai Chung-Hsi who held a mandate from the Nationalist high command to "clean-up" that portion of the Chihli-Shantung army commanded by Chang.

In the fierce fighting that followed, Chang met defeat, his troops surrendered and his wives scattered in every direction. He has succeeded in locating five concubines in Mukden, one Russian wife at Harbin and two more in Korea, but the whereabouts of the other 20 is what the defeated Dictator is frantically trying to find out.

Stream From Fire Hose Disperses Crowds Gathered Around Confessed Kidnapper

HONOLULU, T.H., Sept. 24.—(Canadian Press).—Firemen were called out to shower streams of cold water on crowds gathered around the Honolulu jail where Yutama Furunaca, 19, kidnapper and slayer of ten year old Sil Jamieson, son of a Honolulu banker, was incarcerated after the Japanese was arrested Saturday night and confessed.

The killer, who was traced to his room through a purchase he had made with one of the $4,000 in ransom bills paid to him by the boy's father, was undisturbed by the presence of the threatening crowd. He speaks faultless English and was graduated at the head of the class in high school here.

The crowd was dispersed by the play of water after local authorities had been unsuccessful in speeches outside the jail urging that the band disperse and let the orderly process of law prevail in the handling of the youthful Oriental.

The confessed slayer of the banker's son modeled his crime after that of William E. Hickman, killer of Marian Parker, daughter of a Los Angeles banker. Like Hickman, the Japanese went to the school the boy attended, obtained his release from class through a ruse and then carried him away to his death.

SHOWER HELD AT NORHAM

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Knight Honored By Friends at Social.

GOOD PROGRAM.

(Examiner Correspondence)

NORHAM, Sept. 24.—On Tuesday evening, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mitchell was the scene of a happy gathering when the friends of the church and community gathered to do honor to their daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Knight by means of a miscellaneous shower. The early part of the evening was spent in games and social intercourse.

Then the bride and groom were called to the seats of honor. Owing to the unavoidable absence of Rev. D. R. Clare, the pastor, Mrs. Clare gave a short address. She spoke of the value both Mr. and Mrs. Knight had been to the church, Mr. Knight as organist in the Y.P. League and Mrs. Knight, as Sunday school teacher, vice president of the Y.P. League and as member of the choir and expressed the hope that their services would now be increased because in unity is strength.

Mr. and Mrs. Knight were asked to accept the large collection of gifts, which were arrayed on a table, as a token of appreciation from the church and community.

Mr. and Mrs. Knight each responded in well chosen words and gave an invitation to all to visit them in their new home. Those present sang "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows."

THE WEATHER

The unwelcome approach of Jack Frost is drawing nearer, and this morning he made his presence felt in some of the lower-lying places. This morning the temperature was 34 degrees, the lowest we have had to date. About this late last year the same conditions prevailed. On Sept. 22nd we had 33 degrees; on the 23rd, 35 degrees; and on the 24th, 30 degrees. Fine, warmer weather then began again, and October was a particularly pleasant month. The leaves on the trees were in full color on October 6th, and most of the trees bare by the end of the month. The first snow on the ground appeared on November 9th. We should have six weeks yet of pleasant fall weather —perhaps as pleasant a season as any portion of the year.—W.P.

Dr. Leonhardt's internal treatment HEM-ROID banishes piles by removing the cause. Money refunded by McDermid & Jury, Bond's Drug Store and all good druggists if not satisfied.

ADVERTISING CANADA.

The suggestion in connection with the new Canadian Pacific Railway hotels to be built in London and Antwerp that these buildings should as far as possible be equipped with Canadian-made products will strike most Canadians as logical.

Obviously to have these great hotels equipped with Canadian-made heating and plumbing systems and furnished with Canadian furniture, rugs and carpets would be to establish two splendid demonstrations of Canadian efficiency and industrial development, and thus set up in Europe a permanent source of useful advertising for this country.

The Canadian Pacific Railway is a Canadian organization in which Canada has a huge investment and which in turn is materially benefitted by increased progress and growth in Canada.

The officials of the company would doubtless be quick to see the value from an advertising viewpoint of having their new hotels demonstrate to Europeans that Canada is not merely an agricultural country, an idea that seems to be general throughout the old world.

Carrying out this idea would do much to make the people of Europe realize the fact that Canada is rapidly coming to the fore as an industrial nation.

CONGRATULATIONS, RAYBESTOS.

The splendid record made by the Raybestos baseball club this season entitles the players and officers of that organization to the sincere congratulations of Peterborough sport-lovers and the community generally.

The Raybestos team throughout its campaign in the East Peterborough League and since then in the Ontario series has played smart, clever baseball, and its conduct whether on or off the diamond has been a splendid advertisement for Peterborough, already known as a leading baseball centre.

Few Peterborough teams have had such a consistently good record as the Raybestos players, whose supremacy has been asserted over every team encountered in the O.B.A.A. play-offs without a third game being necessary in any case.

The East Peterborough representatives have won away from home as easily as in their local engagements, being successful in Hastings, Napanee, Cobourg, Stouffville and Niagara Falls, and in all these games their playing has won the admiration even of hostile fans.

They have earned—and are getting—the plaudits of their home city.

Incidentally some of the good things should be reserved for the organization from which Raybestos emerged to capture Ontario honors—the East Peterborough League—which has done much to keep baseball alive in Peterborough.

THE ANNUAL TAG DAY.

The only request that that splendid organization, the Children's Aid Society, makes to the public for financial support each year is the annual tag day appeal, the response to which invariably has been substantial.

On Saturday the people of Peterborough will have their yearly opportunity to indicate their appreciation of the society's work and to do their bit in support of the organization's activities.

The Examiner calls general attention to the occasion, confident that it is only necessary to do so to ensure a liberal collection.

There is no necessity of dwelling at any length upon the society's work.

Everybody knows what is being done, everybody realizes the necessity for such work, and everybody is satisfied that it is being carried on efficiently and to good purpose.

Perhaps, however, it would not be amiss to emphasize the point that the care of neglected and dependent children, like almost every other enterprise, involves more and more expenditure as the years pass, not only because of the general advance in the cost of what must be provided, but because the work itself steadily expands.

If on this occasion, therefore, the response to the tag day appeal assumes record proportions the public can feel assured that every cent is needed.

CANADA'S MINERAL INDUSTRY GROWS.

Official statistics on Canada's mineral production for the half-year ending June 30, 1928, just released by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics at Ottawa, show a continuance of the prosperous conditions that prevailed throughout 1927. Records for 1927 set new high marks in the production of gold, copper, lead and zinc, coal, cement, lime and gypsum. During the half-year ending June 30, 1928, the value of metals and non-metals produced from Canadian ores at $105,631,571 surpassed the recorded output value for the first half of 1927 by nearly 7 million dollars.

Employment in the mining industry during the period ranged about 7 per cent. higher this year than last, and in metal mining and non-metal mining the improvement was in the neighborhood of 15 per cent. over the records for the first half of last year. Gold, copper, nickel, lead, silver and zinc were the principal metals, but in addition to these there were outputs of cadmium (reported for the first time), arsenic, bismuth, cobalt, iron ore, platinum, palladium and rhodium.

Coal was the chief product in the fuels and non-metallic mineral field. Other non-metals of importance besides petroleum and natural gas were asbestos, gypsum, salt, quartz, feldspar, magnesite, talc and soapstone. Many other minerals were produced in less amounts as, for example, actinolite, barytes, bituminous sands, diatomite, garnets, graphite, mica, mineral waters, natro alunite, phosphate, pyrites, sodium carbonate and sulphate, volcanic dust and silica brick.

CANADIAN MIGRATION INTO THE UNITED STATES.

Ramsay MacDonald's recent sojourn in Canada seems to have included the kind of observation not usually associated with sight-seeing. Speaking at Southampton on his return, he analyzed the elements of strength and weakness in Canada's recent development. Among the latter he gave first place to lack of sufficient "magnetic power" to keep her people from the strong pull exerted by the United States.

It thus took a visitor from across the sea to signalize a situation in Canada which seems to have attracted little attention on this side of the Atlantic. The available figures are startling. Before the war the movement of population was in the opposite direction. Between 1909 and 1913 about 125,000 immigrants from the United States annually established themselves in Canada. Those were the days when cheap land in the Western Provinces drew heavily from our own Western farms. During the same period the number of Canadians annually settling in the United States were about 27,000.

Beginning with the war years, Canadian immigration into this country mounted rapidly. In the last four years it has averaged about 95,000 annually, counting the excess of arrivals over departures. Entries from the United States, on the other hand, have dropped to less than 20,000 a year. In the year 1925-26 Canada would seem to have lost to the United States very nearly the total number of immigrants into Canada from every part of the world.—New York Times.

TRAFFIC SAFETY.

While there is much to be said for the system of "complaint cards" inaugurated by the Ontario Department of Highways in order to encourage safety on the highways, there is also some ground for the complaint of unnamed St. Thomas motorists who say that the privilege of reporting drivers to the department may be abused by those holding personal grudges.

Under this new system—which has the approval of Mr. W. H. Adams, managing secretary of the Essex County Automobile Club—cards are to be given to all who desire them. On these cards the receivers can make complaints against the operator of any motor vehicle who is seen driving in a manner that is considered a menace to the public safety. The protests are mailed to the registrar of motor vehicles at Toronto. The identity of the complainant remains a secret. The registrar may or may not check up on the charge, but it is fairly obvious that if he received complaints from several persons concerning one driver, he would do so. Action to revoke a motorist's permit might be taken should a number of complaint cards be sent in.

It is admitted, of course, that the plan is only in its experimental stages. Perhaps it will prove feasible, perhaps not. It is difficult to estimate the value of these ideas without a fair trial. Of one thing, however, we may be certain and it is that every possible means should be taken to cut down the number of highway accidents. For this reason, most motorists, we feel, will be glad to have the complaint card idea tried out. If it is found that people are taking unfair advantage of it—and such cases are possible of tracing—then there would be no difficulty in discontinuing the system. There is also the angle that the registrar would be likely to make a very complete investigation and to satisfy himself that personal prejudice was not a factor in complaints, before taking action to deprive any motorist of his right to drive. One must certainly assume that this would be the line of procedure. If it were not, quite innocent persons might find themselves seriously embarrassed because some hateful neighbor desired to "get even" in an underhanded way.

Many suggestions are being put forward for increasing highway safety. One of them, perhaps the most common, is for widening the main routes. This, however, is a tremendously expensive plan and it is not to be expected that it will be followed on any large scale within the next few years. Another obvious solution lies in the building of paralleling highways and then making each a one-way affair. This would help a great deal, but again there is presented the problem of staggering cost. There is a third suggestion—one often referred to in the columns of this paper—and that has to do with the provision of paths for pedestrians by the side of each highway. A very large proportion of all rural accidents are due to the lack of pedestrian facilities. Despite the fact that the practice is always dangerous, thousands of persons are walking on the highways. Some of them are moving from one farm to another. Some are going into town. Others are "hiking" for great distances. On busy highways, and even on the quieter ones, accident after accident is happening as a result of this practice. Sometimes a car runs directly into the pedestrian and kills or injures him and perhaps results in the machine eventually landing in the ditch and killing or injuring several other persons. In other cases—and this is common—the driver of a car swerves violently in order to avoid a pedestrian and crashes into another machine. A dozen lives might easily be snuffed out in a situation of this kind. Such an accident, of course, is most likely to happen at night. Every motorist has found himself in this situation. Other cars are coming in his direction. The lights are bright. His mind is occupied with trying to pierce the glare and making a safe passing. Suddenly a pedestrian in dark clothes looms up just in front of his right hand headlight. If he is going slowly, he can probably come to a stop. If the car is moving at a rapid rate, the alternative is a swerve to the left, and with this there is the danger of colliding with a machine coming from the other direction. Often, of course, the pedestrian steps from the road in time, but there is no guarantee that he will do this.

Through a series of educational advertisements, the Highways Department has endeavored to get the public, when using the highways for foot purposes, to walk toward traffic instead of away from it. This cuts down the danger considerably, but it is still surprising to note the number of persons who disregard the advice. Even if foot paths were constructed, perhaps, a certain number would still court death in the motor lanes a few feet away.

Other traffic menaces include the unlighted farm wagon and buggy and the bicycle in the same dangerous state. Laws have been passed in many places to compel the user of every moving vehicle to carry a light at night, but an astonishing number of persons have so far declined to take this simple and obvious precaution for their own safety.—Border Cities Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Congratulations to the Raybestos baseball club. Their playing this season has been a splendid advertisement for their home city.

Most of the fairs so far held in this district have had bad luck from the viewpoint of weather. But the optimism of their directors has not been dulled as a consequence, and they are planning for next year with confidence and enthusiasm.

There seems to be some argument as to whether Toronto jail is overcrowded. But if the jail is not too full most of those sent there evidently were.

AGAINST THE BY-LAW

To the Editor of The Examiner:

On Wednesday next we are asked to vote on a by-law granting to the Nicholls Hospital Board the sum of three hundred thousand dollars for the purpose of erecting an addition to the said hospital.

Now, Mr. Editor, it is not often that I oppose a by-law that I think is in the interest of the city; but it seems to me that we are going a little too fast for a city the size of Peterborough. Last fall and winter the Board of Education erected an addition to the Collegiate Institute costing three hundred thousand dollars or thereabouts, and I see that the city council is considering the purchase of the gas plant at a cost of three hundred thousand dollars. If they do that, then comes this $300,000 to the hospital. Putting those all together, well you may say we increase our debt by one million dollars.

Now the interest on that amount at five per cent. means $50,000 a year, not saying anything about the sinking fund. That, added to our already high taxes will make it, to say the least, burdensome. The hospital board admits that they have 90 beds at present and that St. Joseph's Hospital has 75' beds, that is 165 beds, which I think is sufficient to accommodate a city of 25,000. I may say that I have every respect for the members of the hospital board; they are well able to pay high taxes, but they must consider that there are others who are not so fortunate and many of the rank and file who are struggling to pay for a home of their own feel the burden of taxation very heavily. I therefore feel that the addition to the hospital asked for is not a real necessity and I therefore hope that the property owners of the city will vote against this by-law and protect themselves from this burden of taxation.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for space. I am, yours sincerely,

J. J. HARTLEY

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Que., September 24 (Canadian Press). — There was no improvement in the export trade in grain here on Saturday, which indicated that foreign buyers were not disposed to respond to the advance in prices asked. The domestic business was also quiet, but the tone of the market was firm.

A moderate amount of business was done in spring and winter wheat grades of flour, and values were firm.

An active trade was done in all lines of millfeed and the undertone to the market was steady. The trade in standard grades of rolled oats was also more active and prices were firm.

The demand for all grades of fresh and storage eggs continued good and values were unchanged. The receipts on Saturday were 836 cases.

The inquiry for butter was confined to small lots for domestic and country account. Values were steady. The receipts were 3,106 packages.

The cheese market was moderately active and the undertone was firm. The receipts were 9,971 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, September 24 (Canadian Press). — Wild lines of price fluctuations went hand in hand on Saturday with a big volume of trading in grain. Wheat scored a sudden fresh advance to 60c above Friday's lowest figures, but efforts to realize profits gave the market an upset toward the last. The outstanding new factor which boosted wheat values temporarily was heavy buying on the part of millers. Corn made a sheer drop of nearly 8 cents a bushel in the absence of any aggressive support.

Closing quotations on wheat were highly nervous at the same as Friday's finish to ¾c down, corn at 1¼ to 7¾c decline, oats varying from ¾c setback to ¾c advance, and provisions unchanged to 20c off.

At first, the wheat market displayed hesitancy, being affected by Liverpool quotations which failed to reflect fully the sharp upturns in price that had been scored on Friday on this side of the Atlantic. Soon, however, word went around that milling interests were buying on a large scale both here and at Minneapolis. Immediately, the market shot skyward, Chicago December delivery soaring until it had surpassed any previous level of prices reached since July 31 last.

Contributing impetus to the rapid ascent of the wheat market was news that 1,500,000 bushels of Canadian wheat has been bought overnight for shipment to the Orient. Besides, arrivals of wheat Minneapolis and Duluth were continuing to dwindle notwithstanding recent prediction of an increase at the end of this week. Receipts on Saturday at the two terminals named totalled only 1,164 cars, against 1,359 cars a week ago and 1,606 cars on the corresponding date last year. Many traders construed this circumstance as additional proof if needed that farmers were holding wheat back wholesale.

Sensational weakness which meanwhile had developed in the corn market, however, led to a rush of profit-taking sale in wheat as the day drew to an end. Reactions that ensued in wheat values were emphasized by persistent slackness of European demand for wheat from North America. Furthermore, country deliveries of wheat in Canada were again on record proportions.

Disclosure that the September delivery of corn was minus on Saturday the active backing of bull leaders served as a signal for miscellaneous selling that forced into operation a number of standing orders to close out various holdings and thus put a stop to losses. Ideal weather conditions and liberal receipts in Chicago, 202 cars on Saturday, were also a bearish influence. Frosts on Friday night and more expected last night were practically ignored as threatening no serious damage to the new corn crop at this stage of the season. Oats went higher early with wheat, but reacted.

Provisions averaged lower, responsive chiefly to the downward trend of the hog market.

A Thought

WOMAN

Woman is the oldest schoolmaster, mother of bodies, mother, also, of the cultivated mind—body and soul feeding on the mother's breast, which colors the mortal thought for fourscore years.

What a difference between the girl born and bred in a family of thinking, well-cultivated men and women, and one of a family with no education, no desire for it, no thought.

A vast estate, a great house, rich furniture, teachers of dancing, music, mathematics, language, painting, history, philosophy—I would give them all for one good refined, elevated, noble woman, to cradle her little immortals, not only in her bounteous lap, but also in her affluent mind.—Theodore Parker.

The Greatest Man in the World

TO those dear to you, you are the greatest man in the world . . . the wisest and the most far-sighted. They trust you to protect them from hardship and privation. And to the best of your ability you would do so.

Yet there may come a day when you will no longer be here to shield them . . . to provide for their needs. Will their faith in you then be justified?

You realize that their confidence challenges you to greater vigilance in their behalf. Have you made the provision for them that you know to be necessary? Is your Life Insurance sufficient to meet their needs? Do you realize that $5,000 invested at 6% yields an income of less than $6 per week?

For the sake of those who love and respect and trust you . . . those to whom you are the "greatest man in the world" . . . take pencil and paper, and figure how much you have done toward the building up of an estate. Then call in the representative of any Life Insurance Company and learn how little is the cost of adequate protection.

PATCHWORK USED FOR HATS

Colorful Models Shown in Ennis And Armstrong Store.

SMALL HATS LEAD

The "Patchwork" hats which make a picturesque addition to the stock of millinery for this season's use form some of the interesting models at the millinery store of Ennis and Armstrong, on George street. A very pretty model of this type has the entire crown composed of triangles of chenille, in shades of orange, brown and sand. They are stitched on closely with feather-stitching in silk that contrasts with the various pieces.

A lovely little "eyebrow" hat, with the severely cut-off line of the front accenting the eyebrows of its wearer, is developed in black velvet and trimmed on its upturned brim with wheels of black velvet, braided in gold thread.

Gold sequins ornament the side of a brocaded velvet in olive green, while little dressy hats of gold and silver sequins show an all-over design in the glistening materia'. Hackle feathers form the side trimming of a small blue velvet of the same brocaded stuff.

A green felt with small brim uses silver and gold thread in an embroidery design on its crown, while a stiff feather ornament of glycerined ostrich projects from the right side of a model of blue felt.

A "Ramona" hat is the name of the popular little model in velvet or felt which trims itself at the right side with a drooping pompom of ostrich feathers.

A band of hackle feathers circles the crown of a brocaded blue velvet hat that has a tiny front visor of blue satin.

In this store also is a large variety of lovely Japanese and Chinese things from the Hwaiking Mission schools. The stock includes linen pieces of the daintiest design and embroidered with careful taste, pierced silver and brass, china, cloissone and Benara ware, bone and ivory ornaments, handkerchiefs, bridge table novelties and brightly-colored coolie coats.

FUR SUIT

Beige sheared lamb is used like svelt fabric to fashion a youthful suit of plain skirt with inverted front pleat and a cute jacket with Ascot cravat of self-fur. A little toque of fur completes the ensemble.

INSECT-EATING PLANTS

LONDON, Sept. 17.—Kew Gardens now has a collection of insect-eating or carnivorous plants—mostly South African and Australian sundews (Drosera), and the North American "pitcher plants" (Sarracenia).

THE MIRROR OF THE MODE

By Mary Marshall.

A blouse of figured transparent velvet effectively combined with pleated crepe skirt. The blouse is in tones of blue, black and gray and the skirt is gray.

Never since the great Venetian and Genoese velvet makers of the fifteenth century wrought their magnificent figured fabrics shot with threads of gold and silver for the Borgias and the Medicis have velvets been more beautiful or more greatly favored than at present.

With all our scientific knowledge and mechanical devices we can make no more beautiful velvets than those made four or five hundred years ago, but there is this great difference: In those days it was the Borgias and the Medicis—the richest and most powerful families of Italy—who wore these gorgeous materials. Queens and princesses of France and England and other European countries paid enormous prices for lengths of velvet made by the great Italian weavers. Now almost any girl can afford a velvet frock. If she cannot have one made at the dressmaker's, she can buy one ready made at a comparatively small price, and if she cannot do this she can buy a few yards of figured velvet and make a frock herself which would once have been deemed suitable only for a princess or a duchess.

There are ways of combining velvet with other materials that should be known to the woman who makes her own clothes. A two-piece frock consisting of a velvet overblouse and a skirt of silk crepe is very useful in the autumn and winter wardrobe, and less expensive than the all-velvet gown. Moreover when chiffon velvet is used there is a decided advantage in not having the skirt made of the velvet, since velvet skirts do not wear so well as those of silk crepe. For the girl of college or high-school age a frock consisting of pleated satin crepe skirt and a matching velvet overblouse—plain or figured—is attractive and appropriate for afternoon wear.

The sketch shows one of these new velvet and silk crepe ensembles which might be copied effectively by any clever home dressmaker.

Ginevra was the young Italian bride who hid in a chest with a spring lock during the wedding festivities, and who was not found until her body had become a skeleton.

THE WHATNOT

A Place for Little Bits of Everything of Local Interest

By MARION

WHAT is it that most attracts the men of to-day to girls? Is it smartness, or the quality of knowing it all, or what? Homer Croy, novelist, apparently knows women. He has analysed, dissected and studied women in his job of writing books. His opinion, as quoted by an interviewer whose article reached Peterborough over the week end, is: "The modern girl has pep. She has speed. She is full of vim and vigor."

* * *

"You'll often hear a man say," declares Croy, "'She's a knockout,' or 'She's a wow,' but you rarely hear him say 'She has charm.' The girl to-day certainly has a kick, but no man wants kick all the time."

* * *

This dissector of women says the mannish type of girl has passed from the stage, giving place to the girl who has charm. And he defines charm as "the quality that leads you on—that fascinates and brings you back again. It is like a lovely winding lane that you want to come back and explore further."

* * *

If any excuse be needed for including this opinion in the Whatnot, it must be sought in the desire to keep Peterborough girls up to the minute in their ideas of attractiveness.

* * *

And isn't it important for us to know the opinion men like Croy have of us? Isn't it alarming that a man can write this about us: "Formerly girls didn't swipe a man's cigarettes, swear like a trooper, show their knees and a bit more. They didn't make a fetish of being a good sport and a good pal."

* * *

Croy is another of these pipe-smoking arm-chair critics with a stock of language. He thinks "Romance" the greatest play ever written because in it women wear the costumes of the early eighties. He makes the mistake of including that old wise-crack, "A woman's place is the home."

* * *

He shows his narrowness when he declares: "A man likes to think that the girl he is interested in looks up to him as being a great and powerful creature, but if the girl can make a monkey out of him intellectually, then he doesn't think so much of it."

* * *

If a girl can "make a monkey out of a man intellectually," in heaven's name why shouldn't she do it? It's the man's misfortune for not having more brains, isn't it? And just because a man has a small cranial capacity and a big ego is it any reason why a girl should stultify herself?

* * *

I surely thought the day of expecting girls to act like dumb-bells just to tickle men's vanity had passed away. I'd hate to think of Peterborough as being peopled by a race of toadying nincompoops such as this noted novelist paints as his ideals!

* * *

A short time ago I had the privilege of meeting a family of girls who are noted for their intellectual ability.... Few men, indeed, could match them in knowledge of their particular fields, and few could keep up with them in general discussion.

* * *

Just because man likes to be superior, should these girls sink their individuality, wipe out their desire to learn, and appeal to men by pretending that the men know more than they do? And does any man want it? Wouldn't it be mortifying for a man to find that, after all, the girl to whom he has been "talking down" for so long really knows more than he does?

* * *

I think so. I don't believe the right kind of man desires to be "kidded." I don't believe many men in Peterborough want association with empty-headed frivolity, or with astute but out of date, crinoline-clad femininity.

* * *

In my opinion, the girl of 1928 has just about the right idea of independence in thought and action, and if Croy would get out and meet her he could write a greater novel than has been.

* * *

The pointed slip for which I offered instructions a few weeks ago proved so popular that I have arranged for another diagram pattern of a slip, this time with opera top. The instructions for cutting and making this slip are printed on a large sheet, so please do not send an envelope, but only a stamp, so that I may use an envelope large enough to hold the sheet.

PEAR MARMALADE

"Dear Marion:

I enjoy your column and your suggestions. To-night I saw that you wanted a recipe for pear marmalade. I am enclosing one which I like very much, but I have to use late pears as it is hard to get figs until the end of October.

3 lbs. ripe pears
2 lbs. brown sugar
1 lb. whole figs.

Put all of the ingredients into kettle and boil 2½ hours or until quite thick. Put into sterilized jelly glasses and cover with paraffin wax.

I hope this will help the reader from Lakefield,

Mrs. S. H."

1 lb. candied sugar.

Slice the lemons very thin and soak in water over night then add the rest and boil 3-4 of an hour.

I hope this will be of use to the Lakefield lady.

Yours truly,

GENERAL DRAPER'S BRIDE

A wedding of wide interest took place recently in the little village of Leeds, Quebec, when General D. C. Draper, chief of the Toronto police force, took as his bride Miss Marjorie Hume, daughter of Dr. George Hume of Sherbrooke, Quebec. General Draper and his bride are seen in the picture as they appeared immediately following the wedding. The sister of the bride, Miss Phyllis Hume, is shown at the extreme left.

Can some neighbor help out with the recipes asked?

"Dear Marion:

I take great interest in your answer problems each night, so I'd like to ask you a couple of questions. I have been going with a fellow off and on for five years. He says he thinks the world of me, but we never get along. He doesn't seem to want to take me anywhere, just stay at my home, but he flirts and goes with other girls. But if he sees me with another fellow he gets jealous and I've had a quarrel with him about five weeks ago so I'm not speaking to him. I met a young man here a couple of days ago but he doesn't live in Peterborough. I've only been out with him twice and it just seems to me that I've met the right person. He has gone away now but he wants to write to me. It just seems in my heart that I love him. I am 21 years old and he is 20. Do you think I really love him or not although he is a near stranger to me, but if really care for him. I like the other fellow too, but he uses me mean in ways. What would you advise me to do, quit this other fellow for good? But it seems I'm thinking of the first sweetheart all the time, but yet I felt happy when I was out with this fellow, he seems to agree with what I say and do, but I haven't heard from him yet. I knew his address and I wrote him first. It just seems I wanted to hear from him. So please Marion would you kindly tell me what to do. Thank you very much, Dear Marion.

Puzzled."

When you are in love with a man enough to marry him, my dear "Puzzled," you will not need to write to anyone to find out. A short time ago I told another correspondent that if she couldn't get along with a man before marriage, the outlook for afterward was very poor. That goes for the first one you mention.

As for the second one, don't lower your esteem by throwing yourself at him. If he doesn't answer even when you open the correspondence, it is a very good sign he is not interested.

MOTHER LORE.

By Dorothy Gaines.

Mother Mine and Ted watched Sonia trip down the garden path and into the waiting roadster with curiously interesting expressions in their eyes.

Sonia in her wide blue hat and fluffy blue frock resembled a bit of the summer sky, and the stalwart, good-looking man at the wheel of the roadster couldn't help a gleam of triumph lighting his eyes as they skimmed from Sonia to the porch where his rival Ted watched with Mother Mine.

And because Ted loved Sonia's mother and because he felt that he would not be misunderstood he gave voice to the brooding thoughts that had been rumbling about in his mind for some time.

"Mother Mine," he said softly—he always called Sonia's mother by that dearest of all names since he had no mother of his own—"don't think me an awful cad for saying it—I don't think Sonia would be happy very long—if she marries Harry. I'm an awful duffer at expressing myself—especially when it comes to my love for Sonia, but somehow even my masculine intelligence tells me that Sonia has something big and fine about her that only you seem to bring to the surface. She adores you and all her great brain power and hidden ambitions seem to come out for you, then vanish—when she drifts about dancing and motoring with the crowd. What is your mother lore? I want to know—I want to learn the secret and to help Sonia to reach that big niche that I can't help feeling will bring her to ultimate happiness."

Mother Mine's eyes lit up with a great flame of love for Ted and the regret that had prevailed vanished before the big man at her side had ceased expressing his inmost thoughts.

She spoke with a warmth that filled Ted's heart with joy.

"You've voiced the very thoughts that have been troubling me of late, Teddy Boy. Sonia has been drifting idly on the sea of a good time and for getting that she has a great gift for writing. Harry is a fine chap but he will always be content to let Sonia drift and some day I know my daughter will regret throwing away her gift in the pursuit of mere pleasure. She does not realize it now—but she will later. She will come face to face with a regret for which nothing can ever compensate."

Ted looked wistfully up at Mother Mine.

"Is there any way you could impart some of that mother lore to my man's brain? Are there any little pointers you could give me so that I too could weave the spell of ambition about Sonia, so that when she's not with you I could perhaps keep her interested in her work? I'd work awfully hard, Mother Mine, to share that side of Sonia with you."

"Dear boy," said Sonia's mother, then smiled down at him. "I think if you were to think out plots for stories and insist on talking them up with her—helping her to work out stories and taking a genuine interest in their development—I believe Sonia would respond at once. You know, Teddy, most men, no matter how much they love a girl, are not really interested in any work she may be doing."

"I know it," said Ted. "We're a lot of cads when it comes to nourishing any little secret ambitions our womenfolks have. It's a darned shame," added Ted.

Mother Mine laughed as she had not laughed for days—days in which she had watched Sonia drifting from all that was lasting and worth while in life.

"Well—I'll tell you what to do, Ted. You just nose about for plots and ideas and then begin springing them on Sonia gradually—I know her well enough to feel that you will very soon supplant all other admirers. And once you've touched the great pulse of the inner woman and stirred the sleeping genius into activity I feel—in fact, I know, Teddy Boy, that you will at the same time kindle a fire not only in the brain but in the heart of Sonia."

"You're a darling, Mother Mine," said Ted and treated her to a large hug. "And you won't mind if I take Sonia into some of the byways of the city to show her the other side of life. It will stir her imagination and start her thinking more than all the jazz places in the world. It will give her atmosphere. Meantime I must read up the papers for some murder and mystery plots and get that fire kindled." He laughed boyishly. "I don't even feel jealous of Harry now, for somehow I think his goose is cooked. The little store of mother lore you have given me is going to send all Sonia's suitors scooting—all but me."

And there was no slightest doubt, within a year's time, that Sonia was almost as much of a slave to Ted as she was to her beloved mother and all other men seemed to be forgotten while the world and her ambitions held only two people. Her stories were positively bursting upon the editorial horizons and the public was beginning to shout for more.

And out on the veranda Ted and Mother Mine sat close together, while Sonia, up in her secluded nest of a den, polished off the finish of a great murder tale. In the eyes of Mother Mine there was no regret and in Ted's no jealousy. They smiled happily in their secret.

FUR TRIMMING

Flat furs are used this fall like fabrics. Blonde summer ermine makes a small back and front yoke, a little standing collar, cuffs and belt for a black transparent afternoon frock.

SLATE BLUE

The new color in tweeds is slate blue, a soft, becoming medium blue with a silver cast to it. Lynx, badger and other furs of soft, long hair are excellent with it as well as the short furs that are so much in vogue this season.

CURVED BANDS

The blouse of a tan afternoon ensemble is of egg-shell satin, with curved bands, of the crepe side of the material posed to give a cutaway effect and to fashion wide open sleeves.

WHY

this alarming prevalence of poor teeth

TEETH lead a lazy life these days—that's why poor teeth have become the rule rather than the exception! Practically every dish on our mealtime menu is soft—ready to be swallowed almost with one gulp. Consequently your teeth miss the valuable exercise which chewing gives them—the digestive juices of your stomach fail to receive the stimulation which thorough mastication gives.

More crisp food which must be chewed is what you need. And here is one delightfully crisp food which you will like to chew—that you may enjoy to the full its delicious nut-like flavor. This food is Grape-Nuts.

What's more, Grape-Nuts plays an important part in tooth building also. The health-giving, golden grains from which it is made—whole wheat and malted barley—are prepared by a special process. Because of this, Grape-Nuts retains valuable elements often lacking in modern foods—and it is very easy to digest. It supplies phosphorus for teeth and bones; dextrins, maltose and other carbohydrates for energy; iron for the blood; protein for muscle and body-building; and the essential vitamin-B.

Try this famous food to-morrow morning. You will enjoy it thoroughly. You will benefit by its nourishing qualities and its crispness.

XXXIV—THE OLD ENEMY

Sanderson took up his hat and looked round by force of habit for Sometimes; then he laughed apologetically.

"I forgot he was down in the country," he said to Nairn.

They went down the stairs together and out into the street.

"May as well go to Wheeler's," Sanderson said.

"No," Garry said sharply.

"Why not?" There was a note of surprise in Sanderson's voice.

"I was there this afternoon—had enough of it. Let's go somewhere else."

"Anywhere you like."

They turned into a small restaurant in Soho, and Sanderson ordered a couple of steaks and a double brandy.

"What'll you drink?" he asked.

"Nothing, thanks."

Sanderson's eyes grew ugly.

"Been saved?" he asked with a sneer. Garry kept his temper admirably, though his nerves were on edge.

"No, merely not thirsty."

"A happy state of mind unknown to me," Sanderson answered. He drank the brandy with an almost boyish air of bravado, but only played with his food when it was brought.

Both men were unusually silent, and the thoughts of both of them were far away.

Suddenly Sanderson said grimly:

"It's like a night in the condemned cell—eh?"

Garry Nairn nodded.

"Without the hope of a reprieve," Sanderson said again. He called to the waiter and ordered another brandy. Garry spoke then, with the irritation of racked nerves.

"For Heaven's sake leave the damned stuff alone!"

Sanderson flushed.

"Mind your own infernal business!" he retorted. When the brandy was brought he drank it off in a gulp. "That's the stuff to give the troops!" he said with forced levity. He thumped himself on the chest. "The Guards never retire!" he declaimed in a loud voice.

Garry pushed back his chair.

"Well, I'll be off," he said shortly.

Sanderson caught his arm.

"Nonsense! It's early yet. What the hell is there to do, anyway, except walk about the streets and think, think, till it drives a poor devil mad?"

A flicker of pity crossed the young man's face.

"Things might have been worse," he said almost gently. "We might have lost her."

"I have lost her," said Philip Sanderson. There was an eloquent silence, then Nairn asked, with apparent irrelevance:

"Do you know a man named Akers—Josh Akers, or some such name?"

He was watching Philip closely as he spoke, and his strained eyes were quick to notice the sudden change of expression and the dull blood that rose slowly to Sanderson's thin face.

"Know him?" he repeated. "Yes, I know him. Why do you ask?"

"I met him this afternoon in the smoking-room at Wheeler's Club."

Philip sat staring across the room, then he laughed shortly.

"So he's turned up again, has he?"

"I got into conversation with him by chance."

"Did he try and borrow anything off you? I hear he's broke again."

"No."

"Did he mention me?"

There was the chance. Garry Nairn caught his breath with a hard little sound and clenched his hands. He tried with all his might to say: "Yes, he did, and that's what I want to speak to you about." But the words stuck in his throat.

He could not, he simply could not bring himself to repeat the foul thing he had heard, or to speak Sally's name.

And Philip Sanderson asked again, with a sharp note of inquiry in his voice that struck a thousand additional sparks from the smouldering jealousy and suspicion in Nairn's heart:

"Did he mention me?"

Nairn shook his head; he could not trust himself to look up.

"No," he said stiffly.

Sanderson leaned back in his chair with a sharp sigh.

"The last time we met I pretty nearly killed him," he said with grim satisfaction.

Garry Nairn clenched his hands.

"If I meet him again I will kill him," Philip Sanderson said again.

It was all adding fuel to fire, all heaping certainty on to smouldering uncertainty.

It was twelve o'clock before they left the restaurant. Sanderson was quarrelsome and very much the worse for drink, and he obstinately refused to go back to his rooms, and insisted on returning with Garry to his hotel.

"And find out if that damned nursing home has rung up," he commanded.

But there had been no message. Sanderson laughed stupidly.

"Never thought there would be," he declared. "Nurses and doctors are a pack of old women—just delighted to put the wind up a fellow."

He dragged Nairn out into the street again.

"Take you to a place where we can get a drink," he said confidentially. "Rotten place, London! A man can't call his thirst his own now. Come along with me, my boy—I'll get you a drink."

He linked his arm in Garry's, and began to sing at the top of his voice:

"Kind friends, kind friends, do you think it right
That all the public houses should be closed at nine at night?
If I were a Member of Parliament I'd save the lives of men;
I'd close all the pubs at nine o'clock, and open 'em all at ten!"

Garry dragged his arm free.

"For Heaven's sake shut up! You'll have the police after you!"

Sanderson laughed loudly.

"Not for the first time," he boasted. "Well-known to the police, is Philip Sanderson. You ask the inspector at Vine Street what he knows of me and Sometimes! Dare say they've missed us lately—I've been such a good lad for the past month. Not even a drunk registered against me——" And he began to sing again, waving his long arms wildly in the air.

Garry stood still.

"If you're going to make a fool of yourself, I'm off," he said angrily.

Sanderson swept his broad-brimmed, ridiculous hat from his head in a mock bow.

"And my blessing go with you," he said piously.

Garry turned sharply and struck off across the road. He had never been so wretched in all his life. He felt that he hated the whole world; he could have strangled Philip Sanderson with pleasure; he was dangerously near hating even Sally as he turned the corner of the road, pursued by Sanderson's raucous defiant voice:

"If I were a Member of Parliament
I'd save the lives of men;
I'd close all the pubs at nine o'clock and open 'em all at ten."

* * *

In the morning Sanderson was at the hotel before nine o'clock, and found Garry Nairn shaving. He made no apology for his early appearance, and without greeting of any sort inquired after Sally.

"Has there been any news of her?"

"None."

"She must be all right, then."

"Yes."

Garry's voice was curt, and he went on with his shaving imperturbably. Sanderson watched him silently for a moment. Then he said in a hard voice:

"I suppose I made a hog of myself last night?"

Garry made no reply.

"Don't tell Sally," Philip said.

"Of course not."

Philip drew up a chair and sat down. He looked old and jaded in the morning light, and there was a bitter line round his mouth.

"It's a hell of a life," he said sententiously.

Garry wiped the lather from his chin.

"We can call at the nursing home any time after ten," he volunteered. "Have you had any breakfast?"

"Never eat it."

"You do down in the country."

"Oh, down in the country!" Philip echoed mirthlessly.

He closed his eyes and visualized the dew on the bowers in Sally's garden, and in imagination he seemed to hear Mrs. Kiff's heavy steps moving about the kitchen and passage, and the half-indignant, half-friendly bark of Sometimes as he limped awkwardly down the garden-path to greet the milk-boy from a neighboring farm or the postman who drove in from the village in the old-fashioned yellow trap.

They all seemed like pictures out of a sweet, almost forgotten past, and yet less than a week ago they had been the very real background of the only happiness he had ever known. He rose to his feet and began restlessly pacing the room. There was a small snapshot of Sally in a narrow folding frame on the table beside Garry's bed—an amateur snap of her lying in her chair in the cottage garden, with Mrs. Kiff, proud and smiling, standing beside her. Philip had not seen it before, and for some minutes he stood staring down at it from beneath his frowning brows.

Garry followed his gaze and flushed nervously.

"I took that," he volunteered awkwardly.

"Might enlarge well," Philip answered.

GRANDMOTHERS' DAY OBSERVED

district, dating back to 1885. In that number of years there is only one family living in the same house with the same name, namely Misses H. and A. Sexsmith.

A vocal duet, "When You and I Were Young, Maggie," by two of the grandmothers present, namely Mrs. Robert Anderson and Mrs. Thomas Clark was greatly enjoyed.

The business part of the program resulted in a decision to have a booth and also a sale of home-made cooking at the Belmont rural school fair, to be held in Havelock on September 26. Community singing of "Silver Threads Amongst the Gold," and "Juanita" was also heartily taken part in by all. The National Anthem brought the meeting to a close, after which a social half-hour was spent.

CHARLES OULTON CUTS THROAT

ed standing in the door, to assist him. Oulton seemed possessed with super-human strength he said. Arthur Loucks, druggist, from two doors south, was called in to summon a doctor. Doctor Johnston arrived at once and a few minutes later, Doctor Loucks was on the scene. Two men were not sufficient to hold Oulton while the doctor worked and a third man was called in from the street. The request was for a strong man. The man who responded was a big husky person who gave his name and address as from Havelock.

Removed to Hospital

Constable Duncafe stated that he smelled no liquor on the barber's breath. As soon as the doctors were finished administering treatment, and arrangements could be made, Oulton was removed to St. Joseph's hospital, Peterborough where an operation was performed at once and the patient left under police surveillance since the hospital authorities did not care to assume the responsibility in connection with the affair. Oulton was removed to Peterborough in the A. D. Bennett invalid coach and was accompanied by Chief Light, Dr. Johnston and Walter Lowe.

Interviewed upon his return from Peterborough, Dr. Johnston described the wound as very jagged. The windpipe had been completely severed but the large artery had not been cut. After the operation by Dr. Moir, Peterborough, Oulton's condition was described as a serious one, but with good chance of recovery. Dr. W. F. Loucks, had not seen the wound, since it was already bandaged by Dr. Johnston when he had arrived on the scene.

Chief Light said that the trip to Peterborough had been uneventful. Oulton had remained quiet all the way and was still under the anesthetic when he left after two o'clock in the morning to return to his home here after having made the necessary arrangements with the police in Peterborough.

At the time the act was committed, there were several young men engaged in games of pool in the pool room. They all tell the same story of having seen Oulton standing in front of the mirror with his hands at his throat and that they were bloody and some recall seeing blood on the floor and on his shirt sleeves and front. They all made hurried exits and did not remain in the vicinity only long enough to get out.

Oulton's barber shop is one of the oldest businesses of its kind in town. For a great many years it enjoyed prosperous times. The pool room in rear as an added source of revenue. Charles Oulton, who was in charge of the shop is a graduate of the Campbellford high school. During the war he went overseas with the 59th Canadian Infantry Battalion and served in France with the regiments which this unit reinforced. Since the war he has been almost regularly engaged as barber in his father's shop. And for the past several months, nas had full charge due to his father's failing health.

Obituary

PATRICK J. McAULEY

The death took place on Sunday, at his late residence, 324 King street, Peterborough, of Patrick J. McAuley, father of Rev. J. V. McAuley, Ennismore.

The funeral will take place Wednesday morning, at a quarter to nine, to St. Peter's Cathedral.

WILLIAM SCOTT.

The funeral of the late William Scott will be held on Tuesday afternoon, September 25, from the family residence, Lot 1, Concession 1, Smith.

Rev. William Allan, of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, will conduct the services at the house at 2.45 p.m. Interment will be in Little Lake Cemetery.

MRS. RICHARD TEDFORD.

WARSAW, Sept. 24.—A very large number of people attended the funeral of Mrs. Richard Tedford, which was held on Friday afternoon. She had an exceptionally large family connection, and was a woman respected and honored by the entire community. There were also great quantities of beautiful floral tokens.

The Rev. Mr. Philpot of Norwood, assisted by Mr. Roseborough, conducted the services. In his address, Mr. Philpot compared the life of Mrs. Tedford to the woman described by Solomon in the last chapter of Proverbs. Those who knew her best knew the picture to be a true one.

The pall-bearers were all neighbors, Messrs. James Greystock, Alex. Calder, John Kidd, William Forsythe, Fred Hamblin and Edward Carlow. Interment took place in Little Lake Cemetery.

She leaves to mourn three daughters, Mrs. McNeilly of Trent Bridge, Mrs. Clarence Watts and Mrs. Gordon Payne, both living near Warsaw. Three sons, Robert of Norwood, William of Lakefield, and Richard and Joseph on farms near Warsaw. One daughter, Mrs. Calvert, who lived in Peterborough, died a few years ago, and one son was accidentally killed many years ago. Mr. Tedford predeceased her about thirty years ago. She is also survived by two brothers, Joseph Trotter of Chandos and Sandy Trotter of Northern Ontario.

(Examiner Staff Correspondence.)

PETER SHAPTER.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 22.— The funeral of the late Peter Shapter was held yesterday afternoon at half past two from his late residence Centre street. Interment was in Mount Pleasant cemetery. The Rev. R. C. Tait, of St. John's United church, officiated at the services at the house and at the grave. Many floral designs marked the high respect in which the deceased was held by a wide circle of friends. The pallbearers were W. H. Ashton, James Massie, Benjamin Moore, J. D. Cumming, James Robinson and S. S. Chappell.

The late Peter Shapter was in his eighty-fifth year. He was born in Bude, Devonsire, England, in March, 1844, and came to Canada fifty-eight years ago. Coming directly to Campbellford, Mr. Shapter resided here continuously till the time of his death. Two years after his arrival here he married Elizabeth Palliser. He is survived by his widow and two children the Rev. Percy Shapter of Millington, Mich., and Ada, at home.

Twenty-six of Mr. Shapter's fifty-eight years here were spent in the employ of the Trent Valley Woolen Mills, now the Campbellford Cloth Company. His record there shows him to have been a most faithful and industriou employee. He was also one of Campbellford's earliest police officials.

Mr. Shapter was not a member of any fraternal order but was a life-long member of the Methodist, now United, church. He was well known as a devout churchman, a man of high character and a gentleman. His passing severs another link between the present and the early days, when his house, then a little log cabin, was one of the first to be erected in that vicinity. The present residence dates back almost forty-eight years, but is modern in every respect.

RAYBESTOS WIN O.B.A.A. HONORS

BRAKELINERS TAKE SECOND TILT OF INTERMEDIATE FINALS

Defeat Niagara Falls by Score 7 to 2 on Saturday Afternoon.

BATTERY GOOD

Falls Crew Did Not Put Up Same Opposition as in First Game.

Repeating their brilliant performances which have won the admiration of baseball fans on home and visiting fields, Raybestos defeated Niagara Falls on Saturday afternoon by the score of 7 to 2, bringing to an end the long O.B.A.A. Intermediate race, to the winner of which goes the Ontario championship. It is true that Copper Cliff, may yet have to be considered before the blue ribbons are given out, but at the present moment, the Raybestos Club is satisfied to call it a day and lock up the war clubs for the season. The record of the team is twenty wins and four losses. Every O.B.A.A. club was defeated in two straight games.

Niagara Falls did not offer the opposition expected. Neither infield nor outfield played up to the form displayed here when Raybestos won a ten inning battle. In the early stages of the game, the homesters played poorly, and when they did attempt rallies in the eight and ninth frames, Casey Masterson and every member of the team blocked the passage.

It was no one man victory. Wilf Rogers behind the bat was never better. The infielders handled everything, and the outfielders were on top of every ball sent into the garden. Masterson pitched with confidence throughout, and he twirled a great game. When it was all over, the Mayor of Niagara Falls was among the first to congratulate the team on their win.

A crowd of seven hundred saw the contest. Umpires Jackson and Fisher of Hamilton handled the game.

Rays Score Early.

Hillier waited and walked to start the Rays. Rogers sacrificed down third and Corrin singled to left to score Hillier. Dickson fumbled the ball, allowing Corrin to make second. Moore lined out down first and Scully fanned.

The Falls were retired in order by Scully, Hillier and Nicholls, each of whom took a ground ball.

In the second, H. Nicholls singled and went down to second when the firstbaseman let the catcher's throw get away. The pitcher fumbled O. Nicholls' grounder, and Barry was deadheaded, loading the sacks. Masterson singled between first and second. Nobody covered the bag, and H. Nicholls scored. The Falls were playing poorly. Hillier popped to the to short forced O. Nicholls at the plate.. Corrin popped to the shortstop.

The homesters were again retired in order, on a fly to Scully, a foul to Barry and a foul fly to H. Nicholls. The Rays infield were playing up to form.

Moore was safe in the third on another error by the firstbaseman. Scully forced him. Scully made second, the shortstop dropping the catcher's good peg. H. and O. Nicholls were thrown out by the secondbaseman.

Masterson struckout Crossman and walked Kamisky. Hudson grounded to H. Nicholls who in his hurry to start a double play, threw the ball over Scully. With Crossman on third and the crowd yelling for a counter Masterson struckout Steel and Dickson.

Barry beat out a hit to short in the fourth. Masterson popped to the catcher. Hillier and Rogers hit, the latter scoring Barry. Hillier and Rogers moved up to third and second, and both scored on a bad throw by Kamisky to third. The pitcher threw out Corrin.

Oscar Nicholls was all set for Whitney and took his high fly. Masterson threw out Stewart and proceeded to walk both G. Smith and R. Smith. Then he struckout Crossman.

Harold Nicholls was hit by the pitcher and Oscar Nicholls sacrificed. Barry got a nice one through the infield to score H. Nicholls. The runners advanced on the catcher's poor throw to first to get Barry away from the bag. Masterson lined to first. Crossman holding the runner at third. Hillier singled through third to score O. Nicholls. That finished Hudson, and Climenhague relieved. With Rogers up, Hillier was thrown out at second.

Kaminsky lined out to Barry. Hillier jumped high to spear the pitcher's drive, and the Rays' shortstop also threw out Burns who had replaced Steel in centerfield.

Climenhague got away to a good start. He struckout Rogers, and the shortstop looked good on his fielding and pegs off sharp grounders from Corrin and Moore.

Dickson was thrown out by Hillier and Whitney fouled to H. Nicholls. Stewart singled into right for the Falls first hit, and went down to second as Corrin fumbled the ball. Heximere who had replaced G. Smith in right field fanned.

In the seventh Scully beat out a hit down third. H. Nicholls struckout. O. Nicholls sent out a fly to centre which Burns dropped, but he got the ball to second to stop Scully. Barry grounded out to first.

R. Smith walked. Crossman fanned for the third time, Kaminsky forced Smith at second and Climenhague flew out to O. Nicholls.

Hillier fanned in the eighth, Rogers popped to the catcher, and Corrin grounded out.

Scully threw out Burns. Dickson singled over the infield into centre. Moore doing some hustling to hold the runner at first. Whitney drove a hard one at the box, which Masterson knocked down, throwing to second where the runner got the benefit of a close play. Stewart singled over the infield into centre to score Dickson, and the Falls rooters came to life. Heximere hit into to left, to score Whitney, O. Nicholls getting the ball in fast but too late to stop the run. The crowd broke loose, and Maudsley was in readiness to go to the rescue. But the storm blew over as Barry grabbed R. Smith's fly and H. Nicholls threw out Crossman.

Moore grounded down third and beat the play on him. Scully's long fly appeared to be headed for a home run over the right field fence but the ball came down inside and Burns copped it to double Moore at first. H. Nicholls grounded out.

The crowd broke forth once more when Kaminsky started the last of the ninth with a single through second. Climenhague hit into a double play, Hillier to Scully to Barry. That play took the pep out of the Falls. But there was more excitement when Burns and Dickson walked. Moore, however, made it safe for the Rays by taking Whitney's long fly.

Rochester International League Champions

VIEWS ON SPORT

Little World's baseball championship series will open in Rochester beginning on Wednesday.

Indianapolis won the American Association championship for 1928 by defeating Toledo 1-0 in the first game of a doubleheader yesterday. It was the first pennant won by an Indianapolis club since 1917. The victors will play Rochester in a series for the little world's championship beginning on Wednesday. The series will open at Rochester and will be decided by victory in five games in a possible nine. Rochester will have the first half of the fight on Wednesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday with Friday open for the play-off of a possible postponment or tie. The second half will then shift to Indianapolis for any remaining games necessary to decide the inter-city championship.'

Well, Peterborough has got an O.B.A.A. championship at last. After losing out by close shaves in the junior and bantam series all honors came to the Lift Lock city on Saturday when the Raybestos won the intermediate championship by defeating Niagara Falls in the second game of the finals by a 7-2 score. The record of the team is twenty wins and four losses for the season. Every O.B.A.A. club was defeated in two straight games.

* * * * * * *

The Falls did not offer the same opposition that they displayed here, the infield and outfield playing far below their usual form while the locals played with all the confidence in the world at their back. The battery composed of Masterson and Rogers did great work for the Industrials.

* * * * * * *

Rochester won its first International League pennant since 1911 by defeating the Royals in a double bill yesterday.

Ottawa Emmetts are favorites to win the Canadian lacrosse championship by reason of their 8-3 victory over the Winnipeg Wellingtons on Saturday. The victors now hold a distinct advantage over the western Canada finalists and should have no trouble in capturing the Mann Cup.

* * * * * * *

Much credit is due Art. Primeau, manager of the Rays for their victory on Saturday. He managed the C.G.E. team for two years when they won the honors back in 1924-25 and again this year he guided the local Industrials through the stormy season here in the East Peterborough league to win the O.B.A.A. honors for 1928.

LITTLE WORLD SERIES TO OPEN ON WEDNESDAY

Red Wings and Indianapolis Will Clash for Baseball Honors.

OPEN AT ROCHESTER

Series Decided by Victory in Five Games in Possible Nine.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—(Canadian Press.)—The "little world series" between pennant winners in the International League and American Association will open in Rochester on Wednesday with Indianapolis opposing the Red Wings. Arrangement of details of the series was delayed because of the close fights in both leagues for the championship. Neither the Red Wings nor the Indians became certain of winning until yesterday.

The series is decided by victory in five games in a possible nine. Rochester will witness the first half of the fight on Wednesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday, September 26, 27, 29 and 30, with Friday left open for the play-off of a possible postponement or tie

The scene then will shift to Indianapolis for any remaining games to decide the inter-league championship. The opening in the American Association city is dependent on weather conditions at the time, but will be either Tuesday or Wednesday, October 2 or 3 The chances are that Indianapolis will have the same schedule as Rochester, one week later—games on Wednesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday, with Friday left open.

The series ends, of course, as soon as any team wins five games.

Rochester's victory in the pennant race was due to having played four games fewer than Buffalo, which defeated Toronto yesterday in its closing game. Four Red Wing-Baltimore games in August were washed permanently from the schedule by rain and Southworth's men finished with fewer victories, two fewer defeats than the Bisons. That left the teams virtually tied in the matter of games, but Rochester took the championship on percentage as follows:

	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Rochester	90	74	.549
Buffalo	92	76	.548

The percentage of the Rochester team is the lowest by which any team in organized baseball ever won a championship.

Rochester's last previous pennant was won seventeen years ago when John Ganzel led the team, then called "the hustlers" to a third straight flag. William H. Southworth, the former Giant and Cardinal, drove this year's team to the top after a serious mid-season slump due to ten simultaneous injuries to valuable men, including himself.

WALKERVILLE BOYS DEFEAT TIMMINS

Western Team Wins the First Game of Junior Finals.

TORONTO, September 24. — Walkerville Chicklets won the first game of the Ontario junior baseball finals at Viaduct Park on Saturday when they trimmed Timmins by 13 to 4. "Red" Oliver turned in a fine game for the Chicklets, holding Timmins to four hits and striking out thirteen batters. Godin twirling for Timmins, was found for nine hits, and these, coupled with eight bases on balls, put the game on ice for the western juniors.

Morley, Murtagh, and Oliver, with two hits each, carried the attack for Walkerville, while Godin and Donovan divided Timmins' four hits between them.

Stewart and Giallonard looked the best in the field, with many snappy plays. The second game of this series will be played at Viaduct Park today at 3.30 p.m., and Walkerville are figuring on making it two straight to cinch the championship.

Kozelub Is New Tennis Champion

NEW YORK, N.Y., Sept. 24 (Canadian Press).—Karel Koseluh, of Czechslovakia, professional tennis champion of Europe, won the world title yesterday by defeating Vincent Richards, American pro. king, for the third straight time. The scores were 6—4, 6—4, 4—6, 6—3. About 3,000 saw the contest.

The title went to Koseluh when yesterday's victory, coupled with two straight conquests on European courts, gave him three wins and precluded any chance of Richard's winning the five game series.

KEEP PACE WITH CARDS

National League Leaders In Pennant Race Win Saturday Games.

REDS SET NEW RECORD

NEW YORK, N.Y., Sept. 24 (Canadian Press).—Joe Genewich shaded Adolfo Luque in a hectic fourteen inning pitchers' battle, and the Giants kept pace with the league-leading Cardinals by defeating the Cincinnati Reds 2 to 1 here yesterday. The Giants are still a game behind the St. Louis team as the leaders defeated Brooklyn 7 to 1.

Fred Lindstrom started off the fourteenth with a single to right. Terry followed with a hit off Luque's glove and Critz picked up, threw wildly past Pipp in an attempt to catch the Giant first baseman, while Lindstrom scampered to third. Travis Jackson then ended the game with a single over short, sending Lindstrom across the plate with the winning run.

Genewich held the Reds to one scratch hit in the first six hits, Allen beating out an infield hit to Jackson in the fourth. Adolfo Luque was superb in the pinches after the second inning until he met disaster in the fatal fourteenth.

The Reds completed their 186th double play in the fifth inning, thereby adding to their major league record already established.

Joe Genewich, former Boston Brave, held the Reds to five hits and would have won by 1 to 0 in the regulation distance but for Joe Strip's home run in the seventh. Frank Hogan drove in the first Giant run in the second with a double, but Luque was invincible in the pinches from that point to the fourteenth when the game was ended by singles from the bats of Lindstrom, Terry and Jackson, coupled with Critz's low throw.

At Brooklyn, the Cards held their one game lead with no great effort, as Jess Haines pitched the St. Louis club to an easy victory over the Robins. The score was 7 to 1.

Next to Haines, who limited the Brooklyn band to three hits, Sunny Jim Bottomley was the Cardinal hero here yesterday afternoon. That rangy first baseman put the skids under Jess Petty with his thirtieth home run of the season in the third inning, with two of his mates on the bases. The wallop incidentally put Bottomley in a tie with Hack Wilson for the league leadership in home runs.

Only two games were scheduled yesterday.

BELLEVILLE LOSES FIRST OF FINALS

Are Outplayed in Every Position By Walkerville Chicks.

WINDSOR, September 24. — Outplaying Belleville in every department, Walkerville Chicks took the first game of the Ontario senior baseball finals by 15 to 4.

Utronki, who started on the mound for Belleville, went fairly well until the fifth inning, when Edwards, first up for Walkerville, hit the first ball pitched for a home run. The score was knotted at three runs each until he hit the ball for four bases. This was the beginning of the end for Utronki, for he hit Girard, the next batter up, with a pitched ball. Gatecliffe followed with a triple to left after Girard had taken second on a passed ball. This clout by the Walkerville second baseman sent Girard over the plate for the locals' fifth run, and when Jordan bunted safely past Utronki, Gatecliffe went over the plate for the sixth marker. Utronki walked from the box in the sixth innings after walking three batters and hitting another.

Green went to the box and commenced by compelling Johnson to fan for the third out. The inability of Green and A. Weir, who also had a turn on the mound, to locate the plate enabled Walkerville to put five additional counters across in the eighth, while Smith was holding the Belleville batters.

Utronki started like a winner, although Walkerville scored twice in the first inning. Neither of the runs was earned. Ross lost Kenney's fly ball in the sun and the Walkerville third baseman went to second on Edwards' tap to Weir.

Smith was none too steady for the locals, and several times the fans called on Manager Gordon Fuller to put in Marchand, who was warming up. The big right-hander steadied down after the fourth, and Belleville never again threatened. The second game will be played at Belleville on Wednesday.

YANKS HOLD LEAGUE LEAD

Defeat Indians 5 to 0, While Mackmen Win From Browns 11-7.

BABE RUTH INJURED

NEW YORK, N.Y., Sept. 24.—(Canadian Press.) — The Yankees protected their lead of two games over the Athletics in the pennant by white-washing the Indians by 5 to 0 at Cleveland yesterday in the first game of a series of three. The Mackmen maintained the status quo by defeating the St. Louis Browns 11 to 7. Making his seventh appearance in the last fourteen Yankee games, Waite Hoyt held the Indians to four scattered hits to win his twentieth victory of the season. He also helped his own cause along with two singles.

The Yanks came out of their batting slump to the extent of eleven safeties which they bounded back at Joe Shaute. Of these two were by Babe Ruth who broke his own personal slump with his first effective blows in five games. One of Babe's blows was a double.

Ruth pulled up lame running out a single in the eighth and gave way to Cedric Durst. It was a further aggravation of his wrenched left knee, injured in sliding into third base at Chicago a few days ago.

Mark Koenig also reported lame from a foul ball which he drove against his ankle in Chicago Saturday, but he played through the game. Tony Lazzeri, the third Yankee cripple, also went through the entire contest although he favored his injured arm in making throws.

The Browns lost to the Philadelphia Athletics in the opening game of their series at St. Louis yesterday afternoon by a score of 11 to 7. Manager Howley sent all of his regulars into the line-up against the Athletics, who are in second place, and two games behind the League leading Yankees. The Athletics brought in four runs in the ninth inning when Miller singled to right field. Hauser's single sent Miller to third, Dykes hit a homer into the right field pavilion scoring Miller and Hauser ahead of him. Rommel brought in the fourth run later in the inning.

Phil Page, left handed recruit from Springfield, of the Eastern League, scored his second major league triumph in as many starts when he pitched Detroit to a 4 to 1 home triumph over the Red Sox. Buddy Myer made four of the seven hits Page allowed the Boston team. The game was remarkable for fielding inconsistency. It sparkled with six double plays and was marred by seven errors.

The White Sox moved into a tie for fourth place with Washington by taking the opening game at Chicago from the Senators 8 to 2. Lyons held the Senators to eight hits, while the White Sox nicked Marberry for 11, scoring five runs to clinch the game in the seventh inning. Art Shires, one of Lena Blackburne's latest rookies, continued his heavy stick work, getting a homer and a double in two trips to the plate.

BISONS WIN FROM LEAFS

Buffalo Nosed Out Of International Flag by One Point.

BY SCORE 10-3

BUFFALO, N.Y., September 24 (Canadian Press). — Though fighting valiantly to the end of the pennant road by beating the Toronto Leafs a third straight game here yesterday afternoon by a score of 10 o 3, the Buffalo Bisons were nosed out of the International flag by the margin of one per centage point when the Rochester Red Wings took a farewell double-header from the Montreal Royals.

Another overflow throng of approximately 23,000 fans banked the Bison stadium to see the Clymer men vanquish the Leafs hands down by knocking Prudhomme from the box and keeping up a vicious attack against Thompson, a southpaw. Barnes was the hitting star for the Bisons with a double and a single for a perfect afternoon. Dale Alexander, Toronto King of Swat, took advantage of the final game to belabor his thirty-first home run of the season over the left field fence in the eighth inning.

ORIOLES LOSE OUT.

BALTIMORE, Md., September 24 (Canadian Press). — Misjudgment of a high fly which went for a safety, lost the Baltimore Orioles a chance to finish in the fourth place in the International League scramble when the Reading Keys took the second game of a double-header here yesterday, 4 to 3, after the locals had won the first in a walk, 13 to 5. The double-header closed the season. Baltimore and Reading tied for fifth place in the standings.

Williams, Oriole outfielder, played a fly from Conroy's bat which soared to the fence, but misjudged it and it bounded back into the field after hitting the fence, and Whitman scored the winning run before he could return the ball to the field.

In the first battle the Orioles hammered base hits all over the lot, scoring eight runs in the first inning on as many successive singles.

BEARS WIN TWICE.

NEWARK, N.J., September 24 (Canadian Press). — Newark Bears ended the local International League season yesterday by capturing a double-header from the Jersey Skeeters. The score of both games was 5 to 4.

The opening contest went ten innings, Gilhooley's muff of Kingdon's single to centre enabled Malone to race home from first with the winning tally. The victory marked the fifteenth of the year for Pitcher Al Mamaux.

In the second game Dutch Kemner, late of the New Haven club, was on the mound, and pitched the Bears to victory. Malone's long double followed by Kingdon's triple gave the Bruins four runs in the first round. The Skeeters picked up their tallies by timely smashes. Bentley sewed up the game with a homer in the fifth. Then in the seventh with two on base he made a spectacular stab of Nalboch's liner, converting it into a double play for the final play of the season.

HUNGARIANS BLAMED.

BELGRADE, Sept. 24. — Jewish Telegraph Agency.)—The inciting of the ritual murder agitation in several towns and villages in the Province of Banat, on the eve of the Jewish high holidays was laid at the door of Hungarian agitators in the report of the special ministerial investigation commission, made public yesterday.

CRICKETERS END SEASON

Win Over Oshawa By Five Wickets and 54 Runs in Finals.

DYER HITS HEAVILY.

The Peterborough C. C. gained a brilliant victory over the Oshawa C. C. at the Oval on Saturday afternoon by 5 wickets and 54 runs. Peterborough batted first and started in disastrous fashion, losing three wickets with only two runs on the board. Dyer and Dunkerley however, brought the score to 66 before Dunkerley was bowled. The retiring batsmen scored 15 but was rather lucky, being missed two or three times in the field. Thorpe partnered Dyer and the score rose rapidly, Dyer especially being severe on the bowling. With the score at 90 he was bowled by Moore for a brilliantly hit 63. His score included seven fours. Thorpe and Hamilton carried the score to 106 without further loss, when the Peterborough captain declared the innings closed, Thorpe being 21 not out, and Hamilton two not out. The fielding of the Oshawa team was very keen, otherwise the Peterborough score would have been much larger.

Oshawa commenced their innings to the bowling of Dyer and Dunkerley and like Peterborough, started poorly, losing three wickets for thirteen runs. Moore and Cherry, however, improved the score, but after these batsmen left, wickets fell regularly and the side were all out for 52 runs

Frank Dyer followed up his fine batting by some brilliant bowling, capturing seven wickets for 19 runs. Elliot, who bowled only three overs, took two wickets for 10 runs. Dunkerley captured the other wicket for 19 runs. Gore played well behind the wicket for Peterborough. Unfortunately the game was marred by an accident to the Oshawa wicket keeper, who was struck in the chin by a ball deflected off the wickets, but after a short rest he pluckily continued to play.

After the match, the Oshawa team were guests of the Peterborough Club at a luncheon held at the "Paragon." Several speeches were made by members of both clubs and an enjoyable time was spent by all Charlie Coleman catered in his usual efficient manner.

SECOND DANCE IS PROPOSED

Fair Night Suggested For Street Social at Campbellford.

RIFLE CLUB IN FORMATION.

(Examiner Staff Correspondence).

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 22.—There is a movement starting in favor of a second street dance to be held on the second night of Campbellford Fair. As far as can be ascertained, the function will be under the joint auspices of the local branch of the Canadian Legion and the Northumberland Regimental Band. There has not been any definite announcement made as yet, but it is understood that there is every reason to believe that the event will materialize, following the success of the dancing in connection with the official opening of the paved streets there recently.

There are also the brightest of prospects for the formation of a rifle association here. Prospective members are being solicited at the present time. As far as can be learned from the canvassers, the idea seems to be meeting with the general favor of the men of the town, and it is believed that the near future will see the association a going concern here.

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS
New Service to Edmonton.

In order to cope with the heavy travel to points in Western Canada, Canadian National Railways have arranged to place their crack train, "The Confederation," on completion of its summer schedule, on the run between Toronto and Edmonton.

The last trip to Vancouver will be on September 26th from Toronto, and the first Edmonton train will leave Toronto on Thursday, September 27th. The through equipment will consist of standard and tourist sleepers, dining cars and compartment-observation library cars, the latter being equipped with radio.

The service will afford every facility for Christmas and New Year's travel in both directions, and this, together with the high standard of Canadian National operation, will enable the train to retain in a full measure the popularity it now enjoys with the travelling public.

Any Canadian National Agent will gladly furnish further details. 3d-73

C. G. E. NOW SOCCER CHAMPS BEAT DE LAVAL

First Half Very Interesting—Canadian General Lead 3 Goals to 1 at Interval.

SCORE SIX TO THREE.

Early in Second Half De Laval Evened Up Score—It Was a Battle to the Finish.

Ideal weather prevailed on Saturday afternoon for the final league game between the Canadian General and the DeLaval when the former won by six goals to three. It was a good exhibition o fthe soccer code. The winners owe their victory to Bolton in goal who held the losers to three tallies and he was well supported by Westwood in front of him. Although a big score is shown, the run of play was about one goal different and that was in favour of the winners. During the season the DeLaval have played the game in a real sportsmanlike manner and deserved to be congratulated for the spirit of good will always shown. The Canadian General are now City soccer champions.

The spin of the coin favoured the Canadian General and they took advantage of the wind that was blowing down the pitch. Both teams showed their mettle, the right wing division of the DeLaval working inside the defense of their opponents to find Bolton right on the job. Mann punted clear upfield, where Hutton grasped the opportunity to make headway but Downer stopped his progress. Then a foul against DeLaval caused some anxiety to their full backs in the goal area which finally was repulsed by Cross in the nick of time.

Break Went in Favour of C.G.E.

A determined attack by the separator boys confined the play to Bolton's charge and when they were pressing around the goal, Wade headed clear and carried the sphere up the centre. When tackled he sent forward to Mitchell who accepted the chance cleverly with a gentle tap forward that found his left foot to open the scoring. After doing all the initiative work, it was not downhearting to them because they went back again in the same spirit. Both grounds were raided in play that followed for a little, a corner kick falling to the LeLaval but nothing startling took place, Bolton easily accounting for the shots ranged at him. On dilatory tackling of the DeLaval, Burgess travelled down the wing himself, drew the opposition to himself, then rattled a rising pass across the goalmouth.

Clark Got the Second

Quick as a flash Clark jumped into the vacant spot that the two full backs left open to tap the ball into the net for numtber two. For the next ten minutes the losers hammered away at the C.G.E. goal to gain a number of flag kicks that proved interesting in spite of the non-success at goal. As the attack continued the DeLaval should have gained a penalty kick for Wade punting the ball out of the custodians hands. The forwards continued their siege until Laidler put through his own goal in an endeavor to offset the pressure.

Encouraged by their success the DeLaval replied with greater energy than ever to creat exciting attacks on the Bolton Citadel. Unaccountable inaction by Wade and Westwood led to a hot attack inside their goal-area. Bolton having a hot time until the ball was got away. Mid-field exchanges continued with combination being inbeen heard regarding the rich stuff dulged in to no advantage because the halves were tackling close. Just before the half time period, Mitchell arssed the full backs to get the better of the argument and steadying himself from ten yard distance to see where Fowler was so as to give him no chance to save with a lightning right foot drive. Half time —Canadian General 3, DeLaval 1.

Half Time

DeLaval resumed in promising style and kept Bolton on the hop saving his charge from a down fall, inside two minutes they were bombarding from every angle and it was from one of these peculiar shots that the C.G.E. goal fell to the rocket drive of James Mitchell's foot.

DeLaval Evened Up the Score

Not satisfied with the wonderful recovery of their forwards the halves carried the attack against the stalwart defence of the C.G.E. in which Westwood was the main artist in the pinches, in fact, he was the mainstay against an alert forward line. It was very interesting to watch the keen tactics between the DeLaval left wing—Ward and Hanson—that found the C.G.E. right back a versatile man and of quick recovery and it was only on a slight slip by the latter that allowed Ward to get the even count—three all.

Anticipation Carried Victory

The fat was in the fire, exchanges being keen and even for a little. Then an onslaught by the Electric boys brought a prolonged thrill, the DeLaval goal being jeopardised, the best chance coming to Hutton when he repeatedly made false openings to get the defense in a quandry. His anticipation of movement gained him the chance that he awaited for and landed the ball into the net through an amazed defense, to put his team in the lead.

Finished in a Hard Battle

The run of the play did not do full justice to the score because the DeLaval were more energetic than the winners but failed to get the breaks in the proximity of goal. While Mitchell seemed to run wild with the ball and it was one of his fortunate days. He never wasted an opportunity during the whole ninety minutes. This was demonstrated when he notched two beautiful goals on his own individual play.

Linesman Refused to Act

Ten minutes before full time the linesman attracted the referee's attention to infringements to the rules but he paid no heed to his appeals. Time and again he saw players breaking the law of the game. Discouraged by the method adopted, he went and instructed the official that he refused to act any longer which finally made an opening for another linesman. The line official claimed that Wade handled the ball inside the dread area twice in succession, while the referee ruled otherwise. There was no further scoring and nothing of interest took place until the finish. Canadian General 6, DeLaval 3.

LEAGUE FORMED

Five-Pin Bowling Featuring in C.G.E. Engineering League.

Five-pin bowling promises again to be a big factor in providing entertainment during the winter months in this city, especially in the C.G.E. Engineering League.

A reorganization meeting was held on Friday last, this being the first step towards paving the way for another ideal bowling season.

The reins this year will be in the experienced hands of Miss L. Campbell, I. F. McCrae, G. W. Mason and J. Benson, these four having been elected as a controlling executive, deviating a little from last year's program, when the several team captains comprised the executive.

It is understood that playing will commence before two weeks have elapsed, which is slightly earlier than last year, and may thus enable the players to finish three complete schedules.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

REGINALD DENNY WILL BE SEEN AT THE CAPITOL TO-DAY IN "GOOD MORNING JUDGE," A ROLLICKING COMEDY

Reginald Denny's latest success, 'Good Morning, Judge,' is being shown to enthusiastic audiences at the Capitol Theatre This picture is regarded as the best the popular star has made.

Denny's clever comedy interpretation would make him a hit in any part but in "Good Morning, Judge," he has a role that matches his good looks, his breezy manner and his flare for farce to perfection. He has again gained the honor of having appeared in one of the season's greatest comedy hits.

William A. Seiter, who has directed most of Denny's outstanding productions, wielded the megaphone on this one. The Denny-Seiter combination is a famed one in Hollywood, as the two men have been responsible for a long list of box-office successes. They made "Skinner's Dress Suite," "Rolling Home," "Take It From Me," and other attractions.

The leading feminine role is played by Mary Nolan, former continental star. Miss Nolan is an American girl, but starred for three years for a German film company. She has only made a few pictures in Hollywood, but she is now one of the most sought-after players in the film colony and is known as the most beautiful girl on the screen.

STAFF ANNOUNCER WILL READ TALK

Broadcasters Will Not Allow Outsider To Speak.

"All Peterborough Night" was to have had a decidedly local touch, had the Chamber of Commerce been able to bring about the fruition of certain plans. One was that a Peterborough man give the talk on Peterborough over Canada's Cheerio Station CKGW, on Wednesday, September 26th. The attempt to arrange this has been frustrated, however, by the Trans-Canada Broadcasting Company, who give their reasons in the letter to the Satin Finish Hardwood Flooring Company, as follows:

"With regard to Mr. Stinson's letter to you of September 18th, we beg to state that it is our invariable rule that announcements, such as he refers to, should be made by one of our own staff.

"It will, therefore, be unnecessary for Mr. Stinson to send anyone from Peterborough to read the talk, and we feel quite sure that Mr. Copeland will put it over in a perfectly satisfactory way, as he has done for Kingston and other municipalities, which you have featured."

LOCAL RESIDENTS AID IN BAY SEARCH

Uncles of Donald Rose Take Part in Seeking Manasoo.

Thomas Rose of the Township of Otonabee has been in Owen Sound assisting in the search for those who were lost when the Manasoo went down in Georgian Bay a week ago last Saturday morning. Mr. Rose is a brother of the Rev. T. W. Rose, who lost his son Donald when the boat foundered. While out searching along the shore of the bay Mr. Rose and his fellow-searchers came upon the raft that had carried the five survivors which the Manitoba picked up. Mr. Rose returned home last Saturday night.

J. Rooke of Norwood, an uncle of Donald Rose, left to-day for Owen Sound, where he intends to help in the search for the missing men of the Manasoo.

Mining Briefs

A Special Service to The Examiner

SUDBURY, Ont., Sept. 24.—F. G. Oke & Company report as follows: It is definitely known that Sudbury Basin will shortly commence shaft sinking on lot 5, concession 6, in Fairbanks township where diamond drilling has indicated the largest and richest ore body in Chelms Ford basin area. An official statement, to the effect of the shaft sinking will shortly be forthcoming.

Abana meeting quite satisfactory and harmonious and although as far as we know no official statements have been made we expect a report on previous operations some time this week either from Mr. Spearman or Mr. Savard. We are informed large New York interests after Abana and prepared to throw in millions and construct railroad themselves if necessary, these interests are going to follow up the preliminary examination in short time. New Deisel engines will be in operation in few days and underground work resumed on much larger scare than heretofore. Then very constructive news regarding ore reserves and new ore can be expected. Should result in higher prices market-wise. Reports re railroad will not be submitted to railway commission for some time as Mr. Fisher has not completed examination but will do so within next few days. Am informed directors still buying stock.

Stock Prices Continue To Rise At New York

NEW YORK, Sept. 24 (Canadian Press).—The line of least resistance in to-day's stock market was again towards higher prices. Reactionary tendencies developed in some of the airplane issues and specialties in the morning trading, but a broad buying movement in steels, coppers, motors, oils, and foods eventually turned the general course of prices upward. Nearly two score issues, including Anaconda Copper, Packard Motors, Sinclair Oil, Union Carbide, and U.S. Steel Common established new 1928 high records.

Except possibly to hold down the volume of trading, money rates apparently had little influence on the market.

An advance in the price of export copper to 15½ cents a pound was one of the most interesting of the day's trade developments. It stimulated the demand for red metal shares, U. S. Smelting moving up four points to a new top of 57½, while Granby, Kennecotta, Magma, American Metals and Howe Sound all broke through their previous 1928 highs.

U.S. Steel returned to its old role as market leader by climbing more than three points to a new high at 161 3-8, one block of 8,500 shares changing hands at 161. General Motors sold down a point to 212½ in early trading and then rebounded to 215½. Packard moved up two points to a new high at 93 3-8, and Hudson was in brisk demand in the early afternoon.

Coty soared 8¼ points to 239¾, Jewel Tea 8 to 137, Union Carbide 6¼ to 186, Murray Corporation 5 5-8 to 93¾, and Atlantic Renewing 4¾ to 194½ all new high records. Wright Aeronautical broke 8½ points in the early trading and recovered 6 by early afternoon and Curtiss Aeroplane regained most of the early loss of 7¾ points. Rails were the only important group to take no part in the upward movement.

Toronto Trading Light With Prices Unchanged

TORONTO, Sept. 24 (Canadian Press).—Trading was light on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning. Noon prices on the whole showed little change as compared with last week's close. Agricultural implement stocks continued fairly active, with Massey-Harris remaining unchanged at 48, and Dominion closing with a drop of ¾ to 30. International Nickel was the active leader on the listed section, and advanced ⅛ to 127.

Page Hersey dropped 1¾ to 103¾. Photo Engravers was unchanged at 35, and Twin City advanced ¾ to 33¼. Banks were steady, Commerce and Royal remaining unchanged at 289 and 377 respectively and Standard dropping a point to 284.

Service Stations, with a large turnover, was the leader on the curb section, and scored a gain of a point to 42¾. British American Oil at 41¾ was fractionally higher, Imperial was unchanged at 70, and International Petroleum was up ¾ at 41¼. Northern Bakeries advanced a point to 40.

Mine Shares Are Active With Trend Irregular

TORONTO, Sept. 24.—(Canadian Press).—With some irregularity in the trend of prices, trading on the standard stock and mining exchange this morning was active. Large turnovers were scored, particularly by a number of the lower priced issues.

Mond Nickel, which attracted much attention last week, showed a falling off in the total sales, but an advance in price. The issue closed at 31.75, a gain of 75 over Saturday's close.

Newbec was the most active issue, with a turnover of more than 128,000 shares and dropped 2½ to 55. Malartic, also active, was down two at 1.74. Noranda on light trading declined 25 to 52.00.

After opening with a gain of ten, Sherritt Gordon closed unchanged at 6.65, while Hudson Bay sold down to 18.88 but recovered to 20.00 for a net loss of 10. Pend Oreille at 13.75 was up 50.

Will Nickel Earn $8.00 per Share in 1928?

Forecasts are made in New York that International Nickel in the third quarter of 1928, which closes this month, will show net profits of approximately $4,000,000. This would compare with $2,978,601 in the second quarter, and $2,107,920 in the first quarter. On this basis the amount available for stocks for the nine months of 1928 would be about $9,000,000. If the first quarter of the year proves as good as the third quarter, the company will earn something like 13,000,000. Taking from this profit dividend requirements for the year of $534,000, the residue for common stock would be $12,466,000, equal to better than $8 per share on the 1,482,280 shades to be outstanding when the recent financing is completed. This would be equal to 32 per cent. on a par value.

That the business and profits of the nickel companies have continued to grow is indicated by export figures for August and for the first eight months of 1928. Exports in August were 8,007,200 lbs, as compared with 3,268,600 lbs in August, 1927, while for the eight months exports were 72,319,400 lbs against 36,061,800 lbs in the corresponding period in 1927. Thus for the shorter and longer periods, exports of nickel have decreased. To these figures must be added steadily growing copper exports and production of other metals. If the company earns anything like $8.00 per share it will be able to increase dividends materially above the present rate of $3 per share per annum. The company secured $10,575,000 for the common stock it sold to shareholders at $60 each, which brings its net working capital up to $33,000,000, more than two-thirds of which is liquid. The company cannot be said to be short of cash. Net current assets compare with liabilities to shareholders of $35,970,000, representing after preferred stock is deducted $30 per share on the common stock. Net tangible assets including the new financing are equal to approximately $50 per share.

This leaves out the net value of ore reserves, which are conceded to be worth the company's net tangible assets many times over.

Canada's Mineral Output Grows

In the world's mineral production Canada has attained the position of being first in nickel, first in asbestos, first in cobalt, third in gold, third in silver, fourth in lead, fourth in copper, and sixth in zinc. During the last year, copper production increased so that Canada obtained fourth place instead of fifth as previously. The premier position in the production of nickel, asbestos and cobalt is not challenged, while Canada in the next five years will assume greater world importance in the production of gold, copper, lead and zinc.

South Africa, the United States and Canada are the order of the great gold-producing countries, and with increased Canadian yields and decreases in the United States, Canada will soon be in second place.

Ontario and British Columbia are the great mineral producing provinces of the Dominion, as in 1927 the former produced 36.38 per cent of the total and the latter 34.58.

Large Stocks Of Grain Cause Drop In Prices

CHICAGO, Sept. 24 (Canadian Press).—Enlarged receipts of corn in Chicago led to a sharp new early setback to-day in the price of September delivery of corn. Meanwhile, an unexpectedly big increase of domestic wheat stocks northwest had a bearish effect on wheat. Opening ½ cent off to ½ cent up, corn scored a moderate general advance, and then receded, September falling nearly 4 cents. Wheat started unchanged to ⅝ cent, rallied somewhat, and then weakened. Oats were easy. Provisions dropped.

Opening prices were: Wheat, September 114⅝; December 118½. Corn, September 95¼, December 78½. Oats, September 42⅜, December 42¾.

BRADING BREWERIES.

The directors of The Brading Breweries, Limited, at a recent meeting, declared a dividend of 50 cents per share on the common no par value stock payable on the 15th of October. The company reports that business during the summer months has shown a satisfactory improvement over last year, and that the demand for "Brading's" well known brands is steadily on the increase. During the past year the company has made numerous improvements in their plant and are taking advantage of all the latest methods that tend to reduce the cost of production and improve the quality of the output. Brading's, as one of the oldest established breweries in the Dominion, have a very wide distribution of their goods in Ontario and Quebec.

PUBLIC LIBRARY NOTES.

It has been the regular custom, since the opening of the Public Library, to send lists of books received, to the press, in order that the public may learn what is being provided for their intellectual betterment and recreation. These have proved fairly satisfactory, but they do not seem to have covered the ground to as full a degree as desirable. Lack of space has usually compelled the printing of them in close type and in many cases readers with failing eyesight, and others, have not taken the trouble to look at them. When they required books they have come to the Library to search for themselves.

In order to create larger interest in the Library, it is proposed, during the fall and winter months, to supplement the information contined in the lists by pointing out the more important ones in the various classes, devoting a short article to each class. The subject taken this week is that of Biography.

It will be interesting to patrons of the library to learn that recent visitors from important centres have pronounced the Peterborough Library to be splendidly equipped in this class and have also marked out for special praise our Historical, Travel and Reference sections.

Roughly speaking, we shave some 1,200 volumes of biography on our shelves. They cover every phase of human endeavor and are invaluable as aids to History. During the past nine months we have added, among many others, Lives of Whistler, Aloysius Horn, Palmerston, George Arliss, Bismarck, D. L. Moody, Cromwell, Captain John Smith, Disraeli, Henry Hudson, Newman, Sir Percy Scott, and Anthony Hope Hawkins. To some people a few of these will appear to have been somewhat unnecessary purchases, but it has to be borne in mind that fresh facts are coming to light all the time concerning men and women of note which tend to bring out their characters and influence in human affairs in a much stronger and truer light than was available at the time of their decease. This is true of almost every one of the personages herein mentioned.

As to the others, it can be safely said that they are well worth reading. Aloysius Horn, if his lot had been cast in a different sphere, where his native ability had a better chance of being appreciated, would undoubtedly have made his mark. His trite remarks and his pawky philosophy of life help to make the recital of his remarkable career one of the outstanding books of the year.

Whistler was a man of most peculiar temperament; loved by many, hated by some, but admired by all, not so much for his painting, as for his wit and caustic humor. As a painter he was belauded and mud-spattered, as has been the lot of many a genius before him.

BOVIN DID NOT VISIT TORONTO

Police Were Tipped Off and Watched Entrances, Says Draper.

DENIES REPORTS.

TORONTO, Sept. 24 (Canadian Press).—Bill Bovin, Detroit gangster and alleged master mind of Union Station mail robbery here some time ago, was not in Toronto last week, according to Chief of Police Draper. An unfounded report, emanating from Windsor that Bovin was coming here, led police to take precautions and place men at strategic entrances to the city, the chief said, but the report proved a mistake.

SUPPORT HOSPITAL

Editor of Examiner:

Dear Sir: At a large gathering of Weir R. B. Preceptory it was stated. That whereas we learn with great satisfication that the board of management of Nicholls Hospital are planning to bring the equipment at this institution up to a first-class standard, and to provide more and greatly-needed accommodation:

Therefore, be it resolved, That we, the members of Weir Royal Black Preceptory 261, in regular session assembled on Thursday, September 20, 1928, having given the matter of the by-law to provide the sum of $300,000 to build the desired new wing to the Nicholls Hospital of this city, thorough consideration; we therefore commend the by-law to the favorable consideration of the Protestant property owners of this city, in the interest of the Protestant citizens generally, and we respectfully suggest that Protestant clergymen bring this very important Protestant by-law to the attention of their congregations at all services on Sunday next.

Yours truly,
FRANK MILLARD,
Registrar.

SUTTON—WELLS.

(Examiner Correspondence).

MARMORA, Sept. 24.—At the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Wells on Wednesday, in the presence of sixty-five guests, Leah, their daughter, was united in holy matrimony to Mr. Benjamin Sutton, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Sutton, of Shanty Bay. The ceremony was performed beneath an artistic arch by Rev. E. J. Daw of Campbellford, district elder of the Free Methodist Church.

The bride, attired in brown flat crepe, and carrying a bouquet of sweet peas and asters, was given away by her father. Both bride and groom were unattended. Lohengrin's wedding music was played by Miss Florence Sopha.

The great esteem in which the bride is held was evidenced by the large number of dainty and useful presents received. Mr. and Mrs. Sutton leave this week for Beilhaven, Ont., where the former will be in charge of the Free Methodist circuit.

KNOX—REID.

A pretty wedding took place at 2.30 to-day at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Reid, 582 Waterford Street, when their daughter, Eva Lillian, became the bride of Mr. J. Ralph Knox of Sarnia, son of the late Robert Knox and Mrs. Beatrice Knox of Norwood.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. William Allan of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was becomingly gowned in a period frock of white georgette, with rhinestone trimmings, and wore a bridal veil held in place with a wreath of orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses and lily of the valley.

Miss Hilda Walker of Collingwood, cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid, and wore a period frock of cameo taffeta, with drowsy felt hat of grey with shoes and hose to match, and carried Ophelia roses. Mr. Don. Lapp of this city supported the groom, and little Phyllis Pink made a charming door attendant.

The wedding music was played by Miss Daisy Reid, sister of the bride. During the signing of the register, Mrs. Bert A. Reid very sweetly sang "I Love You Truly."

After a short honeymoon trip Mr. and Mrs. Knox will reside at 288 Nelson Street, Sarnia, Ont.

Out of town guests at the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. Bert Walker and Miss Hilda Walker of Collingwood, Mrs. Beatrice Knox of Norwood, Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Knox, Mrs. W. Hurst Sheppard of Port Dalhousie, Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Hodgkins of Midland, Miss Eva Reid of Victoria Harbour, Rev. and Mrs. E. M. Cooke of Consecon, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. McMillan, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Fell, Miss Ilene and Mr. Bert Fell, all of Barrie.

JORDAN—HOGAN

ANTWERP, N.Y., Sept. 24. — A very pretty home wedding took place Saturday afternoon at five o'clock, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hogan when their only daughter, Miss Evelyn Mabel Hogan became the bride of Joseph James Jordan of Rochester, a son of Mr. and Mrs. James Jordan of Peterborough, Ontario, Canada.

The impressive ring ceremony of the Roman Catholic Church was used by the Rev. Father D. M. Sullivan of St. Michael's church, who officiated.

As Lohegrin's Wedding March was played by Mrs. Charlotte Brown the bride slowly descended the stairs, followed by her matron-of-honor, Mrs. Edward Witmer of Rochester. They passed under a large cedar arch from which was suspended three white wedding bells. The bride was met by her father, who gave her away, and the waiting bridegroom and his best man, Gordon Clarke of Detroit, Michigan.

The bridal party stood in the east window of the living room, under a bower of pink, pale yellow and white gladioli from which was suspended a large white wedding bell. A banking of cedar, with alternating rows of pink and white gladioli, formed a beautiful background for the bridal party who stood facing Father Sullivan and the company of fifty guests, during the impressive wedding ceremony.

The bride wore a handmade gown of white georgette and tulle, made over soft white satin. The long waisted bodice was fashioned of white shirred georgette, with a crushed satin girdle fastened with silver embroidered flowers. Three deep ruffles of tulle formed the skirt, which touched the ground in the back. The wore a bridal veil of tulle, bound close to the head with a tiny wreath of orange blossoms and a cap of point lace. White satin slippers and chiffon hose completed her costume. She carried a bridal bouquet of brides' roses and sweet peas. Her only piece of jewelry was a white crystal necklace with crystal pendant, the gift of the bridegroom.

The matron-of-honor wore a gown of creme georgette and lace, with silver kid slippers and hose to match and carried a bouquet of pink sweet peas and orchids, tied with orchid tulle.

Mrs. Richard Hogan, mother of the bride, was gowned in peach georgette and silver lace, with slippers and hose of beige, and a corsage of orchid sweet peas, centered with pink rose buds.

The brides' going away costume was an ensemble beige crepe, with coat, gloves, slippers and hose in harmonizing shades. A close fitting French felt hat in a soft shade of green completed her costume.

The bride's gift to the bride groom was a diamond scarf pin and to her matron-of-honor, necklace of pearls and crystals. The bridegroom's gift to his best man was a silver cigarette lighter.

A reception to the bridal party followed the ceremony after which a wedding dinner was served, catered by Mrs. William Martin and Mrs. Kate Egan.

Suspended over the bridal table was a white wedding bell, with sprays of pale pink and white gladioli, from which dainty strands of pink rose buds were fastened to the corners of the table. Four tall white Cathedral tapers surrounded the center-piece which was a large bridal ring cake, decorated in white rosebuds and centered with a bouquet of white bridal roses. The favors were tiny white nut baskets and small white boxes of brides' cake.

The rooms were artistically trimmed with gladioli and cedar. The stairrail down which the bridal party descended, was wound with cedar with pink and white gladioli intertwined.

After the wedding dinner, as the bride descended the stairs in her going away costume, she tossed her bridal bouquet, which was caught by Miss Clara Barry of Empress, Canada, who is a cousin of the bride.

The wedding gifts were numerouse and included handmade crocheted linen sets, exquisitely made, solid silver, cut glass, silver candlesticks, pictures, a console mirror rugs, Italian pottery, rose fostorian glass, table and bed linen, trays, etc., and large gifts of money in checks and gold. The gift of the best man Gordon Clarke, was a chest of solid silver.

The bride has lived all her life in Antwerp, until the past three years, which have been spent in Rochester. She is a talented musician, playing the piano with musical taste and ability. While in Rochester she studied music with professors prominant in musical circles.

The groom holds a responsible position with a firm in Rochester. Many friends extend sincere wishes for their future prosperity and happiness.

After the wedding dinner, Mr. and Mrs. Jordan left [illegible] an extended trip through Canada. They attended the Golden Jubilee Exhibition in Toronto and stopped at various scenic points enroute, returning to Rochester, where they were at home after [illegible] the tenth.

Th out-of-town guests were Mrs. Charles D. Andrews of Syracuse, Mrs. Mary Mills of Rochester, Mrs. William France of Marcellus, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Ackermann of Buffalo, Mrs. Edward Whitmer of Rochester, Mrs. Fred Goundry of Binghamton, Gordon Clarke of Detroit, Michigan, Miss Clara Barry of Empress, Ontario, Dr. M. WILLIAM GOW IS FOUND DEAD IN FIELD

Aged Man Lost 40 Hours

Searchers Had Combed Entire District All Day Monday Without Success.

WAS 82 YEARS OLD.

Body Found in Corn Field Near Brighton Road in Percy Township.

(Examiner Staff Correspondence).

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 25. — The body of William Gow, 82-year-old resident of Percy Township, who has been missing since he left home on Sunday afternoon, was found this morning in a cornfield on the farm of Ben Hobbs, about half a mile from the Brighton Road and a mile from his home.

The aged man had left his home, where he lived with his brother David, about three o'clock on Sunday afternoon. No attention was paid to his absence until five o'clock, and when he failed to return the search was begun. A large party of men combed the entire district all day Monday, continuing their labors until nearly midnight without success.

Henry Carlow was the finder of the body. He located it in Mr. Hobbs' field about 10.30 this morning. When he found the body the hat and one boot were gone, and the clothing was covered with mud. Apparently Mr. Gow had become exhausted while wandering around and had lain down to sleep, never to rise again.

Coroner Dr. W. F. Loucks of Campbellford viewed the body and pronounced an inquest unnecessary, giving permission for its removal to his home.

First Man Born In South Africa

LONDON, Sept. 25.—Members of the American Cameron-Cable expedition to South Africa, have made discoveries which convinced them that man originated in Africa, not Asia, a despatch from Johannesburg to the London Morning Post, said.

The birthplace of man was in the Kalahari plateau of Africa, the despatch said, adding that the expedition's geologists had discovered no geological change in the plateau since man originated there.

The expedition now is searching in the centre of the desert region for a bushman type considered to be the lowest type of humanity on earth.

BAPTIST Y.P.U. PLANS MADE

Executive For Ontario and Quebec Holds Session in City.

RALLY IN EVENING.

The executive of the Baptist Young People's Union of Ontario and Quebec held an all-day session yesterday in Murray Street Baptist Church to discuss plans and prepare the work for the coming year. The sessions were under the direction of the president of th B.Y.P.U. of Ontario and Quebec, Finley Sims, of Kitchener, while about thirty members of the executive were present.

In the evening a Young People's Rally of the Peterborough Association was held, and the speakers for the evening consisted of members of the executive. Miss Gladys Langley, of Tororito, spoke in favor of a Junior B.Y.P.U. There is no other organization in the church where the boys and girls are trained for leadership and this, Miss Langley said, is something which they are going to need. As they grow older they will be able to complete the circle by going back and helping to prepare the younger boys and girls in the way they had been taught. The boys and girls can serve the church in many ways in which an older person can not. The habits which are formed while in attendance will always stick, and in the extension of the church, they have a greater opportunity of bringing other boys and girls in.

Th Rev. N. S. McKechnie, of Leamington, gave the inspirational address, taking as his text, the temptations of Jesus; and His victory over them. "There is a great value in temptations," Mr. McKechnie said, "and we shall never be strong until we are tempted. Jesus' victory over temptations should be a great lesson to us in overcoming our temptations."

The opening song service was conducted by the Rev. E. C. Gosnell, of Petrolia, and the members of the executive were very ably introduced by the secretary, W. F. Reynolds, of Brockville. A very helpful and interesting devotional period was under the leadership of the Rev. J. Slimon, of London, who took as his text, "But He was wounded for our transgressions, He was bruised for our iniquities; the chastisement of our peace was upon Him; and with His stripes we are healed."

The 1928 convention hymn, "Jesus, Thou Joy of Loving Hearts," marked the closing.

TRAVELS NORTH IN MOTH PLANE

Col. C. H. Ackerman Leaves To-day For Rouyn Gold Fields.

TO EXPLORE MINE AREA.

Lt.-Col. C. H. Ackerman, with his pilot, W. N. Miller, took off this morning in his little Moth plane for the north country. To-night they expect to be in the Rouyn Gold Mine area, and from there they will go to places where they will be able to refuel. Col. Ackerman intends to explore the northern part of Quebec as much as possible and pay special attention to the mining area and their probable development.

They carried no luggage, having only a first-aid kit, some fishing tackle and a German rifle which the Colonel brought back from overseas. So in case of a forced landing on some of the lakes of the north they hope to be able to find food by hunting and fishing.

On taking off from Little Lake they intended to fly to North Bay, where they will refuel and then proceed to the mining area. Col. Ackerman has promised that he will let The Examiner know when he arrives in the Rouyn fields.

MEAT PRICES ARE GOING UP

Butchers Have To Pay More, Especially For Beef, Says One.

RECENT INCREASE.

Groundless or otherwise, the rumor which spread about the city within the last few days—that the prices of meat had increased by several cents a pound—caused quite a stir, particularly among the householders, and as a result, Peterborough butchers have had many inquiries to answer. One butcher discussed the matter with The Examiner.

"No, we have not raised the prices of our meats to any great extent so far as the consumer is concerned, but its almost a certainty that such a step will be necessary within a short time unless some unforeseen circumstance provide an alternative," said he, going on to explain that within the past few weeks, the prices paid by the butcher, for beef especially, have increased about five cents a pound, owing to a scarcity in the supply. To counterbalance that increase there has only been a minor increase of two or three cents in the retail price.

The buying public, generally speaking, is not aware of the fluctuations in prices to the butcher—therefore, any increase in the retail price, though justified from the butcher's standpoint, may seem unwarranted to the consumer.

On its last appearance some days ago it was noticed near Cole's island.

The stories picture this marin e mystery as having a head larger than that of a collie dog and refer to the habit of the beast in raising its head high above the water and then diving beneath the surface.

BRINGING HAPPINESS IS AIM OF CHURCH OF THE OPEN DOOR

Rev. Richmond Craig Tells George Street Audience of Work.

HIVE OF INDUSTRY.

Business of Saving World Requires Great Armies of Workers.

A very interesting lecture was given last evening in the George Street United Church Sunday School Hall by the Rev. Richmond Craig of the Church of the Open Door, Vancouver, British Columbia.

A very large crowd filled the hall and listened with rapt attention while this talented and inspired Scotchman told of his splendid work in Vancouver.

J. E. Middleton acted as chairman, and after a pleasing vocal solo by Mrs. G. Liddle, called upon Rev. J. E. Todd to introduce the speaker.

Mr. Todd spoke of meeting Rev. Richmond Craig and hearing him speak at the Council meeting of the United Church at Winnipeg, and how impressed he was and of his delight when he heard he was to come to Peterborough. Rev. Richmond Craig has a powerful, forceful manner, with an occasional witty joke which convulsed the audience with laughter.

Mr. Craig said: "Do you know why I'm here? Why I'm in this town? I'm here in the place of another fellow. I'm here because they couldn't get any one else to come." He said: "The business I'm in is the salvation of the world. The United Church is a great force with its army of women workers and its army of men workers. We are beginning to see and realize that it is not enough to belong to the Church but that we must do as Christ said, 'Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel.' Be a brother to the down and out. Why should our United Churches be ever closed? Don't you think we need to pray as much as members of other churches? Our Church of the Open Door is a hive of industry. It is situated in the centre of the city of Vancouver, one block from the Police Station. I have an office there and an office staff, and the old devil has a spasm every time he passes the Church of the Open Door.

"The great sins of the world to-day are selfishness, meanness, niggardliness. You rich people, you poor people and you just people, has money affected your conscience? Have you that sense within you that you are all unclean?"

He talked of the home life of to-

DEWAR IS GIVEN NEW COMMAND

Former Captain of H.M.S. Royal Oak Goes To H.M.S. Tiger.

SIX MONTHS OFF DUTY.

LONDON, Sept. 25 (Canadian Press).—Barely six months after being "dismissed from his ship" on charges growing out of the famous Royal Oak affair, Captain Kenneth G. B. Dewar has been appointed to command the H.M.S. Tiger. His command was announced in to-day's naval appointments.

The Royal Oak affair centred about a dance aboard the battleship Royal Oak and differences which arose between Dewar and Commander Henry Daniel and Rear-Admiral Collard.

Act of Grace.

The action of the Admiralty in appointing Capt. Kenneth C. B. Dewar to H.M.S. Tiger, within a few months of his dismissal from H. M. S. Royal Oak for "conduct subversive to discipline," is believed to be without precedent.

In naval circles Dewart's appointment is regarded as an act of grace, although the command of the Tiger, a battle cruiser used as a sea-going gunnery ship, does not compare in status with the command of the Royal Oak, which is the flagship of the first battle squadron of the Mediterranean fleet.

To speak with a pleasant voice you must give full and correct value to the vowels. A theatrical producer stated recently that of 300 girls interviewed, he found only two that could say "no" properly.

CEMENT WORK ALL FINISHED

Chemong Road Will Be Open To Traffic in Three Weeks.

HIGHWAY BEING BUILT.

The completion of the actual cement laying on the Chemong road came last evening shortly after five o'clock, when a junction was made with the paving on Reid street north, laid by the city this summer. There is now a 20 foot strip from the boundary to a short distance west on the fourth line of Smith. Government regulations require 21 days at least to elapse before it can be used for vehicular traffic.

This is a section of Highway No. 7 which will eventually be extended from Sarnia to Ottawa. From Sarnia to Yonge street, north of Toronto, it is largely completed. The highway crosses Yonge street at Langstaff, about 12 miles north of Toronto. From there is runs to Markham, then north-easterly to Lindsay, Omemee, Peterborough, Norwood, Havelock and Marmora. From there easterly, to Perth or Smith's Falls, there is a section of country particularly broken and rough.

Extensive operations are going on now from Langstaff eastward. Corners are being rounded, roadways widened and heavy grades eliminated, and though it will be some time before the highway will be opened it will be a surprise to many to see the extensive work that has been done.

BASS AND LUNGE SEASON CLOSING

Only Five Days Left For Taking These Fish This Year.

ICE FISHING FORBIDDEN.

Changes in the fishing regulations as put into force by a Dominion order-in-council last May, should not be overlooked by the people of Peterborough and the district.

In the first place the closed season for bass and maskinonge begins on the first of next month and continues until the end of next June.

And then there is the following most important regulation:

"No one shall by means of a boat or other floating device or through the ice take fish by any means in the Counties of Victoria, Peterborough and Durham, and the inland waters of the County of Northumberland during the closed season for the taking of bass or maskinonge."

BISHOPS BEGIN THEIR MEETING

Expected To Discuss Position Resulting From Rejection of Prayer Book.

LONDON, Sept. 25 (Canadian Press).—Public interest in the problems facing the Church was reviewed to-day when the Bishops of the Church of England met at Lambeth Palace to discuss the position which resulted from the House of Commons having twice rejected the revised prayer book.

The Most Rev. Randall Thomas Davidson, Archbishop of Canterbury, presided probably for the last time since he retires in November.

Definite proposals of a far-reaching character were not likely to be made. The main desire of the Bishops was stated to be greater liberty in the Chuch of England's relations with the State. A commission of experts was expected to be appointed to deal with this phase of the Church's problem.

GREAT DEAL DONE FOR HARVESTERS

Member of Yorkshire Deputation Says Nothing More Needed.

LONDON, Sept. 25 (Canadian Press).—Returning from a seven weeks' tour of Canada during which personal inspection was made of the conditions under which the British miner harvesters are working, Alderban Thorpe, member of the deputation of the Yorkshire Voluntary Migration Committee, to-day said he was satisfied that "No organization anywhere could have done more than has been done for these men."

Irishman Freed to Migrate

Will Be Returned To Friends Who Gave Him Good Character.

PROTEST ENTERED.

Home Secretary Tells Magistrates Migration Not To Replace Prison.

LONDON, Sept. 25.—(Special to The Examiner). — Bruce Walker, Canadian Immigration Commissioner, has another case in hand of a criminal being exempted from imprisonment on condition of going abroad, which in this case meant Canada. The case is that of a man called Johnson, who before a court in Bushmills, County Armagh, Ireland, pleaded guilty to burglary. He went to the ticket office in a neighboring town, where he was not known and booked passage for Canada, under the bulk nomination scheme. Several of his friends gave him testimonials of good character. He went to a farm at Hartney, Manitoba.

Bruce Walker says "We are arranging to return him to his friends who spoke so well of him," adding that he protested to the Home Office, who communicated with the Magistrates at Bushmills, drawing attention to the fact that the Home Secretary has always deprecated sending criminals to other countries instead of to prison.

Both the home office and the magistrates say that Canada was never mentioned in court, but Bruce Walker insists that Canada is the nearest overseas Dominion and must always be in the mind of the persons concerned.

PRIZES OFFERED TO YOUNG PEOPLE

Kiwanis Club Has Planned Competitions in Handicrafts and Art Work.

A splendid opportunity to demonstrate their ability is offered boys and girls through the competitions planned for them by Kiwanis Club. Prizes are offered for mechincal work, needlework and art work, to be shown at the Produced in Canada Exhibition next month.

The committee chairman, T. Mark, told The Examiner to-day that there have been hundreds of inquiries, indicating a good exhibit of boys' and girls' work. He has planned the following sections: For boys under 11 years—model boat, book rack, writing, drawing. For boys under 16—airplane, wood carving, writing, drawing. For girls under 11—one pair pillow slips, apron, writing, drawing. For girls under 16—knitted sweater, nightgown, writing, drawing.

Mr. Mark has printed sheets giving full particulars, and a copy may be had on request at 360 Water street.

The largest steam turbine in the world, to supply a thousand towns and cities with electric power, will be put into service at Philo, Ohio, in November. It will have a capacity of 165,000 kilowatts.

Spanish Prisoners Hear Of Amnesty On Radio, Hundreds Reach Madrid Daily

MADRID, September 25. — First word of the general amnesty proclaimed at the recent celebration of the fifth anniversary of the dictatorship reached the prisoners through radio sets recently installed in the prisons of Spain, it was learned to-day. The Minister of Justice had broadcast the good news direct to them so that they might rejoice at the same time that Madrid was in festival for General Primo de Rivera.

Hundreds of liberated prisoners, most of whom had been held for offences of a political character, are reaching Madrid daily. Many who had never been expected to regain their freedom are coming from Dueso Penitentiary, where life sentences are served and death penalties executed. They all seem anxious to express personally their gratitude to the dictator.

This strange army of pilgrims to the Spanish capital includes many curious cases. One man and his wife, who had met in prison and were married in the prison chapel eight years ago, came here for a deferred honeymoon. Another who worked at the shoemaking trade while imprisoned had saved 5,000 pesetas. He hurried here to marry a girl who had waited for him.

Of the hundreds arrested when the Government learned of the recent plot to overthrow the dictatorship only a few military officers are still detained in Barcelona, and former Minister Cambo, of the same city, has been fined 1,500,000 pesetas for his connection with the plot.

Girl Spends Last Money To Die In Luxury; Buys Costly Clothes, Then Turns On Gas

NEW YORK, September 25. — Joan Fornum, a pretty 22-year-old blonde, spent all but $10.00 of her $127.00 that she might have a luxurious death.

Her body, clad in a lavender silk negligee and a pair of expensive boudoir slippers, was found in a gas-filled apartment in Brooklyn on which she had just paid $75.00—a month's rent.

She told Mrs. Harriet Biard, the landlady she had done the shopping "for her wedding day."

"This was to have been my wedding day, but his mother interfered, so the engagement was broken," she said, "and I had been saving my money all the time for our marriage. It's foolish to save money, so I bought these things."

When other tenants, smelling gas, broke into Miss Fornum's rooms, they found beside her body a copy of William Cullen Bryant's "Thanatopsis" open at the lines:

"So shalt thou rest and what if thou withdraw.
In silence from the living. . . . ."

There was also a torn note, which police pieced together to find the name "John La Gatta, W. 40th Street." La Gatta, formerly of Cleveland, Ohio, one of the nation's most famous magazine illustrators, has a studio at that address. He denied any knowledge of Miss Fornum.

According to Mrs. Biard, Miss Fornum said she had been a newspaper reported in Boston and came of a good family there,

TO THE RATEPAYERS

TO-MORROW, WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 26th, you are asked to support the By-law for the extension and betterments of the Nicholls Hospital. The Trustee Board, after very careful and thorough investigation, endorse the By-Law, the Board believes that the work has been delayed far beyond the time it should have been taken in hand and that there is now no other alternative but to make progress or fall behind.

The Ratepayers may rest assured that the funds asked for will be carefully administered and put to the very best use, it is not the intention to build a monument, but from a standpoint of utility every detail will be studied. Let us make the Nicholls Hospital worthy of our growing city.

B. F. ACKERMAN, Chairman.

NORTHCOTT LAYS BLAME ON NIECE

Says Girl Movie Mad

Gordon Northcott Says Niece, Jessie, at the Bottom Everything.

AWAITS EXTRADITION.

Alludes To Prosecution of Himself and Mother as Farce.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Sept. 25.—(Canadian Press.) — Accusing his niece, Jessie Clark, of fabricating the "murder farm" charges at Riverside, Calif., Gordon Stuart Northcott issued a written statement from his cell in Oakalla prison here yesterday.

"After reading the charges in the newspaper I doubt the sanity of my father and Sanford Clark, my nephew," declared Northcott, who is charged with murdering four young boys on the Northcott chicken ranch at Riverside. "As for Jessie, I firmly believe her to be at the bottom of everything."

Northcott in another part of the statement referred to Cyrus Northcott, his father as a "dissatisfied husband seeking divorce grounds." Jessie was called a "movie, publicity mad girl from whose mind all these ideas came," and Sandford Clark, whose disclosure in Los Angeles brought about the investigation of conditions on the ranch, was branded as a "lazy, stupid boy, half cracked with reading too many detective thrillers and seeing too many wild west movies."

Prosecution a Farce

The alleged killer, who is being held here pending extradition proceedings, alluded to the prosecution as a 'farce,' and asked: 'Why blame all the disappearances and murders in California on me; it is a wonder they do not try to set Hickman free and blame me for the Parker murder or the St. Francis Dam tragedy on mother." His mother, Mrs. Sarah Louisa Northcott, is charged with complicity in one of the suspected murders. She is being held in Calgary where she was arrested last Wednesday.

It was apparent in the manifesto that Northcott is stung to the quick by the sobriquet "ape man," with which he has been dubbed. "If I, either mentally or physically am an ape man, then, according to the officers of the provincial police, they also must be living proof of the Darwin theory They state they consider me a perfectly normal boy."

OULTON STILL SERIOUSLY ILL

Expected Campbellford Man Will Recover From Self-Inflicted Wound.

FACES SERIOUS CHARGE.

(Examiner Staff Correspondence).

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 25.—Whether or not the common ordinary razor which rests in the hands of the police is an instrument of death or just a razor is a matter which still hangs in abeyance. It will depend entirely on whether or not Charles Oulton, at present confined to his bed in St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough, survives the effects of the wound which was inflicted on his throat by the razor in his own hand. The latest reports here are that he will recover, but it is also understood that he is still in a grave condition.

Ordinarily the razor would not attract any unusual attention. There are many such instruments on the shelves of the barber shops and in private homes throughout the length and breadth of the country. But the Boker blade which is being carefully guarded by the police is a gory weapon, far from the shiny blades upon which many men pride themselves. The blade of the razor has a square corner at the outside end and appears to be well sharpened. The black handle and blade alike are smeared with blood from end to end. It appears in the police office, just as it was picked off the floor where it fell from Oulton's hand when Officer Duncalfe struck his arm when he first appeared on the scene.

Should Oulton recover, as it is claimed that he will, Chief Light states that he will be forced to lay a serious criminal charge against him. Yesterday afternoon, the father and sister of the injured man motored to Peterborough to visit him.

NEW MODERATOR CONNECTED HERE

Rev. Dr. Gunn is Grandson of Late Thomas Short, of Keene.

Not only members of the various United churches, but citizens of Peterborough and district in general have a special interest in the career of Rev. Dr. W. T. Gunn, who was recently elected Moderator of the United Church of Canada at the General Council held at Winnipeg. Dr. Gunn is not only a native of Keene; he also is a grandson of Thomas Short who, in pre-Confederation days, was member for Peterborough County in the Legislative Assembly of United Canada, then comprising only the two provinces of Ontario and Quebec.

Mr. Short who lived at Keene where he owned a mill and a general store, was a native of Allandale, Northumberland, England. On establishing himself in Canada he entered politics and linked up with the "Clear Grit" party, advocating reform and complete religious and political freedom in the rough and ready political warfare that preceded the inauguration of the scattered colonies into the unit of the Dominion of Canada.

Although of English descent Thomas Short, like most of his North of England contrymen, in Canada, was attracted to the Reform party with its predominantly Scottish complexion The old time free school and free education, the stern keeping of the Sabbath, the equality of man, the purity of public life, the right of the people to rule themselves, already voiced in an extreme manner by William Lyon Mackenzie all of which were established and crystallized in the Upper Canadian Party of reform with Brown as its outstanding personality, found a loyal supporter in Thomas Short. He had all that stern idealism and hatred of compromise of his party which constituted its real power and virtue in the early days of Canadian liberalism, but which also had the effect of preventing the party from being widely accepted as the ruling force in the founding of the Confederation and its early development; this in spite of the fact that Brown and many of his followers were among the earliest and most enthusiastic supporters of Confederation.

Thomas Short never came into the front rank of Canadian statesmen; he espoused mistaken causes on more than one occasion; but he left behind him the name of an earnest patriot and man of integrity, free from the taint of greed of gain at a time when others of greater renown succumbed to the temptations

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BAILIEBORO, Sept. 25.—The fruit crop in this district is not going to be extensive this fall. The fall varieties of apples did not mature properly and a great number of the apples are small and scabby. The winter varieties are scarce, but what apples have developed seem to be of a good quality.

There is a fairly good pear crop this season and the pears are of an excellent quality.

Lakefield Couple Honored

PRESENTED WITH COMMUNITY SET OF SILVER BY NEIGHBORS

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Garbutt Given Surprise Party By Old Bethel Friends.

ADDRESS READ.

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 25 (Examiner Correspondence).—About fifty neighbors and friends surprised Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Garbutt at their home on Wednesday evening last, and presented them with a set of community flat silver and the accompanying address:

Lakefield, Ont., Sept 19, 1928.
Mr. and Mrs. Wellington Garbutt and family:

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Garbutt, Mildred and Jean.—We regret that circumstances led you to take your departure from our midst. Your friendliness and neighborliness was always an inspiration and a help, and you will be greatly missed.

No doubt you are already making new friends where you now live. We hope you will have many and sincere ones. We feel confidence, however, that your old friends that you have made through the years that have gone by, will not be forgotten but will hang "Among the beautiful pictures on memory's wall." We recall with pleasure the interest you have been taking in the church and church life. You, Mr. Garbutt, were a real help as steward on the quarterly official board and you, Mrs. Garbutt were treasurer of Bethel Ladies' Aid since its inception. Your example has been an inspiration and encouragement to others. We trust that here in Lakefield you may also find a place for labor in the service of the Master through the church. And any time you visit your old home, we will give you a welcome back to Bethel.

As a mark of our kindly feelings toward you we, a group of your old friends and neighbors are met here to-night. We trust that in your new home you may find even greater joys than your past has held for you. We wish you all long life, rich in spiritual things and trust that God's blessing will ever attend you. And as a mark of our good wishes we present to you this set of silver pieces.

Signed on behalf of your friends and neighbors by Mrs. H. C. Payne, Mrs. L. E. McCracken, Mrs. Charles Frankish.

Mr. and Mrs. Garbutt were completely surprised, for until the earliest arrivals appeared they had no suspicion of a surprise party and they were extremely touched by the evidence of esteem from the neighbors in the home where their entire married life had been spnet until their removal to the village in the summer. The company gathered in the Garbutt home on Wednesday night were bound by ties of real friendship, the kind where each shares the joys and sorrows of the other and gives of its best on every occasion. In groups of this kind the removal of the family becomes a community regret but the fact that the Garbutt family is still bound to Bethel by the fact that their son and his bride are resident on the homestead, softens the feeling of separtion.

Mr. Garbutt, in a short address, thanked the neighbors on behalf of himself and his wife and daughters, assuring them of the continued friendship with the old friends and of their appreciation of this tangible evidence of regard.

A social hour was spent, and refreshments were served.

BOOHER STARTLES COURT WITH PLEA OF "NOT GUILTY"

EDMONTON, Alta., Sept. 25 (Canadian Press). — Vernon Booher, who had previously confessed to killing his mother, brother, and two hired men on the Booher farm near Mannville, created somewhat of a sensation in the Supreme Criminal Court yesterday when, upon being arraigned, he pleaded "not guilty."

It was in the Booher case that Dr. Langsner, Viennese criminologist, assisted the Alberta provincial police and, after finding the weapon which Booher is alleged to have used, paved the way for the confession.

The youth is defended by Neil D. McLean, K.C., who has the assistance of J. D. Nicholson, until recently inspector of the Alberta provincial police. The majority of the opening session was given over to medical evidence from the Mannville, Alta., doctors who were called to the farm following the finding of the bodies.

CHURCH WOMEN RESUME WORK

Missionary Auxiliaries of Millbrook Churches Hold Opening Meetings.

PLAN FOR SEASON.

(Examiner Correspondence)

MILLBROOK, Sept. 25.—Mrs. (Canon) Allen was hostess at the rectory for the opening meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of Saint Thomas' church after the holiday season, when plans for the winter's activities were discussed by the large number of members who were in attendance.

The president, who was also the hostess for the meeting, was in the chair, and following the devotional period, the matter of holding a sale of homemade baking was considered, Saturday, September 29, being the date decided upon. Miss Rose Macnamara was appointed convenor of the committee in charge.

The chapter from the study book was taken by Miss Annie Armstrong, and Mrs. Westmacott gave a most comprehensive report of the Deanery meeting held at Fenelon Falls the previous week.

Report was made that new surplices are required for the choir boys, and Mrs. Westmacott, with four other members, was given charge of this matter.

Miss Etta Needler will be hostess for the October meeting of the W.A., anouncement to this effect being made during the social hour when Mrs. Allen served a dainty lunch, and music and social converse added to the pleasure of this part of the gathering.

W.M.A. Season Begins.

The Woman's Missionary Auxiliary of Grace Presbyterian church met in the church parlors on Wednesday afternoon, the re-opening meeting for the fall and winter months being well attended and an encouraging interest and enthusiasm being manifested in the activities under way for the season just beginning.

The report of the recent Presbyterial gathering at Campbellford was given by the secretary, Mrs. J. R. Eakins, and was much enjoyed. The reading from the study book was taken by Mrs. T. C. Ingram.

Plans for a combination social and work session to be held on September 26 at the home of Mrs. Charles Thorndyke were arranged, and the matter of appointing a new president to take the place of Mrs. R. J. Doak, resigned, was taken up, Mrs. W. T. A. Deyell being selected unanimously for the position.

Mrs. Doak's resignation was accepted with mcuh regret, her removal to Orillia to reside being the cause of her giving up the office which she Different reports have been given in regard to the expected yield but in general the yield will be average, with probably a little larger acreage.

An English girl, while walking on Sydstep Sands, found entangled in some seaweed a flat round box, of peculiar workmanship, made of oak. Inside the lid was the date, July, 1815—and round the extreme edge was the inscription "made from the main beam of the Bellerophon, that brought home Bonaparte."

OBITUARY

MRS. TRUDE WALDON

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 25.—(Examiner Correspondence).—St. John's Church was filled to capacity on Sunday afternoon for the funeral service of Mrs. Trude Waldon. Mrs. Waldon was well known in the village where, as a girl and woman, her life was spent and her sudden passing was a great shock to the community.

The funeral service was in charge of Rev. W. J. Creighton, M.A., rector of the parish and and he spoke briefly of the life and activities of the deceased lady who had borne for years an active part in parish activities; for years she had been a faithful worker in the W.A. and last year served as president and she was one of the four original memers of the A.Y.P.A. which was organized seventeen years ago; now only three are left. She was always active and radiated a spirit of cheefulness wherever she went, making friends everywhere. Especially was she attractive to children and her child friends were legion. For the past few months she was not in good health but she remained bright and cheery always. We are told in the Scriptures that the last enemy to be destroyed is death and so that her passing is a victory with the last enemy destroyed. We mourn not as those without hope but in the sure and certain hope of the resurrection of the body and of everlasting life.

Two favorite hymns were sung, "Unto the Hills Around Do I Lift Up My Longing Eyes" and "The Sands of Time are Sinking."

The pallbearers were Messrs. Thomas Cheyne, Reginald Murduff, Harry Penberthy, Charles Waldon, H. Wannamaker, Sr., and Harry Wannamaker, Jr. Interment was made in the Lakefield cemetery.

Mrs. Waldon was closely associated with many of the activities of St. John's parish, having been for nearly twenty years a member of the W. A. serving in several offices, and in 1927 was president. She was a charter member of the A.Y.P.A. and from 1915 to 1921 she was president of that organization and in 1927 she was appointed secretary but was compelled to resign a year ago because of her mother's precarious condition. For some years she was a teacher in the Sunday School and was prominent in other parish activities.

82-Year-Old Man Digs Sewer Trench

(Examiner Staff Correspondence)

CAMPBELLFORD, September 25. — While the paving program and operations were in progress and householders were installing sewer connections where necessary, one of Campbellford's older residents established a precedent which is envied by many of the younger men. James Moir, Centre Street, who is in his eighty-second year, dug his sewer trench from his house to connect with the street sewer in four half-days. The excavation was forty-six feet long, nine feet deep, and sufficiently wide to provide ample elbow room for workmen.

MRS. FRANK BREWER

TRENT RIVER, Sept. 26.—The funeral of the late Mrs. Frank Brewer was held Friday afternoon at 2:30. After a short service at the house the body was taken to the United Church where a service was conducted by the pastor, the Rev. W. R. Archer. The pall bearers were Messrs. John Waters, John Boyd, James Mann, Henry Pollock, Joseph Doupe, and Matthew Sedgwick. The hymns, "Jesus, Lover of My Soul", "Rock of Ages," and "Asleep in Jesus" were sung. The choir sang an appropriate number "Hold Thou My Hand." Rev. Mr. Archer chose his text from Hebrew 12:1 "Wherefore seeing we also are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses—let us run with patience the race that is set before us. We were to consider the cloud of witnesses to-day. The minister gave a list of great men of faith, as in reference to the deceased who had crossed the river at the narrowest place. Do we often think of our eternal home, if we want to find out there are countless places in the Bible to tell us. He spoke of men who had returned from Flanders Fields, how it was hard to get them to say anything about it only when their comrades were shot it seemed to them they were still watching over them, as we often feel our near and dear one's presence. The passage of scripture makes a distinct explanation of where we are to go, our part is clearly enunciated. Here we are enjoying the thing, without which we would do better. Our Heavenly Father has a right to expect certain things of us and we have a few days, comparatively speaking, we cannot afford to lose any time. White is symbolical of purity, are we washed clean enough to enter the Heavenly city? Let us come to the fountain where there is cleansing. Jesus said "I am come that ye might have life abundantly"—we have a Saviour who wants to give us life abundantly. The pastor offered sympathy to the bereaved husband and relatives.

The late Mrs Brewer was one who lived amongst flowers all her life and those kind of people understood better His messages to us. The minister closed the service by quoting a few verses from "For those I love in the Homeland"—Earth hath no sorrows that Heaven cannot heal.

The following attended from Toronto: Mrs. Baker, Mrs. Elliott, Mrs. Osborne, all sisters of Mrs. Brewster's and Messrs. Harry Baker, Willie Baker; Harry Ferguson, Freddie Baker, Eddie Baker, Albert Ferguson, all nephews of Mr. Brewer's.

The following sent floral tributes: Pillow from Mrs. Baker, Mrs. Elliott and Mrs. Osborne, Toronto; a spray from Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lane, Toronto; sheaf from Ladies' Aid of United Church; Mrs. George Ellis and Mrs. J. Cernrite; Mr. and Mrs. P. Logan, Havelock; Marie and the Christie family, Toronto; and a wreath of magnolia leaves and pink roses from neighbors, Trent River.

NEWS IN BRIEF

MOTORIST KILLED.

BRANTFORD, Sept. 26. — Wray Weaver Brantford was fatally injured a companion may die, and a third motorist escaped with minor hurts in a crash early yesterday morning. Sandy Pearson, Burford, was at first thought to be only slightly hurt He was rushed to his home At noon he was rushed to the hospital and little hope for his recovery is now held. A woman, whose name has been withheld by the police, was driving the car, it is stated. She escaped serious injury.

The auto left the road at the Hamiltonville curve on the Burford highway, crashed through the fence, and, after a double somersault, landed 60 feet away. Skid marks on the pavement, revealed two attempts to apply the brakes.

LITTLE HOPE OF SOLUTION.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Sept. 26.—The body of a woman was found in the heart of a lonely woods of Drummond Road in Stamford township on Sunday afternoon and last night the identity remained unsolved. The story of the tragedy will probably never be accurately written, for at a late hour last night the provincial police confessed that they were completely baffled, without a single clue to work upon. Their only hope of ever establishing the identity and thereby gaining a starting point from which to work towards a solution, lies in the possibility that some citizen may come forward and tell of another missing woman. Even so, the chances of identity are practically nil, for the body was buried at noon yesterday, and all that remains to work upon is a few shreds of clothing

The woman who cut corners with health

FOR a long time she had gotten by. Living on shoestring energy. Cutting corners with health. But now she was paying. Enthusiasm, fun, play—they were almost total strangers. Now, the least little thing tired her completely out.

What a tragedy that so many people let constipation go on neglected, doing its deadly work. Constipation saps vital strength. Thieves youth. Mars beauty. And it frequently leads to serious disease in the end.

And the pity is that it is so easy to relieve. So simple to prevent. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to bring prompt relief. Pleasant, safe prevention!

ALL-BRAN is effective and natural

Bulk or roughage relieves constipation in a natural way. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN furnishes bulk in generous quantity because it is 100% bran. It carries moisture throughout the intestines — gently exercising them, sweeping out poisonous wastes. Part-bran products seldom contain sufficient bulk to be completely effective. Doctors recommend ALL-BRAN. Because it is 100% bran.

So much better than harsh drugs

ALL-BRAN brings lasting relief. Far better than habit-forming pills and laxatives whose dose must be constantly increased and which are only temporarily effective. An appetizing cereal food. ALL-BRAN is delicious with milk or cream—with fruits or honey added. Use it in cookery, too. Mix it with other cereals. Sprinkle into soups. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal.

But be sure you have genuine Kellogg's. Don't take chances with part-bran substitutes. ALL-BRAN is sold by all grocers. Served at hotels, restaurants. On diners. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

Guaranteed! Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is sold with this definite guarantee: Eat it according to directions. If it does not relieve constipation safely, we will refund the purchase price.

THE BRITISH COMMISSIONER.

The arrival at Ottawa of Sir William Clark, Great Britain's first Commissioner to Canada, is an event of major importance, and the welcome extended him at the capital not only spoke of the people of the country generally but was a recognition of the significance of his appointment and the value of his office.

There does not seem any doubt of the fact that personal contact between representatives of the various parts of the Empire will do much to bring the Empire closer together and lead to a greater mutual understanding.

Sir William Clark's record gives every reason for confidence that his term of office at Ottawa will be valuable not only to Great Britain but to Canada.

His duties are important.

He will be a link between the Canadian Government and that of the United Kingdom, and thus the efficient performance of his duty means much to both countries.

As an expert in trade promotion, Sir William will inspire confidence, and while his office is not merely a trade commission, his qualifications in this as well as in other directions are recognized.

STONEY LAKE COMES THROUGH.

We knew that Stoney Lake would do it.

When British Columbians were telling the world about that startling sea-serpent-like "ogopogo" and the people of Sault Ste. Marie reported another type of marine monster, we sat back in breathless suspense, waiting for the Kawarthas to get into line, as we were confident they would.

It is necessary to confess that as the dog days passed with no sea-serpent story from Buckhorn or Bobcaygeon or Burleigh, our faith weakened a bit.

But we needn't have worried.

A little late, it is true, but Stoney Lake has come through with the report of a strange denizen of the deep that has all the necessaries of a real sea mystery.

Imagine a something with a head dog-like in appearance but bigger than the head of a collie and a body covered with hair, a something that raises its head high over the water and then dives like a loon.

Isn't that a beauty?

British Columbia can keep its tame old ogopogo, Toronto its man-eating eels and the rest of Canada its sea-serpents or what have you.

Stoney Lake's submarine dog is the prize natural history discovery of the year.

WINTER MOTORING.

The decision of the Ontario Highways Department to keep over 1,200 miles of provincial highway clear of snow during the coming winter, is another demonstration of the increase in governmental overhead occasioned by the rapid increase in motor traffic.

Winter motoring in Ontario, with the exception of urban driving, was almost an impossibility until a few years ago.

When the winter closed in and the roads became blocked the majority of automobiles hibernated until the highways were clear in the spring.

A small beginning toward keeping the main roads open was made in 1924 when only a few miles were cleared, and each year has seen a substantial increase in the work of snow removal until the total this winter will be over 1,200 miles, covering roads from one end of the Province to the other.

This service will be of great benefit to many motorists, but it involves a fairly heavy expenditure on work that was not ever thought of a decade ago, and may help to explain why an increased gasoline tax is soon to be officially announced by the Ontario Government.

THE NEW REGULATIONS.

Fishermen in Peterborough and the surrounding district would do well to take notice of the important changes in the fishing regulations covering this part of Ontario.

The most important of these is the extension of the closed season for bass and maskinonge, which will now run from October 1 until June 30, and the regulation making it illegal to take any fish by means of a boat or other floating devices or through the ice during the closed season for game fish.

These changes not only cut down the season during which bass and maskinonge may be caught legally, but it prohibits catching pickerel or any other fish from a boat except from July 1 to September 30.

And fishing through the ice is, of course, made illegal.

The new regulations will be welcome to most people.

The shorter open season for game fish will give the bass and maskinonge a chance, while barring the taking of other fish, except in the open season for game fish, will also serve to protect the latter.

The ban on fishing through the ice was necessary.

A few more seasons like last winter would have done infinite harm to the fishing resources of the district.

There may be some poaching through the ice next winter, but at least the wholesale slaughter of last season will be an impossibility.

A CLOSE ELECTION IS PREDICTED

If present indications are any criterion for what happens in the United States on November 6 next the presidential contest will be a close one. The Literary Digest which took a straw vote in 1924 which was 95 per cent. correct as to the popular vote and 99 per cent. correct as to the Electoral College make-up, is taking another such vote this year, in an endeavor to find out which way the wind is blowing. In 1924, The Digest took 16,000,000 votes throughout the nation; this year the aim is to take 19,000,000 straw votes.

The first few ballots have been received, about 32,000, and they favor Hoover two to one. "For a number of reasons," remarks the Digest, "it would be premature to consider these figures closely indicative of the final results." The real significance so far lies in the figures showing the turnover in the vote since the last election, for the poll provides an opportunity for the voter to state how he voted in the last election when he did so vote. The votes now counted show a turnover of 2,410 Democrats voting for Hoover and 4,455 Republicans voting for Smith. The States represented are only five in number, California, Maryland, Nebraska, New Jersey and Wisconsin. These, presumably, are those to which the ballots were first posted. Wisconsin shows a turnover of 150 Democrats to Hoover and of 961 Republicans to Smith. In New Jersey the switch is similar; 1,507 Democrats voted for Hoover and 2,829 Republicans for Smith. Should these figures represent the general situation they would indicate, as the Digest cautiously remarks, "a very close election."—St. Catharines Standard.

UNEMPLOYMENT.

Distress racks the mind of every loyal Britisher when he remembers that the tragic total of her unemployed reaches the stupendous figures of 1,250,000. Does this mean that Britain has lost her power of doing business? Does it imply that England has lost her power of adapting herself to new conditions? Has Great Britain become decadent?

What are the facts?

In many trades wages have advanced. Whole bodies of people, before the war, who were near the stage of actual want, who frequently were obliged to live below the line of decent dress and comfortable food and suitable lodging, now are in the class of the well-to-do. The old hideousness has gone out of life for them. General enlargement and betterment has replaced the old-time narrowness and hardness. In fact, outside certain areas, England is characterized by an air of prosperity.

Why is it, then, that there are 200,000 coal miners out of a job?

The answer is that the coal these men mined is not wanted. The men who used to buy this fuel are either buying coal in France and Germany, or they are using a substitute. Water power and electricity are replacing coal in thousands of factories, while oil is superseding coal in the navy. Miners are not operating their mines because their coal cannot be sold at a paying price. Hence the men are not employed in mining.

This change in the coal situation affects hundreds of other industries, with the inevitable result that still other men are thrown out of work. The very progress of the times has left many a man without a job. One machine now does the work done formerly by a dozen men. Only the men who are able to keep pace with the new jobs in skill, intelligence, and in adaptability, are able to keep themselves in remunerative labor. Only those who are fitted mentally, socially and morally for the jobs that are available, and who are willing to take up willingly and perseveringly the occupations the new day offers are keeping themselves from the ranks of the unemployed. Nothing is gained by saying that paying work must be found for men if they are not willing to put up with a good deal till they are comfortable in the new situation. This seems a hard saying, but it is very near the truth. The ways of trade and of employment have in them something of the inevitableness of a river, or of the tide or of time. Something can be done for others in the way of brotherliness and of benevolence, but society can best help men who help themselves.

Dealing with this question, Philip Gibbs makes this curious statement:

"The Dominions of Canada and Australia are not playing the game, in my frank opinion. They are not making things easy for English settlers."

"Making things easy!" Ye gods!

What of "making things easy" for the settlers in Old Ontario in the early days? Yet these settlers got on. Yet this great correspondent wishes Canadians to "make things easy." Tell that to men like Premier Gardiner, if you dare. It simply can't be done.

Continuing, Sir Philip has this to say:

"But there is a way to avoid the terrors of loneliness which seems to be the chief handicap of the city-bred man. That is to devise a big scheme of community settlement. Why not take 200,000 miners with their families and establish them in groups and small townships in touch with shops and cinemas and reading rooms and the amenities of modern life? These men of the mining population in England are as good human stuff as one could find in the whole world—good natured, hardy, self-respecting, full of generous qualities and humor, and hard workers if they get the chance. They are of the same stuff as their forefathers who built up a great empire."

That sounds very fine. The only thing about it is that it is plainly impossible. Human nature will not be thus aided. Should the Government of Canada be bereft of its senses long enough to attempt any such thing, the miners would not "stay put" for one week. If Gabriel himself presided over the scheme, these men would not be satisfied.

In Canada we provide access to opportunities. These opportunities may not smack of the amenities and the cinemas here referred to. Sweat and loneliness and many a disappointment, with the pinch of hunger thrown in, have all of them been paid by Canadian settlers and pioneers to win the necessities and the reasonable comforts of life now the lot of their children and grandchildren. Conditions have not changed for those who now find themselves in the ranks of the unemployed. Men must still endure hardships or perish. Nor can this stern law be evaded. Living and comfort can be found in the soil of Canada for all who are willing to plow it out, to dig it out, or to manufacture it out.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Don't forget Saturday's tag day. The Children's Aid Society's work deserves hearty support.

The Kiwanis Club is holding a cat show in connection with the Produced-in-Canada Fair. If there is a class for particularly noisy ones we think we know where we can get a couple of promising entrants.

It is not going to be a difficult task for Toronto to find accommodation for all the baseball trophies won this season by Queen City teams.

An English paper says Britain is rapidly going dry. And, strange to say, "Pussyfoot" Johnston is given not the least credit for that condition.

The Canadian Red Cross has sent 16 tons of foodstuffs to the homeless British subjects in the West Indies, thus giving another example of its willingness and ability to serve.

West York is to have a Federal by-election on October 29th. But the real fight took place a month ago when the opposition candidate was named.

The Question Box

I.L. Q.—Is Australia greater than Greenland?

A.—This is a catch question. Greenland looks far bigger on the square, flat maps on Mercator's projection, which represents the world as a cylinder, exaggerating the size of areas as they approach the poles and minimizing them as the approach the equator. Australia is in reality more than three times as large as Greenland.

Schoolboy. Q.—Will you be good enough to tell me who invented logarithms?

A.—John Napier.

GOD'S MINUTE.

For there is not a word in my tongue, but, lo, O Lord, Thou knowest it altogether. Search me, O God, and know my heart; try me and know my thoughts: And see if there be any wicked way in me, and lead me in the way everlasting.—Ps. 139: 4-23, 24.

* * *

O God, we give Thee thanks for Thy great goodness, and Thy unfailing kindness. Day after day Thou hast bestowed upon us gifts according to our need. Teach us so to use them that in all our doings we may glorify Thy name, and further Thy righteous cause.

Above all, Most Merciful Father, we bless Thee for Jesus Christ, Thy Son, our Saviour. For His sake, do Thou receive us, and grant us Thy Spirit, that we may be enabled to follow in His footsteps, and to grow in His likeness. Prepare us, Heavenly Father, for all the appointments of Thy wise and loving Providence. May we be found, in them all, diligent brave and faithful!

We commend to Thy love and care all that are dear to us, and all men everywhere in their need of Thee. May Thy gracious hand lead and keep them till the discipline of life is over! Then may we and they be brought into Thy glorious presence, and find a place in Thine everlasting kingdom, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

A Thought

SUGGESTIONS

"Man is an extremely suggestible animal," writes a modern philosopher. "Many times he follows the suggestions of his eyes and ears and does his thinking afterwards." There is much truth in this statement. It explains why we spend too much money when we are playing with a lot of spenders, and perhaps say a lot of things we never mean when we are in the company of the gossipy and garrulous. We are just naturally "suggestible animals" — "copy cats" as the children often put it.

But it is a poor rule that won't work both ways. Why not make our tendency to suggestibility help us instead of hinder us? What is to prevent our associating with people who know the value of money, who are industrious and ambitious, and who are honestly concerned about the finest things of life? Why not turn that trait of suggestibility to good account?

The greatest events of an age are its best thoughts. It is the nature of thought to find its way into action.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 25 (Canadian Press).—The demand from foreign buyers for grain here yesterday was again of a limited character and the volume of business was small.

The trade in cash grain in the local market was of a moderate volume and prices for wheat, barley, corn and oats were steady.

A feature of the flour trade was the stronger feeling that developed in the market for winter wheat grades, and prices were marked up ten cents per barrel. Spring wheat flour was steady under a quiet demand.

A firm feeling prevailed in the market for all lines of millfeed owing to the continued good demand. The inquiry for standard grades of rolled oats showed some improvement and a more active trade was done.

There was no actual change in the local egg situation, prices being fully maintained under a good steady demand and a fairly active trade was done in a jobbing way. The receipts were 1,079 cases.

The condition of the market for imported beans was unchanged, the undertone being very firm owing to the continued scarcity of supplies, and the small quantities on the way. There was a steady demand for small lots to meet immediate wants, and sales of choice white hand-picked were made at $4.20 to $4.40 per bushel, ex-store, and car lots to arrive were quoted at $4 per bushel, ex-track.

The trade in butter showed no improvement and in consequence an easier feeling developed in the market and prices were a fraction lower. The receipts were 723 packages.

Prices for all grades of cheese were steady, but the volume of business small owing to the fact that English importers did not respond to any extent to the offers made exporters over the week-end, and spot buyers showed little interest. The receipts were 5,339 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Sept. 25 (Canadian Press).—Frost damage reports from some of the best sections of the corn belt, accompanied by a forecast of frost again last night, hoisted the corn market yesterday. An exception was corn for September delivery, which at one time yesterday showed a drop to 13 cents a bushel under last week's top level, much enlarged arrivals of corn in Chicago yesterday available to fill September contracts here, weakened prices for this month's delivery.

Closing quotations on corn were irregular, ranging from 1¼ cent net lower to 1⅝ cents advance. Wheat future deliveries finished unchanged to cent off; oats unchanged to ¼ cent down, and provisions unchanged.

At first the corn market averaged lower, with traders giving chief attention to the fact that yesterday's receipts of corn in Chicago amounted to 355 cars, contrasting sharply with 53 cars a week ago, and 59 cars last year. This led to talk of likelihood that month-end deliveries on September contracts would be of much greater magnitude than heretofore expected. As a consequence, the price of September tumbled, and new crop months were also bearishly affected. The situation, however, was quickly reversed.

Crop damage reports, especially from Illinois and Indiana, were received, telling of freezing weather causing injury to corn.

Heavy frost last night in surplus producing parts of the corn belt tended to stimulate buying, and to lift prices. Under such circumstances new crop deliveries of corn scored quick gains, and September delivery which represents last year's crop, recovered most of the severe decline which earlier in the day had taken place. A decrease of 667,000 bushels in the Corn visible supply was also a late subject of notice. Oats prices were but little changed, the market showing a firm undertone.

Wheat rallied with corn, but met with heavy late selling on account of 7,500,000 bushels increase of the U. S. wheat visible supply total. Hedge selling from the southwest was also a bearish influence at times, and the wheat movement in Canada continues immense. On the other hand, export bids yesterday for wheat from North America were higher than of late, and the amount of wheat on ocean passage showed a falling-off. Besides, Minneapolis reports said that upward of 1,000,000 barrels of flour have been sold by Minneapolis mills. The cash wheat trading basis here finished higher for choice hard and red winter grades. Cash demand was good, and red wheat quotations showed 3 cents to 5 cents advance.

Provisions were easier, sympathizing with a downturn in the value of hogs.

BUTTER AND EGGS.

TORONTO, Sept. 25.—Quotations on eggs on the Toronto wholesale market started the week unchanged from the preceding week's closing prices. It is predicted that no alterations in the prevailing quotations are likely for at least several days. Some of the wholesale dealers are pointing to the fact that shipments of eggs will be coming in increasing quantities from British Columbia as a factor in preventing quotations in Ontario advancing at any substantial rate or even on a par with the price advances recorded during the autumn months last year. Wholesale quotations on butter and cheese are steady. Provision prices are slightly easier in the smoked meats division, being marked down from one to two cents on hams.

COURT PRIMROSE IS RE-ORGANIZED

Mount Pleasant Branch of C. O. F. Has Been Dormant For Five Years.

MOUNT PLEASANT, Sept. 22. (Examiner Correspondence). — Court Primrose, No. 250, of the Canadian Order of Foresters is being re-organized after a lapse of a little more than five years without a meeting, existing in a dormant condition during this period, with only the financial secretary, J. V. Sisson, and Treasurer J. F. Handley still carrying on the financial part to the present date.

Owing to the strenuous efforts of T. H. Henderson, organizer from Bobcaygeon, during the past two weeks, the Canadian Order of Foresters is going to be re-organized.

A meeting was held in the Women's Institute Hall on Wednesday evening, at which a large number of the old members were present, and seemed very enthusiastic over the fact that the court was being re-organized. Six new members were initiated into the Order at this meeting, with the initiatory services in charge of T. H. Henderson, organizer. During the meeting it was decided to hold another meeting on Monday evening, October 1, when several other applicants will be initiated.

The community in general is very much pleased that Court Primrose, No. 250 is being re-organized and T. H. Henderson, organizer, who has made a thorough canvas of the neighborhood claims that prospects are bright for several more applicants. The last meeting held in Court Primrose, No. 250, was May 21, 1923. The officers in office at that time were as follows:

C.R., B. Fee; V.C.R.; H. Jamieson; Rec. Sec., N. Fee; Fin. Sec., J. V. Sisson; Treas., J. F. Handley; Chaplain, H. Sisson; S.W., M. Handley; J.W., B. Morden; S.B., B. McPherson; J.B., C. Morden. Auditors, J. A. Vance and H. O. Best. Trustees, H. O. Best, J. V. Sisson, J. F. Handley. Marshal, J. A. Vance.

J. A. Vance of Millbrook and H. Smith of Emily attended the meeting on Wednesday evening.

To Present Play

The ladies of Fairmount will present their popular play, "Strictly Business," in the Woman's Institute Hall, Mount Pleasant, under the auspices of the Mount Pleasant Women's Institute on Wednesday evening, September 26.

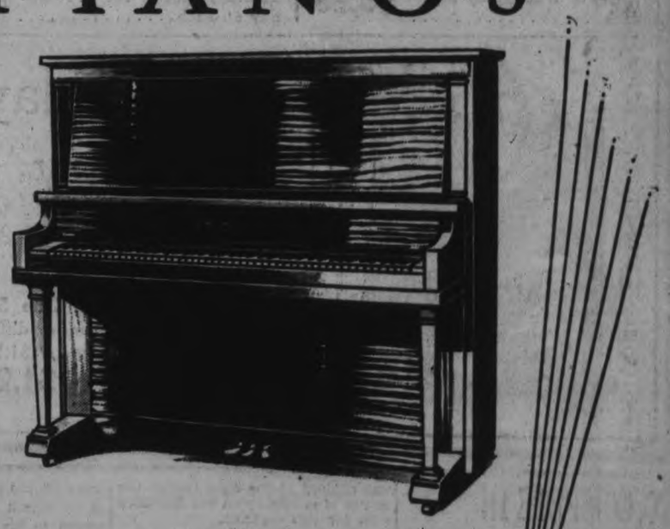
HEINTZMAN PIANOS



FAMILY tradition and a deep love of craftsmanship is plainly evident in the Heintzman Piano of today. Nearly eighty years ago a Heintzman laboured to give the world a worthy instrument. From that generation to the present time, his ideals, vision and genius have been carried on. Discovery, improvement, success . . . then further improvement and greater success. On and on until today the Heintzman is honored wherever music is known.

Famous artists laud it as "the greatest of Pianos" —and in modest homes and apartments it is loved for the joy and relaxation its presence brings.

The Heintzman is made in various sizes. Convenient terms arranged, balance spread over 2½ years. Used pianos accepted in part payment.

THE WHATNOT

A Place for Little Bits of Everything of Local Interest

By MARION

Every day we are discovering something more which will benefit the housewife in the daily duties which confront her. We have had, too, quite a number sent in by Examiner readers. I noticed last week that a O.I.J., of Monaghan Road, Peterborough was awarded the weekly prize for household discoveries by a widely circulated paper. I wonder if she wouldn't send us some too, for I am sure that the women of Peterborough would greatly appreciate any new discovery which would make their tasks lighter.

• • • • • •

O.I.J.'s suggestion was home made candy for the children. It consisted of one pound of raisins, one pound of prunes, soaked over night, one pound of dates, and one pound of figs. The fruit is washed, stoned and put through a food chopper, and a little lemon or other fruit juice added and if desired, cinamon is also added for flavoring. This is rolled into balls about the size of a large marble and is rolled in fruit sugar.

This will satisfy the craving for sweets natural to children and gives them something that is an excellent food without the ill effect of candy made with sugar.

• • • • • •

As soon as I read the above recipe I thought the children of Peterborough might be better benefited by it than some of the so-called "all day suckers," which they devour in about three minutes. I know some children in one section of this city who will not even go to the store or on one single errand for their mother without a cent or a nickle for candy. Can anyone expect these children to grow up healthy if they are allowed from babyhood to destroy their appetites by eating sweets.

• • • • • •

Then I know some other children living in the same section of the city, too, who gladly run to the store for mother and neighbors too, sometimes, without the thought of "pay." Even if you ask them to "keep the change," they will always bring it back. Do these children like candy?—equally as well, but they weren't brought up from the cradle with candy in their hands. They are allowed candy, or rather chocolates, either by the bar or in candy form, which is much better for them, at proper intervals during the day—not before breakfast or immediately preceding a meal.

• • • • • •

Now that the apple season has arrived, housekeepers will do well to use these freely in the daily menu. As a breakfast dish they are delicious either baked or as an applesauce. For luncheon they are good sauted. The harvest apple which appears on the market about this time, makes a savory luncheon dish if washed and cut into quarters or eighths and cooked in butter and sugar until tender. For dinner apples can be combined with other fruit or vegetables to make wholesome salads, a delicious combination being diced apples, celery and nuts on a bed of shredded lettuce. As a delectable dessert the apple has many possibilities and no peer.

Is father's favorite chair a "walking" rocker? And does it squeak each time it moves a half inch? When he settles dow under a reading lamp with the sport page in front of him it is very annoying to find himself half way across the room, but far more annoying is the squeak to the people who sit nearby. If the rocker is rubbed with sand paper and polished with a bit of wax the chair will move more easily over the rug and will leave no mark.

• • • • • •

No longer does Mrs. Smith formally request the pleasure of Mrs. Jones' company, etc. She simply writes, "Bridge" and "at 3 o'clock Thursday," on her visiting card and mails it. Besides being simpler it looks jollier.

• • • • • •

Nothing is smarter at the moment than to have one's costume jewelry match the frock. More and more one sees evening dresses with rhinestones, emerald, ruby, crystal and jade shoulder straps and ornamental buckles. Mother of Pearl is coming in again as a trimming for fall dresses. It is used for buttons, brooches and buckles both on dresses and hats is attached at the ends of a great number of matching scarfs.

• • • • • •

Have you ever torn a very fine piece of linen or some cloth especially prized on your clothes basket while hanging them on the line If you have you can sympathize with someone else who did the same thing the other day. But if she had had her basket lined with the ready made lining which can be obtained, it would have prevented the wicker from catching and tearing her clothes. Adjusting it is a simple matter and the saving in clothes and temper is really worthwhile.

BABY CONTEST IS ALL READY

Chairman Says Arrangements Are Complete But Entries Not Yet Required.

START OCTOBER 5.

"Arrangements are so far completed for the Baby Competition that we could put on the contest to-morrow," The Examiner was to-day told by John I. Allen, chairman of the committee entrusted by Kiwanis Club with this part of the program for the Produced in Canada Exhibition.

"Prize money has been contributed by G. A. Gillespie, E. A. Peck, M.P.; E. H. D. Hall, K.C.; Mrs. R. M. Weddell, W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P.; J. K. Hughes, Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C.; W. J. Kent, G. Matthews, R. R. Hall, K.C.; W. C. Beamer, A. Brown, and F. L. Roy will donate a photograph. "Then," continued Mr. Allen, "Mrs. Frank Lynch has arranged for nurses to be in attendance from St. Joseph's Hospital and Nicholls Hospital, and Dr. Edmund King of Toronto, who was chief judge at the Canadian National Exhibition, will officiate here."

There will be four classes this year, two for boys and two for girls. They are: Boys, six to twelve months, and twelve to eighteen months. Girls, six to twelve months and twelve to eighteen months. There will be a Sweepstake Baby, to which Mr. Roy offers a framed photograph done in oils.

Entries for the competition will open on October 5 and close October 13. On October 18, Dr. King will give a talk to the mothers, immediately after lunch.

Associated with Mr. Allen on the committee are W. H. Dickin and C. H. Saunders.

MARION'S MAIL

Address correspondence to Marion, at The Examiner Office.

"Dear Marion,

This is my first letter to your page. First I must say that your stationery certainly is lovely, and that I enjoy your page very much. I have been obtaining helps from you and others and probably I can help someone.

Here is how I can Duchess apples. Peel and core an eight-quart kettle of apples; add two dessert spoons of soda and cover with water and let stand over night. In the morning, drain the apples and make a syrup of eight cups of sugar and three or four cups of water. When this is boiling, drop in the apples. While they are cooking skim the foam which forms on the top of the apples. When they are cooked (I try them with a fork) seal while hot.

I don't think this recipe is too late, as Duchess apples are late this year.

How many stitches should I cast on a needle to knit the back of a sweater for a boy of nearly four years?

Thanking you,
Yours truly,
M. B. H."

Thank you, M.B.H. for your letter and for the recipe. I think someone was asking me a few days ago about Duchess apples, and your help comes in very nicely. I'm glad to hear from Thomasburg.

About the sweater; is knitted a sweater for a boy of nearly four recently, using 60 stitches across the back where the bottom was ribbed 3 knit 3 purl. This boy was not big for his age, so perhaps you would be better to add 6 stitches. Did you ever try knitting the body, using four needles?

• • •

"Dear Marion,

Would you please send me the printed instructions for the ribbon flowers and the camiknicker?

Are there any new styles in nightgowns? I have a couple to make up for a church fair and would like to make them up in the very latest style. Could you send me any patterns, or give me any suggestions? One is a flowered crepe and the other a dimity.

I want to thank you for the other helps you sent me, and also for the help I know I will receive in reply to this letter.

Sincerely yours,
Mrs. F. E. L."

The new supply of camiknicker instructions was printed a few days ago, and I was glad to be able to send copies out to all who had asked and been disappointed.

The dimity nightgown might be made up with round yoke. The body in one I saw recently was a little fuller than the round yoke and was fastened on with clusters of tucks at front and back. A straight band was around the armhole (you might vary this by using lace for the band and for the yoke).

The crepe might be brought up in points over the shoulder with a flower or bow on one shoulder. I have seen a crepe de chine nightgown with a quite deep yoke, more like an empire waist line. The yoke had flowers or rosettes of lace and ribbon placed irregularly on one side.

I don't know whether you received the pattern for the new pointed slip, which may also be used as a nightgown pattern, so I am sending you a copy, also directions for making ribbon flowers suitable for finishing lingerie. I have some copies of both left if other readers are interested.

I'm glad to be of service, Mrs. L, and please write again.

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY:

SALLY LINGFIELD, dancer at the Faun, a London night club.

JOSH AKERS, a waster, with whom Sally was once in love.

POPPY, Sally's roommate, another dancer at the Faun.

PHILIP SANDERSON, rich young man of wealth, who early one morning, when drunk, runs over Sally, badly injuring her. Sanderson loves Sally.

SOMETIMES, Sanderson's dog.

MRS. KIFF, his landlady.

JOSH AKERS, hearing of Sally's probably permanent injury, says he is through with her. Sanderson assumes her care, and establishes her in a cottage with Mrs. Kiff. She becomes somewhat reconciled to her lot and is kinder to Sanderson, but she meets young GARRY NAIRN, the rector's son, and they fall in love with each other. In the meantime Poppy dies. Sanderson and Garry persuade Sally to go to London and let a specialist operate on her, and Garry comes tobid her goodbye. Later he meets Josh Akers at a club after leaving Sally at a hospital for her operation. Josh speaks disparagingly of Sally's past. Both Garry and Sanderson worry over Sally's danger.

XXXV.—Rivals Together

Both men felt strained and unnatural, and both were trying their hardest to conquer the feeling that they were jealous rivals, and yet they had a great respect and a most unwilling regard for each other.

Garry got into his coat.

"Shall we go?" he asked.

"Yes."

They went down to the dining-room and had strong coffee, and by ten o'clock were at the nursing home. They were shown into a room with green blinds drawn against the bright sunshine, and Philip walked over to the window and nervously pulled one up by its cord.

"Like a damned funeral," he growled.

Garry Nairn said nothing. His face was very pale and his eyes were tragic, as if he were exercising great self-control. He felt like a man in a dream, and his heart seemed to be throbbing up in his throat, choking him. He was torn between his love for Sally and his jealous doubts, which had grown a thousandfold during the long, wakeful hours of the night.

"Never smoke without fire." The axiom haunted him. He had deliberately tortured himself by remembering every trivial thing Sally had told him of her past life. The men who had loved her—the one man whom she herself admitted having loved in return. Was that man Akers or Philip Sanderson? Or was she a woman who could love many men?

Garry had admired Philip's dogged devotion to Sally, seeing in its expression nothing but unselfish service, but now his vision was distorted. He remembered that when he had remarked on it to Sally she had answered sharply that Philip was doing no more than he ought to do. What had she meant by that? It was as if Garry looked back on every happy moment he had spent with her, and saw it all through a merciless magnifying-glass.

He stood with his back to the mantelpiece in the darkened waiting-room. In a moment that door would open and someone would come in to tell them—what?

Garry dared not speculate. He looked at Philip Sanderson, pacing up and down the room like a restless giraffe in a cage, and suddenly he smiled, struck by the incongruity of the situation. Two men who both loved Sally, outwardly friends, but inwardly God alone knew what deadly enemies, awaiting the verdict on her life.

"They seem to enjoy keeping people on the rack," Philip said grimly, as if he could read his companion's thoughts.

"Yes."

The silence fell again, to be broken presently by a woman's step in the hall outside and by the opening of the door. Sally's little nurse stood there. She was smiling happily as she looked from one man to the other, but her eyes were kindest as they rested on Philip Sanderson.

"Miss Lingfield is even better than we had hoped," she said cheerily. "And one of you may come up for a few moments to see her."

She paused, her eyes still on Philip.

"I am sorry, but it must be only one of you," she said again.

The two men exchanged glances; then Garry Nairn spoke hurriedly—almost pleadingly, it seemed.

"You go, Sanderson. Of course you must go."

"Nonsense. I——"

"You go," Garry said again. "Perhaps later in the day I——"

The nurse shook her head.

"I am sorry, but the doctor will only allow one visitor today. Tomorrow, perhaps."

"I can wait till tomorrow," Garry said hurriedly. He felt as if he had been given an unexpected respite in which to clear the chaos in his brain and sift his emotions to a solid foundation.

He gave a deep sigh of relief when, without another word, Philip Sanderson followed the little nurse from the room, and yet directly the door closed upon them he made an involuntary movement as if to follow them. His jealous imagination went with them up to Sally's room, and stood with them beside her bed.

Which of them would Sally have expected to see? Garry Nairn clenched his teeth. He had so often seen Sanderson with Sally in his arms, carrying her with careful tenderness, and even then he had been ashamed of his own jealous emotions; but they had been as nothing in comparison with the storm of passionate hatred and resentment which seemed to be growing now in his heart with every passing moment.

He knew that if the thing which Akers had said of Sally was true he could never marry her. It was not that his code of morals forbade him—Garry Nairn was not the man to judge any woman—it was just that the blow to his ideal of her would be too crushing and complete ever to be forgotten or healed.

He felt like a man who has been given a beautiful plant, and who finds before he has actually possessed it that another has owned it before him and cut away the blossom.

His unwilling respect and admiration for Philip Sanderson seemed to be dying in a fire of hatred and loathing which he tried in vain to check. Sanderson was a man of the world, with more than his share of experience, and the fact that he and Akers had once been friends went heavily into the balance against him. Garry took up his hat and tip-toed to the door, opening it softly. The hall was deserted, and a boy in buttons was busily polishing the letter-box.

Before he was actually conscious of it, Nairn had passed him and was walking rapidly away down the road, carrying his hat in his hand. He felt like a man escaping from a great danger—a man to whom a respite had been brought at the eleventh hour.

And upstairs in Dr. Brodman's Nursing Home Philip Sanderson stood in a cool, darkened room beside Sally's bed and looked down at her.

There was the faint, haunting odor of chloroform still in the air, mingling with the scent of the flowers which he and Garry had brought in last night. Only last night? It seemed a lifetime ago.

Sally was lying very still in a curiously contracted position, as if a giant hand had pulled and racked her slender body into some strange grotesque shape, but she opened her eyes when the nurse spoke to her, and smiled fainly when she saw Philip, although he was quick to notice how her gaze instantly travelled past him, as if she had expected to see someone else.

The little nurse saw it, too, and said gently:

"Only one visitor today, dear, so of course Mr. Sanderson came."

She moved her head a little towards him, and the nurse turned to the door, whispering to Sanderson as she went:

"Only five minutes."

He stood stiffly erect until she had gone, like a giant in a fairy-story guarding a captive princess; then he bent and took Sally's hand in his thin fingers.

"How do you feel, Sally?"

Tears quivered up into her blue eyes.

"It hurts," she whispered.

Sanderson went down clumsily on his knees beside her.

"I wish I could bear it for you, Sally." He felt the slight pressure of her hand in his. The tears lay wet on her cheeks, and he wiped them awkwardly away with his handkerchief.

"What did the doctor say?" Sally asked.

"That everything is better than he had dared to hope," Sanderson answered.

"I'm glad."

Although she had not mentioned Garry Nairn, his presence seemed to be between them, not to be denied or ignored, and after a moment Sanderson said with an effort:

"Garry sent his love. He's downstairs. They would not let us both up. I wanted him to come, but he insisted that I should."

"Of course."

"He will come tomorrow," Sanderson said.

She made no answer to that—she just lay still, her eyes closed.

Presently the footstep of the little nurse sounded outside, and Sanderson hurriedly bent and kissed Sally's hand and then her cheek.

"I wish I could bear it for you," he said again hoarsely. "I would so gladly."

"I know."

A moment later he was downstairs again, and the boy in buttons was telling him that Garry had gone.

"Without leaving a message?" Sanderson asked.

"He never said anything, sir. Just went away as if he was in a great hurry."

"Oh, very well."

It was jealousy, of course, Sanderson told himself grimly—jealousy for which one could not blame him. But Garry Nairn's turn would come tomorrow, and he would be given a far greater welcome.

LYRICS OF LIFE

PLEASURE

The gull is always flying over
The rolling waves, not fields of clover,
And, as the seagull loves the sea,
The eagle seeks the highest tree.
So why should I attempt to measure
The thing that gives my brother pleasure?

As I grow older, less and less
I try defining happiness,
Or criticize the gull or swallow
Because I do not care to follow.
I let the eagle seek the pine
And find his joy, as I do mine.

And all I ever ask you, brother,
Is that your joy shall pain no other,
The rule, I think, that God employs
To measure all our human joys.
But God will not forgive the laughter
If he should hear a sob right after.

so freely offered in this young and growing country.

Dr. Gunn who is of Scottish parentage represents what has been called the third partner in the Union. He originally entered the church with a view to service in the foreign field. Before studying for the ministry he engaged in newspaper work in Montreal where he received a training which he now puts to excellent account as editor of the United Church Record and Missionary Review. His early tastes for editorial work is also seen in his articles on Church Union and later as head of the Committee on Literature in the United Church. He received his education in Montreal and held pastorates at Cowansville, Que., and Embro, Ont. In his own denomination he was the first full-time official to be appointed. For nineteen years he was the secretary of the Union and among other things had charge of the campaign to raise the Jubilee Fund. He and Mrs. Gunn accompanied Dr. Endicott, his immediate predecessor as Moderator, on a visitation of the Mission Fields of Asia and Africa.

His nomination for the office of Moderator was proposed by General Ross of Montreal and seconded by Dr. Kirby of Calgary. His election was a unanimous choice and agreeable to the title frequently given him as "the best loved member of the United Church of Canada."

GIANTS AND CARDS RETAIN POSITIONS

CARDS STILL GAME AHEAD

New Yorkers Stage Batting Spree Against Cincinnati To Win 7-4 Victory.

HOMERS FEATURE.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25—(Canadian Press).—A deluge of home runs that swamped Ray Kolp, Cincinnati right hander, enabled the New York Giants to remain in the thick of the National League pennant race, a game behind the St. Louis Cardinals. The Giants took yesterday's game from the Reds by a 7 to 4 score.

All seven of New York's runs came on homers into the right field stands four of them in all. Two of the circuit drives came from the bat of Frank O'Doul. In the first inning he broke the ice with a four bagger with no one on base and in the third he repeated the act, scoring Welsh ahead of him. Mel Ott followed O'Doul's first homer with another just like it. Jackson drove out the fourth homer of the day to break a tie score in the eighth. This wallop accounted for three runs as Lindstrom and Terry had singled before Jackson came to bat.

Larry Benton, New York's pitching star, won his twenty fifth victory of the season but failed to show his usual effectiveness. The Reds hit freely off his delivery, getting eleven safeties, but none of them went for four bases and teh brilliant errorless support the Giants gave their moundsman pulled him out of several difficulties.

Except for the four homers he yielded, Kolpp pitched an effective game for the Reds. He gave only nine hits, and few of the five that did not go into the stands counted.

Get 14 Hits

A savage batting attack that netted fourteen hits by the St. Louis Cardinals at Brooklyn kept them a game ahead of the Giants as the league leaders easily defeated the Robins by 9 to 2 score.

Pitching a steady game, Grover Cleveland Alexander, veteran St. Louis hurler, never was in serious danger after the third inning when his mates gave him a lead.

Jim Bottomley again delivered the longest blow of the contest when he drove his thirty first home run of the season over the right field wall in the fifth inning to take the league lead in four baggers.

It was his second homer in two days and put him one ahead of Hack Wilson of Chicago in the race for the home run crown. Nobody was on base at the time.

Brooklyn used three pitchers in a vain attempt to stop the St. Louis attack. Jim Elliott started the game but began wavering in the 3rd when his rival moundsman started a three run rally with a clean single. Douthit's single and High's sacrifice fly put Alexander around the bases. Douthit stole second and scored on Frisch's single. Frisch stole third and scored on Bottomley's infield out when he collided with Gooch and the Brooklyn catcher dropped the throw to the plate. The collision gave Gooch a bad shaking up and he had to leave the game.

Elliott passed out of the picture when the Cards continued their attack in the third opening with a double by Wilson and a single by Maranville. Ehrhardt stepped in here and yielded two hits to Alexander and Douthit, each of which drove in a run. Moss Relieved Ehrhardt and finished the game, although he failed to stop the Cardinals' batting attack. He yielded four runs and six hits, including Bottomley's homer.

The Robins got only eight hits off Alexander, they had a brief lead when they scored in the first.

Work Overtime

The Pittsurgh Pirates at Boston had to work overtime to get an even break from the Braves yesterday. The visitors took the first game 3 to 1 in ten innings on Adam's triple, singles by Lloyd Waner and Traynor and a poor throw by Brown.

In the closing contest, Bob Smith held the Pirates to seven hits and the Braves took the game 4 to 2. Mueller and Bell were the leaders at bat while Lloyd Waner's shoestring catch off Spohrer's bat in left centre in the eighth was the fielding feature.

Opening their farewell appearance of the season in Philadelphia, the Chicago Cubs defeated the Phillies 7 to 6. A Phillies flare-up in the ninth with four hits and an error gave the tail enders three runs and Chicago a scare. Percy Lee Jones and Hal Carlson were called from the bull pen to halt the Phillies.

Red Wings Get Royal Welcome

ROCHESTER N.Y., Sept. 25.—The Rochester Red Wings, champions of the International League by virture of four straight wins over the Montreal Royals, were welcomed home yesterday by a crowd of loyal fans and a blaring band.

Each player was introduced to the fans by Frank Rutz, local sportsman, who has marshalled opening day parades for years. They were then loaded into automobiles which paraded through the centre of the city.

Warren C. Giles, president of the club, smilingly gave all credit to Billy Southworth, manager of the Wings, who won a pennant in his first managerial berth in the league.

REV. W. J. MARK IS GIVEN CALL

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Calls New Westminster Man.

SALARY INCREASED.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 25 ((Examiner Staff Correspondence).—Only two ballots were required last night when the congregation of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church met last night for the purpose of calling a minister. There were one hundred and nineteen members present and of these, ninety-nine voted the first time and an even hundred ballots were cast on the second vote. The Rev. Dr. D. A. Thompson, Hastings, presided. There were six candidates for the pulpit, and the final vote was in favor of the Rev. W. J. Mark, B.A., of New Westminster, B.C. There was only a small majority, but a motion made after the final results had been announced, made the call unanimous. The lists were left for the signature of members after the close of the meeting.

There was also some alteration made to the stipend. For many years, the Presbyterian church here has paid a certain salary to their minister and allowed him a free telephone and livery bill. It was decided last night to discontinue the free telephone and livery bill and increase the salary accordingly. There was some opposition to this move, but teh motion carried.

Before taking the first vote, it was necessary to elect a secretary and scrutineers. George Whitlaw was appointed secretary and the scrutineers were W. W. Clarke, A. C. Connor and Dr. G. A. Hay. The six ministers, whose names were to be voted on were, in the order of nomination, the Rev. Forbes Robertson, the Rev. Mr. Sinclair, the Rev. Mr. Mark, the Rev. Mr. Galbraith, the Rev. Mr. Gibson, and the Rev. Mr. Woodside. During the nominations there was some hesitation and a discussion arose as to the proper course of procedure. When this had been settled, the nominations continued and the first ballot was taken. The results showed that the Rev. W. J. Mark and the Rev. Forbes Robertson had such a wide advantage that the other four names were left off the list for the second ballot. The result of this gave the call to the Rev. Mr. Mark, with a small majority. On motion of J. D. Cumming and J. A. Anderson, the call was made unanimous.

The matter of a stipend was the next order of business and after some discussion chiefly between J. A. Anderson, G. A. Hay, R. J. Allan and James Allan, a motion was made by J. A. Anderson that the salary be placed at $2,100 with no allowance for telephone and livery, this amount to provide for a vacation of four weeks. William Cock and John McGregor put an amendment to have the salary remain at $2,000, with the telephone and livery extra. The motion carried with a large majority.

This closed the regular business of the meeting and as had been previously agreed, the matter of a fowl supper was discussed. The meeting concluded without anything definite having been decided upon. The discussion was, whether or not the local church would hold the usual fowl supper this year.

FEAR DEPLETION OF TROUT SUPPLY

Members of Chamber of Commerce Propose Protection While Spawning.

Another step toward the preservation of salmon trout that inhabit the lakes and streams in Peterborough and district has been decided upon by the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce. In addition to etxending its sympathy and co-operation to the Peterborough County Fish and Game Protective Association in any action which it may take in the matter, the Chamber has decided upon a resolution which will urge the annual meeting of the Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce (being held at North Bay in October) to petition the Provincial Government for new and more stringent legislation to protect the salmon trout during thes pawning season. Such lakes as Catchacoma and Missasauga are being gradually depleted, is the contention of residents of the district who declare that a continuance of the taking of these fish at the preson can but mean early exterminasent rate during the spawning seation.

The trout spawn about October 15 and remain in the shallow water to protect their spawn for a considerable period. During that time, according to one official, they will strike at almost any bait within their vision and are consequently much too easily and often caught.

DEMAND GROWS FOR NEW STAMP

Air Mail Apparently Appeals To Peterborough People.

SYMBOLIC DESIGN.

Having been accorded official recognition for use on all air mails throughout the United States as well as the Dominion, the new Canadian air mail stamp went on sale at the Peterborough Post Office on Friday, September 21, since which date there has been a noticeably growing demand. Through its use, a letter is designated for the speedier medium of travel—should it weigh one ounce, a single stamp (they cost five cents each) is all that is necessary to assure the sender of safe delivery.

An additional charge of ten cents is made for each additional ounce. That is, a letter weighing two ounces will require three of the new stamps. It is not necessary to have the regular postage stamp on the envelope along with an air mail stamp, but should the sender desire to have his letter go by air mail, he may place on it the same value in ordinary stamps and write "Air Mail" on the envelope. This provision is made to accommodate, when one chances to run short of the air stamps.

In size, the new postage "stickers" compare with the Diamond Jubilee stamp, though the coloring is brown rather than green. Two winged figures are seen joining hands above the earth, while over them flies an airplane.

LEADERS LOSE LEAGUE GAMES

Relative Status of Yanks and Athletics Remains Unchanged.

SIX TO PLAY.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25—(Canadian Press).—The relative status of the New York Yankees and the Philadelphia Athletics in the race for the American League pennant remained unchanged yesterday.

The Yanks lost the second game of the Cleveland series four to three, but the Athletics also lost to St. Louis. The double loss resulted in favor of the Yankees. With only six games left for New York and five for Philadelphia, the two game margin by which the Yankees lead grows relatively larger every day that neither makes a gain.

Lefty Walter Miller, who beat the Athletics last week for Cleveland's only victory in 16 games, pitched the Indians to victory to-day. The Yankees got only five hits off Miller while the Indians battered Pipgras from the box with nine then obtained two more off the delivery of Lefty Heimach. It was the third unsuccessful start of the present western tour for Pipgras.

Cleveland scored two runs in the second inning to take the lead after the Yankees had tallied once in their half of the frame. Hodapp and L. Sewell singled. Tucker sacrificed and Dorman sent the two runners home with another single. The Indians scored a third run in the third on a double by J. Sewell followed by a single by Hodapp.

The winning run was scored in the sixth inning after the Yanks had tied the count in the fifth. Hodapp opened the frame with his third successive single and came home on Luke Sewell's long triple over Ruth's head. This blowended Pipgras' stay in the box and brought Heimach to the rescue.

The first Yankee run in the second inning was the result of a single by Meusel followed by a fumble that allowed him to reach second, a passed ball that sent him to third and a sacrifice fly that drove in the run. In the fifth a double by Ruth that scored Coombs and sent Koenig to third. Koenig scored the tying run on Gehrig's sacrifice.

The Athletics suffered a setback yesterday when the Browns emerged victorious at St. Louis, 6 to 2. Al Crowder won his twentieth victory, holding the Macks to but one hit until the ninth inning when Bishop's single started things going and Philadelphia got two runs.

Goose Goslin, who is out after the batting championship of the American League smashed out a home run, a double and a single in four times at bat to-day and led Washington to an 8 to 4 victory over the White Sox at Chicago.

The victory pushed the Senators into undisputed possession of fourth place. Goslin drove in four runs and scored another. His homer came in the ninth inning with two on and two out.

Burke and Braxton hurled for the Senators while Adkins, who was on the mound for Chicago, was nicked for 10 safeties.

Sam Gibson, restricted the Boston Red Sox to five hits in the last engagement between the clubs this season and the Tigers scored an 8 to 0 victory at Detroit. Simmons started for Boston but was blasted out in the seventh when he was nicked for three triples in a row.

Settlemire pitched an inning, and Rothrock, Red Sox outfielder, hurled the last one against the Tigers. He also played at short. Harry Heilmann accounted for a homer and a double.

Boy Scouts

(Examiner Correspondence.)

1st Deloro Troop.

MARMORA, September 25. — At last the week-end hike is over, which all the Scouts who were under canvas declared was the best time they have had for a long while. When morning broke on the 15th, the weather looked anything but promising, but by ten o'clock the troop was under way, with the trek cart looking smart in its new coat of paint and loaded with kit bags and food. The two big hills near Marmora O.N.R. Station were easily overcome and camp was reached at 12.30. Through the kindness of Dr. MacKechnie the troop found a tent already erected and the provisions were no sooner inside than rain descended for about half an hour. After its cessation a camp kitchen was built and some dried wood stored away for the morrow. After a few scouting games, a race to the beach took place, where fifteen minutes of a swim were enjoyed.

Supper was prepared by the odd numbers. Darkness came early, giving plenty of time for games, one being the chasing of the scoutmaster, who flashed his light on every minute or so. Lots were drawn for the most comfortable beds. Songs were the order of the night, with jokes and riddles to fill in. Calm reigned at 10.30, broken only by the odd snore or grunt, until 6 a.m. arrived. After breakfast and tidying of camp, the troop went on a short track-laying game. The Scouts following found practically all the marks left, by which time swimming period was around again. A cross-country hike and another swim filled in the afternoon. Bed was heartily welcomed at nine o'clock. By 6.30 the next morning the troop was under way, and after some heavy pulling, reached Deloro in time for work and study.

Another hike has been planned to take place within the next few weeks.

VIEWS ON SPORT

Pennant race tightens in both major leagues as baseball season nears close.

The Cards and the Giants are still keeping pace with each other in the National League, both winning their scheduled games yesterday. The New Yorkers staged a batting spree against Ray Kolp, Cincinnati right-hander, that netted them four homers, all into the right field stands. Two of the circuit clouts fell to the bat of Frank O'Doul, and resulted with the Giants winning a 7 to 4 victory. The Cards garnered fourteen hits off the Brooklyn hurler and came home with a win by 9-2 score. Grover Alexander did the hurling for the victors, and was never in serious danger after the third inning when his mates gave him a lead.

Peterborough fans may have a chance to see a tidy game of rugby on Wednesday afternoon, the first to be played here this season. The team travelled to Lakefield last Saturday afternoon, and were entertained by the boys of The Grove in a friendly game, in which they came out the victors. It is altogether likely that the return game will be played here to-morrow afternoon.

The Peterborough Cricket Club closed a most successful season on Saturday, defeating the Oshawa club at the Oval. The game was featured by the brilliant playing of Frank Dyer. The Peterborough club has played 14 matches this season—winning 8, losing 4, one game was drawn, and one game tied. The club are to be congratulated on their splendid showing, also on their sportsmanship, and the advertising they have given the city.

LADY HORSES PROVE BEST FRIENDS TO LADY BETTORS

TORONTO, September 25. — Horses certainly prefer ladies. They proved it in the opening race at the Woodbine yesterday afternoon when Our Sally Ann came down to pay $57.65 on the nose. "Oh" came in soprano shrieks from the members' stand, and before the cashiers were ready in the pari mutuels fifteen ladies were lined up before the $2.00 wicket and two before the $5.00. They were not all single tickets either. Mrs. E. B. Ross had a combination ticket and she did not mind telling that she had made $74.05 on the race. "I lost $30.00 on Saturday," she said, "and I am certainly glad to have this luck to-day. My brother-in-law gave me the tip." Then she saw her brother-in-law before the $5.00 wicket and so she ran over to thank him.

Mrs. J. L. Hefferon, who was with Mrs. Ross, had $2.00 on Our Sally Ann; but had placed the rest on Annapolis, Son of War, who paid $4.05 for second place.

SWEET LOVE STORY IN FILM STARRING DICK BARTHELMESS

Star Gives Exceptional Performance in "The Patent Leather Kid," a Great Picture

One of the sweetest love stories ever told, with the World War as a background and with dramatic interest, suspense, tragedy and flashes of clever comedy.

This, in a nutshell, describes the great epic of the Tank Corps, "The Patent Leather Kid," which opened last night at the Regent Theatre, following its sensational Broadway hit.

"The Patent eLather Kid" is the first big super-production that First National has sponsored in several years. It was chosen because of the dramatic value of Rupert Hughes' great story, and was carefully cast, with Richard Barthelmess starring and Molly O'Day, a real screen find, playing opposite him.

"The Patent Leather Kid" is the Alfred Santell production and the greatest this successful director ever produced. It was made under the production management of Al Rockett who, with his brother Ray, produced "Abraham Lincoln," and who has a number of First National winners to his credit.

"The Patent Leather Kid" is the story of an East Side boxer who fell in love with a cabaret dancer, who was forced into the war against his wishes, but who emerged a hero. As The Kid, Barthelmess does the finest work of his career, and the role again stamps him as one of the finest actors on the screen.

Molly O'Day, a petite and charming Irish lassie, played her first dramatic role in "The Patent Leather Kid" and as the result of her characterization of "The Golden Dancer" is now hailed as a screen sensation.

The war scenes in the picture are sensational. It is the first big picture that deals with the Tank Corps of the American army. Many tanks and thousands of troops were used in these sequences.

"The Patent Leather Kid" has all the elements necessary for a great screen story and is one of the truly big picture of the decade. To miss it, is to miss the season's greatest picture. See it as soon as you can.

WAKEFIELD CASTROL MOTOR OIL

AT THE CAPITOL.

REGINALD DENNY IN "GOOD MORNING, JUDGE" PLEASES LARGE CAPITOL AUDIENCE LAST NIGHT.

"Good Morning, Judge," which opened at the Capitol Theatre yesterday, is a typical Reginald Denny vehicle, is a typical Reginald Denny comedy, and a pleasing romantic angle.

This time the star appears as a scion of wealth who can't pay his fine when brought before a judge, after participating as an innocent bystander in a fight. Someone has stolen his wallet.

A beautiful mission worker who believes that hardened crooks can be reformed advances the sum. Denny falls in love with her, and, in order to become an inmate of her mission, confesses to a long list of crimes. Later, he saves her from some of the criminals whom she thought she had reformed. She finally learns his real identity, but this doesn't halt their romance.

"Good Morning, Judge," is the best picture the star has made. William A. Seiter, who has wielded the megaphone on most of Denny's hits, directed it.

Mary Nolan plays opposite Denny and Dorothy Gulliver, beautiful heroine of the "Collegians," has a prominent role. The hundreds of laughs are partly due to Otis Harlan. In the role of an unshaven bum, whose specialty is crashing the gates at prize fights, Harlan demonstrates a superb skill at comedy. Denny, by himself, however, provided enough funny scenes for an ordinary picture.

Others of the supporting cast were also outstanding. The company includes William Davidson, William Worthington, Bull Montana, Sailor Sharkey and Charles Coleman.

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS New Service to Edmonton.

In order to cope with the heavy travel to points in Western Canada, Canadian National Railways have arranged to place their crack train, "The Confederation," on completion of its summer schedule, on the run between Toronto and Edmonton.

The last trip to Vancouver will be on September 26th from Toronto, and the first Edmonton train will leave Toronto on Thursday, September 27th. The through equipment will consist of standard and tourist sleepers, dining cars and compartment-observation library cars, the latter being equipped with radio.

The service will afford every facility for Christmas and New Year's travel in both directions, and this, together with the high standard of Canadian National operation, will enable the train to retain in a full measure the popularity it now enjoys with the travelling public.

Any Canadian National Agent will gladly furnish further details. 3d-73

BRINGING HAPPINESS IS AIM OF CHURCH

day and "this fool talk of companionate marriage." The only way to bring happiness into any home is to bring Jesus in. The whole mission of the Christian Church is to bring happiness into people's homes. I am the happiest man. I'm happily married. I 've a happy home, and I'm away from it. Of course, there are troubles at times. You never had a world without a storm. Never a sky without a cloud.

"My business with the people is to teach them the value of a dollar. It is religion to keep out of debt and remember that of your earnings one-tenth belongs to God. Don't be aping and hobnobbing with the devil and feel you are laying aside money for God.

"I'm the shepherd of the flock at my church and it keeps me humble to associate with poor people, and I feel in as much as you have done it unto the least of my flock, you have done it unto me.

"I go to the Police Station every morning and pick out one or two boys and say, 'What are you doing here?' The Magistrate gives them over to me and I look after them and get them jobs.

"Some of the greatest evils I have to contend with are the 'snow parties' making drug addicts. Automobile parties are another curse. Mothers, take a man with twenty years' experience and beware of these things. Don't keep your children out of your homes Is your carpet more va'uable than the soul of your child? Play with your children and do not say, 'Thou shalt not.'

"The things that are ruining British Columbia more than anything else on earth are drink and gambling. People cannot mix religion and the world. If that is your religon, shake yourself up. It's all bunk. It would not save the life of a flea. Nothing but the grace of God will cure drug addicts. Man's extremity is God's opportunity."

He referred to work of his church in curing men and women addicted to drugs and of the way these poor people, longshoremen and people of the slums give to support this great work.

In conclusion he said, "Are you proud of your church? Are you proud of the men who are doing things to bring lost people to God? Will you go back to your homes to say, 'I will consecrate my child to God's service?' Will you be ashamed of your useless live and be determined to lead different lives?"

S. R. Armstrong moved a vote of thanks to the speaker, which was seconded by J. W. Kelly, and Rev. J. E Todd pronounced the benediction.

PILOTS OF CANADA TROUBLED OLYMPIC GRAFT

It may be taken for granted that the Olympic sports though designed to bring nations closer together in a spirit of thoroughly gentlemanly rivalry, have given rise to nearly as much strife and confusion as a peace gathering of the League of Nations. It is rumored, for instance, that Italians and Mexicans could not agree as to the winning of some of the boxing events and the matter would have been decided in a free-for-all between representatives of those nations staged behind closed doors after the event itself, if the police of Amsterdam had not intervened. But that similar squabbles should go on within the camp of any one nation, and particularly of the Canadians, was rather more than the average stay-at-home sporting Canuck had reckoned on. Just exactly of what nature and how serious there rumored differences were, is something everyone in this country wants to know. Next month at the annual meeting of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada in Fort William the whole affair will probably be threshed out, and the misunderstanding between Canadian officials at Amsterdam thoroughly aired. The Canadian protest over the awarding of first place in the 100-metre final to Miss Robinson of the United States of America is one incident which will call for some explanation. When the Canadians presented their protest to the Olympic jury, Dr. Lamb, president of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, is reported to have said he could not accept responsibility for the protests, which he apparently held was improperly urged by P. J. Mulqueen and other members of the board. So disgusted were certain of the Canadian contingent with the whole trend of affairs that M. M. (Bobby) Robinson, manager of the Canadian Olympic team, is believed to have told Gustavus Kirby, president of the American Athletic board, that Canada would not be represented in the next Olympic meet, to be held in the States.

GERMANY BITTER SAYS BERNSTORFF

Doubt of Sincerity of Disarmament Angers People, He Tells League.

GENEVA, Sept. 25. — (Canadian Press.)— Germany is bitter because there has been so much belittling of the sincerity of her fulfillment of the disarmament provisions of the Treaty of Versailles, Count Bernstorff, German delegate and former Ambassador to Washington, told the Assembly of the League of Nations to-day.

He ridiculed the idea that Germany could quickly transform her peace industries into war industries, saying that her armed neighbors could overwhelm her before she would have any chance for self defence.

SEAMEN SUPPORT DOCKERS' STRIKE

Refuse To Work With Volunteers Loading Ships at Melbourne.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Sept. 23 (Canadian Press Cable, via Reuter's) —Although negotiations to end the strike of the waterside workers are still proceeding, the situation has become most complicated by the decision of the local seamen to support the strikers.

Melbourne seamen became involved in the dispute to-day, when they refused to bet up steam on a donkey engine in a boat which was being loaded by volunteer workers. At a subsequent meeting, 800 seamen decided to support any action taken by the waterside workers, and will refuse to work with or take volunteers in their ships to sea.

1800 feet depth is believed to be the downward extension of the jupiter ore body which above 1200 foot and furnished a large tonnage of good pay ore. Until the intervening 600 feet are explored however the management will not commit themselves as to this. Similar good ore has been opened up at 2300 foot depth, which appears to be still deeper extension of the jupiter ore zone if further work at intervening levels conforms expectations. McIntyre will have here an extensive ore body practically from the surface down to at least 2300 feet. This will undoubtedly make a lot of ore.

SWEET LOVE STORY IN FILM STARRING DICK BARTHELMESS

Star Gives Exceptional Performance in "The Patent Leather Kid," a Great Picture

One of the sweetest love stories ever told, with the World War as a background and with dramatic interest, suspense, tragedy and flashes of clever comedy.

This, in a nutshell, describes the great epic of the Tank Corps, "The Patent Leather Kid," which opened last night at the Regent Theatre, following its sensational Broadway hit.

"The Patent eLather Kid" is the first big super-production that First National has sponsored in several years. It was chosen because of the dramatic value of Rupert Hughes' great story, and was carefully cast, with Richard Barthelmess starring and Molly O'Day, a real screen find, playing opposite him.

"The Patent Leather Kid" is the Alfred Santell production and the greatest this successful director ever produced. It was made under the production management of Al Rockett who, with his brother Ray, produced "Abraham Lincoln," and who has a number of First National winners to his credit.

"The Patent Leather Kid" is the story of an East Side boxer who fell in love with a cabaret dancer, who was forced into the war against his wishes, but who emerged a hero. As The Kid, Barthelmess does the finest work of his career, and the role again stamps him as one of the finest actors on the screen.

Molly O'Day, a petite and charming Irish lassie, played her first dramatic role in "The Patent Leather Kid" and as the result of her characterization of "The Golden Dancer" is now hailed as a screen sensation.

The war scenes in the picture are sensational. It is the first big picture that deals with the Tank Corps of the American army. Many tanks and thousands of troops were used in these sequences.

"The Patent Leather Kid" has all the elements necessary for a great screen story and is one of the truly big picture of the decade. To miss it, is to miss the season's greatest picture. See it as soon as you can.

WAKEFIELD CASTROL MOTOR OIL

AT THE CAPITOL.

REGINALD DENNY IN "GOOD MORNING, JUDGE" PLEASES LARGE CAPITOL AUDIENCE LAST NIGHT.

"Good Morning, Judge," which opened at the Capitol Theatre yesterday, is a typical Reginald Denny vehicle, is a typical Reginald Denny comedy, and a pleasing romantic angle.

This time the star appears as a scion of wealth who can't pay his fine when brought before a judge, after participating as an innocent bystander in a fight. Someone has stolen his wallet.

A beautiful mission worker who believes that hardened crooks can be reformed advances the sum. Denny falls in love with her, and, in order to become an inmate of her mission, confesses to a long list of crimes. Later, he saves her from some of the criminals whom she thought she had reformed. She finally learns his real identity, but this doesn't halt their romance.

"Good Morning, Judge," is the best picture the star has made. William A. Seiter, who has wielded the megaphone on most of Denny's hits, directed it.

Mary Nolan plays opposite Denny and Dorothy Gulliver, beautiful heroine of the "Collegians," has a prominent role. The hundreds of laughs are partly due to Otis Harlan. In the role of an unshaven bum, whose specialty is crashing the gates at prize fights, Harlan demonstrates a superb skill at comedy. Denny, by himself, however, provided enough funny scenes for an ordinary picture.

Others of the supporting cast were also outstanding. The company includes William Davidson, William Worthington, Bull Montana, Sailor Sharkey and Charles Coleman.

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS
New Service to Edmonton.

In order to cope with the heavy travel to points in Western Canada, Canadian National Railways have arranged to place their crack train, "The Confederation," on completion of its summer schedule, on the run between Toronto and Edmonton.

The last trip to Vancouver will be on September 26th from Toronto, and the first Edmonton train will leave Toronto on Thursday, September 27th. The through equipment will consist of standard and tourist sleepers, dining cars and compartment-observation library cars, the latter being equipped with radio.

The service will afford every facility for Christmas and New Year's travel in both directions, and this, together with the high standard of Canadian National operation, will enable the train to retain in a full measure the popularity it now enjoys with the travelling public.

Any Canadian National Agent will gladly furnish further details. 3d-73

day and "this fool talk of companionate marriage." The only way to bring happiness into any home is to bring Jesus in. The whole mission of the Christian Church is to bring happiness into people's homes. I am the happiest man. I'm happily married. I 've a happy home, and I'm away from it. Of course, there are troubles at times. You never had a world without a storm. Never a sky without a cloud.

"My business with the people is to teach them the value of a dollar. It is religion to keep out of debt and remember that of your earnings one-tenth belongs to God. Don't be apeing and hobnobbing with the devil and feel you are laying aside money for God.

"I'm the shepherd of the flock at my church and it keeps me humble to associate with poor people, and I feel in as much as you have done it unto the least of my flock, you have done it unto me.

"I go to the Police Station every morning and pick out one or two boys and say, 'What are you doing here?' The Magistrate gives them over to me and I look after them and get them jobs.

"Some of the greatest evils I have to contend with are the 'snow parties' making drug addicts. Automobile parties are another curse. Mothers, take a man with twenty years' experience and beware of these things. Don't keep your children out of your homes Is your carpet more va'uable than the soul of your child? Play with your children and do not say, 'Thou shalt not.'

"The things that are ruining British Columbia more than anything else on earth are drink and gambling. People cannot mix religion and the world. If that is your religon, shake yourself up. It's all bunk. It would not save the life of a flea. Nothing but the grace of God will cure drug addicts. Man's extremity is God's opportunity."

He referred to work of his church in curing men and women addicted to drugs and of the way these poor people, longshoremen and people of the slums give to support this great work.

In conclusion he said, "Are you proud of your church? Are you proud of the men who are doing things to bring lost people to God? Will you go back to your homes to say, 'I will consecrate my child to God's service?' Will you be ashamed of your useless live and be determined to lead different lives?"

S. R. Armstrong moved a vote of thanks to the speaker, which was seconded by J. W. Kelly, and Rev. J. E Todd pronounced the benediction.

PILOTS OF CANADA TROUBLED OLYMPIC GRAFT

It may be taken for granted that the Olympic sports though designed to bring nations closer together in a spirit of thoroughly gentlemanly rivalry, have given rise to nearly as much strife and confusion as a peace gathering of the League of Nations. It is rumored, for instance, that Italians and Mexicans could not agree as to the winning of some of the boxing events and the matter would have been decided in a free-for-all between representatives of those nations staged behind closed doors after the event itself, if the police of Amsterdam had not intervened. But that similar squabbles should go on within the camp of any one nation, and particularly of the Canadians, was rather more than the average stay-at-home sporting Canuck had reckoned on. Just exactly of what nature and how serious there rumored differences were, is something everyone in this country wants to know. Next month at the annual meeting of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada in Fort William the whole affair will probably be threshed out, and the misunderstanding between Canadian officials at Amsterdam thoroughly aired. The Canadian protest over the awarding of first place in the 100-metre final to Miss Robinson of the United States of America is one incident which will call for some explanation. When the Canadians presented their protest to the Olympic jury, Dr. Lamb, president of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, is reported to have said he could not accept responsibility for the protests, which he apparently held was improperly urged by P. J. Mulqueen and other members of the board. So disgusted were certain of the Canadian contingent with the whole trend of affairs that M. M. (Bobby) Robinson, manager of the Canadian Olympic team, is believed to have told Gustavus Kirby, president of the American Athletic board, that Canada would not be represented in the next Olympic meet, to be held in the States.

GERMANY BITTER SAYS BERNSTORFF

Doubt of Sincerity of Disarmament Angers People, He Tells League.

GENEVA, Sept. 25. — (Canadian Press.)— Germany is bitter because there has been so much belittling of the sincerity of her fulfillment of the disarmament provisions of the Treaty of Versailles, Count Bernstorff, German delegate and former Ambassador to Washington, told the Assembly of the League of Nations to-day.

He ridiculed the idea that Germany could quickly transform her peace industries into war industries, saying that her armed neighbors could overwhelm her before she would have any chance for self defence.

CHICAGO, September 25 (Canadian Press). — An error in the mittimus under which Richard Loeb and Nathan Leopold were sent to Joliet Penitentiary four years ago makes these two slayers of little Bobbie Franks eligible for parole in six more years, Hinton Clabaugh, chairman of the State Board of Pardons and Paroles, said to-day. He said the two men were building up "fine records" with a view to seeking parole.

RELIEF FROM GAS STOMACH PAINS DIZZINESS

The doctors tell us that 90 per cent. of all sickness is due to stomach and bowel troubles. You can't be well if your digestion is bad; you are likely to get sick unless you relish food and digest it properly.

Tanlac has a wonderful record as relief from digestive troubles, even those of year's standing.

Mrs. George Bell, of 317 Grey St., London, Ont., writes as follows:

"I had suffered for yenrs with Stomach trouble. Gas would form and bloat me up so I could hardly catch my breath. My nerves were shattered; I did not sleep, became weak and run-down; and spent enough on medicines to furnish a home.

Two months after starting Tanlac, however, I had gained eleven pounds and was entirely free of indigestion. Now I have no gas, no pains in my stomach. The headaches have disappeared. My nerves are calm. I sleep like a child, am always ready for my meals and my housework seems like play to me."

If you suffer from gas, pains in the stomach or bowels, dizziness, nausea, constipation or torpid liver; if you have no appetite, can't sleep and are nervous and all run-down, you need Tanlac. It is good, pure medicine, made of roots, herbs and barks. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Money back if it doesn't help you.

At a recent meeting of the Peterborough Chamber of Comerce, Mr. Dutton was chosen official delegate, assuring the bringing of the resolutions before the gathering at North Bay. All three are matters which the local body considers worthy of immediate consideration.

YOUNG WIFE LIVES ON THIN SOUP 5 MONTHS

"I lived on soup 5 months because of stomach gas. I tried Adlerika and now eat most anything without any gas."—Mrs. A. J. Connor.

Even the FIRST spoonful of Adlerika relieves gas on the stomach and removes astonishing amounts of old waste matter from the system. Makes you enjoy your meals and sleep better. No matter what you have tried for your stomach and bowels Adlerika will surprise you. McDermid & Jury, E. L. Payne, and McDermid Drug Co.

WAREHOUSE LOOTED.

TORONTO, Sept. 25.—With brazen effrontery, thieves broke into the premises of Gordon, McKay Company, wholesale dry goods, 48 Front street west, almost opposite the Union station, some time between Saturday morning, September 22, and yesterday morning, and stole silks, satins, crepes, taffetas and various other clothing materials and watches at various prices, to the value of conservately $25,000. Seven large trunks, also stolen from the firm, are thought to have been used by the desperadoes to carry away their loot.

News From the Mines

Through Solloway, Mills & Company

Granada.

TORONTO, Sept. 25.—The special staff mining representative of the "Globe" has the following comment on Granada:

"The recent find made at the Granada Rouyn property is the best made to date. Officials of the company are highly pleased with the developments, and R. C. Gamble, president tells the Globe that the ore cut in the shaft at the 500 level it better than anything else so far discovered. There was nothing on the surface to compare with it, and he added: "It looks as if all our guessing was over."

"The vein was cut while the station was being established and was on the south side. The shaft is being continued to greater depth and the vein, which dips to the north, has again been cut in the shaft. Mr. Gamble states it shows high-grade ore from well to well. The shaft is now down 570 feet and is being continued indefinitely, depending on results as they go down. No assays are yet available from the vein, but it is stated that they are not needed. Free gold, both fine and coarse, shows in the vein and there is also galena, zinc and molybdenite.

"The Granada management thought when the vein was cut at a depth of 500 feet that it was a new vein. It had not been indicated in drilling from surface. It is now thought that it is the No. 2 vein and this is being checked up. The next station will be established at a depth of 625 feet, and this should be cut about the middle of netx week. It is possible some drifting will be done on the vein at the 500, and if not lateral work will be done at the 625 foot level. No decision has been reached in this matter yet. In addition to shaft sinking some surface work is being done northwest and east of the shaft on some new finds."

Malartic.

The program of underground development at this property is proceeding at a satisfactory rate and we understand the raise from the 125 foot level has now been completed through to the surface. In the meantime, the crosscut at the 275 foot horizon is well advanced towards the south zone and it is understood preparations are being made for the commencement of the crosscut which will be driven to the north-west and south-east. This latter crosscut will be driven at a point approximately half way between the north and south deposits, and when completed diamond drilling stations will be cut and drilling carried out to the north and south and to greater depth. The south drive recently entered another high-grade occurrence, and from information available the deposit cannot be connected in any way with the zones so far disclosed. Officials do not believe that work is, as yet, in the vicinity of the south zone, unless some action of the porphyry has resulted in the mineralization having been pushed to the north.

Numerous diamond drill holes have been spotted on surface and these will be driven for the purpose of proving greater length to the zones. So far, the south zone has been traced for some 1,000 feet, while the north one is believed to extend over an even greater length. The work under way, however, will decide as to any greater importance than that so far determined, but in any event the enterprise is now assured of a very large tonnage of medium grade ore, together with a good tonnage of high grade material

A Special Service to The Examiner

TORONTO, Sept 25.— A despatch from Montreal states that "Directors of the Abana Mines met here with representatives of a United States' company which has recently been making an exhaustive investigation of the property. Owing to the absence of the vice-president of the American company, the meeting was adjourned, after prolonged discussion, until 11 o'clock Saturday. The American company is reported to be prepared to take a very substantial interest in Abana, subject to the approval of the directors of the company." No further news has been received regarding the outcome of the meeting on Saturday.

Montbray advices are to the effect thta Nipissing has taken the underground crew off the Robb Montbray and that all future results will depend upon diamond drilling.

It is heard that at the Amulet meeting, to be held to-morrow, that announcement of a decision to build a spur line from the Waite will be made as well as decision regarding the erection of a concentrator. The ore body, at present being drifted upon at the 150-foot level, is said to be north of and separate from the "B" ore body and of good grade.

Lateral work at the 1,000 foot level of the Gold Hill is said to have reached the critical stage and it is expected that the cross-cut will enter the vein some time to-day.

The Dunlop Consolidated Mines have just signed a contract for 2,000 feet of diamond drilling on their holdings at Mattagami Lake, about 150 miles up the Bell River from Amos. Twenty-five claims were staked here recently by Major Dunlop for the company. The district is at the present time very active, there being several companies operating as well as a swarm of prospectors. While no sensational samples have come out it is understood that it is the favorable geology that is attracting interest. The main bet is copper but some good gold showings have been found.

A crew of men will be sent into the J. J. Law claims, recently optioned by the Bunker Hill Extension Mines, some time this week. Bunker Hill is playing the careful and profitable game of taking options on all properties before buying them. The wisdom of this is obvious. The company has ceased work on its original Sudbury property, and the option will be dropped. Bunker Hill would be a good deal more out of pocket if they owned the ground and could not so conveniently dispose of it.

It will be remembered that Mason, Slechter and Hay, electrical prospectors of renown, and who had a share in locating the Treadwell Yukon ore, made a survey of Bunker Hill Extension's original Sudbury property. So confident of results were the survey men that they agreed to accept no pay should they not locate ore. They spotted several holes for the company to drill but the ore was minus quantity. Therefore thier work was for nothing.

It is estimated that by this time the shaft at Malrobic Mines, in the Malartic gold area, is now down 200 feet and that a station is being established at the 125 foot level with another to be cut at the 250 foot horizon, as soon as that depth is attained. Lateral work will be carried out at both these levels. Malrobic appears to have strong backing and its action on being called for trading last week was admittedly good.

It is reported that $22 ore is being obtained from a new find at the Siscoe, the details of wihch are unavailable as yet.

Sudbury Basin to Commence Sinking

It is unofficially announced that shaft sinking will shortly commence on the property of Sudbury Basin Mines, where diamond drilling is reported to have indicated the largest and richest ore body in the Chelmsford Basin area. An official statement regarding such shaft sinking will probably be made within the course of a few days.

Kirkland Lake Gold Drills Into Chaput-Hughes at 2850 Feet

Kirkland Lake Gold Mines are diamond drilling from the 2850 foot level into the Chaput-Hughes property. The last 25 feet of ore have been porphyry. This is a distinct change in the formation and is regarded as favorable.

Noranda's New Shaft Being Decided Upon—New Cages Soon Running in Old Shaft—Tonnage Being Increased

During the greater part of the past week James Y. Murdock, president of Noranda Mines, was at the property in company with some other directors. It is understood that the object o ftheir visit was to decide on the exact location of the new Noranda shaft. This shaft, as has been announced, will go to a depth of 1,000 feet and it is of importance to Noranda that sinking operations be got under way as quickly as possible, as it requires all the available hoisting capacity of the present shaft to feed the smeltr. With production of from 1,800 to 2,000 tons a day promised before the end of the current year, compared with 950 tons now, this situation will be made still more acute.

Some relief will be given at the end of this month, when it is understood new cages will be runnning in the present shaft. The new shaft, when finished, will probably be connected with the present one, and it is not until then that the mine will hit its real stride from a producing standpoint. It is expected that on Mr. Murdock's return from the north an announcement will be made. Conditions at the property are said to be very satisfactory.

A private wire dispatch to F. G. Oke & Company says: "McIntyre—Porcupine Mines has between 17 and 20 men working on Moffatt Hall property in Kirkland Lake Camp, which it acquired under an option. Efforts are being concentrated in making a thorough going survey including trench work on several showings before the snow comes. As property is over 500 acres this is no small job. If drill results are satisfactory then shaft sinking will be undertaken. At the parent property of McIntyre in Porcupine headway is being made in development. The exploration drive from the end of the south cross cut from the number 11 shaft at 3850 feet is being pushed east and west and will be carried to the coniaurium line on the east to Hollinger on west. The ore body encountered not far from the crosscut along the east drive come into the drive at a slight angle, and appears to have a northeast and southwest strike. Drilling will be done into the greenstone formation lying between two porphyry dykes. The greenstone formation lying between is the formation that carries the gold and is wider at 3850 feet depth than it is on shallower horizons.

As ore bodies are located in the greenstone they will be opened up by crosscuts and prepared for stoping. This exploration drive at 3850 feet will be 11-2 miles long.

Conditions in the workings east of No. 11 shaft are interesting. The good length of ore opened up at 1800 feet depth is believed to be the downward extension of the jupiter ore body which above 1200 foot and furnished a large tonnage of good pay ore. Until the intervening 600 feet are explored however the management will not commit themselves as to this. Similar good ore has been opened up at 2300 foot depth, which appears to be still deeper extension of the jupiter ore zone if further work at intervening levels conforms expectations. McIntyre will have here an extensive ore body practically from the surface down to at least 2300 feet. This will undoubtedly make a lot of ore.

Toronto Trade Brisk; Active Shares Gain

TORONTO, September 25 (Canadian Press). — Trading became brisker on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day with prices on the whole holding firm. Brazilian Traction and Imperial Oil were the active leaders. The former was up 1¼ at 61 and the latter a point at 81. The implement stocks continued firm and fairly active, Massey-Harris and Cockshutt each registering fractional gains, the former at 45¾ and the latter at 30. International Nickel experienced unusually light trading and was down a fraction at 125¼, Industrial Alcohol at 43 was up a quarter and Western Canada Flour at 39 was down a point. Apart from Imperial Oil, Service Stations was the only issue to show much activity on the unlisted section. This stock was up ¼ at 44¼. International Petroleum was fractionally lower at 41 and British American Oil was up a half at 42. Hiram Walkers advanced slightly more than than a point to 63½. The other beverage issues were quiet.

BAPTIST WORK SHOWS GROWTH

Speakers Tell Mission Circle About Brethren in Eastern Europe.

STRUGGLE FOR FREEDOM.

Inspiring addresses and a challenge to greater missionary effort during the coming season, marked the opening session of the Women's Mission Circle of Murray Street Baptist Church.

The opening exercises and reports were followed by a period of prayer for missionary work at home and abroad. The Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, the pastor, in a brief attractive and inspiring address struck the keynote for the year's work: "Our success is God's; God's success is ours." This divine co-operation and partnership in our Christian work should exclude all though of failure and indifference.

In this setting the four brief addresses which followed did not fail in their strong appeal for prayer, interest and support. The cosmopolitan nature of the Baptist World Alliance meetings, held recently in Toronto, made it impossible to touch even the fringe of the many points of interest to Baptists. So, very wisely, the addresses were confined to four startegical points in Europe.

Miss Aldridge spoke upon the progress of the Baptist work in Russia. Canadian Baptists will easily remember the date of its commencement,—1867. During the sixty years that have followed the Baptist Brotherhood has increased marvellously. "We can boldly state," said the Alliance speaker, "that of all the sects in Russia the Baptists were the foremost in numbers, the bravest during the regime of the Czar, and the most indefatigable and ardent." To-day with complete separation of church and state, religious freedom and the official authority to open a ministers' school in Moscow, the work is progressing in faith and loyalty.

The Baptists of Poland, as reported by Mrs. H. G. Webber, were not so fortunate in their religious freedom, though the Polish Constitution guarantees freedom of conscience, imprisonment and fines are frequently the result of religious propaganda other than that of the established church, yet the German and Slav Baptists in that country number more than fourteen thousand.

Mrs. F. M. Somerville reported for Hungary and Rumania. The same struggle for religious freedom prevails. To-day Protestant Churches in those countries pay tribute to the fidelity of Baptists and their example and inspiration in presenting the Gospel to the people.

The last speaker, Miss Jackson, reported interestingly on the Latvia work. This small country, separated from Russia after the Great War, has known untold hardship and suffering. Thanks to the inspiration and assistance of American and English brethren, their work has received new impetus, and with full religious freedom the Baptists of Latvia are helping to spread the Gospel.

A pleasing feature of the afternoon was the presentation to Miss Mary Nicholls of a life membership certificate in the Home Mission Society. Mrs. G. E. Johnson, in a few happily-chosen words presented it, and in her reply Miss Nicholls expressed her appreciation and gave a brief review of the work of the local Circle in which she has been a faithful worker.

A solo by Mrs. Ingram was given during the afternoon.

After a word of thanks and appreciation to those who had assisted, by the president, Mrs. W. D. Scott, a hymn and prayer by the pastor, a social hour and tea followed.

Wedding Bells

CREASE—COWAN

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at Park Street United Church, Orono, on Saturday, September 15, when Vera Winnifred, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cowan, became the bride of Charles E. Crease, B.Sc., only son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Crease of Amherst, N.S., the Rev. William Sterling officiating. The church was beautifully decorated with autumn leaves, ferns and flowers.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white taffeta and French tulle with uneven hemline, silver shoes and hose to match. The embroidered veil was caught with seed pearls and orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of sweetheart roses and lily of the valley. The bride was attended by Miss Muriel Dorris of Peterborough, who wore a period frock of peach taffeta with picture hat of black transparent velvet and mohair, and carried a bouquet of ophelia roses.

The bridegroom was supported by Mr. Frank Ryan of Toronto. Mr. Allison Cowan, cousin of the bride, and Mr. Gordon Power acted as ushers. During the signing of the register, Mrs. Ross Williamson of Peterborough sang "At Dawning," accompanied by the organist, Mrs. Harry Williamson, cousin of the bride who also played softly during the service.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cowan and the Misses Avice and Ruth Crease of Nova Scotia, sisters of the groom, receiving with the bridal couple. Mrs. Cowan wore a gown of Marron-glace brocaded crepe with hat and gloves to match and corsage of roses and lily of the valley. A buffet luncheon was afterwards served to about seventy guests by six girl friends of the bride. The bride's table, which looked beautiful, was covered with a Madeira cloth and centred with the bride's cake. Four tall pink candles in silver candleholders also decorated the table. The house was beautifully decorate in a color scheme of pink and white.

Mr. and Mrs. Crease left amid showers of confetti on a motor trip to Ottawa and Montreal, the bride travelling in a brown transparent velvet dress with coat, hat, shoes and gloves to match. On their return they will reside at 170 Emerson avenue, Toronto.

REPLY TO MR. HARTLEY.

Editor, Examiner.

Sir,—In your issue of yesterday our most worthy citizen, Mr. J. J. Hartley, expresses his views as to the merits of the Nicholls Hospital by-law to be voted on on Wednesday, September 26. While we have deepest respect for the opinions of Mr. Hartley, we would point out serious errors in his conclusions:

First—The additional cost to the city for new school construction is being abundantly warranted by the large increase in attendance.

Second—The assessment of the county for this work distributes the cost of maintenance very substantially.

Third—The Federal aid and Provincial grants, which were the result of very intensive representations on the part of the School Board, provides largely for the cost of construction and equipment.

The matter of the purchase of the gas plant by this city has no bearing on the subject whatever. In the first instance, it is fully expected that if the gas plant is purchased it will be on a basis which will provide for its maintenance and also provide sufficient to pay for the property within the term of the bond issue.

It is conceivable that the city could get on without acquiring the gas plant, while the need of hospital accommodation is of serious moment to those whose lives may possibly be in the balance. The Board feels that every citizen should be seized of the importance of the by-law and of the fact that the Board, a body of our most substantial citizens, has investigated the situation from every angle and submits its decision as a considered verdict which, in their opinion, is incontrovertible.

Yours truly,
B. F. Ackerman, Chairman.

Wheat Prices Drop While Corn Goes Up

CHICAGO, Sept. 25. — (Canadian Press.)—Wheat went lower in prices early to-day and corn went higher. Unexpected downturns in Liverpool, with Argentine offerings cheaper than Canadian, had a bearish effect on wheat, whereas frost reports gave firmness to the corn market.

Opening ¼ cent to 5-8 cent off, Chicago wheat rallied but then sagged lower than before. Corn started at ¼ cent down to ¼ cent up, underwent a slight general setback, and later scored moderate advances all around. Oats held steady.

Opening prices were: Wheat, September 113 1-8, December 118¼. Corn, September 94, December 77 7-8. Oats, September 42½, December 42½.

FAIR DIRECTORS FINISHING PLANS

Campbellford Board Adds New Attractions to the Program.

(Examiner Staff Correspondence).

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 25.—Whether or not a portion of the Campbellford Fair would be held in thin air was not discussed at the directors' meeting in the Council Chamber last night. It was expected that representatives from a commercial aviation company would wait on the directors to secure the necessary permission to operate a sight-seeing plane on the second day of the Fair. Why they did not appear, was not known. It is expected that there will be word from them during the next few hours.

The meeting was well attended and lively interest shown by all present. No energy or funds are to be spared to make this year's Exhibition the most outstanding success in the history of the Fair. After the usual opening ceremonies had been disposed of, the secretary reported that special tickets for school children had been distributed to the schools of the district.

New Contests.

Clog dancing and old time fiddlers are to be a special grand stand attraction this season. For this purpose a special raised platform is to be constructed immediately opposite the stand and beside the judges' stand. The success of this feature was practically assured last night by Fred McMullen, who is largely responsible for it institution into the program. The prize money will be well worth the winning and has been turned over to the secretary of the society. In order to make certain that it will be a genuine old-time contest, no person under the age of fifty and over the century mark will be considered eligible. It is thought possible that a resident of a neighboring village who has reached the hundred and three mark may wish to take part. Should this gentleman so desire, it was understood at the meeting last night that he would have the unanimous permission of the directors to do so.

A slight word of protest arose from one of the directors who was barred by the age limits set. The margin was less than one year, so it was thought that there might even be a special number staged for the benefit of the "Forty-niners," as they were called. Nor is the judging to be done by young people. One of the oldest and most highly respected citizens of Campbellford was named as prospective judge, and it was believed by the directors that he would accept. He is by nature a man not accustomed to take part in public affairs, but it is thought that he is the most capable to handle the situation.

If the weather remains favorable for the next few days, the race track will be in the best condition in years. Its preparation is left in the hands of men who have long been associated with the trotting horses and are well versed in what a race track should be.

More Stock Enclosures

Additions are being made to the sheep and hog enclosures. These have proved inadequate to care for the number of animals entered at the fairs for the last few years. The horse stable for race horses and the cattle sheds are being thoroughly renovated and the latter are being whitewashed as required by the department.

This year, certain rules are to be rigidly enforced which have not been so treated in former years. The owners and drivers of race horses will be the only men admitted to the grounds free of charge in connection with horse racing. The same will apply to other live stock. The owner and one attendant only will be admitted free.

Arthur Blade of Peterborough will act as starter for the speed events. Mr. Blade is well known here and has a reputation for efficiency in this line. Another note of interest is the fact that a prize is to be given to the best dressed lady on the grounds. The judges for this event have not yet been named for the press.

MADOC UNITED CHURCH.

(Examiner Correspondence).

MADOC, Sept. 25.—The pulpit of Trinity United Church of Madoc was occupied on Sunday morning by Rev. Newton Boles, B.A., B.D., missionary from West China missions, who gave the message of the day, Rev. G. W. Rivers, B.A., B.D., pastor, conducting the services.

Rev. Mr. Boles spoke to the interested boys and girls of the Sunday School during the morning's session, telling them a very interesting story of a Chinese girl, well illustrating the Chinese ideal of reverence and respect to parents.

The sermon for the morning was based on "When He Saw," Matt. ix., 36,, and after dealing with the necessity of seeing before compassion or help can be given, he spoke of the three crises China is facing: Political, economic and social, and moral and religious. This most interesting and instructive address was attentively listened to, and a solo, "Somewhere," was given by Raymond Rivers.

The evening service was conducted by the pastor, whose theme was "Undeveloped Lives."

Raymond Rivers was organist for the day, and Miss Edna Pettit the soloist for the evening service.

Brothers Tell of Crime

Laird Brothers Give Evidence at Trial of Burowski For Murder.

CAPTURED ACCUSED.

Water Laird Was Seeking Car Stolen From His Home During Night.

PARRY SOUND, Ont., Sept. 26.—(Canadian Press). — Walter and Houghton Laird were the first witnesses for the Crown at the trial of John Burowski, charged with murder, here to-day. The brothers played the chief role in Burowski's capture and it was in their struggle with him that he is alleged to have fatally shot Thomas Jackson, a farmer.

Walter Laird told of being awakened with the news that his car had been stolen and of goving chase in another vehicle and finding the car in the ditch. With his brother and Harold Roland he had gone up to the car and threatened the accused, [illegible] in it, with a wrench. Burrowski, he stated, came out of the car with his hands up, but as soon as he got out he fired three shots in rapid succession.

The witness and his companions grappled with him and took his gun away.

NEW PASTOR IS WELCOMED

Congregational Reception Tendered Rev. C. V. and Mrs. McLean.

MANY ADDRESSES.

A splendid reception to welcome Rev. C. V. McLean and Mrs. McLean who have recently come to St. Andrew's, was held last evening in the Sunday School auditorium. A large number of members and adherents of the church were present to meet Mr. and Mrs. McLean, and extend to them a hearty welcome. The hall was beautifully decorated for the occasion. The platform was a bower of beauty with a profusion of ferns and flowers. The front of the platform was banked with ferns entwined with flowers. On either side was a tall silver vase of marigolds. Large potted ferns intercepted with huge baskets of cosmos and bright shaded lamps made a colorful and pretty picture.

The tea table in front of the platform was lovely with a silver basket of mauve cosmos and mauve candles in silver candle holders and pretty tea service.

At the reception Mr. and Mrs. McLean were assisted in receiving by Harry W. Dickins, Mr. and Mrs George Evans, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Gillespie, and Mrs. F. L. Robinson, president of the Ladies' Aid Society.

After the reception the guests were called to order by G. A. Gillespie, who acted as chairman, making a few remarks saying many of the people had met Mr. McLean and got acquainted with him and that he would have the next ten or fifteen years to get acquainted with them. He said: "We are entering on a new era in our church work and if both the pastor and the congregation follow the advice given them at Mr. McLean's induction service, St Andrew's will go ahead."

Mrs. Ford Turner rendered a beautiful solo, "The Bugle Song." Rev.

PREPARATORY DISARMAMENT COMMISSION MEETS IN 1929

Resolution Passed By General Assembly of League of Nations at Geneva.

NEW ACT SUBMITTED.

Designed To Give To Agreement For Renunciation of War.

GENEVA, Sept. 26 (Canadian Press)—Further steps toward disarmament must be accomplished with a minimum of delay, said the assembly of the League of Nations yesterday. The solemn pronouncement was embodied in a resolution which urged the great naval powers to find solutions in a spirit of conciliation and international solidarity for the difficulties which they have encountered.

The resolution, which was framed by the disarmament commission of the league, called for the convocation of the preparatory disarmament commission by the beginning of 1929.

Joseph Paul-Boncour, French delegate, warned the assembly that if this commission failed to draw up an acceptable draft convention at that time, the result would be a catastrophe to league prestige and hopes.

"The league would be as a goddess despoiled of her crown," was the way he phrased the idea.

A "general act" designed to give force to the pact for the renunciation of war was submitted by Nicholas Politis, noted Greek jurist. The act would provide pacific settlement of all disputes by pledging its signatories to use conciliation, judicial procedure or arbitration with the needs of each case. All states would be invited to subscribe to this instrument.

M. Politis told the assembly that the Kellogg pact was an incomplete instrument in that it failed to provide for arbitration by non-signatories.

His "general act" was accompanied by model treaties of conciliation, arbitration, non-aggression and mutual assistance. All states were urged to negotiate and sign agreements of this nature.

Discussion on the measure probably will be resumed to-day. It is expected that the assembly will adjourn after that session.

PLAN EXHIBITS FOR FAIR WEEK

Local Manufacturers Will Cooperate With Produced-in-Canada Fair.

WINDOW DISPLAYS.

At the last regular meeting of the Executive of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce, a committee was appointed to co-operate with the officers and manager of the Produced-in-Canada Exhibition, October 15th to 20th inclusive. The committee, as appointed, Thomas Barrie, chairman, Barrie's, Ltd., with Messrs. Fred. Overend, Peterborough Lumber Co.; W. F. Butcher, Teco Store; Coleman Blewett, R. Neill, Ltd.; W. C. Hughes, Grafton & Co.; V. J. Tully, jeweller, met yesterday in the offices of the Chamber of Commerce, where Dr. J. J. Craig, manager of the Produced-in-Canada Exhibition, was present by invitation.

The net result of the meeting was that the Chamber of Commerce proclaims the weeks of October 15th to 20th to be "Produced-in-Canada Week," and committee members have been requested to arrange exhibits of Produced-in-Peterborough goods during this week, in the windows of available downtown store windows. Outside manufacturers are exhibiting extensively in the Produced-in-Canada Exhibition in the Armouries, so that is was calculated that a downtown display idea would take care of a large proportion of the Produced-in-Peterborough exhibits, increase interest in them, and in the Exhibition, under the auspices of the Kiwanis Club.

The secretary was instructed to write the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, Toronto, and obtain a sufficient supply of the familiar "Produced-in-Canada" placards and streamers.

THE WEATHER

This morning, for the first time, the freezing point was reached in some places, though at my house the standard thermometer gave 33 degrees as the lowest point. There is frequently a difference of one of two degrees between the surface of the ground and three or four feet above it, and that was the case this morning. Some tender plants felt the blighting touch of Jack Frost. On some puddles of water on Murray street, sharp spears of ice could be discerned.—W.P.

HONORED BY KIWANIS.

KINGSTON, Sept. 26.—At the convention of the Ontario-Quebec-Maritime District of Kiwanis being held here, Isaac P. McNabb of Peterborough was yesterday elected Lieutenant Governor of the central division. At the same session it was announced that the Peterborough Club won the efficiency trophy for the district, the second year in succession. This Club has been, on two successive years, highly commended by International for its efficiency in competition with all the clubs in Canada and United States.

Mr. McNabb, who is so honored by the district, has been an active worker in Kiwanis for some years. Elected Vice-President of the Peterborough Club for 1926, he advanced to the Presidency in 1927, succeeding Dr. J. J. Craig, and rendered signal service. He was succeeded this year by Joseph John.

PRICE DEFENDS GASOLINE LEVY

Says Taxes On Motorists Pay Only 60 Per Cent. of Road Costs.

SPEAKS AT WIARTON.

WIARTON, Sept. 26.—A banquet in the Town Hall yesterday evening, with the mayor and council as hosts and later a community dance on the new pavement, marked the formal inauguration of a relocated road to north of the town, which has shortened an important route, reduced grades and made Wiarton easier of access to tourists and the traveling public generally. In view of the fact that the Province shared equally with the county an expenditure of $32,000, a member of the Government was invited to the celebration, and Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney- General- represented the Minister of Highways, at present in Europe.

Significant, in view of a forthcoming increase in gasoline tax, was a statement by Colonel Price that for every dollar expended by the government on highways, directly or in subsidies, it has received only 60 cents from motor license fee and gas tax. In 1927 the revenue amounted to $9,997,804, while expenditure was $16,672,194.

At the end of last year total expended on road improvement within the Province amounted to $217,475,000 of which the Province expended or contributed through subsidies $130,511,000, or 60 per cent. Thus for every dollar expended by the municipalities the Province expended $1.70.

The Province, Colonel Price pointed out, has undertaken its responsibility as regards road development in a number of ways. One is by thorough study of traffic and transportation problems in all civilized countries of the world, with a view to adapting the best available knowledge and practice to conditions here. Unsound practices in workmanship have been discountenanced and appointment of township road superintendents encouraged.

The Minister commended Bruce for its county system, now comprising 302 miles of surfaced road, and for its permanent road committee. During 1927 the Province expended on roads in the county $306,155, or 54 per cent. of the total.

"Our highways," he said, "are intended for the traveling public and every reasonable means should be used to ensure safe passage over them. The better the pavement the more important it is to give attention to the safety of the traveling public, for there will be higher speed. There is also a great necessity for clearer vission at road and railroad crossings."

Birkenhead Sits Beside Dying Mother While the Cabinet Meets In London

EASTBOURNE, England, September 26 (Canadian Press). — The loving mother who made him what he is died here to-day within sound of the sea, while Lord Birkenhead, called England's most brilliant Lord Chancellor sat anxiously at her bedside.

The great drama of devotion here reached its final period —on the side of Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, the fight against early obstacles and the struggle to push her eldest son forward, and on the son's side unwavering affection and pride in his mother.

While the Cabinet was meeting in London, Lord Birkenhead absented himself to share with his two sisters the last vigil at their mother's bedside. Forty years ago Lord Birkenhead's father, Frederick Smith, died a few weeks after he had become Mayor of Birkenhead, and Mrs. Smith was left with a small income to bring up her family of five children. She sent "young Freddie" through Oxford and guided and encouraged him throughout his career.

"He was usually a good boy," she said many times, and her favorite story is of a "ragging" he received when he told his schoolmates that he would be Lord Chancellor, believing what his father had said: "If you work hard, one day you may become Lord Chancellor of England."

DISTRICT GOVERNOR VISITS PETERBOROUGH ROTARY CLUB

Importance of Vocational Service Work Stressed By Bob Turnbull.

TWO PRESENTATIONS.

Dr. McPherson and A. L. Killaly Honored At To-day's Luncheon.

Great stress upon the importance of the vocational service side of Rotary was laid by Rotarian Bob Turnbull of Bath, N.Y., Governor of the 27th District of Rotary International in the course of his inspirational address to the Peterborough Rotary Club at luncheon to-day.

District Governor Turnbull was in conference with the directors and committee chairmen this morning, going over various points of Rotary work, and at the noon hour was greeted by a large attendance of members of the club, who followed his remarks with keen interest.

Two presentations, both made by the District Governor at the request of President W. R. Morris, featured the luncheon.

The first was to Dr. A. W. McPherson, who received at the hands of the Governor a Rotary button.

President Morris prefaced this presentation by announcing that the directors, in recognition of Dr McPherson's great services on behalf of crippled children had made him an honorary member of the Peterborough Rotary Club. The speaker eulogized Dr. McPherson for his faithful work in this department of the club's activity.

In acknowledging the presentation, Dr. McPherson remarked that he would prefer to remain as an active member of the club, rather than as an honorary member, if his fellow-members wished. He expressed his deep appreciation of the honor paid him.

A similar presentation of a Rotary button was made to Past President A. L. Killaly by Governor Turnbull, in recognition of his effective service as president during the past year.

In expressing his thanks, Rotarian Killaly presented the District Governor with a bouquet of flowers for Mrs. Turnbull, who accompanied him to Peterborough, but was not in attendance at the luncheon.

Governor Turnbull's address was a straight-from-the-shoulder talk to Rotarians, in which he brought before the members of the club points that he felt would be of value to them. This year, he explained, the stress was being put on vocational service, and the chairman of that committee would be about the busiest individual in every club. The Governor strongly emphasized the importance of this work, remarking upon the quality of community service that would be given were every Rotarian in his business relations to live up to the Rotary standard of business ethics and to see to it that in every transaction there was benefit alike for the buyer and the seller. No club could be 100 per cent. Rotarian where this standard of business and professional conduct was not lived up to by all the members.

Governor Turnbull also brought before the Rotarians the desirability of paying attention to Rotary extensions. There were opportunities to give other towns the benefit of Rotary, and at the same time there were opportunities for extension internally.

In regard to this latter point the Governor advocated more advantage being taken of the additional active member clause, which permitted the admittance of junior executives of the same classification as the present members.

As to attendance, the speaker said that the Peterborough club had been making a very good record, and there was no need of especially stressing Hassell and Cramer Arrive in Copenhagen By Steamer To-day.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Sept. 26 (Canadian Press).—Bert Hassell, American flier, who arrived to-day from Greenland with his flying companion, Parker Cramer, announced that he would make another attempt next year to fly from the United States to Stockholm, via Greenland.

Hassell and Cramer, who were rescued in Greenland after having been stranded, arrived at Copenhagen aboard the steamer Fulton.

Hassell declared that the failure of this year's attempt was due to the lack of gasoline after the plane had been blown out of its course. The fliers are guests of a local newspaper during their stay here, and after two or three days they will return to the United States by way of England.

Work All Night Fails To Save Great Deal of Harvest.

TOMATOES FROZEN.

Early Cutting Season Enabled Many to Draw in Major Portion of Crop.

WINDSOR, Ont., Sept. 26. — (Canadian Press).—Virtually every stalk of tobacco which yesterday was standing in Essex County fields, is to-day lying flat on the ground, withered by a heavy white frost which hit the county during the night. A hurried survey by Agricultural officials to-day indicated that the crop is a complete loss, although they could not estimate the actual amount of loss.

Seeing the frost coming, farmers worked all night in the fields cutting tobacco by lantern light. Throughout the night, too, farmers drew huge loads of tomatoes to the canning factories, but even so, their work did not prevent serious damage to these crops. The could not haul them fast enough to prevent freezing and thousands of bushels to-day are unfit for use.

County Agricultural representative Stotters estimated to-day that between ten and fifteen percent. of the whole tobacco crop is a complete loss. Fortunately the cutting season opened early this year and harvesting has been going on for the past month. Thus, no farmers will be completely ruined, although many last night saw their whole profit withered away by the killing frost.

Little Damage in Elgin.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Sept. 26 (Canadian Press)—Last night's heavy frost did little damage to the tobacco crop in this district as most of the crop that was not already harvested was nipped on Sunday night.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Sept. 26.—According to information given out to-day by the police, pickpockets had a most profitable day on Saturday at Lindsay central fair. A resident of Oshawa, who is said to be associated with a big industry in that city, was relieved of over $200.00. Two other visitors were relieved of $60 and $75. A number of other thefts were not reported to the police.

The police have nothing to work on in connection with the daring theft at the Dominion Cafe on Sunday.

BY-LAW VOTE IS VERY LIGHT

Small Proportion of Those On List Making Use of Franchises.

CLOSES AT FIVE.

Peterborough's Protestant ratepayers are going to the polls to-day and voting on the question of addition to Nicholls Hospital for which the Board is asking $300,000 from the City Council. The vote from all prospects will be light as there are only approximately 3,000 qualified voters on the list and quite a number of these live out of the city.

The voting throughout the city during the morning was very slow and by noon only a mere handful of voters had registered at the various booths. During the noon hour voting livened up a little and by one o'clock some polling divisions had registered 20 votes.

Voting closes at five and the result is expected to be known at six o'clock.

Langsner's Time is Short

Only One Week Left of Month He Said He Would Need.

PROMISED A SKELETON.

Inspector Guthrie Will Use Any Clues Noted Scientist Can Give Him.

TORONTO, Sept. 26.—(Special to The Examiner).—Inspector of Detectives George Guthrie of Toronto is looking forward with interest for one more week to elapse for Dr. Langsner of Calgary to complete his investigations into the Small case. Dr. Langsner the celebrated Viennesse Criminologist, claims that he will produce the skeleton of Ambrose Small, the Toronto Millionaire and theatrical magnate, who disappeared suddenly in December 1919, and that his investigations into the nine year old mystery were almost completed.

"Dr. Langsner said that it would take him a month to complete these and the month will soon be up" Inspector Guthrie said. Inspector Guthrie is disappointed that he has not heard from Dr. Langsner. Asked why he did not take the initiative and get in touch with Dr. Langsner, Inspector Guthrie replied that it was for the doctor to make the move and not the Toronto Detective Bureau. "We have hunted all over the earth in the Small case and taken all kinds of clues and in this case we should be glad to get any information that is available but I think that it is his love and not mine," stated the Toronto detective. Inspector Guthrie says that he doesn't want to be-little Dr. Langsner's ability in the slightest way. In other cases the Toronto Detectives Bureau has been furnished clues from anonymous sources and they have turned out all right and the same thing might be the case in this instance.

"It seems to me that if Dr. Langsner is a mind reader that he must have a subject to work on and where would he get the subject in this case," queried Inspector Guthrie.

It was suggested that Dr. Langsner stated that he could find the skeleton." Well if he can find the skeleton he is more than a mind reader," commented the Inspector.

Inspector Guthrie stated that if there was any money forthcoming to finance Dr. Langsner in his efforts it would have to come through Mrs. Small and he doesn't know whether or not Mrs. Small would want to spend the money.

BUROWSKI PLEADS NOT GUILTY

COURT REFUSES REQUEST OF COUNSEL FOR CHANGE OF VENUE

Arraigned On Charge of Murder For Shooting of Thomas Jackson.

AT PARRY SOUND.

Counsel Claims He Had Not Sufficient Time To Prepare Defense.

PARRY SOUND, September 26 (Canadian Press) — John Burowski, alleged mail car bandit, pleaded not guilty yesterday when arraigned in the Assize Court on a charge of murder growing out of the shooting last August 18 of Thomas Jackson, McKellar farmer.

Jackson was shot when Burowski fired on three men who were pursuing him following the robbery of a C.P.R. mail car between Romford Junction and Parry Sound. Jackson had come to aid Burowski, whose automobile was stalled in a ditch.

The plea of not guilty was entered when Burowski was arraigned before Mr. Justice Wright at the opening of the Fall Assizes yesterday. Shortly before the grand jury had brought in a true bill in connection with the charge.

The Court, before adjourning until to-day, refused requests of Rolland Ivey, defence counsel, for a change of venue and for a postponement of the trial until the Spring Assizes.

Courtroom Jammed.

Burowski was brought into Court under a heavy guard of provincial officers. The Courtroom was jammed with spectators and many failed to gain admittance.

Mr. Hett presented two affidavits to the Court, one on behalf of the prisoner and one for himself, as the basis for his applications for change of venue and postponement. He claimed that owing to the prisoner's removal to Toronto following his arrest he had not an opportunity to consult with his client and to prepare a sufficient defence to so serious a charge. He complained that owing to lack of funds he had been unable to visit his client frequently and that although he had applied to the Attorney-General for information as to when Burowski would be returned to Parry Sound he had been unable to find this out. He also wanted time in which to produce three witnesses.

Mr. Justice Wright ascertained that witnesses had not been subpoenaed and stated that if sufficient funds were not available application should have been made to the Crown Counsel.

Crown Counsel Haight informed the Court that he had not been previously notified that the applications were to be made. He held that the atmosphere of both the affidavits was purely speculative and insubstantial. He expressed the opinion that a fair trial could be secured at Parry Sound and saw no grounds on which the application for postponement could be allowed.

Mr. Justice Wright ruled that he would not entertain the application for postponement. While the charge was serious and every opportunity should be given to prepare a defence, he considered that the time elapsed since Burowski's arrest had been sufficient for this. He ruled that no valid ground had been given for a change in venue.

ENGINEER DIES.

(Examiner Correspondence)

OMEMEE, Sept. 26.—A deep gloom was cast over the highway construction group working near the boundary of Ops when news reached them on Saturday that the engineer of the steam shovel had passed away suddenly in the Ross Hospital, Lindsay.

The deceased, an Italian, was very popular with the workmen in general. He was of powerful physique, weighing almost 240 pounds.

The funeral was held on Monday morning at 10 o'clock in Lindsay. A mute tribute of respect was paid at that time by his fellow-workmen when all work ceased for two minutes in memory of the deceased.

Fifteen Thousand At Lindsay Fair

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Sept. 26.— According to an unofficial announcement, the attendance on the closing day of Lindsay central fair was in the neighborhood of fifteen thousand. While unfavorable weather conditions on the opening days told against a much larger attendance, the directorate is well satisfied with the general results.

The management of the Sheesley Shows, which was the big feature of the Fair, is authority for the statement that the shows made $2,000 clear of all obligations, including transportation to the State of Georgia, during their stay in Lindsay.

J. S. Chandler, of Peterborough, carried off the Joseph Hickson Cup for the best team of carriage horses in harness. R. M. Brown, of Peterborough, also carried off the T. Eaton Special for the best pen of poultry.

Insane Son Is Killed By German Mother, Uses Bullet To Save Youth From Torture

BERLIN, September 26. — An answer to the uncertain and unsolved ending of Ibsen's "Ghosts" was enacted at Karlshort this morning when a mother shot her incurably insane son rather than see him suffer the tortures of life without mental reason.

As in Ibsen's play the son was a victim of a hereditary malady that affected his brain. While in the Ibsen drama the curtain falls with the mother holding poison pills outstretched toward her offspring and the public never learns whether the mother's courage was sufficient to give him the relief for which he begged so piteously, the Karlhorst mother, Frau Maether, ended the scene as she felt in her heart Ibsen's should have been concluded. On the eve of her son's being taken to an insane asylum, most likely never again to regain for a moment his senses and doomed to die a raving maniac, the mother watched until opiates put him to sleep, and then sent a bullet into his temple. Afterward she calmly walked to the police station and prepared to face the law, defying them to say her course of action was not the kindest and most humane.

CORN CUTTING SEASON HERE

Some Fine Fields Seen at Warsaw—Wet Harms Potatoes.

LITTLE FROST DAMAGE.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, Sept. 26.— Corn cutting will be in full swing next week. There are some splendid fields of corn. Allan Payne's is among the best, but fields owned by David Rose, Richard Tedford, Arthur Edwards and many others are beautiful to see.

The wet weather has taken its toll of potatoes, for there are quite a lot of rotten ones. Some report just a few, others a great many. One man had a splendid crop of large potatoes, but more than half rotten.

Pumpkins and squash have grown well and roots appear good. The frosts so far have not been very hard on anything except tomatoes.

Some buckwheat is cut. Mr. Whibbs has a field of good looking buckwheat in stooks, but much of it is too green to cut, but it is filling well, and the grain is likely to be abundant. Much of it will have to be cut the one way, and more of it is getting that way all the time.

Boston Woman Is Found Murdered; Bloody Hatchet Lies Near Battered Body

SPOKANE, Wash., September 26. — Her head hacked and battered with a hatchet, Mrs. Katherine Clark, 36, of Boston, Mass., was found dead at Foothills, fifteen miles from Spokane, late yesterday.

The woman had been dragged some distance to a spring, blood stains disclosed. A hatchet was found near the body.

County Prosecutor Greenough said he had learned that Mrs. Clark, who was divorced at Waterown, Mass., arrived in Spokane last Friday in response to correspondence concerning marriage.

She went to stay at the residence of Archie F. Moock, a mill worker, who is held for questioning. Moock was said to have driven the woman in the direction of Coeur D'Alene, Idaho, on Saturday to meet her intended huband, the prosecutor said.

Mr. Greenough expressed the opinion that robbery was the motive for the killing.

HARVEST HAND WELL PLEASED

Well Paid and Treated White, He Says As He Seeks New Job.

WILL TAKE UP FARM.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 26 (Special). — With threshing in Southern Manitoba fairly well over, British harvesters are returning to Winnipeg. From the men who have seen actual work in the fields, little else than favorable stories are heard, for men willing to work have had it, with good food and good pay to boot.

Monday morning George Arthur, of 56 Portland Road, Winton, Bournemouth, England, applied at the Canadian Pacific Colonization Offices for another job.

Arthur, who in the Old Country had been a builder's assistant, working odd days on odd jobs for some time, had been sent on arrival at Winnipeg to a Melita man. He was employed first as a stooker by W. S. Slack, who farms 480 acres. He worked there for 26 days at $4.00 and $5.00 per day, according to the work on which he was employed. He saved $130.00. He had good food, plenty of it, a warm bed, and his laundry was done. Altogether, as he termed it, "he was treated white because he did his bit."

On Monday night Arthur left for Wilkie, Sask., where he is promised about $6.00 a day.

When his ticket expires at the end of the year Arthur will go back to England, because as an ex-service man with actual farm experience, he will be able to take advantage of the Government service scheme. He will come back to Canada, and take up a farm of his own. Mr. Arthur saw service with the Ninth Lancers for twenty years, and was a Sergeant-Major with that unit in France, but after his third wound he was attached to the military police. He says he never felt so well in his life as after his experience as a Canadian farmer and cannot understand why if physically fit and anxious to work, any of the men sent from the Old Country have complained about the treatment given them.

Rural School Fairs In Peterborough District

CONTESTS FOR RURAL SCHOOLS

Valuable Prizes To Be Given By Kiwanis Club Next Month.

PARADE PLANNED.

Rural schools are of such importance in the plan of any organization boosting Canada that a special day is being set aside for them at the Produced in Canada Exhibition. On Saturday, October 20, there will be a parade of all the rural schools, with physical drill demonstrations on the square in front of the Armouries. Prizes will be awarded to the value of $25, $15, and $10 for the schools taking first, second and third places, and every other school entering the parade will be given a prize to the value of $5.

This competition, which is under the direction of J. B. Nelson, Agricultural Representative of the Government in this district, will be judged on the following basis: marching, 20%; physical drill, 50%; identity, 15%; and school song or yell, 15%.

Entries close on October 15. Every pupil in all the rural schools within travelling distance of Peterborough will be given a free ticket to the Kiwanis fair.

South Cavan

MILLBROOK, Sept. 25 (Examiner Correspondence).—The South Cavan Rural School Fair was held in the Agricultural Park, Millbrook, on Monday, September 24, and in spite of rather inclement weather was in all respects one of the best of these annual events ever held here.

Both in quality and number the exhibits were highly commendable, and the large attendance gave evidence of the interest taken throughout the district covered.

The eight schools represented in the South Cavan section of Durham County, with their teachers, are: S.S. No. 8, Whitfield's, Miss Ethel McKnight; S.S. No. 10, Fallis Line, Miss Maretta Grey; S.S. No. 11, Millbrook, B. B. Dawson, principal, and Miss Orchard; S.S. No. 12, Cedar Valley, Miss Alice Armstrong; S.S. No. 13, Zion, Miss Jean L. Burnham; S.S. No. 14, Fairview, Miss Dorothy Hall; S.S. No. 15, Cork, Miss Mary Moise; S.S. No. 19, Carmel, Miss G. Davey. All but two of these, Fairview and Cedar Valley, took part in the parade and the physical culture exercises, which were judged by Colonel J. W. Odell, School Inspector, and J. A. Neilson, Extension for Eastern Ontario.

The heavy rain, which came on as the school parade was well under way, accompanied as it was by an unpleasantly cold atmosphere, interfered with the marching and other manouvres to a considerable extent, sending the pupils, in their summery costumes, to seek hasty cover, the judges deciding that the various school yells would have to be dispensed with, under the circumstances. The ground was afterward too wet to allow the competing schools to do themselves full justice in the physical culture exercises, though the judges expressed themselves as being well pleased with the efficiency shown in deportment and marching, and in general appearance and discipline.

An innovation this year allowed a demonstration in First Aid in place of drills, three pupils from each school exemplifying this on a supposedly broken arm of one of their comrades. The work had evidently been well prepared but weather conditions were not favorable for the full program in connection with this section of the afternoon's proceedings.

The standing for the school parade was: 1, Millbrook, S.S. No. 11; 2, Carmel, S.S. No. 19; 3, Whitfield's S.S. No. 8; 4, Fallis Line, S.S. No 10; 5, Zion, S.S. No. 13.

For Physical Culture: 1, Millbrook; 2, Zion; 3, Whitfield's; 4, Cork; 5, Carmel. A special prize was awarded Raymond Kennedy, of Zion school, by Colonel Odell, because of the marked efficiency with which this seven-year-old boy, the smallest in the whole parade, went through the various exercises. "The brightest pupil, knowing the right thing to do at the right time," was the Colonel's commendation.

Special mention might be made of the exhibits in the section calling for a collection of 24 specimens of Canadian wood, each one named and each to be 1-2 inch in diameter and 3 inches in length, one end cut to show grain of the wood"; the educational value of this study, and also of the drawing which showed the various stages in the life history of the corn borer, needs no comment. The personal work on the part of the pupils involved in preparing these exhibits, and others called for in the School Fair program, cannot help but be of decided benefit, broadening the mental outlook, and developing interest along new lines.

Dummer

WARSAW, Sept. 24. — Dummer school fair was a decided success. The ground was a little damp in the morning but as the day wore on it was perfect. Last year it was too cold.

The live stock exhibits were better than ever before, and Mr. Cox reported they were better than at any other place so far. Quite a number of thoroughbred cattle. The three Hereford calves were very pretty. Herefords were shown in Warsaw in 1927 for the first time. There was a good showing of market lambs and of poultry, more Barred Rocks than any other, but there were some White Leghorns and one pen of White Wyandottes.

The exhibits inside the tent were of good quality, but there was not as many as there might have been. The baking looked very tempting. The flowers were beautiful. Among a bunch of gladioli was a stem of scarlet amyrillis. The sewing by the girls was well done. The vegetable exhibits showed some fine specimens. There was a sheaf of corn, the stalks on which were fourteen feet long and loaded wtih large well-filled ears.

Some of the writing and drawing was exceptionally good. The crayon, pencil and water-color work showed a good deal of talent as well as technique.

Miss Hopkins reported a great deal of interest in judging school lunches. She was well pleased with the points handed in.

Mr. Cox reported good interest in the judging of farm stock by the boys.

The schools taking part in the parade were:

1 Cottesloe, S.S. No. 7. The pupils carried a white banner with red letters and wore red and white ribbons and carried flags.

2, Ninth Line School, S.S. No. 2. Teacher, Miss Radden. Carried a banner, upper part red, lower green, with S.S. No. 12, Dummer, in black letters in the middle. Girls wore white middies and blue skirts, with red ties and hair bands; boys wore light blouses and dark trousers, with green arm bands, and red caps with a green maple leaf in front.

3.—Warsaw, S.S. No. 3. Teachers, Mr. Gardner and Miss Young. Pupils wore yellow hats with yellow and black sashes, and carried a black and yellow banner with black and yellow streamers.

4.—Pleasant Plains, S.S. No. 4. Teacher, Miss McIlmoyle. This school had a banner of red with green lettering, each pupil wore a white headband with black letters, and a red sash.

Fourth Line, S.S. No. 5. Teacher, Miss Calder. The name banner was of blue with white letters.

S.S. No. 5, Douro. Teacher, Miss McMurray. Carried a banner of red, white and blue, with shields of the coat of arms, and wore sashes of red, white and blue.

Forsythe's School, Union No. 12. Teacher, Mr. Sloan, carried a banner of green and yellow, and boys wore caps of green with yellow peaks, and the girls' hats were green with yellow trimming.

Central Dummer and Garbutt's School, S.S. No. 6, Douro, Union, had exhibits, but did not parade.

Prizes for school physical drill were: 1st, Union No. 12; 2nd, Dummer, No. 4; 3rd, Dummer, No. 3.

The band, which was expected, phoned on Wednesday, they could not come.

Public speaking and singing were part of the evening entertainment.

The Warsaw Women's Institute had a booth on the grounds, and served hot-dogs and tea. Mr. Archie Tedford very kindly lent his tent.

The Dummer Association had a booth for ice cream, fruit, candy and soft drinks. The Institute gave the association ten dollars, to be used as they saw fit for prizes.

In connection with the fair, Mr. Gardiner gave a talk on the points of judging vegetables, also told how to produce the vegetables such as they should be.

The money of the concert goes to the Dummer Association, not to any one school.

As usual, the town hall was inadequate for the crowd that attended, or tried to attend the concert.

Seymour

(Examiner Staff Correpondence)

There were five rural schools represented in the School Fair held on the Seymour Agricultural Grounds under the direction of the Seymour School Fair Association. These fairs are held under direct government supervision and throughout this district are supervised by the government representatives from the Department of Agriculture office at Brighton, where Walter H. Smith is in charge.

There was a regular program on athletics before the grand stand, but the event which attracted the most attention was the demonstration of first aid and the competition which was synonymous with it. In this, the judges awarded seventy-five percent for the actual first aid work and the remainder for the marching of the schools competing. S.S. No. 3 was awarded the first honors, under the direction of Earl Fairman. Miss Bennett and her class, S.S. No. 2, was awarded second place. The third prize was won by S.S. No. 1, of which school Miss Cruikshanks is the teacher. S.S. No. 5, taught by Miss Patrick was awarded fourth place. S.S. No. 5 also competed.

The prize list this year was much the same as other years. But the entries were generally considered of a higher standard throughout. The judges were very favorably impressed.

Roseneath

ROSENEATH, Sept. 26.—The annual rural school fair held at Roseneath on Thursday afternoon, September 20th on the Agricultural grounds proved very successful. Unfortunately the weather was unfavorable with heavy rain throughout the day but nevertheless the attendance was large. The six schools in the district all participated in the event.

The new agricultural building was used to great advantage when the pupils from the six schools were lined up by their teachers for inspection. The first aid work was demonstrated and was most interesting, the competition being to dress a broken arm. The judges had a difficult task, however, and used a score card in each case, and brought out one-half point between first and second and the same result between third and fourth. Walter Smith, agricultural representative, commended the pupils on their splendid work, also stated that this had been the hardest fair to judge this season as the different schools were of a very high standard and many hesitations were made before the final decision.

Roseenath senior room has the honor of winning the shield, which they have held for several years, and which now becomes their permanent possession and will be placed in the school room. This gives evidence of the hard labor by the pupils and teachers in winning such a prize.

After the sports the crowd was attracted to the hall where the vegetables, fine arts, cooking, etc. were exhibited. Many expressions of pleasure were heard as each exhibit was reviewed and they indeed reflected much credit on the part of the boys and girls who must have spent much time in making ready such a fine display.

There was not a variety of field crop or garden product missing and the standard of excellence was both a surprise and a delight.

In the floral display there were some choice flowers. I nasters, phlox, marigolds and zinnias the competition was particularly keen.

The domestic science was extra large and the prizes were won only by the most perfect entries.

One is tempted to judge the type of boy when examining the manual training section. In fact it seems that every manufacturer and dealer is trying to instruct and educate people and it is usually the children who take it all in and learn something from it. The boys did splendid work in making hay-racks, ladders and rulers.

The junior pupils' work showed excellent ideas for the future. In judging the poultry and live stock the boys and girls took great interest in listening to the judges giving information and showing the good and bad points in the animal or fowl. Poultry judging competition by the pupils are as follows: 1, Ona Taylor and Parnell Masters; 2, Archie Blodgett and Cecil Blodgett; 3, Irene Oliver.

Valda Webb from S.S. No. 3, winning 82 points, received the silver cup given by T. Eaton Co., Toronto. Joe Morrison of Roseneath school won the set of books donated by the The T. Eaton Co. and other prizes receiving the sum of $7.95 in prize money from her exhibits.

Mr. Davey, senior teacher of S.S. No. 2, received $33.10 in regular prize money and $5.50 in special for his class.

WANTED MAN FOUND HERE?

London Police Have Report That Missing Mail Driver is Caught.

BY CANADIAN POLICE.

LONDON, Sept. 26.—(Special to the Examiner).—It is reported that Canadian police have arrested a man thought to be John Hamilton, a mail van driver, who disappeared the day of the unsolved robbing in 1926 of $400,000 registered mail and Diamonds from Hatton Garden. It is alleged Hamilton was in charge of the van at the time of the robbery. Police investigation revealed the fact that the van was driven off its regular route and three men were seen transferring mail bags into an automobile. The van was found abandoned and the police have been searching for Hamilton ever since. Inquiries at the Royal Mounted Police headquarters at Ottawa brought the information the Dominion officials have not been advised of any arrest having been made in Canada in connection with the London mail robbery.

BANQUET GIVEN LEADING TEAMS AND OFFICIALS

Campbellford Softball Season Closes With Dinner and Speeches.

PRESIDENT LEAVING.

Medals Are Given Clerks Players—Cuff Links For President Bell.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 26.—(Examiner Staff Correspondence).—Following the custom of past seasons, the winners of the local softball league, the runners up, the representatives of the various teams in the league and several of the town officials were banqueted last night, at the Clifton Tea Room, Tice street. Unlike other years, there was a surprise in store for the players and officers present when J. B. Bell, ex-president of the association, announced that he was leaving town to accept a position in Perth. Mr. Bell has been associated with softball and tennis in Campbellford since his arrival in town. He was also responsible for the revival of cricket for a season.

Leo Bush, the catcher who suffered a fractured leg in one of the later games, was also able to sit at the table, and expressed his appreciation for the assistance which the association had given him during his illness.

The meal itself went the way of all good things eatable, and the speeches were the next order of the evening.

Mr. Bell was the first to address the gathering. He reminded the guests that he had resigned and that Harry Tinney had been elected in his place. His reason for tendering his resignation as president, was that he was leaving Campbellford to pursue his profession elsewhere. He felt sure that the association would meet with success under the guidance of the new president. He very much regretted the accident which had happened to Leo Bush, and reminded the guests that Mr. Bush had been an invalid for the past six weeks. It would, in all probability, be another two weeks before he was able to be about again. It was the hope of the executive and players as well, that the injured man would be able to enter the game next season.

Mr. Bell also expressed his appreciation for the fine spirit which had prevailed during the season and paid glowing tribute to the most efficient manner in which the referees had handled the games, particularly the semi-finals and finals. Every player and every man had "played to the whistle." For the third consecutive season, the Clerks had won the cup. To them, Mr. Bell expressed his appreciation for the modest manner in which they had carried their laurels and also to the others, less fortunate teams for the fine spirit they had displayed although losers.

Although the cup was not the property of the Clerks team, the deed of gift provided for individual medals to be presented each year. This would be continued, said Mr. Bell. It was a matter of deep regret that A. L. Riendeau, manager of the Clerks team, was unable to be present through illness.

Nor did Mr. Bell's compliments include only the winning team. He recalled the sportsmanship which others had shown even though it had been a close call between the Legionaires and the Mill for who would win the "wooden spoon." All had played as the great athletes of old, for the love of the game and for no monetary gain. This was the same spirit which had put Canada very much to the fore in the last Olympic games. A clean mind in a sound body, the motto of the early Greeks, was ideal for all walks of life.

Before presenting the cup and medals, President Bell concluded his remarks with a few witticisms which were greatly appreciated. James Gay, captain of the Clerks team, accepted the cup. The silver medals, suitably engraved, were presented to James Gay, Malcolm Cook, Roy Barnum, Thornton Ibey, Leslie Blake, Douglas Runions, Harry Denike, Ted Blute, A. L. Riendeau, M. E. Wager, Hector McArthur and Bernard Blute. Applause greeted the victorious players as they received their medals.

Mayor Kingston.

Mayor Kingston was the second speaker. In presenting him, President Bell paid compliment to the fine showing which the mayor's son, Wilbert, had made in the tennis league events this season. His Worship expressed his warm appreciation of the remarks. He also regretted that Mr. Riendeau was unable to be present and explained that the popular manager had been ordered to remain in bed for a period of not less than six weeks. Mr. Riendeau had asked the Mayor to convey his regrets. Congratulations for the victorious Clerks were also in order from the first citizen of the town. The less successful teams were also congratulated on the fine sportsmanship they had shown during the season. He assured the retiring president that the association genuinely regretted his departure from town, but felt that the club was being left in good hands. The best wishes for every success would follow Mr. Bell in his new field.

Presentation Made.

Not till then did the Mayor produce the surprise of the evening. With a few brief, but highly suitable remarks, he presented the retiring president with a pair of beautiful white gold cuff links engraved with the initials, J. H. B. Mr. Bell was greatly surprised and his brief words of appreciation amply expressed his feeling. The gift would recall many happy memories of his association with Campbellford softball. "I thank you all very much," he said.

Harry Tinney.

Harry Tinney, the new president, who has already assumed the reins of government, paid tribute to the good work which Mr. Bell had done, referring to him as a pioneer of softball here. "He has not served who gathers gold. Nor has he served whose life is told, of selfish battles he has won, or deeds of fame that he has done. But he has served who now and then, has helped along his fellowmen." This was the quotation which concluded the president's remarks, and for which the retiring president expressed his gratitude.

James Gay, B. H. Beatty, Leo Bush and Harold Dunk also spoke. Mr. Bush thanked the association for the financial and other assistance which they had given him during his period of idleness and said that while he had not expected it, it had been certainly appreciated. Harold Dunk, secretary-treasurer of the association, assured the guests that Mr. Bell was leaving the club in a sound financial basis. He also reported that the proceeds from the benefit game had amounted to $122.75. James Gay expressed his regret at Mr. Riendeau's unavoidable absence, and thanked the association for the cup, the medals and for the banquet, which had been most enjoyable.

There were present at the tables last night: Ex-President J. H. Bell, President Harry Tinney, Major Kingston, Umpires Beatty and Farrell, Club Representatives, Gay of the Clerks, Maybee of the Outlaws, Beatty of the Electrics, Montgomery of the Mill, Bailey of St. Andrew's, and Owens of the Legionaires. The players from the Clerks and Outlaws teams were practically all present. There were a few whose absence was unavoidable.

Would you expect a SPUR to SOOTHE?

SPURS soothe nothing. Yet many goad their nerves into wracking action—lash nerves into sleeplessness—whip-up nerves into headaches and irritability through tannin and caffeine, two drug-spurs found in certain mealtime beverages.

Cut by the spur, a horse fights back. Lashed by the drug-spurs, tannin and caffeine, nerves fight back. Nerves jangle and jar under daily punishment until eventually—the crash!

Tannin and caffeine are harmful. With you these agents may work fast or slow. But, sooner or later, their poisonous effects are certain, sure!

Drink Postum. This rich, appetizing hot drink cannot whip-up your nerves because it contains not a single trace of any drug-stimulant. Splendid as a wholesome family beverage served three times daily. Instantly made in the cup, at a cost of about half a cent. There's Postum Cereal, too, made by boiling or percolating twenty minutes. At all grocer's, restaurants, your club or on the train. Read Carrie Blanchard's generous free offer. Send the coupon now.

Carrie Blanchard's Offer

"I want you to try Postum for thirty days. I want to start you out on your test by giving you your first week's supply (sufficient for 21 cups).

"It seems to me that it would be a wise plan for mothers, particularly, to think of this test in connection with the health of their families.

"Will you send me your name and address? Tell me which kind you prefer—Instant Postum, made instantly in the cup, or Postum Cereal (the kind you boil). I'll see that you get the first week's supply right away."

You know how many children do not like the taste of milk. You know how they like to have the same drink as the "grown-ups." You know, too, how good it is for them to have a hot drink! Make Instant Postum for them, using hot milk (not boiled) instead of boiling water! They'll like the taste immediately! And they will get the added nourishment of milk in a hot drink that is economical and so easy to make.

BIGGER THAN EVER.

The Produced-in-Canada Exhibition, under the auspices of the Kiwanis Club, next month, is assuming proportions that justify the prediction that last year's successful show will be completely surpassed.

The various committees are working with a will that presages improvements in every department, and there are numerous new features that will undoubtedly appeal to the public.

All the available accommodation has been snapped up by manufacturers and merchants, and the exhibits will not only be more numerous but more ambitious than ever before.

As a demonstration of Canadian-made articles the Exhibition will eclipse any previous attempt in this direction.

The Produced-in-Canada Exhibition promises to be the banner indoor event of the year, and there is no doubt of the patronage of the public.

BORROWING IN ENGLAND.

The fact that the Ontario Government has for the first time in over twenty years floated a loan in the London market calls attention to the unpromising conditions on this continent in regard to government and municipal financing.

Tight money and high rates have driven the Ontario Government to seek better terms elsewhere, and although the rate obtained in London does not compare favorably with those prevailing last year, it is at least better than could have been secured on this side of the Atlantic.

As a matter of fact, the conditions prevailing here have been responsible for the deferring of contemplated bond issues by both Governments and municipalities, which have hesitated to sell debentures at lower price than the high rates that were in vogue for some years.

Under the circumstances the Provincial Treasurer has been well advised to look for better terms in the London market.

The placing of this loan in England will be viewed as good financing in view of the present condition of the American market.

SPLENDID WORK.

Saturday's tag day on behalf of the Children's Aid Society is important in that it constitutes the only appeal made to the public for support for this institution, and particularly so on this occasion because the cost of the society's work is steadily increasing, and a liberal response on the part of the citizens of Peterborough will be more than ever appreciated.

The responsibility of looking after neglected and dependent children is assumed by the Children's Aid Society on behalf of the community.

It is work that must be done, and there is every reason to believe that it is well done by the Children's Aid Society, which has opened a new outlook in life for hundreds of children, who have grown up to be useful and successful citizens because of the activities of the organization.

Work of that nature deserves support, and the tag day appeal affords a splendid opportunity for citizens generally to make their contribution toward the financing of this altogether worthy enterprise.

WHAT IT MEANS TO CANADA.

Estimates as to the tourist traffic in Canada this year place the total as the greatest on record.

In 1927, according to the highways branch of the Department of Railways and Canals the money spent in this country by tourists was over $276,000,000.

The tourist industry is obviously a giant in the realm of Canadian business.

The figure quoted for last year, which will undoubtedly be passed when the 1928 total is estimated, means that the money spent in this country by tourists exceeds the value of building permits in 63 Canadian cities, the value of Canada's mineral production or the output of Canada's pulp and paper mills.

Canada's wheat exports brought more revenue, but few other items of Canadian business show such receipts as the estimated revenue from tourist traffic.

The effect of this revenue on general business must be powerful.

The expenditure of such large sums of money affects all lines of merchandise, and means a continual stream of new money pouring into the country for the purchase of food, clothing, camp and automobile supplies, etc.

The tourist business is well worth cultivating, and every local effort to increase the stream of tourist traffic into Peterborough deserves support.

LORD CURZON'S DASHED AMBITION.

There is much of pathos, something of nobility, and certainly nothing of dishonor, in the chagrin of Lord Curzon, as revealed by his biographer, when he was passed over for Mr. Baldwin to take over the leadership of the British Conservative party. Curzon was, perhaps, the greatest English politician of his time who failed to reach the premiership. Misunderstood and misrepresented; a man who has served the state with distinction in the highest offices; a parliamentary orator of great power; one who believed in the tradition of English prose; he was a man of inordinate ambition. Yet when the hour struck for him to realize the dream of his life, which was to be Prime Minister, he saw himself rejected for a man who, up to that time, had achieved little more than a back-bench reputation. "I found in the morning press," he wrote to his biographer (the Earl of Ronaldshay) an almost unanimous opinion that the choice was lying between Stanley Baldwin and myself. There was no question as to the immense superiority of my claims and little doubt as to the intentions of the King." Unfortunately, however, there were other factors. "It was the disagreeable task of the King's secretary," writes Ronaldshay, "to inform Lord Curzon that since the Labor party constituted the official opposition in the House of Commons and were unrepresented in the House of Lords, the objections to a member of the Upper Chamber as Prime Minister were insuperable. . . . Mr. Baldwin had already been summoned to Buckingham Palace."

It was a hard blow. Curzon, we are told, committed to paper the "most galling experience which life had brought him," and poured out his pent-up feelings "in a torrent of agonized despair." "Such," he exclaimed, "was the reward I received for nearly 40 years of public service in the highest offices; such was the manner in which it was intimated to me that the cup of honorable ambition had been dashed from my lips."

There was nothing mean nor petty about this chagrin. For ambition, after all, the ambition to achieve things, to have the esteem and affection of the world, to hand down an honorable name and a legacy of high service to one's family, is and has always been among the great motives behind noble work. "Sir," said Dr. Johnson, "the applause of a single man, no matter how humble, is among the great things in life."

And the experience of Lord Curzon is but one more proof of the part that chance and fate play in human life. "I am the captain of my soul," sang Henley, but though man may be that, though under the fell clutch of circumstance he may go on with "head bloody but unbowed," there are unquessable, unknowable things in life, fate or chance, or whatever one wishes to call them, that will bring to dust the most carefully planned ambitions. Shirley put it all well in the lines.

"The glories of our blood and state
Are shadows, not substantial things—
There is no armor against fate."

IMPROVED INDUSTRIAL RELATIONS.

Some interesting observations regarding the existing relation between capital and labor in Canada at the present time are contained in the monthly review of the Bank of Nova Scotia for September, which points out that this country has been remarkably fortunate in her freedom from industrial strife. Among the factors named making for this situation are: First, the improvement in the standard of living of the industrial worker; second, the fact that some of the newer members of the trade unions may have become dissatisfied with the policy of the unions and therefore deserted them; and third, the improved attitude of the employers as regards the welfare of their employees. In this connection the extension of group insurance is mentioned as a powerful factor in improving relations.

Dealing with the record since the war ended, it is pointed out that the year 1919 was the most serious in Canadian industrial annals. No previous twelve months had seen a time loss even remotely comparable to this. Even in 1911, the year of the great strike of United Mine Workers in Alberta and British Columbia, which lasted for exactly thirty-three weeks—two weeks longer than the coal strike of 1926 in Britain—the loss of working time was little more than half as great—2,047,000 working days. During 1922, 1924 and 1925, respectively, the loss of working time was between 1,500,000 and 2,000,000 working days. In the light of these figures the peaceful record of 1926 and 1927 is remarkable indeed.

Only twice in the present century—1902 and again in 1915—has the low record of 1927 been equalled. Except in 1915, none of the war years were as free from disputes between labor and capital as last year.

It would be rash indeed to suppose that because the last two years have seen a remarkable cessation from industrial warfare, we may disregard the risk of strikes and lockouts in the future. It is nevertheless worth while to consider whether certain recent developments in industry do not reduce considerably the likelihood of strife.

First among these is the very considerable rise in the standard of living of the Canadian worker. An attempt was made to measure this in a recent number of the Review, when it was suggested that, on an average, the men and women engaged in industry during 1927 were some 17 per cent. better off than their predecessors had been in 1913. Comfort breeds contentment the world over; and an assurance of comfort, as the growing productivity of labor makes possible for the worker an increasingly high standard of living, is an influence naturally making for stability.

Something must also be credited to domestic developments within the trade union movement. The years immediately preceding 1919 were years of rapidly growing membership; and of the workers who joined the unions in those days a proportion had little acquaintance with the tradition of organized labor and looked for immediate results from their enlistment. Their ultimate defection, apart from the numerical shrinkage which it involved, would be likely to make for stable ...l relations.

While allowing full weight to the working of natural forces in favor of industrial peace, we must also recognize that in many quarters an improved attitude on the part of employers is producing exceedingly good results. Welfare schemes are to be found far back at the beginning of industrial development. But within the last few years there has been an extension and an elaboration of them with the happiest results. Most promising of all are the plans designed to give wage-earners a consciousness of greater economic security; to remove the nightmare of unemployment and soften the prospect of old age. The recent wide extension of group insurance, sometimes a free gift from employer to workman, sometimes a facility placed at his disposal with the minimum of cost, is perhaps the most noteworthy benefit provided. Nothing is better calculated to lessen friction "at the works."—Monetary Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

And that Stoney Lake sea-serpent story did not develop during the dog days, it should be noticed.

A candidate to oppose Miss Agnes MacPhail has been named in South-east Grey. He'll have a real fight on his hands.

The Camp Borden football team has been refused permission to fly to Ottawa. Probably the Department of Defense felt that they would get enough crashes at the hands of the Rough Riders.

One of Canada's women runners is to be married soon and announces that she proposes to continue in the sprinting game. After they've caught them they usually stop running.

Probably that Detroit bandit didn't know the Toronto police were looking for him.

Fourteen British editors are to tour the United States. Big Bill Thompson will doubtless have a hearty welcome waiting for them at Chicago.

Toronto aldermen who vote to ban loud speakers used for advertising purposes may be automatically barring themselves from public life.

The Question Box

I. P. Q.—Of what are violin strings made?

A.—From catgut, made from the intestines of sheep.

C.F. Q.—(1) What is the heaviest kind of wood; (2) The lightest?

A—(1) Lignum vitae; (2) Basswood, at 30 pounds a cubic foot, has been called the lightest, but it has been claimed that balsa, or corkwood, found in South America, is still lighter.

* * *

Sculptor: Q.—Who made "The Thinker"?

A—Auguste Rodin.

A.O.P.—Q: Does presiding officer of a meeting vote when ballot is first cast, or only in case of a tie vote?

A: When the vote is by ballot, the presiding officer votes at the same time as the others. When an open vote is taken it is customary, though not a rule, for the presiding officer to wait until the last in order to cast his vote. This provides a tie breaker in the event of one being required.

GOD'S MINUTE.

And in every work that he began in the service of the house of God, and in the law, and in the commandments to seek his God, he did it with all his heart, and prospered.—II Chr. 31: 21.

Our kind heavenly Father, we come to give Thee worship this morning. We have rested safely beneath the cover of Thy care through the night, and can say as Thy servant of old, "When I awake, I am still with Thee." Blessed be Thy name. "Thy mercies are new every morning, and Thy thoughtfulness renewed in the night." We thank Thee for morning light and morning gifts, and for the opportunities to serve Thee through this new day. Help us, our Father, to enter into all the work of the day with cheerful minds. Give us strength for our toil, clearness of mind for all decisions we must make, and grace to overcome every temptation to do wrong. Help us to walk before our fellow-men in such manner that others can see that we "have been with Jesus." Remember graciously all our loved ones; parents, brothers and sisters, and all dear to us.

"Though sundered far, may we often meet Around one common Mercy Seat."

and realize that we have a common Father over us all. Bless this day all efforts put forth to win men from sin. Give success to all teaching and preaching and living Thy word at home and abroad. Give us, dear Lord, the joy of winning a soul for Thee to-day and to Thy name be glory forever. Amen.

A Thought

ROAD TO SUCCESS

You start at the gate labelled "Push";
If it creaks on its hinges, never mind,
Though many, dismayed at the sound,
Turning back in despair you will find.
When you enter, go on straight ahead,
'Tis the road that's called "System" you take;
There's "Happy-go-lucky" close by—
Be sure that you make no mistake!
Yours leads along "Energy's" vale,
Up "Difficult" hill on the right,
Then it enters "Perpetuity's" woods—
Ahead there is no ray of light!
You mustn't stop here, but go on,
"Purpose" rivers just over the crest;
Once crossed, the fair plains of "Success"
Offer richest refreshment and rest.

IS CANADA CONGESTED?

Editor Examiner.
Dear Sir:

Has Canada during the past month become as congested as Europe? The question is inspired by your editorial commending the Deputy Minister of Agriculture for his statement that the British miners will not be allowed to remain in Canada unless they secure work on the farms. Here in Montreal every day there are in the various labor bureaux, ads for laboring men of all kinds. Most of them no doubt will be filled, in course of time, by immigrants from Continental Europe who are now entering Canada in large numbers. Has the Britisher not the right to receive at least an even break on coming to Canada? Here we have about eight thousand men, inured to hard work, practically hand picked (since the slackers and weaklings are eliminated) and yet The Examiner supports those who are doing all they can to discourage these men from remaining here. It is a fallacy to assume that at any time there is only a fixed number of jobs and that the influx of eight thousand can upset the labor situation in a Dominion almost the size of Europe. These men by their very presence here will add to the number of consumers and create thus additional employment. If these hardy workers can find jobs of any kind here they should be welcomed and encouraged to remain. Does The Examiner advocate that the Ministry of Immigration close down for six months in the year? If not, why should the Department spend money this winter in trying, as it undoubtedly will try, to induce others to come here while it is deliberately rejecting some of those actually within its borders. It is to be remembered that responsible authorities both here and in London expressed the hope that the miner-harvester experiment would be the beginning of a larger movement to Canada of the people she desires and needs so much. A poorer method of achieving this can hardly be imagined than that of restricting them to a single occupation.

W. EDGAR.

BLAMES L.C.A.

To the Editor of The Examiner,
Peterborough
Sir:

As a daily reader of The Examiner, I note that news of major importance is now announced under red letter head lines, and this a.m. there appeared as follows: "Says that Toronto Jail Farm is Overcrowded", and reading under we find that two thirds of all committeed are victims of B.L.C.A. under sentence, as a result of not being able to pay a fine or for driving an auto when drunk. After all the valuable regulations of the department of highways, and the motor league, with the object of making the highways safe, there is an alarming increase in accidents, and on reading your news item referred to above, it would seem natural and fair to assume that the L.C.A. is very largely responsible. It is said that when we say a motor driver was drunk that they do not get at the root of the matter, and that the real damage on the hihgway is from those who are under the influence of liquor and think they are perfectly sober, or normal. In other words they are intoxicated, but do not know it. As an explanation of this, Britain created during the war a Liquor Control Board. This Board appointed an advisory committee of scientific men, eight in number, who with the Medical Research Council of England considered the physiological effects of alcohol, and a few of their findings were reported as follows: "Alcohol attacks the functions of the brain and therefore of the nervous system, and mental derangement is at once a consequence. With small doses as they may be the only symptoms noticeable, by the blunting of self-criticism and control which the mind normally exerts. Some of the effects are: 'An uncritical satisfaction of the subject with his own performances, and a disregard of occurrences and condition normally evoking caution of act and word.' This may occur when the dose and degree of action of the alcohol are quite insufficient to cripple manifestly and openly the power to perform routine technical operations without signs of intoxication in the ordinary or legal sense of the term the individual attitude of mind suffers temporary change as an effect of the drug. Defects of judgment and behavior just mentioned are likely to be fraught with serious consequences in all walks of life. 'Accuracy avoidance of accidents observation and discipline are all obviously impaired.'"

The effect of liquor is to impair the judgment to paralyse the sense of caution to make one think he is more fit than ordinary. In this condition risks are taken and accidents occur. The L.C.A. as a temperance measure is a joke. When it was first placed on the statute book three of the strong men of the Province were directed to enforce it. They no doubt made an honest attempt and when they saw that it was unworkable they did the fair thing and resigned and no one will doubt the ability and integrity of the present Control Board, but they are up against an impossibility as long as anyone can buy a license or permit for the sum of two dollars that will entitle him to purchase liquor for beverage purposes in almost unlimited quantities.

Yours truly.
J. F. LILLICRAP.
Lakefield, September 22.

AN EXPLANATION.

The Editor of Examiner.

Dear Sir,—In your issue of September 18 there appeared a report by "Jeanette" of a concert given in Peterborough by the Madrigal Singers of Peterborough, under Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park, and the Peterborough prize-winners in the recent Canadian National Exhibition musical competitions.

This report included the following paragraph:

"Captain Atkinson, in his opening remarks, complimented the city and the citizens generally on the pre-eminence of Peterborough in outside musical circles and of the interest taken here in things intellectual and worth while. He was introduced by R Gliddon, director of the Conservatory of Music, who was one of the judges in the vocal and instrumental sections of the musical competitions at the Canadian National Exhibition this year, and whose Conservatory here shares in the honors which have been awarded its pupils and their teachers, Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park and Miss Edwina Palmer."

We are sure that your reporter did not intend it, but it is just possible that your readers might get the impression that Mr. Gliddon had some influence in securing prizes for the pupils of his Conservatory. Anyone who knows Mr. Gliddon would not think so, but for the benefit of others, will you be kind enough to give this information publicity in your columns.

In only one of these competitions—the mezzo soprano, won by Miss Geraldine Collins, of Peterborough—did Mr. Gliddon assist in adjudicating, and only in the preliminary part of that. During the afternoon of September 6th the preliminary competition of the mezzo soprano was held. The adjudicators were: Messrs. D. D. Slater, Toronto; W. B. Rothwell, Stratford; Henri Jordan, Brantford, and Rupert Gliddon, Peterborough.

From the twenty competitors the five best were selected to sing in the finals that evening. The adjudicators in these finals in the evening were: Messrs. D. D. Slater, Toronto; Francis Coombs, Toronto; Richard Tattersall, Toronto, and Signor E. Ferrari-Fontana.

Mr. Gliddon was not an adjudicator in the finals at all, and had no part in selecting the prize-winners, and neither had he any part whatever in awarding the scholarship, which was also awarded to Miss Geraldine Collins.

The adjudicators in the lyric soprano—the silver medal in which was won by Miss Margaret Dickson, of Campbellford — were: Messrs. D. D. Slater, Toronto; W. B. Rothwell, Stratford; Campion Smith, Toronto; Dr. Healy Willan, vice-principal, Toronto Conservatory of Music, and Miss Nina Gale, Toronto.

In the contralto competition, won by Mrs. Fred. Free, of Campbellford, the adjudicators were: Messrs. Chas. Wheeler, London; W. H. Hewlett, head of the Hamilton Conservatory of Music; D. D. Slater, Toronto; W. H. Bishop, Stratford; Richard Tattersall, Toronto, and Dalton McLaughlin, Toronto.

In the violin (out-of-Toronto) competition, won by Stanley Northrop, of Peterborough, the adjudicators were: Messrs. Donald Heins, Toronto; Alfred Bruce, Toronto; Arthur Oelter, Hamilton, and Elie Spivak, Toronto.

To guard against misunderstanding on the part of your readers, and in all fairness to the competitors, the Peterborough Conservatory of Music and Mr. Gliddon, to the teachers of the successful pupils, the Canadian National Exhibition musical competitions, and to the reporter who wrote the article, and whom we know would feel badly if a misunderstanding resulted, we ask you to kindly publish this explanation. The competitors won entirely on their merits, and are greatly to be congratulated on their success.

Thanking you in anticipation of your kindness, I remain,

Yours very truly,
J. S. ATKINSON, Director, Canadian Bureau for the Advancement of Music.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, September 26. — Few butcher cattle sales made on Monday, leaving them for the market yesterday. The odd sales made yesterday morning show a loss of 25c from last week. Packers buyers are slow purchasers, as a plentiful supply of dressed beef is on hand at plants.

The market moves steadily on cows and bulls at unchanged prices. Choice butcher cows reach $9.00.

Baby beeves remain firm, and are readily picked up at $13.00 to $15.00 for choice. The stocker and feeder cattle received a slight setback.

Springers buyers are picking up choice forward cows at steady prices. The medium and common are poor sellers.

Calf trade holds up well at $15.00 to $16.00 for choice.

Lambs hold the $12.00 market. An odd small bunch brought $12.25.

A Place for Little Bits of Everything of Local Interest

By MARION

THE vacation season is coming to an end. Soon all the cottages at Chemong and the other summer resorts will be closed. On your return at the end of a long summer holiday, have you ever noticed how shabby the house looks?

• • • • • • •

When we come trooping home we are amazed to see the things we had not noticed before—faded cushions, curtains, etc. They look a bit shabbier than we really had expected them to look.

• • • • • • •

Winter, we all know, is a season of parties, of leisure, and contemplation. The first thing then, to be done when one returns from a vacation in the fall, is to put things back in order and to make the home more comfortable and better to look at.

• • • • • • •

Perhaps you are contemplating investing in some new furniture this fall. One piece which will add greatly to the appearance and general comfort of the living room is the right sort of davenport—that is, if the one you have at present is not satisfactory to you.

• • • • • • •

In buying a davenport be sure it is well made. Some housewives prefer down cushions to those made with springs. At any rate, get one plenty big enough to seat three or four people comfortably. If you will take notice at a party the davenport becomes, unconsciously, the centre of attraction. Other chairs are grouped around it.

• • • • • • •

In choosing the davenport coverings, taken into consideration other materials and colors used in the room. If you are starting a new color scheme, by all means start with the davenport.

• • • • • • •

Keep this fairly neutral. If you don't need a new davenport, a slip cover will transform your old one if it needs transforming.

• • • • • • •

Usually, though, in the fall we find that little things have to be given attention first. Even if we aren't thinking of buying a new large piece of furniture such as a piano, radio or davenport, we are planning to add minor accesories. These are very important. Too much cannot be said about occasional tables. Be careful when you buy these tables—take the other furnishings of the room into consideration.

• • • • • • •

There should be one fairly large living room table. The most convenient one is a long narrow one. This may be placed at a window or against a wall. By all means never have a table in the middle of the living room. The old fashioned centre table placed just in the middle of the room broke up the floor spaces.

• • • • • • •

On the large library table you will want a reading lamp and some books. The runner on this table would be a very simple one, Other occasional tables should be placed close to chairs.

• • • • • • •

A new chair might help your living-room in the fall. Low comfortable club chairs are always good. You may also add lamps and lamp shades with good effect.

• • • • • • •

Why not discard some of those silk shades you have been using and replace them with crisp, smart parchment shades? The best color for a lamp shade is soft amber. Amber or yellow parchment shades may be decorated with quaint floral pictures or with simple designs or borders.

• • • • • • •

It would not be a wise thing to neglect the rest of the house, however, just because of the living room. Add something in each room in order to brighten and freshen it up.

New millinery styles shown in many George street stores present fine workmanship in stitching, mosaics and fine tucking that forms creased patterns. Geometrics are used in triangles and slender lines.

• • • • • • •

One of our local dry goods stores had on display last week, many patterns in transparent velvets. These are reported in high favor this fall for autumn dresses. Transparent velveteens are also shown.

• • • • • • •

Have you seen those cunning little vegetable bins designed for the model kitchen or pantry. They are made of heavy metal, enameled, and stand about two feet high, just tall enough to fit nicely under the kitchen sink, conveniently near the place of need, yet out of the way, or, if the pantry is cooler, they fit nicely under the shelf by the window.

• • • • • • •

A good cleaner for silk, satin, lace or any other cloth, it is suggested, is the following. Cover the soiled parts with a paste made of granulated cornmeal and gasoline and leave on for a short time; then brush off thoroughly. This leaves no rings or streaks.

THE MIRROR OF THE MODE

By Mary Marshall.

This nightgown consists of a skirt portion of pleated crepe de chine edged with lace, and an overblouse lace edged and with lace medallions in the front. There is a tie belt with bows and ends at the front.

Grandmother, who went to bed when she was a girl wearing a long-sleeved flannel nightgown buttoned up to the neck and a substantial night cap strikes the girl of today as having been rather amusing. Of course the girl of today thinks that she would never have consented to such an unbecoming night ensemble. But she—the Girl of Today—when she decides to sleep on an open sleeping porch through the autumn and perhaps all winter rather proudly displays her new sleeping garment, made like a bag of heavy wool with a smaller bag at the top for her head. Compared to this, grandma's nightgown and cap were the embodiment of grace and daintiness.

"But Grandma didn't sleep on a sleeping porch," says the Girl of Today.

And it's no use telling her that Grandma's bedroom was probably nearly as cold as a sleeping porch even if it wasn't so well ventilated.

Fashions in night clothes change as much, though not quite so frequently, as fashions in day clothes. High necks come into favor and go out again. Sleeveless nightgowns are the fashion, only to give way to long-sleeved pajamas.

At present the idea seems to be that if you intend to sleep on a sleeping porch then do the thing in a thoroughgoing manner and wear the garment that looks as if it were part of an arctic explorer's trousseau. If you are going to pamper yourself and sleep indoors—though of course with windows left open—then wear a dainty nightgown and try to arrange to have the windows closed and the heat turned on by the time you need to rise from your well-blanketed nest. Half-way measures in the way of long-sleeved outing flannel nightgowns make little appeal to the girl who wants to be up to date.

In the meantime the trend toward what the fashion writers call increased femininity brings a revival of the use of much lace, ribbons and fine embroidery in many of the new nightgowns. The sketch shows one of the new two-piece models made with a separate skirt.

MARION'S MAIL

Address correspondence to Marion, at The Examiner Office.

Dear Marion,

A few days ago I was asked what I did with pumpkins besides make pies. I make marmalade, and when it freezes up, I boil up a lot of pumpkin and put in a crock in the wood-shed shelf, and there is always fresh pumpkin for pies, unless weather comes soft enough to thaw it, then it may mould, and be useless.

Many people can it, and I have seen it cut in thin strips and dried. Others use it as a vegetable, with butter, pepper and salt, and again others as a sauce, with butter, or cream, sugar and spice, or lemon juice.

Here is a recipe for—

Pumpkin Marmalade.

3 quarts of finely cut pumpkin
2 quarts of granulated sugar
2 lemons or one lemon and one orange.

Field pumpkin is the nicer for marmalade. Some use the chopper, but to cut in tiny cubes, is better. Just take a good piece of pumpkin, skin and all, after removing seeds and the soft material around them, and slice down to the skin, making the slices about the thickness of a match, then turn your piece sideways, and slice down across these little slices, and there are a lot of little pieces like matches, fastened to the skin at one end, then shave right across these, and there are pretty, tiny cubes. Keep on until you have the required quantity. It can be done very quickly. Stir in the two quarts of sugar, let stand until next day, add the grated rind of the lemons or lemon and orange, and the juice, let boil slowly until it is thick. If you prefer to slice the lemons very thin let them boil a few minutes in very little water, putting with the pumpkin.

If you care for it add a little root ginger, or a cup of chopped walnuts.

Squash may be used instead of pumpkin.

Yours truly,
Mrs. Warsaw.

Thank you very much, Mrs. Warsaw, for your timely hints on using pumpkins. Your plans are very attractive, and I'm sure a lot of readers will be glad to use your recipe. I always like to receive your letters, so write soon again.

"Dear Marion,

I like the pointed slip pattern you sent, and have already made one up. It is a great convenience being able to get so good helps from you. All I have to offer in return is a little hint about kitchen window hangings. I have flowered chintz, which is somewhat unusual, and, being handy with a brush, I have repeated the floral design in the painted frame of a mirror hung near the dining room door. These two touches of color brighten the whole kitchen.

Yours very truly,
Betsy."

Thank you, Betsy, for your appreciation and for the hint. I'm sure your kitchen must look very attractive. It isn't necessary, Betsy, to feel obligated to write to the page just because I was able to help out in some way, but I can't tell you how much I do appreciate it when the neighbors rally around to help out!

THE LOVE LOOK.

By Caroline Byrd.

Carolyn Forsythe had been a debutante a long, long time ago—or at least it seemed a long, long time to her. In one way her life had been full and happy, in another it had been empty. She had had her love affairs, yes, just like other girls and they had been blissful, disappointing—forgotten. The only man who had left an incurable longing through the years was Montgomery Wooten. From earliest childhood she had worshipped him; he was a little older, a lot richer, a great deal more sought after than she. Her first season he had given her quite a rush which she had interpreted personally, little realizing that he had shown the same courteous attention to practically every other debutante. Then three years later, he had called one evening to tell her of his intention of marrying Edith Simcox. To this day she could feel the dizzy faintness that came over her and she could hear herself saying in a strange voice:

"Monty, I do congratulate you. Edith is such a lovely girl. She and I are quite chummy, you know."

But after that she had given up parties and clubs and devoted herself to welfare work, Red Cross, slumming, church work—she became known among the city's poor as the girl who would work for them until she dropped. She saw little of Montgomery or Edith. She could not bear to see them together, in fact, for at first the sight of his arm thrown lightly about her shoulders would send a pang through her and later when she began to fear that things weren't going so well between them she longed to strangle his wife for making him unhappy.

Then little Edith came and soon afterward the mother died. Montgomery was crushed. He was insanely fond of the little mite and would spend hours by her crib, watching her and reading up on how to care for infants. Carolyn heart went out to him and she longed to run over and offer her services, but she dared not. Perhaps he had guessed her infatuation for him in years past and might think that she was still trying to bring about a match. So she was dumbfounded when he appeared at her home one evening with the baby in his arms.

"Carolyn, what am I going to do with her?" he asked desperately, yet as naturally as if they had been talking about it five minutes before. "Isn't she sweet? Look at those little hands."

It was somehow incredible to Carolyn that this devoted father could be the carefree, debonnair Monty—more attractive and appealing than ever in this new role.

"Oh, let me take care of her," she said impulsively, holding out her arms for the baby.

"But you don't know what a job it is," he warned. "I've tried it, but isn't she dear?" Gently he handed the little bundle of softness to Carolyn.

"How lovely she is," said the girl a little breathlessly. "Your baby, Monty. I can hardly believe it! . . . But you've got her too wrapped up. It's hot today," she went on. "Feel; her little hand's all moist with perspiration. That's the way babies catch cold."

At last before he left she had consented to take the baby for a little while until he could do something better and in a few hours' time the sedate household was turned topsy turvy by the arrival of the little one.

After that Monty came every day to see his baby and together he and Carolyn would go into the nursery and watch her grow, as the girl laughingly put it. They had a nurse but between them there was little for her to do.

One day Monty was greeted at the door by a perfectly hilariously happy girl who told him excitedly: "Edith has a tooth, a real sure enough tooth. She'll be talking next!"

At the end of her first year she could say Dada and Byby. Whether she really meant Dada and Byby is of no importance for what if it were merely the gurgling of a contented happy infant?

In little Edith Carolyn at last found a home for her starved affections and she bloomed again with an attractiveness that her girlhood had lacked. She was fundamentally the mother type, and when she passed down the street with little Edith people turned to look at her. Only one thing marred her perfect happiness: she lived in constant fear of Monty marrying again and taking Edith away. Carolyn knew that he would never marry her for had he not had ample opportunity in times gone by? And besides, he never showed the slightest sign of being in love with her. Then the blow fell. He came in one winter evening after Edith had been put to bed and dropped down in an armchair by the fire.

"Carolyn," he said after awhile, "I'm—I'm planning to get married again."

"Oh, no," she cried, starting up. "Monty, you can't take her away. She loves me and I"—she burst into tears.

"Hush, dear," he soothed, going over to her and stroking her heaving shoulders. "Don't you understand—I want to marry you."

"No! Impossible," said Carolyn, looking up quickly.

"I'd believe you meant that, dear," he said, "if I hadn't seen a little love look in your eyes when we were standing by Edith's crib last. I'd been watching for it so long. Eyes don't lie, so that must have been a yes sort of no, dear."

"Well—well, maybe it was," she laughed happily, the little love look coming back into her eyes.

LONG LIFE FOR LINENS

Linen damask table cloths and napkins should have the scrutiny of your home washing if possible. Otherwise select a thoroughly reliable laundry in which cutting solutions are not used.

New linens should be laundered before they are put away for storage.

Linen actually enjoys exposure to the sun and dew and, in fact, no substitute has ever been found to compare with this sun bath in keeping linens beautifully white.

Store linens in chests subjected to an even temperature. Always avoid the excessive concentrated heat of radiators and pipes. Cedar chests are probably the best containers.

Wrap your linens for storage in fast colored blue paper.
